SCHEDULE "A"

SHARE CAPITAL

The unlimited share capital of the company contains seven (7) classes of shares with the following rights, privileges, conditions and restrictions:

A) CLASS A SHARES: The rights, privileges, conditions and restrictions attached to an unlimited number of class A shares without nominal value, are as follows:

1) Dividends and participation. Subject to the rights and privileges attached to the other classes of shares, holders of class A shares shall have the right, equal in all respects with holders of class B shares:

a) to participate in the property, profits and surplus assets of the company, and for that purpose, to receive any dividend declared by the company, and

b) to share in remaining property of the company upon dissolution.

2) Restriction. Subject to section 123.70 of the COMPANIES ACT, no dividend can be paid on class A shares nor can such shares be acquired by the company which would result in the realizable value of the net assets of the company being insufficient to redeem class D and E shares.

3) Right to vote. Holders of class A shares shall have the right to vote at any meeting of the shareholders of the company. Each class A share confers one (1) vote, except at meetings at where only the holders of certain classes of shares are entitled to vote.

4) Right to convert. Subject to the approval by the directors of the company and by the holders of the majority of outstanding class D shares, any holders of class A shares shall have the right, if he so decides, to exchange all or part of the class A shares that he holds for class D shares, according to the prorata and conditions hereunder contained: the rate of conversion shall be one (1) class D share for each class A share exchanged, the new class D share representing the same amount added to the stated capital account issued and paid for the converted class A share.

A class A shareholder who wishes to prevail himself of this right of exchange shall submit to the head office of the company or its transfer agent a written notice indicating the number of class A shares he wishes to exchange. The notice shall bear the signature of the shareholder registered in the register of securities of the company as being the sole qualified person to exercise the rights attached to the shares, or the signature of his representative. Certificates representing the class A shares submitted for exchange shall be attached to the notice. Upon receipt of the above-mentioned notice and certificates, the company shall issue a certificate for the class D shares resulting from the exchange. If only part of the class A shares represented by the above-mentioned certificates are to be converted, the company shall, without charge, issue a new certificate representing the class A shares which were not exchanged.

On the date of exchange, the converted class A shares shall automatically be cancelled, and the company shall amend accordingly its issued and paid-up share capital account for class A and D shares in conformity with the provisions of sections 123.50 and 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

B) CLASS B SHARES: The rights, privileges, conditions and restrictions attached to an unlimited number of class B shares without nominal value, are as follows:

1) Dividends and participation. Subject to the rights and privileges attached to the other classes of shares, holders of class B shares shall have the right, equal in all respects with holders of class A shares:

a) to participate in the property, profits and surplus assets of the company, and for that purpose, to receive any dividend declared by the company, and

b) to receive the remaining property of the company upon dissolution.

2) Restriction. Subject to section 123.70 of the COMPANIES ACT, no dividend can be paid on class B shares nor can such shares be acquired by the company which would result in the realizable value of the net assets of the company being insufficient to redeem class D and E shares.

3) Right to vote. Subject to the provisions of the COMPANIES ACT, holders of class B shares shall not be entitled, as class B shareholders only, to vote at any meeting of shareholders of the company, nor to receive a notice of such meeting and to attend same.

C) CLASS C SHARES: The rights, privileges, conditions and restrictions attached to an unlimited number of class C shares without nominal value, are as follows:

1) Dividends and participation. Holders of class C shares shall not participate in the profits and surplus assets of the company and, for that purpose, shall not be entitled to any dividend declared by the company.

2) Reimbursement. In the event the assets of the company were distributed following its dissolution, voluntary or forced liquidation or otherwise, holders of class C shares have a right, prior to ail other classes of shareholders of the company, to be reimbursed the amount added to the issued and paid-up share capital account for these class C shares.

3) Right to vote. Holders of class C shares shall have the right to vote at any meeting of the shareholders of the company. Each class C share confers one (1) vote, except at meetings where only holders of certain other classes of shares are entitled to vote.

4) Automatic redemption. The death of a shareholder holding class C shares shall automatically result in the redemption by the company of all class C shares held by such shareholder in the share capital, for a price equal to the amount added to the issued and paid- up share capital account for these shares. Within thirty (30) days of the date of redemption, the company shall pay such price to the executor or administrator, upon receipt of the certificates representing the redeemed shares, subject to section 123.54 of the COMPANIES ACT.

On the date of redemption, the redeemed class C shares shall be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class C shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

5) Right to purchase. The company may, when it deems it advisable to do so, without notice and without taking into account the other classes of shares, purchase by mutual agreement, at the best possible price, all or part of the outstanding class C shares.

On the date of purchase, the purchased class C shares shall automatically be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class C shares according to section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

6) Veto Right. No conversion of class C shares, creation of new classes of shares, equal or preferential to class C shares, or modifications concerning class C shares, or other existing classes of shares for the purpose of conferring to these other classes of shares equal or preferential rights or privileges to class C shares, shall be authorized unless this conversion, creation or modification is approved on a vote regrouping 3/4 of the holders of class C shares present or represented at a general or special meeting convened to this effect, and subject to the other provisions of the COMPANIES ACT.

D) CLASS D SHARES: The rights, privileges, conditions and restrictions attached to an unlimited number of class D shares without nominal value, are as follows:

1) Dividends. Holders of class D shares shall have the right to receive, prior to holders of class A, B, E, F and G shares, out of the funds applicable to the payment of dividends, as and when such dividends are declared, a monthly, preferential, non-cumulative dividend of one per cent (1%) per month on the redemption value of class D shares, as defined in subsection (5) hereunder. Such dividend shall not be declared for more than one month at a time and shall be payable from the date, at the time and in the manner which may be determined by the directors.

2) Reimbursement. In the event the property of the company should be distributed following its dissolution, voluntary or forced liquidation or otherwise, holders of class D shares shall have the right, prior to the holders of class A, B, E, F and G shares, but after holders of class C shares, to be reimbursed the redemption value of class D shares as defined in subsection (5) hereunder, plus the amount of any declared unpaid dividend on class D shares.

3) Additional participation. Holders of class D shares shall not otherwise participate in the profits or surplus assets of the company.

4) Right to vote. Subject to the provisions of the COMPANIES ACT, holders of class D shares shall not be entitled, as class D shareholders only, to vote at any meeting of shareholders of the company, nor to receive a notice of such meeting and to attend same.

5) Right to redeem. Subject to the provisions of section 123.54 of the COMPANIES ACT, each class D share is redeemable upon written request by its holder, if the company can do so legally, at a price which shall include the amount added to the issued and paid-up share capital account for this share, plus a premium equal to the difference between this added amount and its share of the fair market value at the time of exchange, of the class A shares of the company exchanged for class D shares.

Such a price of redemption shall be considered as the redemption value of class D shares and the company shall, in addition, remit to holders of class D shares so redeemed, the amount of the declared unpaid dividends on these shares, as the case may be. The amount of the above-mentioned premium shall be determined by the company and the holders of class D shares on the basis of the estimated fair market value of class A shares on the date of conversion into class D shares.

In the event the federal and/or provincial Revenue Departments should attribute to these class A shares a fair market value different from that determined by the aforementioned persons, the departmental evaluations of the fair market value of class A shares on the date of conversion shall be conclusive and the amount of the premium shall be reduced or increased consequently, provided that the company and holders of class D shares had an opportunity to contest the validity of such departmental evaluations with the departments or before the Courts, and provided that should there be a discrepancy between the provincial and federal evaluations, the above adjustment shall be based on the lowest evaluation determined following an unquestioned assessment or a final Court decision, as the case may be.

On the date of redemption, class D shares redeemed with the agreement of their holders shall be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class D shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

6) Right to purchase. Subject to the provisions of section 123.56 of the COMPANIES ACT, the company may, when it deems it advisable to do so, without notice and without taking into account the other classes of shares, purchase by mutual agreement all or part of the outstanding class D shares at the best possible price, which in no way shall exceed the aforementioned redemption price nor the realizable value of the net assets of the company.

On the date of purchase, the purchased class D shares shall automatically be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class D shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

7) Veto Right. No conversion of class D shares, creation of new classes of shares, equal or preferential to class D shares, or modifications concerning class D shares, or other existing classes of shares for the purpose of conferring to these other classes of shares equal or preferential rights or privileges to class D shares, shall be authorized unless this conversion, creation or modification is approved on a vote regrouping 3/4 of the holders of class D shares present or represented at a general or special meeting convened to this effect, and subject to the other provisions of the COMPANIES ACT.

E) CLASS E SHARES: The rights, privileges, conditions and restrictions attached to an unlimited number of class E shares without nominal value, are as follows:

1) Dividends. Holders of class E shares shall have the right to receive, prior to holders of class A, B, F and G shares, but after holders of class D shares, out of the funds applicable to the payment of dividends, as and when such dividends are declared, a monthly, preferential, non-cumulative dividend of one per cent (1%) per month on the redemption value of class E shares, as defined in subsection (5) hereunder. Such dividend shall not be declared for more than one month at a time and shall be payable from the date, at the time and in the manner which may be determined by the directors.

2) Reimbursement. In the event the property of the company should be distributed following its dissolution, voluntary or forced liquidation or otherwise, holders of class E shares shall have the right, prior to the holders of class A, B, F and G shares, but after holders of class C and D shares, to be reimbursed the redemption value of class E shares as defined in subsection (5) hereunder, plus the amount of any declared unpaid dividends on class E shares.

3) Additional participation. Holders of class E shares shall not otherwise participate in the profits or surplus assets of the company.

4) Right to vote. Subject to the provisions of the COMPANIES ACT, holders of class E shares shall not be entitled, as class E shareholders only, to vote at any meeting of shareholders of the company, nor to receive a notice of such meeting and to attend same.

5) Obligation to redeem. Subject to the provisions of section 123.54 of the COMPANIES ACT, class E shares shall be redeemed by the company totally or partially, at any time upon written request of the holders of class E shares, at a price equal to the amount added to the issued and paid-up share capital account for these shares, plus a premium equal to the difference between the fair market, at the time these class E shares were issued, of the consideration received by the company for issuing these class E shares and the total comprised of:

a) the amount added to the issued and paid-up share capital account for these shares, and

b) the fair market value of any property, other than class E shares, given in payment by the company for that consideration.

Such a price shall be considered as the redemption value of class E shares and the company shall, in addition, remit to holders of class E shares so redeemed, the amount of the declared unpaid dividends on these shares, as the case may be. The fair market value of the aforementioned consideration shall be as determined by the company and the subscriber to class E shares upon issuance of class E shares.

In the event the federal and/or provincial Revenue Departments should attribute to this consideration a fair market value different from that determined by the aforementioned persons, the departmental evaluations shall be conclusive and the amount of the premium shall be reduced or increased consequently, provided that the company and holders of class E shares had an opportunity to contest the validity of such departmental evaluations with the departments or before the Courts, and provided that should there be a discrepancy between the provincial and federal evaluations, the above adjustment shall be based on the lowest evaluation determined following an unquestioned assessment or a final Court decision, as the case may be.

The above-mentioned redemption shall be carried out by the company without regard to other classes of shares. Within thirty (30) days following the date of redemption, the company shall pay the redemption price to the former class E shareholders. Should the company be unable to pay the full redemption price within that delay by reason of the provisions of section 123.54 of the COMPANIES ACT, it shall pay a first amount on account of the full redemption price within the thirty (30) day delay, and pay the balance as soon as it can do so legally.

On the date of redemption, class E shares redeemed with the agreement of their holders shall be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class E shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

What is more, if in the event of a price adjustment, the company redeem all of class E shares, the company shall pay to its shareholders, as soon as it can legally do so, an additional sum, if the premium is increased, or the holders of the redeemed shares will repay any sum due in the event that the adjustment decreases the premium, with all interest at the highest rate between the one prescribed by virtue of Article 28 of the LAW OF THE MINISTRY OF REVENUE (L.C.Q.) or the one prescribed by Article 4301 of the REGULATIONS OF THE FEDERAL INCOME TAX ACT, as determined from time to time, prorata to the class E shares held by each shareholder. If only a part of the class E shares were redeemed, the portion of the additional payment or repayment, as the case may be, corresponding to the redeemed shares will be made as soon as is legally possible, with interest at the rate hereinabove mentioned, and with regard to the shares still to be redeemed. The value of these shares will modify, either more or less, as the case may be, the amount of the premium for these shares.

6) Right to purchase. Subject to the provisions of section 123.56 of the COMPANIES ACT, the company may, when it deems it advisable to do so, without notice and without taking into account the other classes of shares, purchase by mutual agreement all or part of the outstanding class E shares at the best possible price, which in no way shall exceed the aforementioned redemption price nor the realizable value of the net assets of the company.

On the date of purchase, the purchased class E shares shall automatically be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class E shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

7) Veto Right. No conversion of class E shares, creation of new classes of shares, equal or preferential to class E shares, or modifications concerning class E shares, or other existing classes of shares for the purpose of conferring to these other classes of shares equal or preferential rights or privileges to class E shares, shall be authorized unless this conversion, creation or modification is approved on a vote regrouping 3/4 of the holders of class E shares present or represented at a general or special meeting convened to this effect, and subject to the other provisions of the COMPANIES ACT.

F) CLASS F SHARES: The rights, privileges, conditions and restrictions attached to an unlimited number of class F shares without nominal value, are as follows:

1) Dividends. Holders of class F shares shall have the right to receive, prior to holders of class A, B and G shares, but after holders of class D and E shares, out of the funds applicable to the payment of dividends, as and when such dividends are declared, an annual, preferential, non-cumulative dividend of one dollar (1$) per share; such dividend shall be payable from the date, at the time and in the manner to be determined by the directors.

2) Reimbursement. In the event the property of the company should be distributed following its dissolution, voluntary or forced liquidation or otherwise, holders of class F shares shall have the right, prior to the holders of class A, B, and G shares, but after holders of class C, D and E shares, to be reimbursed the amount added to the issued and paid-up share capital account for class F shares and to be paid the amount of any declared unpaid dividends on class F shares.

3) Additional participation. Holders of class F shares shall not otherwise participate in the profits or surplus assets of the company.

4) Right to vote. Subject to the provisions of the COMPANIES ACT, holders of class F shares shall not be entitled, as class F shareholders only, to vote at any meeting of shareholders of the company, nor to receive a notice of such meeting and to attend same.

5) Obligation to redeem. Subject to the provisions of section 123.54 of the COMPANIES ACT, any holders of class F shares may demand in writing at any time from the company that it redeems to that effect, all or part of the shares of that class held by that same shareholder, at a price equal to the amount added to the issued and paid-up share capital account for these shares, plus the amount of any declared unpaid dividends on class F shares, as the case may be. Upon receipt of such a request, the company shall redeem these shares forthwith and shall pay to the former holder of class F shares, all or part of the aforementioned redemption price which it can then pay without committing an offence under section 123.54 of the COMPANIES ACT; the company shall pay him the full balance, should there be one, as soon as it can legally do so.

On the date of redemption, class F shares redeemed with the agreement of their holders shall be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class F shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

6) Right to purchase. Subject to the provisions of section 123.56 of the COMPANIES ACT, the company may, when it deems it advisable to do so, without notice and without taking into account the other classes of shares, purchase by mutual agreement all or part of the outstanding class F shares at the best possible price.

On the date of purchase, the purchased class F shares shall automatically be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class F shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

7) Veto Right. No conversion of class F shares, creation of new classes of shares, equal or preferential to class F shares, or modifications concerning class F shares, or other existing classes of shares for the purpose of conferring to these other classes of shares equal or preferential rights or privileges to class F shares, shall be authorized unless this conversion, creation or modification is approved on a vote regrouping 3/4 of the holders of class F shares present or represented at a general or special meeting convened to this effect, and subject to the other provisions of the COMPANIES ACT.

G) CLASS G SHARES: The rights, privileges, conditions and restrictions attached to an unlimited number of class G shares without nominal value, are as follows:

1) Dividends. Holders of class G shares shall have the right to receive, prior to holders of class A and B shares, but after holders of class D, E and F shares, out of the funds applicable to the payment of dividends, as and when such dividends are declared, an annual, preferential, non-cumulative dividend of one dollar (1$) per share; such dividend shall be payable from the date, at the time and in the manner which may be determined by the directors.

2) Reimbursement. In the event the property of the company should be distributed following its dissolution, voluntary or forced liquidation or otherwise, holders of class G shares shall have the right, prior to the holders of class A and B shares, but after holders of class C, D, E and F shares, to be reimbursed the amount added to the issued and paid-up share capital account for class G shares and to be paid the amount of any declared unpaid dividends on class G shares.

3) Additional participation. Holders of class G shares shall not otherwise participate in the profits or surplus assets of the company.

4) Right to vote. Subject to the provisions of the COMPANIES ACT, holders of class G shares shall not be entitled, as class G shareholders only, to vote at any meeting of shareholders of the company, nor to receive notice of such meeting and to attend same.

5) Unilateral right to redeem. Subject to the provisions of section 123.53 of the COMPANIES ACT, the company may, if it wishes, redeem class G shares unilaterally by giving a thirty (30) day written notice of its intention and by paying a price equal to the amount added to the issued and paid-up share capital account for these shares, plus the amount of any declared unpaid dividends on these shares. In the event of partial redemption, such redemption shall be proportionate to the number of outstanding class G shares, excluding fractions of shares.

On the date of redemption, the redeemed class G shares shall be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class G shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

6) Right to purchase. Subject to the provisions of section 123.56 of the COMPANIES ACT, the company may, when it deems it advisable to do so, without notice and without taking into account the other classes of shares, purchase by mutual agreement all or part of the outstanding class G shares at the best possible price.

On the date of purchase, the purchased class G shares shall automatically be cancelled, and the company shall reduce its issued and paid-up share capital account for class G shares according to the provisions of section 123.51 of the COMPANIES ACT.

7) Veto Right. No conversion of class G shares, creation of new classes of shares, equal or preferential to class G shares, or modifications concerning class G shares, or other existing classes of shares for the purpose of conferring to these other classes of shares equal or preferential rights or privileges to class G shares, shall be authorized unless this conversion, creation or modification is approved on a vote regrouping 3/4 of the holders of class G shares present or represented at a general or special meeting convened to this effect, and subject to the other provisions of the COMPANIES ACT.

(d) The Stock Prices set forth in the table above will be adjusted as of any date on which the Conversion Ratio is adjusted. The adjusted Stock Prices will be equal to the Stock Prices immediately prior to such adjustment, multiplied by a fraction, the numerator of which is the Conversion Ratio immediately prior to the adjustment giving rise to the Stock Price adjustment and the denominator of which is the Conversion Ratio as so adjusted. The number of Additional Shares in the table above will be adjusted in the same manner and at the same time as the Conversion Ratio as set forth under Section 6.

(e) The exact Stock Price and Effective Date may not be set forth on the table above, in which case:

(i) if the Stock Price is between two Stock Prices on the table or the Effective Date is between two Effective Dates on the table, the number of Additional Shares shall be determined by straight-line interpolation between the number of Additional Shares set forth for the higher and lower Stock Prices or the earlier and later Effective Dates, as applicable, based on a 365-day year;

(ii) if the Stock Price is in excess of CDN$100 per share (subject to adjustment in the same manner as the Stock Prices), no Additional Shares will be added to the Conversion Ratio in excess of the Additional Shares that would be added if the Stock Price was CDN$100 per share (subject to adjustment in the same manner as the Stock Prices); and

(iii) if the Stock Price is less than CDN$10 per share (subject to adjustment in the same manner as the Stock Prices), no Additional Shares will be added to the Conversion Ratio in excess of the Additional Shares that would be added if the Stock Price was CDN$10 per share (subject to adjustment in the same manner as the Stock Prices).

(f) Whenever any provision herein requires the Corporation to calculate the Closing Sale Prices or the Stock Prices for purposes of a Fundamental Change or a dividend payment made in Common Shares over a span of multiple days, the Board shall make appropriate adjustments to each to account for any adjustment to the Conversion Ratio that becomes effective, or any event requiring an adjustment to the Conversion Ratio where the Record Date of the event occurs, at any time during the period when such Closing Sale Prices or Stock Prices are to be calculated.

(g) In the event that the Corporation enters into a merger agreement, a scheme of arrangement or other similar agreement approved by the Board of the Corporation as part of which the Corporation shall merge with a surviving corporation and, as a result of such merger or scheme of arrangement or other agreement, (i) all outstanding Common Shares shall be cancelled and (ii) holders of Common Shares shall be entitled to receive consideration payable wholly in cash (or any other substantially similar merger or sale transaction with substantially similar economic effect), the Corporation shall have a right to exercise the mandatory conversion under Section 10 with respect of the Convertible Preferred Shares notwithstanding that the Liquidity Condition under Section 10(a)(ii) is not at such time met, provided that all other conditions for exercise of the right of mandatory conversion under Section 10 are at such time met and the Holders upon conversion of the Convertible Preferred Shares into Common Shares shall be entitled to participate in the relevant merger, scheme of arrangement or other agreement on the same terms as other holders of Common Shares and Holders shall receive the same consideration payable in connection with such transaction.

6. Conversion Rights and Anti-Dilution Provisions

(a) Subject to the terms and conditions hereof, each Holder shall have the right, at any time and from time to time, at the Holder's discretion, to convert, in whole or in part, its Convertible Preferred Shares into such number of fully paid and non-assessable Common Shares equal to the Conversion Ratio then in effect.

(b) No fractional Common Shares shall be issued upon conversion of the Convertible Preferred Shares. All such conversions shall be rounded up or down, as the case may be, to the nearest whole Common Share.

(c) The conversion privilege herein provided for may be exercised by notice in the form attached hereto as Schedule 6(c) given to the Corporation at least 10 days prior to the date of conversion (provided that in the event of the occurrence of a Fundamental Change or a dividend or other distribution in respect of Common Shares such notice period shall be such shorter period as may be necessary in order to allow Holders to participate in the transaction which has given rise to such Fundamental Change as a holder of Common Shares or the applicable dividend or distribution as a holder of Common Shares) accompanied by a certificate or certificates representing the Convertible Preferred Shares in respect of which the Holder thereof desires to exercise such right of conversion. Such notice shall be signed by the Holder in respect of which such right is being exercised and shall specify the number of Convertible Preferred Shares which the Holder desires to have converted and the date of such conversion, which shall be at least 10 days after receipt of such notice by the Corporation (the "Conversion Date"). On the Conversion Date, the Convertible Preferred Shares which the Holder desires to have converted shall be irrevocably cancelled and the corresponding Common Shares issued, and the Corporation shall issue certificates representing fully paid Common Shares upon the basis herein prescribed and in accordance with the provisions hereof to the Holder represented by the certificate or certificates accompanying such notice. Such conversion shall be deemed to have been made on the Conversion Date, and the person or persons entitled to receive the Common Shares issuable upon such conversion shall be treated for all purposes as the holder or holders of record of such Common Shares as of such date. If less than all of the Convertible Preferred Shares represented by any certificate are to be converted, the Holder shall be entitled to receive a new certificate for the Convertible Preferred Shares representing the shares comprised in the original certificate which are not to be converted, provided that to the extent the relevant Convertible Preferred Shares are represented by one or more global certificates, unless the conversion right is exercised in respect of all Convertible Preferred Shares represented by such global certificate, such certificates shall not be cancelled and the exercise of the conversion right shall instead be annotated on the relevant global certificate.

(d) All Convertible Preferred Shares that shall have been surrendered for conversion as herein provided shall no longer be deemed to be outstanding, and all rights with respect to such shares, including the rights, if any, to receive notices and to vote, shall immediately cease and terminate on the Conversion Date, except only the right of the Holders thereof to receive Common Shares in exchange therefor. Any Convertible Preferred Shares so converted shall be retired and cancelled.

(e) The Conversion Ratio will be adjusted, without duplication, upon the occurrence of any of the following events:

(i) If the Corporation issues Common Shares as a dividend or distribution on substantially all of its Common Shares, or if the Corporation effects a share split or share combination, the Conversion Ratio will be adjusted based on the following formula:

CR_0 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately prior to the Close of Business on the Record Date for such dividend or distribution, or immediately prior to the Open of Business on the Effective Date of such share split or share combination, as the case may be;

CR_1 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately after the Close of Business on the Record Date for such dividend or distribution, or immediately after the Open of Business on the Effective Date of such share split or share combination, as the case may be;

OS_0 = the number of Common Shares outstanding immediately prior to the Close of Business on the Record Date for such dividend or distribution, or immediately prior to the Open of Business on the Effective Date of such share split or share combination, as the case may be; and OS_1 = the number of Common Shares outstanding immediately after giving effect to such dividend or distribution, or such share split or share combination, as the case may be.

Any adjustment made under this Section 6(e)(i) shall become effective immediately after the Close of Business on the Record Date for such dividend or distribution, or immediately after the Open of Business on the Effective Date for such share split or share combination, as the case may be. If any dividend or distribution of the type described in this Section 6(e)(i) is declared but not so paid or made, the Conversion Ratio shall be immediately readjusted, effective as of the date the Board determines not to pay such dividend or distribution, to the Conversion Ratio that would then be in effect if such dividend or distribution had not been declared.

(ii) If the Corporation (a) issues or sells to any person (whether for cash consideration, non-cash consideration or no consideration) any Common Shares at a price per share that is less than 90% of the VWAP of Common Shares over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period ending on, and including, the Trading Day immediately preceding the first public announcement of the terms of the issuance or sale of Common Shares to be issued or sold (provided that no such adjustment needs to be made if the issue or sale price per Common Share is CDN$50 or greater (as the same may be adjusted for any share splits or share combinations)) or (b) distributes, issues or sells to any person any rights, options or warrants entitling such person to purchase or subscribe for Common Shares at a price per share that is less than 90% of the VWAP of Common Shares over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period ending on, and including, the Trading Day (x) immediately preceding the Ex-Date of such distribution or (y) immediately preceding the first public announcement of the terms of the issuance or safe of such rights, options or warrants, the Conversion Ratio will be increased based on the following formula:

where,

CR_0 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately prior to the Close of Business on the Record Date for such distribution or immediately prior to the first public announcement with respect to such issuance or sale (as applicable);

CR_1 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately after the Close of Business on the Record Date for such distribution or immediately after the first public announcement with respect to such issuance or sale (as applicable);

OS_0 = the number of Common Shares outstanding immediately prior to the Close of Business on the Record Date for such distribution or immediately prior to the first public announcement with respect to such issuance or sale (as applicable);

X = the total number of Common Shares to be issued or the total number of Common Shares issuable pursuant to such rights, options or warrants; and

Y = the aggregate price paid for such Common Shares or payable to exercise such rights, options or warrants, divided by the VWAP of Common Shares over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period ending on, and including, the Trading Day immediately preceding the Ex-Date of such distribution or the first public announcement with respect to such issuance or sale.

Any increase made under this Section 6(e)(ii) will be made successively whenever any such Common Shares, rights, options or warrants are distributed, issued or sold and shall become effective immediately after the Close of Business on the Record Date for such distribution or the announcement date with respect to such issuance or sale (as applicable). To the extent that Common Shares are not delivered (after the expiration of such rights, options or warrants or otherwise), the Conversion Ratio shall be readjusted, effective as of the date of such expiration or the date when the issuance or safe was contemplated to take place, to the Conversion Ratio that would then be in effect had the increase with respect to the issuance or sale of such Common Shares, rights, options or warrants or the distribution of such rights, options or warrants been made on the basis of delivery of only the number of Common Shares actually delivered. If such rights, options or warrants are not so distributed, issued or sold or Common Shares are not so issued, or sold, the Conversion Ratio shall be decreased, effective as of the date the Board determines not to make such distribution, issuance or sale to be the Conversion Ratio that would then be in effect if such Record Date for such distribution or the announcement in respect of such issuance or sale had not occurred. If the relevant rights, options or warrants are only exercisable upon the occurrence of certain triggering events, then the Conversion Ratio shall not be adjusted until the triggering events occur.

In determining whether any rights, options or warrants entitle the holders to subscribe for or purchase Common Shares at a price less than 90% of such VWAP of the Common Shares for the applicable 5 consecutive Trading Day period, there shall be taken into account any consideration received by the Corporation for such rights, options or warrants and any amount payable on exercise or conversion thereof, the value of such consideration, if other than cash, to be determined by the Board, which determination shall be final, absent manifest error.

(iii) If the Corporation distributes shares of its capital stock, evidences of its indebtedness or its other assets, securities or property or rights, options or warrants to acquire shares of its capital stock or other securities, to all or substantially all holders of Common Shares, excluding:

(A) dividends, distributions or issuances as to which an adjustment was effected pursuant to Section 6(e)(1) or Section 6(e)(ii) above;

(B) dividends or distributions paid exclusively in cash as to which an adjustment was effected pursuant to (or a cash amount paid pursuant to the last paragraph of) Section 6(e)(iv) below; and

(C) spin-offs as to which the provisions set forth in the last two paragraphs of this Section 6(e)(iii) shall apply, then the Conversion Ratio will be increased based on the following formula:

CR_0 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately prior to the Close of Business on the Record Date for such distribution;

CR_1 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately after the Close of Business on the Record Date for such distribution;

SP_0 = the VWAP of the Common Shares over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period ending on, and including, the Trading Day immediately preceding the Ex-Date for such distribution; and

FMV = the fair market value as of the Record Date for such distribution (as determined by using the difference between (i) the VWAP of Common Shares over 5 consecutive Trading Day period immediately preceding, but excluding, the Ex-Date for such distribution, and (ii) the VWAP of Common Shares over 5 consecutive Trading Day period starting on the Ex-Date for such distribution) of the Corporation's shares, evidences of indebtedness, assets, securities, property, rights, options or warrants distributed with respect to each outstanding Common Share.

Any increase made under the portion of this Section 6(e)(iii) above will become effective immediately after the Close of Business on the Record Date for such distribution. If such distribution is not so paid or made, the Conversion Ratio shall be decreased, effective as of the date the Board determines not to pay the distribution, to be the Conversion Ratio that would then be in effect if such distribution had not been declared.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, if "FMV" (as defined above; provided that to the extent the Corporation has received a third party valuation opinion from an investment bank or accounting firm setting out the fair market value (however designated) of the distributed shares, evidences of indebtedness, assets, securities, property, rights, options or warrants, the "FMV" for the purposes of this paragraph shall be the fair market value determined by such opinion if greater than "FMV" as defined above) is equal to or greater than "SP0"(as defined above), in lieu of the foregoing increase, each Holder shall receive, for each Convertible Preferred Share, at the same time and upon the same terms as holders of Common Shares, the amount and kind of its shares, evidences of the Corporation's indebtedness, its oilier assets, securities or property or rights, options or warrants to acquire its shares or other securities that such Holder would have received as if such Holder owned a number of Common Shares equal to the Conversion Ratio in effect on the Record Date for the distribution.

With respect to an adjustment pursuant to this Section 6(e)(iii) where there has been a payment of a dividend or other distribution on Common Shares consisting solely of shares of any class or series, or similar equity interests, of or relating to a subsidiary or other business unit where such shares or similar equity interest is, or will be when issued, listed or admitted for trading on a Canadian, U.K. or U.S. national securities exchange, which is referred to as a "spin-off," the Conversion Ratio will be increased based on the following formula:

where,

CR_0 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately prior to the Close of Business on the fifth Trading Day immediately following, and including, the Ex-Date for the spin-off;

CR_1 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately after the Close of Business on the fifth Trading Day immediately following, and including, the Ex-Date for the spin-off;

FMV = the VWAP of the shares or similar equity interest distributed to holders of Common Shares applicable to one Common Share over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period immediately following, and including, the Ex-Date for the spin-off; and MP_0 = the VWAP of the Common Shares over the 5 consecutive trading-day period immediately following, and including, the Ex-Date for the spin-off.

The adjustment to the Conversion Ratio under the preceding paragraph shall become effective at the Close of Business on the 5th Trading Day immediately following, and including, the Ex-Date for the spin-off; provided that, for purposes of determining the Conversion Ratio, in respect of any conversion during the 5 Trading Days following, and including, the Ex-Date of any spin-off, references within the portion of this Section 6(e)(iii) related to "spin-offs" to 5 consecutive Trading Days shall be deemed to be replaced with such lesser number of consecutive Trading Days as have elapsed between the Ex-Date of such spin-off and the relevant conversion date.

(iv) If the Corporation pays a dividend or makes a distribution consisting exclusively of cash to all or substantially all holders of Common Shares, (excluding any consideration payable in connection with a tender or exchange offer made by the Corporation or any of its subsidiaries, any cash distributed in a Reorganization Event and any dividend or distribution in connection with the Corporation's Liquidation) the Conversion Ratio will be increased based on the following formula:

where,

CR_0 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately prior to the Close of Business on the Record Date for such dividend or distribution;

CR_1 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately after the Close of Business on the Record Date for such dividend or distribution;

SP_0 = the VWAP of the Common Shares over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period ending on, and including, the Trading Day immediately preceding the Ex-Date for such dividend or distribution; and

C = the amount in cash per Common Share distributed by the Corporation to all or substantially all holders of Common Shares.

Any increase pursuant to this Section 6(e)(iv) shall become effective immediately after the Close of Business on the Record Date for such dividend or distribution. If such dividend or distribution is not so paid, the Conversion Ratio shall be decreased, effective as of the date the Board determines not to pay such dividend or make such distribution, to be the Conversion Ratio that would then be in effect if such dividend or distribution had not been declared.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, if "C" (as defined above) is equal to or greater than "SP_0" (as defined above), in lieu of the foregoing increase, each Holder shall receive, for each Convertible Preferred Share, at the same time and upon the same terms as holders of Common Shares, the amount of cash that such Holder would have received as if such Holder owned a number of Common Shares equal to the Conversion Ratio on the Record Date for such cash dividend or distribution.

(v) If the Corporation or any of its subsidiaries makes a payment in respect of a tender offer or exchange offer (i.e. issuer bid) for Common Shares and the cash and value of any other consideration included in the payment per Common Share exceeds the VWAP of the Common Shares over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period commencing on, and including, the Trading Day next succeeding the last date on which tenders or exchanges may be made pursuant to such tender or exchange offer, the Conversion Ratio will be increased based on the following formula:

where,

CR_0 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately prior to the Close of Business on the last Trading Day of the 5 consecutive Trading Day period commencing on, and including, the Trading Day next succeeding the date such tender or exchange offer expires;

CR_1 = the Conversion Ratio in effect immediately after the Close of Business on the last Trading Day of the 5 consecutive Trading Day period commencing on, and including, the Trading Day next succeeding the date such tender or exchange offer expires;

AC = the aggregate value of all cash and any other consideration (as determined by the Board, which determination shall be final, absent manifest error) paid or payable for shares purchased in such tender or exchange offer;

OS_0 = the number of Common Shares outstanding immediately prior to the date such tender or exchange offer expires (prior to giving effect to the purchase of all shares accepted for purchase or exchange in such tender or exchange offer);

OS_1 = the number of Common Shares outstanding immediately after the date such tender or exchange offer expires (after giving effect to the purchase of all shares accepted for purchase or exchange in such tender or exchange offer); and

SP_1 = the VWAP of the Common Shares over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period commencing on, and including, the Trading Day immediately succeeding the date such tender or exchange offer expires.

The increase to the Conversion Ratio under the preceding paragraph will occur at the Close of Business on the 5th Trading Day immediately following, and including, the Trading Day next succeeding the date such tender or exchange offer expires; provided that, for purposes of determining the Conversion Ratio, in respect of any conversion during the 5 Trading Days immediately following, and including, the Trading Day next succeeding the date that any such tender or exchange offer expires, references within this Section 6(e)(v) to 5 consecutive Trading Days shall be deemed to be replaced with such lesser number of consecutive Trading Days as have elapsed between the date such tender or exchange offer expires and the relevant conversion date.

In the event that the Corporation is, or one of its subsidiaries is, obligated to purchase Common Shares pursuant to any such tender offer or exchange offer, but the Corporation is, or such subsidiary is, permanently prevented by applicable law from effecting any such purchases, or all such purchases are rescinded, then the Conversion Ratio shall be readjusted to be such Conversion Ratio that would then be in effect if such tender offer or exchange offer had not been made.

(f) The Corporation will not be required to adjust the Conversion Ratio for any of the transactions described in Sections 6(e)(ii) through 6(e)(iv) above (other than for share splits or share combinations) if the Corporation makes provision for each Holder to participate in the transaction, at the same time as holders of Common Shares participate, without conversion, as if such Holder held a number of Common Shares equal to the Conversion Ratio in effect on the Record Date, announcement date or Ex-Date, as the case may be, for such transaction, multiplied by the number of Convertible Preferred Shares held by such Holder. Any such participation by Holders will be subject to the approval of the Toronto Stock Exchange, or if the Common Shares are not listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange the approval of such other principal national securities exchange on which the Common Shares are listed.

(g) Notwithstanding anything herein to the contrary, the Corporation will not adjust the Conversion Ratio pursuant to Section 6(e) unless the adjustment would result in a change of at least 1% in the Conversion Ratio then in effect. Any lesser adjustment shall be carried forward and shall be made at the time of, and together with, the next subsequent adjustment, if any, which, together with any adjustment or adjustments so carried forward, shall amount to a change of at least 1% in such Conversion Ratio; provided however, that the Corporation shall make such carried-forward adjustments, regardless of whether the aggregate adjustment is less than 1%, (i) on December 31 of each year, (ii) on the Conversion Date for any converted Convertible Preferred Shares, (iii) upon the occurrence of a Fundamental Change and (iv) in the event that the Corporation exercises its mandatory conversion right pursuant to Section 10. Adjustments to the Conversion Ratio will be calculated to the nearest 1/10,000th. No adjustment to the Conversion Ratio will be made pursuant to Sections 6(e)(ii), (iii) and (iv) above if Holders may participate, at the same time, upon the same terms and otherwise on the same basis as holders of Common Shares and solely as a result of holding Convertible Preferred Shares, in the transaction that would otherwise give rise to such adjustment as if they held, for each Convertible Preferred Share, a number of Common Shares equal to the maximum Conversion Ratio then in effect.

(h) The Conversion Ratio will not be adjusted:

(i) Upon issuance of Common Shares pursuant to any present or future employee benefit or other incentive plan providing for the reinvestment of dividends or interest payable on the Corporation’s shares, securities or evidences of indebtedness and the investment of additional optional amounts in Common Shares under any plan which (x) is in compliance with the Toronto Stock Exchange rules and the rules and regulations of any other exchange on which the Corporation’s shares are listed and (y) provides that the exercise price of the applicable options or other security or rights granted thereunder is equal to or greater than a price at or near the applicable closing price on the business day prior to the grant thereof (it being understood that a price which is 90% or greater than the VWAP of Common Shares over the 5 consecutive Trading Day period ending on, and including, the Trading Day immediately preceding the Ex-Date of such distribution or applicable date of such grant shall be a exercise price compliant with this clause (y)) (such a plan or program in compliance with both clauses (x) and (y), a "Compliant Plan");

(ii) Upon issuance of any Common Shares or rights or warrants to purchase Common Shares pursuant to any present or future employee benefit or other incentive plan or program assumed by the Corporation or any of its subsidiaries. Following such assumption, any grant of any Common Shares or rights or warrants to purchase Common Shares shall be pursuant to any present or future Compliant Plan; or

(iii) Upon the issuance of any Common Shares pursuant to any option, warrant, right or exercisable, exchangeable or convertible security outstanding as of the Issue Date.

(i) If the Corporation has in effect a rights plan while any Convertible Preferred Shares remain outstanding, Holders will receive, upon a conversion of their Convertible Preferred Shares, in addition to Common Shares, a corresponding number of rights in accordance with the rights plan. However, if prior to any conversion, the rights have separated from the Common Shares in accordance with the provisions of the applicable rights plan so that Holders would not be entitled to receive any rights in respect of Common Shares delivered upon conversion of the Convertible Preferred Shares, the Conversion Ratio will be adjusted at the time of separation as if the Corporation had distributed to all holders of Common Shares, shares of the Corporation, evidences of indebtedness, assets, securities, property, rights, options or warrants as described in Section 6(e)(iii) above, subject to readjustment in the event of the expiration, termination or redemption of such rights. Any distribution of rights pursuant to a rights plan that would allow Holders to receive, upon conversion, in addition to any Common Shares, the rights described therein (unless such rights have separated from the Common Shares) shall not constitute a distribution of rights that would entitle Holders to an adjustment to the Conversion Ratio.

(j) In the case of:

(A) any recapitalization, reclassification or change of Common Shares (other than changes resulting from a share split or combination),

(B) any consolidation, amalgamation, merger or combination involving the Corporation,

(C) any sale, lease or other transfer to a third party of the Corporation's consolidated assets and subsidiaries substantially as an entirety, or in each case, as a result of which Common Shares are converted into, or exchanged for, stock, other securities, other property or assets (including cash or any combination thereof) (any such transaction or event, a "Reorganization Event"), then, at and after the effective time of the Reorganization Event, the right to convert each Convertible Preferred Share into Common Shares will be changed into a right to convert such share into the kind and amount of shares, other securities or other property or assets (including cash or any combination thereof) that a holder of a number of Common Shares equal to the Conversion Ratio immediately prior to such Reorganization Event would have owned or been entitled to receive upon such Reorganization Event (such stock, securities or other property or assets, "Reference Property"). In the event holders of Common Shares have the opportunity to elect the form of consideration to be received in such Reorganization Event, the Reference Property into which the Convertible Preferred Shares will be convertible will be deemed to be the weighted average of the types and amounts of consideration received by the holders of Common Shares that affirmatively make such an election. The Corporation may not become a party to any such Reorganization Event unless its terms are consistent with this Section 6(j). Notwithstanding Section 6(e), no adjustment to the Conversion Ratio will be made for any Reorganization Event to the extent shares, securities or other property or assets become the Reference Property receivable upon conversion of the Convertible Preferred Shares.

In these terms of the Convertible Preferred Shares, if Common Shares have been replaced by Reference Property as a result of any such Reorganization Event, references to Common Shares are intended to refer to such Reference Property.

(k) Upon the occurrence of each adjustment or readjustment of the Conversion Ratio under this Section 6, the Corporation shall compute such adjustment or readjustment in accordance with the terms hereof and furnish to each Holder a certificate setting forth such adjustment or readjustment and showing in detail the facts upon which such adjustment or readjustment is based. The Corporation shall, upon the written request at any time of any Holder, furnish or cause to be furnished to such Holder a similar certificate setting forth (i) such adjustments and readjustments, (ii) the Conversion Ratio then in effect, and (iii) the number of Common Shares which then would be received upon the conversion of the Convertible Preferred Shares.

7. Recurring Conversion Ratio Adjustment

(a) In addition to the adjustments to the Conversion Ratio provided for in Section 6 above, the Conversion Ratio shall be adjusted every six (6) months from the Issue Date by multiplying the then in effect Conversion Ratio by the Conversion Ratio Adjustment Factor (the "Recurring Conversion Ratio Adjustment").

(b) If any conversion of the Convertible Preferred Shares or Liquidation of the Corporation occurs between Recurring Conversion Ratio Adjustment dates, the Conversion Ratio shall be adjusted pro rata for the days accrued since the last Recurring Conversion Ratio Adjustment date based on a 365-day year.

8. Undertakings

(a) The Corporation undertakes that it shall:

(i) not incur, and not permit any of its Subsidiaries to incur, any Debt; provided that the Corporation and/or its Subsidiaries may incur (x) additional Debt if the ratio of (i) Consolidated Net Debt to (ii) the Corporation's LTM EBITDA (in each case as of the then most recently ended four full fiscal quarters for which financial statements are available immediately preceding the date on which such additional Debt is incurred (such applicable four fiscal quarter period, the "LTM Period")) would have been 6.7 to 1.0 or less, in each case determined on a pro forma basis, including as if the additional Debt had been incurred and the application of proceeds therefrom had occurred at the beginning of such four quarter period (the "Leverage Ratio Test") and/or (y) Permitted Debt (in the case of this clause (y), notwithstanding whether or not the Leverage Ratio Test referred to above is met);

(ii) not issue any equity securities with a ranking pari passu or superior to the Convertible Preferred Shares;

(iii) not, and not permit any of its Subsidiaries to, acquire any property, person or business (x) in the case of any single acquisition or series of related acquisition transactions, where the consideration payable in respect thereof is in excess of US$250 million or (y) if, since the Issue Date, the Group has already made acquisitions where the aggregate consideration in respect thereof is at least US$500 million (it being understood that (a) ordinary course acquisitions of inventory, equipment, material or other assets or property and (b) the completion of the Transactions shall not be deemed acquisitions for purposes of this provision), in each case, unless consented to by at least 66 2/3% of the Holders either (A) through a written instrument evidencing the Holders consent or (B) by a vote of the Holders at a meeting held and convened in accordance with the bylaws of the Corporation and the Québec Business Corporations Act;

(iv) (x) not require a mandatory conversion if such mandatory conversion would require a regulatory filing or disclosure in respect of any Holder in excess of what is required for an institutional investor waiver in New Jersey; and (y) notify GSO and BlackRock in writing at least 60 days prior to taking any action (including, without limitation, making any application or filing) as a result of which any regulatory filing or disclosure would be required in respect of GSO Group or BlackRock Group in excess of what is required for an institutional investor waiver in New Jersey;

(v) cooperate (including without limitation providing jurisdictional specific revenue, asset values and market share data) with Holders and their counsel (to the extent reasonably requested to do so) in connection with any anti-trust or competition filing, notification, review or analysis by such holder arising out of the Transactions and/or the conversion of any Convertible Preferred Shares or exercise of any related rights (and to the extent applicable, jointly or independently make appropriate filings with the applicable authority); it being understood that to the extent any such information would constitute material non-public or other price sensitive or confidential information such data may be provided on a counsel-to-counsel-only basis;

(vi) within 15 months following the Issue Date, obtain and maintain a second listing of Common Shares on the New York Stock Exchange, NASDAQ or the Main Market of the London Stock Exchange (premium listing), provided that to the extent the Common Shares are listed on the London Stock Exchange, the Corporation shall procure that any Common Shares issued upon conversion, or exercise of rights under, the Convertible Preferred Shares or any other instruments convertible into Common Shares issued in connection with the Transactions are listed on the London Stock Exchange substantially concurrently with such conversion or exercise; the Corporation shall notify GSO and BlackRock in writing of its intention to make an application for such listing or registration at least 60 days prior to the date when the application is filed; and

(vii) comply with the quarterly, annual and periodic public disclosure requirements of the TSX and all such reports shall be filed within the ordinary course time periods prescribed thereby without delay, and the Corporation shall comply with the Registration Rights Agreement. The Corporation shall also furnish to Holders and to securities analysts and prospective investors, upon their request, the information required to be delivered pursuant to Rule 144A(d)(4) under the US Securities Act.

To the extent the Corporation is in breach of the undertakings set out in paragraphs (i) or (ii) above, the Conversion Ratio Adjustment Factor shall be increased by 0.02 per annum (calculated pro rata for the period for which the Corporation has been in breach of the relevant undertaking in the relevant six-month period) for each year in which the Corporation is in breach of such undertaking and each undertaking so breached. To the extent the Corporation is in breach of the undertaking set out in paragraph (iii) above, the Conversion Ratio Adjustment Factor shall be increased by 0.04 per annum (calculated pro rata for the period for which the Corporation has been in breach of the undertaking in the relevant six-month period) for each year in which the Corporation is in breach of such undertaking. To the extent the Corporation is in material breach of any of the undertakings set out in paragraphs (iv), (v), (vi) or (vii) above, and does not cure such breach within 30 days of receipt of a written notice setting out the breach in reasonable detail, the Conversion Ratio Adjustment factor shall be increased by 0.06 per annum (calculated pro rata for the period for which the Corporation has been in breach of the relevant undertaking in the relevant six-month period) for each year in which the Corporation has been in material breach of such undertaking without curing same and each undertaking so breached. These undertakings shall cease to apply when GSO Group ceases to hold at least 50% of the Convertible Preferred Shares issued to GSO Group on the Issue Date and BlackRock Group ceases to hold at least 50% of the Convertible Preferred Shares issued to BlackRock Group on the Issue Date, The undertakings may be waived in writing, in whole or in part, by 66 2/3% of the Holders either (A) through a written instrument evidencing the Holders consent or (B) by a vote of the Holders at a meeting held and convened in accordance with the bylaws of the Corporation and the Québec Business Corporations Act.

(b) Each Holder undertakes that, in the event that a gaming authority of any jurisdiction in which the Corporation currently or in the future conducts or proposes to conduct gaming operations requires that a Holder make a filing or disclosure not more extensive than that required for an institutional investor waiver in New Jersey, such holder agrees to provide reasonable cooperation to the Corporation with respect to such filing or disclosure. For the avoidance of doubt, this undertaking does not imply such Holder shall be obliged to make any regulatory filing or disclosure which would be required in respect of the relevant Holder in excess of what is required for an institutional investor waiver in New Jersey or that the Holder has any obligation to obtain the relevant institutional investor waiver or any other authorization, except for the obligation to provide reasonable cooperation as set out in the preceding sentence.

If (x) a Holder is in breach of the undertaking referred to above, and (y) the relevant Holder does not cure such breach within 30 days of receipt of a written notice setting out the breach in reasonable detail, in the event that the relevant Holder that was or is in breach exercises its right of conversion pursuant to Section 6 hereof or if the Convertible Preferred Shares are subject to the mandatory conversion pursuant to Section 10 hereof, the Conversion Ratio Adjustment Factor in respect of Convertible Preferred Shares held by such Holder shall, for the purposes of such conversion, be deemed to have been decreased by 0.01 per annum (calculated pro rata for the period for which the Holder has been in breach of the undertaking in the relevant semi-annual period) for each year in which the relevant Holder is in breach of such undertaking.

(c) If any conversion of the Convertible Preferred Shares or Liquidation of the Corporation occurs before the adjustment pursuant to the paragraphs (a) and (b) above takes effect, the Conversion Ratio shall be adjusted pro rata for the period for which the Corporation or the Holder, as the case may be, has been in breach of the relevant undertaking.

9. Liquidation Preference

(a) In the event of any Liquidation of (he Corporation, whether voluntary or involuntary, each Holder shall be entitled to receive and to be paid out of the assets of the Corporation available for distribution to its shareholders the greater of: (i) the Initial Liquidation Preference multiplied by an adjustment factor calculated by dividing the Conversion Ratio then in effect by the Initial Conversion Ratio, and (ii) the amount that the Holder would have been entitled to receive if the Convertible Preferred Shares were converted into Common Shares immediately prior to such Liquidation (the "Liquidation Preference").

(b) If, upon a Liquidation, the amount available for distribution among the Holders of all outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares is insufficient to permit the payment of the Liquidation Preference in full, then the amount available for distribution shall be distributed among the Holders of the Convertible Preferred Shares rateably in proportion to the relative Liquidation Preference of the Convertible Preferred Shares held by such Holders.

(c) Neither the sale (for cash, shares, securities or other consideration) of all or substantially all the assets or business of the Corporation (other than in connection with the liquidation, winding-up or dissolution of the Corporation) nor the merger or consolidation of the Corporation into or with any other person shall be deemed to be a Liquidation for the purposes of this Section 9.

(d) After the payment to the Holders of the Liquidation Preference provided for in this Section 9, the Holders as such shall have no right or claim to any of the remaining assets of the Corporation.

10. Mandatory Conversion

(a) At any time on or after the dale which is three (3) years from the Issue Date, the Corporation shall have the right, at its option, to give notice of its election to cause all or, subject to Section 10(b) below, part of the outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares to be automatically converted into that number of Common Shares for each Convertible Preferred Share to be so converted equal to the Conversion Ratio in effect on the Mandatory Conversion Date. The Corporation may exercise its right to cause a mandatory conversion pursuant to this Section 10 only if the following two (2) conditions are satisfied (the "Price/Liquidity Conditions") (i) the Closing Sale Price of the Common Shares exceeds 175% of the Initial Conversion Price for at least 20 Trading Days (whether or not consecutive) in a period of 30 consecutive Trading Days, and (ii), save as provided for under Section 5(g) hereof, the average daily volume on any 20 Trading Days (whether or not consecutive) in the 30 consecutive Trading Day period referred to above is at least 1.75 million Common Shares (the "Liquidity Condition"); provided that the Corporation may only exercise such mandatory conversion, whether in whole or in part, if the applicable 30-day period in which the Price/Liquidity Conditions are satisfied has ended not more than 60 days before the Mandatory Conversion Date. Any forced conversion shall also be conditional upon (x) obtaining all required regulatory approvals (including relevant anti-trust approvals) and, to the extent applicable, receipt by GSO and BlackRock prior to the conversion or substantially concurrently with such conversion of all required institutional investor waivers or other gaming regulatory approvals required as a result thereof (it being understood that neither the GSO Group nor BlackRock Group shall have any obligation to make any regulatory filing or disclosure in excess of what is required for an institutional investor waiver in New jersey) and (y) the GSO Group, alter giving effect to such mandatory conversion, (i) owning (when taken together with other Common Shares of then held) less than 20% of the voting rights attached to the Corporation's securities at the time of conversion, including any securities held by parties acting jointly or in concert with the GSO Group (calculated on a partially diluted basis) and (ii) not being in violation of its undertaking with the Toronto Stock Exchange dated on or around the Issue Date as a result of such mandatory conversion unless the compliance with this clause (y) is waived, or consented to, by both GSO and the Toronto Stock Exchange, Any partial conversion shall be applied on a pro rata basis in respect of all Convertible Preferred Shares.

(b) The Corporation may only require a partial conversion of the outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares as provided in this Section 10 if (i) a mandatory conversion of all of the outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares would require the GSO Group or the BlackRock Group to make regulatory filings or disclosures in excess of what is required for an institutional investor waiver in New Jersey or (ii) a mandatory conversion of all of the outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares may not be exercised as a result of the condition under Section 10(a)(y) not being satisfied. In case of such partial mandatory conversion the Corporation shall be obliged to require conversion in respect of the maximum part of Convertible Preferred Shares that may converted without triggering the filing and disclosure requirements referred to in the previous sentence or without causing a breach of condition under Section 10(a)(y).

(c) To exercise the mandatory conversion right described in Section 10(a), the Corporation must issue a press release for publication on any broadly disseminated news or press release service selected by the Corporation prior to the Open of Business on the fifth Trading Day following any date on which the conditions described in Section 10(a) above are met, announcing such a mandatory conversion. The Corporation shall also give notice by mail or by publication (with subsequent prompt notice by mail) to the Holders (not later than five Business Days after the date of the press release) of the mandatory conversion announcing the Corporation's intention to convert the Convertible Preferred Shares. The conversion dale will be a date selected by the Corporation (the "Mandatory Conversion Date") and will be no earlier than 30 and no later than 45 calendar days after the dale on which the Corporation issues the press release described in this Section 10(c).

(d) In addition to any information required by applicable law or regulation, the press release and notice of a mandatory conversion described in Section 10(c) shall state, as appropriate: (i) the Mandatory Conversion Date; (ii) whether the mandatory conversion applies to all or part of the outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares; and (iii) the number of Common Shares to be issued upon conversion of each Convertible Preferred Share.

(e) On and after the Mandatory Conversion Date, all rights of Holders of such Convertible Preferred Shares shall terminate except for the right to receive the whole Common Shares issuable upon conversion thereof.

(f) On the Mandatory Conversion Date, the Convertible Preferred Shares which the Corporation desires to have converted shall be irrevocably cancelled and the corresponding Common Shares issued, and the Corporation shall issue certificates representing fully paid Common Shares upon the basis herein prescribed and in accordance with the provisions hereof to each Holder entitled thereto. Such conversion shall be deemed to have been made on the Mandatory Conversion Date and the person or persons entitled to receive the Common Shares issuable upon such conversion shall be treated for all purposes as the holder or holders of record of such Common Shares as of such date.

11. Reservation of Common Shares Issuable Upon Conversion

The Corporation shall at all times reserve and keep available out of its authorized but unissued Common Shares, solely for the purpose of effecting the conversion of the then outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares, such number of its Common Shares as shall from time to time be sufficient to effect the conversion of all outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares; and if at any time the number of authorized but unissued Common Shares shall not be sufficient to effect the conversion of all then outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares, in addition to such other remedies as shall be available to the Holder of such Convertible Preferred Shares, the Corporation will take such corporate action as may, in the opinion of its counsel, be necessary to increase its authorized but unissued Common Shares to such number of shares as shall be sufficient for such purposes, including, without limitation, engaging its best efforts to obtain the requisite Board and shareholder approval of any necessary amendment to its Articles.

12. Transferability

The Convertible Preferred Shares will not be listed on any exchange but will be freely transferable at the option of a Holder, subject only to applicable securities laws limitations. All Common Shares issued in respect of Convertible Preferred Shares will be listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange or other principal national securities exchange and shall be freely transferable at the option of the Holder without restriction, subject only to applicable securities laws limitations.

13. Other Provisions

(a) Except as otherwise provided herein, all notices to be given hereunder with respect to the Convertible Preferred Shares shall be deemed to be validly given to the Holders if sent by facsimile transmission, first class mail, postage prepaid, by letter or circular addressed to such Holders at their addresses appearing in the Corporation's registers and shall be deemed to have been effectively given, in the case of facsimile transmission, on the first Business Day following transmission, and, in the case of first class mail, postage prepaid, by letter or circular, on the third Business Day following the transmission or mailing. Error or omission in giving notice or accidental failure to mail notice to any Holder or the inability of the Corporation to give or mail any notice due to any event beyond the reasonable control of the Corporation shall not invalidate any action or proceeding founded thereon.

(b) If any notice given in accordance with the foregoing paragraph would be unlikely to reach the Holders to whom it is addressed in the ordinary course of post by reason of an interruption in mail service which is communicated to the Corporation by the relevant postal service, whether at the place of dispatch or receipt or both, the Corporation shall give such notice by publication at least once in the city of Montreal and in the city of New York (or in such of those cities as, in the opinion of the Corporation/Agent, is sufficient in the particular circumstances), each such publication to be made in a daily newspaper of general circulation in the designated city. Any notice given to Holders by publication shall be deemed to have been given on the day on which publication shall have been effected at least once in each of the newspapers in which publication was required.

(c) Any payment required to be made hereunder on any day that is not a Business Day shall be made on the next succeeding Business Day and no interest on such payment will accrue or accumulate, as the case may be, in respect of such delay.

(d) The Corporation shall be entitled to rely on the certificates of Holders with respect to their holdings of Convertible Preferred Shares, Common Shares or other instruments convertible into, or entitling the holder to delivery of Common Shares.

i. "Board" means the board of directors of the Corporation.

ii. "Gaming" means the conduct of any gaming or gaming-related activities, including, without limitation, the provision of Internet gaming activities (including but not limited to, the operation of related platforms and the provision of software), the use, manufacture, sale or distribution of gaining devices, ticket technology, casino cage and casino credit equipment and services, and any related and associated equipment and services, and the provision of any type of services or equipment pursuant to a contract, agreement, relationship or otherwise with any holder or beneficiary of a Gaming License.

v. "ownership" (and derivatives thereof) means (a) legal ownership as evidenced in the Corporation's share register, (b) beneficial ownership pursuant to the definition of "beneficiary" in Section 2 of the Business Corporations Act (Quebec), as the same may be amended from time to time, or (c) the power to exercise control or direction over a security.

vi. "person" means an individual, partnership, corporation, limited liability corporation, trust or any other entity.

vii. "Redemption" has the meaning ascribed thereto in Section (e) of this Schedule.

viii. "Redemption Date" means the date on which the Corporation will redeem and pay for the Shares pursuant to Section (e) of this Schedule. The Redemption Date will be not less than thirty (30) Trading Days following the date of the Redemption Notice unless a Gaming Authority requires that the Shares be redeemed as of an earlier date, in which case, the Redemption Date will be such earlier date and if there is an outstanding Redemption Notice, the Corporation will issue an amended Redemption Notice reflecting the new Redemption Date forthwith.

ix. "Redemption Notice" has the meaning ascribed thereto in Section (g) of this Schedule.

x. "Redemption Price" means the price per Share to be paid by the Corporation on the Redemption Date for the Redemption and will be equal to the price set forth in the Valuation Opinion, which may, if instructed by the Corporation, take into consideration matters specified by any Gaming Authority.

xi. "Shares" means the Common Shares of the Corporation, xii. "Significant Interest" means ownership of five percent (5%) or more of the Shares.

xiii. "Subject Shareholder" means a person, a group of persons acting in concert or a group of persons who, the Board reasonably believes, are acting in concert

xiv. "Trading Day" means a day on which the Shares (a) are not suspended from trading on any national or regional securities exchange or association or over-the-counter market at the close of business on such day, and (b) have traded at least once on the national or regional securities exchange or association or over-the-counter market that is the primary market for the trading of the Shares.

xv. "Unsuitable Person" means (a) any person (including a Subject Shareholder) who a Gaming Authority has determined to be unsuitable to own Shares; or (b) any person (including a Subject Shareholder) whose ownership of Shares may result in the loss, suspension or revocation (or similar action) with respect to any Gaming License or in the Corporation being unable to obtain a new Gaming License in the normal course, including, but not limited to, as a result of such person's failure to apply for a licensing or a suitability review from or to otherwise fail to comply with the requirements of a Gaming Authority, as determined by the Board, in its sole discretion, after consultation with legal counsel and if a license application has been filed after consultation with the applicable Gaming Authority.

xvi. "Valuation Opinion" has the meaning set out in Section (e) of this Schedule.

(b) Subject to Section (d) of this Schedule, no Subject Shareholder will acquire or dispose of directly or indirectly, in one or more transactions, a Significant Interest without providing 15 days' advance written notice to the Corporation by mail sent to the Corporation's registered office to the attention of the Corporate Secretary.

(c) If the Board reasonably believes that a Subject Shareholder may have failed to comply with the provisions of Section (b) of this Schedule, the Corporation may apply to the Superior Court of Quebec, or such other court of competent jurisdiction for an order directing that the Subject Shareholder disclose the number of Shares held.

(d) The provisions of Sections (b) and (c) of this Schedule will not apply to the ownership, acquisition or disposition of Shares as a result of:

i. any transfer of Shares occurring by operation of law including, inter alia, the transfer of Shares of the Corporation to a trustee in bankruptcy;

ii. an acquisition or proposed acquisition by one or more underwriters or portfolio managers who hold Shares for the purposes of distribution to the public or for the benefit of a third party provided that such third party is in compliance with Section (b); or

iii. the conversion, exchange or exercise of securities of the Corporation (other than the Shares) duly issued or granted by the Corporation, into or for Shares, in accordance with their respective terms.

(e) At the option of the Corporation, Shares owned by an Unsuitable Person may be redeemed by the Corporation (the "Redemption") for the Redemption Price out of funds lawfully available on the Redemption Date. Shares redeemable pursuant to this Section (e) will be redeemable at any time and from time to time pursuant to the terms hereof. Prior to exercising the Redemption, the Corporation shall obtain, at its expense, a written valuation and fairness opinion from an investment banking firm of nationally recognized standing in the United States of America (qualified to perform such task and which is disinterested in the contemplated Redemption and has not in the then past two years provided services for a fee to the Corporation or its affiliates) as to the value of the Shares to be redeemed (including taking into account the percentage of the total outstanding Shares represented by the Shares being redeemed) as of a date not more than thirty (30) Trading Days prior to the date of the Redemption Notice and as to the appropriate and fair form(s) of consideration (and the terms thereof) to be paid by the Corporation to the holder of such Shares in connection with such Redemption (the "Valuation Opinion"). The Redemption Price (which may include payment in cash, promissory note, or both), the form, terms (including date) of payment will be as set forth in the Valuation Opinion and will be paid on the Redemption Date.

(f) In the case of a Redemption of only a portion of the Shares owned by a Subject Shareholder who is an Unsuitable Person, the Board will select the Shares to be redeemed, by lot or in any other manner determined by the Board in its sole discretion.

(g) In the case of a Redemption, the Corporation will send a written notice to the holder of the Shares called for Redemption, which will set forth: (i) the Redemption Date, (ii) the number of Shares to be redeemed on the Redemption Date, (iii) the Redemption Price and the manner of payment therefor, (iv) the place where any certificates for such Shares will be surrendered for payment, duly endorsed in blank or accompanied by proper instruments of transfer, (v) a copy of the Valuation Opinion, and (vi) any other requirement of surrender of the certificates (if any) representing the Shares to be redeemed (the "Redemption Notice"). The Redemption Notice may be conditional such that the Corporation need not redeem the Shares owned by an Unsuitable Person on the Redemption Date if the Board determines, in its sole discretion, that such Redemption is no longer advisable or necessary on or before the Redemption Date.

(h) The Corporation may pay the Redemption Price by using its existing cash resources, incurring debt, issuing a promissory note in the name of the Unsuitable Person, or by using a combination of the foregoing sources of funding.

(i) On and after the date the Redemption Notice is delivered, any Unsuitable Person owning Shares called for Redemption will cease to have any voting rights with respect to such Shares and on and after the Redemption Date specified therein, such holder will cease to have any rights whatsoever with respect to such Shares other than the right to receive the Redemption Price, without interest, on the Redemption Dale; provided, however, that if any such Shares come to be owned solely by persons other than an Unsuitable Person (such as by transfer of such Shares to a liquidating trust, subject to the approval of any applicable Gaming Authority), such persons may exercise voting rights of such Shares, and the Board may determine, in its sole discretion, not to redeem such Shares. Following any Redemption in accordance with the terms of this Schedule, the redeemed Shares will be cancelled.

(j) All notices given by the Corporation to holders of Shares pursuant to this Schedule, including the Redemption Notice, will be in writing and will be deemed given when delivered by personal service, overnight courier or first-class mail, postage prepaid, to the holder's registered address as shown on the Corporation's share register.

(k) The Corporation's right to redeem Shares pursuant to this Schedule will not be exclusive of any other right the Corporation may have or hereafter acquire under any agreement or any provision of the articles or the bylaws of the Corporation or otherwise with respect to the acquisition by the Corporation of Shares or any restrictions on holders thereof.

(l) In the event that any provision (or portion of a provision) of this Schedule or the application thereof becomes or is declared by a court of competent jurisdiction to be illegal, void or unenforceable, the remainder of the Schedule (including the remainder of such provision, as applicable) will continue in full force and effect.

The Board may, from time to time, appoint any other Officer for the same purpose.

3 - DIRECTORS

3.1 Duties of Directors

The Board exercises all the powers necessary to manage, or supervise the management of the business and affairs of the Corporation.

3.2 Qualifications of Directors

Any natural person may be a Director of the Corporation unless such a person is less than 18 years of age, is under guardianship or curatorship, is of unsound mind and has been so found by a court in Canada or elsewhere, is a person for whom the court prohibits the exercise of this function, or has the status of bankrupt. A Director is not required to hold shares of the Corporation.

3.3 Number of Directors

The Board of Directors of the Corporation shall be made up of a minimum and a maximum number of Directors as indicated in the Articles of the Corporation as amended from time to time. The exact number of Directors shall be established from time to time by resolution of the Board.

3.4 Quorum

A majority of the Directors in office constitutes a quorum at any meeting of the Board. In the absence of a quorum within the first fifteen (15) minutes following the start of the meeting, the Directors may only deliberate on the meeting's adjournment. A quorum of Directors may exercise all the powers of the Board despite any vacancy on the Board.

3.5 Election and Term

Directors shall be elected by the shareholders at the first Shareholders Meeting and at each subsequent annual meeting at which an election of Directors is required, by an ordinary resolution adopted by a majority of the votes cast by shareholders able to vote on such resolution, and shall hold office until the next annual Shareholders Meeting or, if elected for an expressly stated term, for a term expiring no later than three (3) years following the election. The election need not be by ballot unless a ballot is demanded by a shareholder who holds or represents by proxy 10% of the issued shares that carry the right to vote at a Shareholders Meeting or required by the chairperson in accordance with section 7.19. If an election of Directors is not held at an annual Shareholders Meeting at which such election is required, the incumbent Directors shall continue in office until their resignation, replacement or removal.

If shareholders holding a certain class or series of shares have an exclusive right to elect one or more Directors, such number of Directors shall be elected by the majority of votes cast by the holders of such class or series of shares

3.6 Removal of Directors

Subject to the Act, the shareholders may, by ordinary resolution passed by a majority of votes cast at a special Shareholders Meeting duly called for that purpose, remove any Director or Directors and may at that meeting elect a qualified person for the remainder of such term.

If shareholders holding a certain class or series of shares have an exclusive right to elect one or more Directors, a Director so elected may only be removed by ordinary resolution passed at a meeting of the shareholders holding such class or series of shares.

A Director whose removal is to be proposed at a Shareholders Meeting must be informed of the time and place of the meeting within the same delays as those prescribed for the calling of such meeting. Such Director may attend the meeting and be heard or, if not in attendance, may explain, in a written statement read by the person presiding over the meeting or made available to the shareholders before or at the meeting, why he or she opposes the resolution proposing his or her removal. In addition, any vacancy created by the removal of a Director may be filled by a resolution of the shareholders at the Shareholders Meeting at which the Director is removed or, if it is not, at a subsequent meeting of the Board.

3.7 Cessation of Office

A Director ceases to hold office when he dies, resigns, is removed or becomes disqualified from holding office.

3.8 Resignation

A Director may resign from office by delivering or sending a written notice to the Corporation and such resignation becomes effective at the time the Director’s written resignation is received by the Corporation or at the time specified in the notice, whichever is later. A Director will immediately cease to hold office when such Director no longer meets the requirements to hold office as specified by the Act.

3.9 Vacancies

Subject to the Act or to the Articles, a quorum of Directors may fill a vacancy on the Board.

If there is no quorum of Directors, or if there has been a failure to elect the number or minimum number of Directors required by the Articles, the Directors then in office must without delay call a special Shareholders Meeting to fill the vacancies on the Board. If the Directors refuse or fail to call a meeting or if there are no Directors then in office, the meeting may be called by any shareholder.

A Director appointed or elected to fill a vacancy holds office for the unexpired term of his or her predecessor and remains in office until his successor is elected or nominated.

3.10 Borrowings

a) borrow money;

b) issue, reissue, sell or hypothecate its debt obligations;

c) enter into a suretyship to secure performance of an obligation of any Person; and

d) hypothecate all or any of its property, owned or subsequently acquired, to secure any obligation.

3.11 Action by the Board

Subject to the Act, the Board shall exercise its powers by or pursuant to a resolution passed at a meeting of the Board at which a quorum is present or approved in writing by all Directors in office.

3.12 Delegation

Subject to the Act, the Articles and any By-laws, the Board may from time to time delegate to a Director, a committee of the Board or an Officer or such other person or persons so designated by the Board all or any of the powers conferred on the Board by the Act to such extent and in such manner as the Board shall determine at the time of each such delegation.

3.13 Resolution in writing

A resolution in writing, signed by all the Directors entitled to vote thereon is as valid as if it had been passed at a meeting of the Board or, as the case may be, of a committee of the Board. A copy of the resolution must be kept with the minutes of the meetings and the resolutions of the Board and its committees.

3.14 Meetings by Telephone, Electronic or other Communication Facility

A Director may, if all of the Directors present or participating at a meeting consent, participate in a meeting of the Board or of a committee of the Board by means of a telephonic, electronic or other communication facility that permits all participants to communicate adequately with each other during the meeting. A Director who participates in such meeting by such means is deemed to be present at that meeting.

3.15 Place of Meetings

Meetings of the Board are held at the registered office of the Corporation or at any other place within or outside of Québec.

3.16 Calling of Meetings

Meetings of the Board shall be held from time to time at such place, on such day and at such time as the Board, the chairperson of the Board, the president, the secretary or any two Directors may determine. Meetings are called by the chairperson of the Board, the president or two Directors or by the secretary upon being asked to call such a meeting by the chairperson of the Board, the president or two Directors.

3.17 Notice of Meetings

The notice stating the time and place of the meeting and specifying any matter to be dealt with relating to powers which the Board may not delegate, shall be given to each Director at least 48 hours before the meeting is to occur. This notice does not have to be given in writing.

Any Director may waive a notice of a meeting of the Board. Attendance of a Director at a meeting of the Board constitutes a waiver of notice of such meeting unless the Director attends such meeting for the sole purpose of objecting to the holding of the meeting on the grounds that it was not duly called.

3.18 First Meeting of New Board

Provided a quorum of Directors is present, each newly elected Board may without notice hold its first meeting following the Shareholders Meeting at which such Board is elected.

3.19 Adjourned Meeting

Notice of an adjourned meeting of the Board is not required if the time and place of the adjourned meeting is announced at the original meeting.

3.20 Votes to Govern

Subject to the Act, at all meetings of the Board, any question shall be decided by a majority of the votes cast on the question and, in the case of an equality of votes, the chairperson of the meeting shall not be entitled to a second or casting vote. Any question at a meeting of the Board shall be decided by a show of hands unless a ballot is required or demanded.

3.21 Chairperson and Secretary

The chairperson of the Board or, in the chairperson’s absence, the president or, in the president’s absence, a vice-president shall be chairperson of any meeting of the Board. If none of these Officers are present, the Directors present shall choose one of their number to be chairperson. The secretary of the Corporation shall act as secretary at any meeting of the Board and, if the secretary of the Corporation is absent, the chairperson of the meeting shall appoint a Person, who need not be a Director, to act as secretary of the meeting.

3.22 Remuneration and Expenses

The Directors shall be paid such remuneration for their services as Directors as the Board may from time to time authorize. In addition, the Board may authorize, by resolution, a special remuneration to a Director who executes specific or additional duties on behalf of the Corporation. The Directors shall also be entitled to be paid in respect of travelling and other expenses properly incurred by them in attending meetings of the Board or any committee thereof or in otherwise serving the Corporation. Nothing herein contained shall preclude any Director from serving the Corporation in any other capacity and receiving remuneration therefor.

3.23 Duty of Loyalty and Conflict of Interest

Subject to the Act, the Directors are bound by the same obligations as are imposed by the Civil Code of Québec (Quebec) on any Director of a legal person. Consequently, in the exercise of their functions, the Directors are duty-bound toward the Corporation to act with prudence and diligence, honesty and loyalty and in the interest of the Corporation.

In particular, but without limiting the generality of the foregoing, a Director may not mingle the property of the Corporation with his own property nor may he use for his own profit or that of a third Person any property of the Corporation or any information he obtains by reason of his duties, unless he is authorized to do so by the shareholders of the Corporation. Directors shall avoid placing themselves in any situation where their Personal interests would be in conflict with their obligations as a Director.

3.24 Contracts or Transactions - Disclosure of Interest

A Director must disclose the nature and value of any interest he or she has in a contract or transaction to which the Corporation is a party. “Interest” means any financial stake in a contract or transaction that may reasonably be considered likely to influence decision-making. Furthermore, a proposed contract or a proposed transaction, including related negotiations, is considered a contract or transaction.

A Director must also disclose any contract or transaction to which the Corporation and any of the following are a party:

a) an associate of the Director or Officer;

b) a group of which the Director or Officer is a Director or Officer; or

c) a group in which the Director or Officer or an associate of the Director or Officer has an interest.

The Director satisfies the requirement if he or she discloses, in a case specified in subparagraph b) above, the Directorship or office held within the group or, in a case specified in subparagraph c) above, the nature and value of the interest he or she or his or her associate has in the group.

Unless it is recorded in the minutes of the first meeting of the Board at which the contract or transaction is discussed, the disclosure of an interest, contract or transaction must be made in writing to the Board as soon as the Director becomes aware of the interest, contract or transaction.

The disclosure must be made even in the case of a contract or transaction that does not require approval by the Board.

3.25 Contracts or Transactions – Votes

No Director may vote on a resolution to approve, amend or terminate a contract or transaction described in section 3.24 or be present during deliberations concerning the approval, amendment or termination of such a contract or transaction, unless the contract or transaction:

a) relates primarily to the remuneration of the Director or an associate of the Director as a Director of the Corporation or an affiliate of the Corporation;

b) relates primarily to the remuneration of the Director or an associate of the Director as an Officer, employee or mandatary of the Corporation or an affiliate of the Corporation, if the Corporation is not a Reporting Issuer;

c) is for indemnity or liability insurance; or

d) is with an affiliate of the Corporation, and the sole interest of the Director is as a Director or Officer of the affiliate.

If no quorum exists for the purpose of voting on a resolution to approve a contract or transaction only because a Director is not permitted to be present during deliberations, the other Directors present are deemed to constitute a quorum for the purpose of voting on the resolution.

If all the Directors are required to abstain from voting, the contract or transaction may be approved solely by the shareholders entitled to vote, by ordinary resolution. The disclosure required by section 3.24 must be made to the shareholders in a sufficiently clear manner before the contract or transaction is approved.

3.26 Dissent

A Director who is present at a meeting of the Board or a committee of the Board is deemed to have consented to any resolution passed at the meeting unless:

a) the Director’s dissent has been entered in the minutes;

b) the Director sends a written dissent to the secretary of the meeting before the meeting is adjourned; or

c) the Director delivers a written dissent to the chair of the Board, sends it to the chair by any means providing proof of the date of receipt or delivers it to the head office of the Corporation immediately after the meeting is adjourned.

A Director is not entitled to dissent after voting for or consenting to a resolution.

A Director who was not present at a meeting at which a resolution was passed is deemed to have consented to the resolution unless he delivers a written dissent to the chair of the Board, sends it to the chair of the Board by any means providing proof of the date of receipt or delivers it to the head office of the Corporation within seven days after becoming aware of the resolution.

4 - COMMITTEES

4.1 Committees of the Board

The Board may, by resolution, create one or more committees comprised of Directors and, subject to the limitations prescribed by the Act, may delegate to any such committee any of the powers of the Board.

4.2 Procedure

Subject to the Act and unless otherwise determined by a resolution of the Board, each committee shall have the power to fix its quorum at not less than a majority of its members, to elect its chairperson and to regulate its procedure. Each committee must provide the Board with a report concerning its activities if the Board makes such a request. The Board may cancel or modify any decision made by the committee.

5 - OFFICERS

5.1 Appointment of Officers

The Board may from time to time appoint a president, chief executive officer, chief operating officer, chief financial officer or secretary of the Corporation, or a person holding a similar position, or any other person designated as an Officer by a resolution of the Board. The Board may specify the duties of and, in accordance with this By-law and subject to the Act, delegate to such Officers powers to manage, or supervise the management of, the business and affairs of the Corporation other than any of the powers that may not be delegated as prescribed by the Act. An Officer may but need not be a Director and any person may hold more than one office.

5.2 Agents and Attorneys

The Board shall have the power from time to time to appoint agents or attorneys for the Corporation in or out of the Province of Quebec with such powers of management or otherwise (including the power to sub-delegate) as the Board may determine.

5.3 Disclosure of Interest

An Officer must disclose the nature and value of any interest he or she has in a contract or transaction to which the Corporation is a party, in the same way that a Director must disclose such an interest pursuant to section 3.24. In the case of an Officer who is not a Director, disclosure must be made as soon as:

a) the Officer becomes an Officer;

b) the Officer becomes aware that the contract or transaction is to be discussed or has been discussed at a meeting of the Board; or

c) the Officer or the Officer’s associate acquires an interest in the contract or transaction, if it was entered into earlier.

5.4 Mandate

The Board may, at its own discretion, remove any Officer of the Corporation. Each Officer appointed by the Board will remain in office until his resignation, replacement or removal.

5.5 Employment Conditions and Remuneration

The Board shall fix, from time to time, by resolution, the terms of employment and the remuneration of the Officers it appoints.

6 - PROTECTION OF DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS

6.1 Indemnity of Directors and Officers

Subject to the following, the Corporation must indemnify a Director or Officer of the Corporation, a former Director or Officer of the Corporation, a mandatary, or any other person who acts or acted at the Corporation's request as a Director or Officer of another group, against all costs, charges and expenses reasonably incurred in the exercise of their functions, including an amount paid to settle an action or satisfy a judgment, or arising from any investigative or other proceeding in which the person is involved if:

a) the person acted with honesty and loyalty in the interest of the Corporation or, as the case may be, in the interest of the other group for which the person acted as Director or Officer or in a similar capacity at the Corporation's request; and

b) in the case of a proceeding that is enforced by a monetary penalty, the person had reasonable grounds for believing that his or her conduct was lawful.

The Corporation must also advance moneys to such a person for the costs, charges and expenses of a proceeding referred to in the above paragraph.

However, in the event that a court or any other competent authority judges that the conditions set out in subparagraphs 1 and 2 above are not fulfilled, the Corporation may not indemnify the person and the person must repay to the Corporation any moneys advanced. In addition, the Corporation is not required to indemnify the person if a court has judged that the person committed an intentional or gross fault. The person will then be required to repay to the Corporation any moneys advanced.

The Corporation may, with the approval of the court, in respect of an action by or on behalf of the Corporation or other group referred to above, against a person referred to above, advance the necessary monies to the person or indemnify the person against all costs, charges and expenses reasonably incurred by the person in connection with the action, if the person fulfills the conditions set out above.

6.2 Insurance

The Corporation may purchase and maintain insurance for the benefit of its Directors, Officers and other mandataries against any liability they may incur as such or in their capacity as Directors, Officers or mandataries of another group, if they act or acted in that capacity at the Corporation's request.

7 - MEETINGS OF SHAREHOLDERS

7.1 General Business

The Corporation must hold an annual shareholders meeting; if necessary, the Corporation may also hold one or more special shareholder meetings.

7.2 Annual Meetings

An annual Shareholders Meeting entitled to vote at such a meeting must be held not later than 18 months after the Corporation is constituted and, subsequently, not later than 15 months after the last preceding annual shareholders meeting, for the purpose of:

a) considering the financial statements of the Corporation for the fiscal year ending within six (6) months preceding the date of such meeting and the auditor's report thereon, if any;

b) considering any other financial information presentation of which is required by the Articles or the By-laws;

c) electing Directors;

d) appointing the auditor; and

e) deliberating with respect to all other matters which may be presented at the meeting.

The Board calls the annual shareholders meeting. Otherwise, the meeting may be called by the shareholders in accordance with the Act or with section 7.3 below.

7.3 Special Meetings

The Board may at any time call a special shareholders meeting.

The holders of not less than 10% of the issued shares that carry the right to vote at a Shareholders Meeting sought to be held may requisition the Board to call a Shareholders Meeting for the purposes stated in the requisition. The requisition, signed by at least one shareholder, must state the business to be transacted at the meeting and must be sent to each Director and to the head office of the Corporation. On receiving the requisition, the Board calls a Shareholders Meeting to transact the business stated in the requisition. If the Board does not within 21 days after receiving the requisition call a meeting, any shareholder who signed the requisition may call the meeting. Unless the shareholders otherwise resolve at a meeting called by shareholders, the Corporation must reimburse the shareholders for the expenses reasonably incurred by them in requisitioning, calling and holding the meeting.

7.4 Place of Meetings

Subject to the Articles, Shareholders Meetings must be held in Quebec at the place determined by the Board. If the Articles so allow, or in the absence of such a provision, if all the shareholders entitled to vote at the meeting agree, the meeting may be held at a place outside of Québec.

7.5 Participation in Meetings by Electronic Means

A meeting may be held solely by means of equipment enabling all participants to communicate directly with one another.

In addition, any Person entitled to attend a Shareholders Meeting may participate in the meeting by means of any equipment enabling all participants to communicate directly with one another. A Person participating in a meeting by such means is deemed present at the meeting.

Any shareholder participating in a Shareholders Meeting by means of equipment enabling all participants to communicate directly with one another may vote by any means enabling votes to be cast in a way that allows them to be verified afterwards and protects the secrecy of the vote when a secret ballot has been requested.

7.6 Notice of Meetings

Any notice of a Shareholders Meeting specifying the time and place of the meeting must be sent, in writing and by any means providing proof of the date of receipt, to each Person entitled to vote at the meeting not less than 21 days and not more than 60 days before the meeting.

Notice of a Shareholders Meeting at which special business is to be transacted shall state the nature of that business in sufficient detail to permit the shareholder to form a reasoned judgment thereon, and contain the text of any special resolution to be submitted to the meeting. All business transacted at a special meeting of the shareholders and all business transacted at an annual shareholders meeting, except consideration of the financial statements and auditor's report, the appointment of the auditor and the election of Directors, is deemed to be special business.

If a Director or a shareholder entitled to vote at a Shareholders Meeting gives written notice not less than 10 days before the meeting to the auditor or a former auditor of the Corporation, the auditor or former auditor attends the meeting at the Corporation's expense and answers any question relating to their duties as auditor.

7.7 Waiver of Notice

A shareholder or Director may waive notice of a Shareholder Meeting; the waiver may be given either before or after the meeting. Their attendance at the meeting is a waiver of notice of the meeting unless they attend the meeting for the sole purpose of objecting to the holding of the meeting on the grounds that it was not lawfully called or held.

7.8 Record Date for Notice

The Board may fix, in conformity with applicable securities law requirements, in advance, not less than 21 days and not more than 60 days before the meeting, a record date for the purpose of determining the shareholders entitled to receive a notice of the meeting or entitled to vote at the meeting.

7.9 Chair and Secretary

The chairperson of the Board or, in the chairperson's absence, the president or, in the president's absence, a vice-president shall be chairperson of any meeting of shareholders. If none of these Officers are present within 15 minutes after the time appointed for holding the meeting, the Persons present and entitled to vote shall choose a chairperson from amongst themselves. The secretary of the Corporation shall act as secretary at any Shareholders Meeting or, if the secretary of the Corporation is absent, the chairperson of the meeting shall appoint some person, who need not be a shareholder, to act as secretary of the meeting. If desired, one or more scrutineers, who need not be shareholders, may be appointed by resolution or by the chairperson with the consent of the meeting in accordance with the procedure set out in section 7.17.

7.10 Persons Entitled to be Present

The only persons entitled to be present at a Shareholders Meeting shall be those entitled to vote thereat, the Directors and auditors of the Corporation and others who, although not entitled to vote, are entitled or required under any provision of the Act or the Articles or By-laws to be present at the meeting. Any other person may be admitted only on the invitation of the chairperson of the meeting or with the consent of the meeting in accordance with the procedure set out in section 7.17.

7.11 Quorum

A quorum of shareholders is present at a meeting of shareholders, provided that a quorum shall not be less than two persons, if the holders of at least twenty-five (25%) of the shares of the Corporation entitled to vote at the meeting are present in person or represented by proxy. A quorum need not be present throughout the meeting provided a quorum is present at the opening of the meeting.

7.12 Right to Vote

Subject to a record date established in accordance with section 7.9, at a Shareholders Meeting, the shareholders registered on the securities register of the Corporation are entitled to exercise the voting rights attached to the shares in their name.

7.13 Proxies and Representatives

Every shareholder entitled to vote at a Shareholders Meeting may, by means of a proxy, appoint a proxyholder, or one or more alternate proxyholders, who need not be shareholders, to attend and act at the meeting in the manner and to the extent authorized and with the authority conferred by the proxy. A proxy shall be signed in writing or by electronic signature by the shareholder or the shareholder’s representative authorized in writing or by electronic signature.

Unless otherwise indicated, a proxy lapses one year after the date it is given. It may be revoked at any time.

A proxyholder has the same rights as the shareholder represented to speak at a Shareholders Meeting in respect of any matter and to vote at the meeting. However, a proxyholder who has conflicting instructions from more than one shareholder may not vote by a show of hands.

7.14 Time for Deposit of Proxies

The Board may specify in a notice calling a Shareholders Meeting a time, preceding the time of such meeting by not more than 48 hours exclusive of non-business days, before which proxies to be used at such meeting must be deposited. A proxy shall be acted upon only if, prior to the time so specified, it shall have been deposited with the Corporation or an agent thereof specified in such notice or, if no such time is specified in such notice, it shall have been received prior to the time of voting by the secretary of the Corporation or by the chairperson of the meeting or any adjournment thereof.

7.15 Joint Shareholders

If two or more Persons hold shares jointly, one of those holders present at a Shareholders Meeting may in the absence of the others vote the share, but if two or more of those Persons who are present, in person or by proxy, vote, they shall vote as one on the shares jointly held by them.

7.16 Votes to Govern

Except as otherwise required by the Act and the Articles, all questions proposed for the consideration of shareholders at a Shareholders Meeting shall be determined by a majority of the votes cast by all who are entitled to vote.

7.17 Casting Vote

In case of an equality of votes at any meeting of shareholders, regardless of the manner of voting, the chairperson of the meeting shall not be entitled to a second or casting vote.

7.18 Show of Hands

Any question at a Shareholders Meeting shall be decided by a show of hands, unless a ballot thereon is demanded by a shareholder who holds or represent by proxy not less than 10% of the of the issued shares that carry the right to vote at a Shareholders Meeting as hereinafter provided. Every Person who is present and entitled to vote thereon shall have one vote. Whenever a vote by any means other than by ballot is taken, a declaration by the chairperson of the meeting that the vote upon the question has been carried or carried by a particular majority or not carried and an entry to that effect in the minutes of the meeting shall be prima facie evidence of the fact without proof of the number or proportion of the votes recorded in favour of or against any resolution or other proceeding in respect of the said question, and the result of the vote so taken shall be the decision of the shareholders upon the said question.

7.19 Ballots

On any question proposed for consideration at a meeting of shareholders, and whether or not a show of hands has been taken thereon, the chairperson may require, or any shareholder who holds or represent by proxy not less than 10% of the issued shares that carry the right to vote at a Shareholders Meeting may demand, a ballot. A ballot so required or demanded shall be taken in such manner as the chairperson shall direct. A requirement or demand for a ballot may be withdrawn at any time prior to the taking of the ballot. If a ballot is taken each Person present shall be entitled, in respect of the shares which the Person is entitled to vote at the meeting upon the question, to that number of votes provided by the Act or the Articles, and the result of the ballot so taken shall be the decision of the shareholders upon the said question.

7.20 Adjournment

If a Shareholders Meeting is adjourned for less than 30 days, it shall not be necessary to give notice of the adjourned meeting, other than by announcement at the earliest meeting that is adjourned. If a Shareholders Meeting is adjourned by one or more adjournments for an aggregate of 30 days or more, notice of the adjourned meeting shall be given as for an original meeting.

7.21 Storage of Ballots and Proxies

The Corporation must, for at least three months after a Shareholders Meeting, keep at its head office the ballots cast and the proxies presented at the meeting. Any shareholder or proxyholder who was entitled to vote at the meeting may, without charge, inspect the ballots and proxies kept by the Corporation.

8 - SHARES AND CERTIFICATES

8.1 Issuance of Shares

Subject to any pre-emptive right granted to shareholders, shares may be issued at the times, to the Persons, including Directors and Officers, and for the consideration that the Board determines. The Board may, by resolution, accept subscriptions, issue and allot unissued shares from the Corporation's share capital and grant exchange rights, options or acquisition rights with respect to those shares.

8.2 Payment of Shares

Shares may be issued whether or not they are fully paid. However, shares may only be considered paid if consideration equal to the issue price determined by the Board has been paid to the Corporation.

Consideration for the shares issued by the Corporation is payable in money, or in property or past services determined by the Board to be the fair equivalent of the money consideration, considering all the circumstances.

A promissory note or a promise to pay made by a Person to whom shares are issued, or a Person who does not deal at arm's length, within the meaning of that expression in the Taxation Act (Quebec), with a Person to whom shares are issued does not constitute consideration for the shares.

8.3 Unpaid Shares

Unless the terms of payment for shares are determined by contract, the Board may call for payment of all or part of the unpaid amounts on shares subscribed or held by the shareholders, the whole as provided by the Act.

8.4 Securities Register

The securities register of the Corporation must contain the following information with respect to its shares:

a) the names, in alphabetical order, and the addresses of present and past shareholders;

b) the number of shares held by each such shareholder;

c) the date and details of the issue and transfer of each share; and

d) any amount due on any share.

The register must contain, if applicable, the same information with respect to the Corporation's debentures, bonds, notes and other securities, with the necessary modifications.

8.5 Register of Transfer

The Corporation shall cause to be kept a register of transfers in which all transfers of securities issued by the Corporation in registered form and the date and other particulars of each transfer shall be set out.

Subject to the Act, the transfer of shares is governed by the Act respecting the transfer of securities and the establishment of security entitlements (Quebec).

8.6 Registration of Transfer

If an endorsed share certificate in registered form is presented to the Corporation with a request to register a transfer of the certificated share or an instruction is presented to the Corporation with a request to register a transfer of an uncertificated share, the Corporation registers the transfer as requested if:

a) under the terms of the share, the purchaser is eligible to have the share registered in that Person's name;

b) the endorsement or instruction is made by the appropriate Person or by that Person's representative;

c) reasonable assurance is given that the endorsement or instruction is neither forged nor counterfeited and is authorized;

d) any applicable fiscal law that imposes duties on the Corporation at the time of the transfer has been complied with;

e) the transfer does not violate any restriction on transfer imposed by the Corporation that is enforceable against the purchaser or imposed by law; and

f) the transfer is rightful or is to a protected purchaser, pursuant to the Act respecting the transfer of securities and the establishment of security entitlements (Quebec).

Shares that are not fully paid but for which no instalment is payable may only be transferred with the authorization of the Board. The Directors must reasonably verify the acquirer's ability to pay for the shares before authorizing the transfer.

A share may not be transferred until all instalments payable up to the time of transfer have been fully paid.

8.7 Registered Ownership

Subject to the Act, the Corporation may treat the registered owner of a share as the Person exclusively entitled to vote, to receive notices, to receive any dividend or other payments in respect thereof and otherwise to exercise all the rights and powers of an owner of a share.

8.8 Share Certificates

A share issued by the Corporation may be a certificated share or an uncertificated share. A certificated share is represented by a paper certificate in registered form, and an uncertificated share is represented by an entry in the securities register in the name of the shareholder.

Unless otherwise provided in the Articles, shares are issued as certificated shares unless the Board determines, by resolution, that the shares of any class or series or certain shares of a class or series are to be issued as uncertificated shares.

The Board may also, by resolution, determine that a certificated share becomes an uncertificated share as soon as the paper certificate is surrendered to the Corporation.

Inversely, the Board may, by resolution, determine that an uncertificated share becomes a certificated share on delivery to the shareholder of a certificate in the shareholder's name or, in the case of a control agreement under the Act respecting the transfer of securities and the establishment of security entitlements (Quebec), on delivery to the purchaser, within the meaning of the Act respecting the transfer of securities and the establishment of security entitlements (Quebec), of a certificate in the purchaser's name, unless there are provisions inconsistent with such a control agreement, in which case those provisions apply. The Board must give notice of the resolution to the shareholders of the classes or series of shares concerned.

8.9 Certificated Shares

In the case of certificated shares, the Corporation must issue to the shareholder, without charge, a certificate in registered form.

Share certificates shall be in such form as the Board may from time to time approve in accordance with the requirements of the Act.

Subject to any resolution of the Board providing otherwise, the share certificates of the Corporation must be signed by any of the Directors or Officers or by a person acting in their name. The signature may be affixed by an automatic device or electronic process.

In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, the certificate is proof of the shareholder's title to the shares represented by the certificate.

Share certificates need not be under corporate seal.

8.10 Uncertificated Shares

In the case of uncertificated shares, the Corporation must send the shareholder a written notice containing the information required under the Act.

8.11 Replacement of Share Certificates

If the shareholder of a certificated share claims that the certificate has been lost, wrongfully taken or destroyed, the Corporation must issue a new certificate if the shareholder:

a) so requests before the Corporation has notice that the lost, wrongfully taken or allegedly destroyed certificate has been delivered to a protected purchaser, as such term is defined in the Act respecting the transfer of securities and the establishment of security entitlements (Quebec);

b) provides security sufficient in the Corporation's judgment to protect the Corporation from any loss that the Corporation may suffer by issuing a new certificate; and

c) satisfies any other reasonable requirements imposed by the Corporation.

8.12 Joint Shareholders

If two or more Persons are registered as joint holders of any share, the Corporation shall not be bound to issue more than one certificate in respect thereof, and delivery of such certificate to one of such Persons shall be sufficient delivery to all of them. Any one of such Persons may give effectual receipts for the certificate issued in respect thereof or for any dividend, bonus, return of capital or other money payable or warrant issuable in respect of such share.

8.13 Deceased Shareholders

In the event of the death of a holder, or of one of the joint holders, of any share, the Corporation shall not be required to make any entry in the securities register in respect thereof or to make payment of any dividends thereon except upon production of all such documents as may be required by the Act and upon compliance with the reasonable requirements of the Corporation or it transfer agent.

9 - DIVIDENDS AND RIGHTS

9.1 Dividends

Subject to the provisions of the Act and the Articles, the Board may from time to time declare dividends payable to the shareholders according to their respective rights and interests in the Corporation. Dividends may be paid, in whole or in part, in money or property or by issuing fully paid shares or options or rights to acquire fully paid shares of the Corporation.

If shares of the Corporation are issued in payment of a dividend, the Corporation may add all or part of the value of those shares to the appropriate issued and paid-up share capital account.

The Corporation may not declare and pay a dividend, except by issuing shares or options or rights to acquire shares, if there are reasonable grounds for believing that the Corporation is, or would after the payment be, unable to pay its liabilities as they become due.

The Corporation may deduct from the dividends payable to a shareholder any amount due to the Corporation by the shareholder, on account of calls for payment or otherwise.

9.2 Dividend Cheques

A dividend payable in cash may be paid by cheque drawn on the Corporation's banks or by electronic means to the order of each registered holder of shares of the class or series in respect of which it has been declared. Cheques may be sent by prepaid ordinary mail to such registered holder at such holder's address recorded in the Corporation's securities register, unless in each case such holder otherwise directs. In the case of joint holders the cheque shall, unless such joint holders otherwise direct, be made payable to the order of all of such joint holders and, if more than one address is recorded in the Corporation's securities register in respect of such joint holding, the cheque shall be mailed to the first address so appearing. The mailing of such cheque, in such manner, unless the cheque is not paid on due presentation, shall satisfy and discharge the liability for the dividend to the extent of the sum represented thereby plus the amount of any tax which the Corporation is required to and does withhold.

9.3 Non-receipt or Loss of Cheques

In the event of non-receipt or loss of any dividend cheque by the Person to whom it is sent, the Corporation shall issue to such Person a replacement cheque for a like amount on such terms as to indemnity, reimbursement of expenses and evidence of non-receipt or loss and of title as the Board may from time to time prescribe, whether generally or in any particular case.

9.4 Record Date for Dividends and Rights

The Board may fix, in advance, in accordance with applicable securities law requirements, a record date for the determination of the shareholders entitled to receive dividends.

9.5 Unclaimed Dividends

Any dividend unclaimed after a period of two years from the date on which the dividend has been declared to be payable shall be forfeited and shall revert to the Corporation.

10 - NOTICES

10.1 Method of Giving Notices

Any notice, communication or document ("notice") to be given or sent pursuant to the Act, the Articles, the By-laws or otherwise to a shareholder, Director, Officer or auditor shall be sufficiently given or sent if given or sent by prepaid mail, prepaid transmitted, recorded, or electronic communication capable of providing a written copy of such notice, or delivered Personally to such Person's latest address as shown on the securities register of the Corporation or, in the case of a Director, if more current, the address as shown in the most recent declaration filed under the Act Respecting the Legal Publicity of Enterprises (Quebec). A notice shall be deemed to have been received on the date when it is delivered Personally, or on the fifth day after mailing, or on the date of dispatch of a transmitted or recorded electronic communication. The secretary may change or cause to be changed the recorded address of any shareholder, Director, Officer or auditor in accordance with any information believed by the secretary to be reliable.

10.2 Notice to Joint Shareholders

If two or more Persons are registered as joint holders of any share, any notice shall be addressed to all of such joint holders but notice to one of such Persons shall be sufficient notice to all of them.

10.3 Undelivered Notices

If any notice given to a shareholder pursuant to section 10.1 is returned on two consecutive occasions because the shareholder cannot be found, the Corporation shall not be required to give any further notice to such shareholder until such shareholder informs the Corporation in writing of the shareholder's new address.

10.4 Omissions and Errors

The accidental omission to give or send any notice to any shareholder, Director, Officer or auditor, or the non-receipt of any notice by any such Person or any error in any notice not affecting the substance thereof, shall not invalidate any action taken at any meeting held pursuant to such notice or otherwise based thereon.

10.5 Persons Entitled by Death or Operation of Law

Every Person who, by operation of law, transfer, death of a shareholder or any other means whatsoever, shall become entitled to any share, shall be bound by every notice in respect of such share which shall have been duly given or sent to the shareholder from whom the Person derives title to such share prior to that Person's name and address being entered on the securities register (whether such notice was given or sent before or after the happening of the event upon which that Person becomes so entitled) and prior to that Person furnishing to the Corporation the proof of authority or evidence of entitlement prescribed by the Act.

10.6 Waiver of Notice

Any shareholder (or shareholder's duly appointed proxyholder), Director, Officer or auditor may at any time waive the giving or sending of any notice, or waive or abridge the time for any notice, required to be given to that Person under any provision of the Act, the Articles, the By-laws or otherwise and such waiver or abridgement shall cure any default in the giving or sending or in the time of such notice, as the case may be. Any such waiver or abridgement shall be in writing or given by electronic signature except a waiver of notice of a Shareholders Meeting or of the Board which may be given in any manner.

The foregoing By-law was adopted by the Board of Directors of the Corporation pursuant to the provisions of the Business Corporations Act (Quebec), on June 30, 2014 and ratified by the shareholders on July 30, 2014.

ADVANCE NOTICE BY-LAW

BY-LAW NO. 2014-1

A BY-LAW RELATING GENERALLY TO THE ADVANCE NOTICE REQUIREMENTS FOR THE NOMINATION OF DIRECTORS OF AMAYA GAMING GROUP INC.
(the "Corporation")

INTRODUCTION

The purpose of this advance notice by-law (the "Advance Notice By-Law") is to establish the conditions and framework under which holders of record of common shares of the Corporation may exercise their right to submit director nominations by fixing a deadline by which such nominations must be submitted by a shareholder to the Corporation prior to any annual or special meeting of shareholders, and sets forth the information that a shareholder must include in the notice to the Corporation for the notice to be in proper form.

It is the position of the Corporation that this Advance Notice By-Law is beneficial to shareholders and other stakeholders of the Corporation.

NOMINATIONS OF DIRECTORS

1. Subject only to the Business Corporations Act (Quebec) (the "Act") and the articles, only persons who are nominated in accordance with the following procedures shall be eligible for election as directors of the Corporation. Nominations of persons for election to the board of directors of the Corporation (the "Board") may be made at any annual meeting of shareholders or at any special meeting of shareholders if one of the purposes for which the special meeting was called was the election of directors. Such nominations may be made in the following manner:

    a. by or at the direction of the Board, including pursuant to a notice of meeting;

    b. by or at the direction or request of one or more shareholders of the Corporation pursuant to a proposal made in accordance with the provisions of the Act, or a requisition of meeting of the shareholders of the Corporation made in accordance with the provisions of the Act; or

c. by any person (a "Nominating Shareholder"): (A) who, at the close of business on the date of the giving of the notice provided below in this Advance Notice By-Law and on the record date for notice of such meeting, is entered in the securities register of the Corporation as a holder of one or more shares carrying the right to vote at such meeting or who beneficially owns shares that are entitled to be voted at such meeting; and (B) who complies with the notice procedures set forth below in this Advance Notice By-Law.

2. In addition to any other applicable requirements, for a nomination to be made by a Nominating Shareholder, the Nominating Shareholder must have given timely notice thereof in proper written form to the Corporate Secretary of the Corporation at the principal executive offices of the Corporation.

3. To be timely, a Nominating Shareholder's notice to the Corporate Secretary of the Corporation must be made:

   a. in the case of an annual meeting of shareholders, not less than 30 nor more than 65 days prior to the date of the annual meeting of shareholders; provided, however, that in the event that the annual meeting of shareholders is to be held on a date that is less than 50 days after the date on which the first public announcement (the "Notice Date") of the date of the annual meeting was made, notice by the Nominating Shareholder may be made not later than the close of business on the 10th day following the Notice Date; and

   b. in the case of a special meeting (which is not also an annual meeting) of shareholders called for the purpose of electing directors (whether or not called for other purposes), not later than the close of business on the 15th day following the day on which the first public announcement of the date of the special meeting of shareholders was made.

   c. In no event shall any adjournment or postponement of a meeting of shareholders or the announcement thereof commence a new time period for the giving of a Nominating Shareholder's notice as described above.

4. To be in proper written form, a Nominating Shareholder's notice to the Corporate Secretary of the Corporation must set forth:

   a. as to each person whom the Nominating Shareholder proposes to nominate for election as a director: (A) the name, age, business address and residential address of the person; (B) the principal occupation or employment of the person; (C) the class or series and number of shares in the capital of the Corporation which are controlled or which are owned beneficially or of record by the person as of the record date for the meeting of shareholders (if such date shall then have been made publicly available and shall have occurred) and as of the date of such notice; and (D) any other information relating to the person that would be required to be disclosed in a dissident's proxy circular in connection with solicitations of proxies for election of directors pursuant to the Act and Applicable Securities Laws (as defined below); and

b. as to the Nominating Shareholder giving the notice, any proxy, contract, arrangement, understanding or relationship pursuant to which such Nominating Shareholder has a right to vote any shares of the Corporation and any other information relating to such Nominating Shareholder that would be required to be made in a dissident's proxy circular in connection with solicitations of proxies for election of directors pursuant to the Act and Applicable Securities Laws (as defined below).

The Corporation may require any proposed director nominee to furnish such other information as may reasonably be required by the Corporation to determine the eligibility of such proposed director nominee to serve as an independent director of the Corporation or that could be material to a reasonable shareholder of the Corporation's understanding of the independence, or lack thereof, of such proposed director nominee.

5. No person shall be eligible for election as a director of the Corporation unless nominated in accordance with the provisions of this Advance Notice By-Law; provided, however, that nothing in this Advance Notice By-Law shall be deemed to preclude discussion by a shareholder (as distinct from the nomination of directors) at a meeting of shareholders of the Corporation of any matter in respect of which it would have been entitled to submit a proposal pursuant to the provisions of the Act. The chairman of the meeting shall have the power and duty to determine whether a nomination was made in accordance with the procedures set forth in the foregoing provisions and, if any proposed nomination is not in compliance with such foregoing provisions, to declare that such defective nomination shall be disregarded.

6. For purposes of this Advance Notice By-Law:

a. "public announcement" shall mean disclosure in a press release reported by a national news service in Canada, or in a document publicly filed by the Corporation under its profile on the System of Electronic Document Analysis and Retrieval at www.sedar.com; and

b. “Applicable Securities Laws” means the applicable securities legislation of each relevant province of Canada, as amended from time to time, the rules, regulations and forms made or promulgated under any such statute and the published national instruments, multilateral instruments, policies, bulletins and notices of the securities commission and similar regulatory authority of each province of Canada.

7. Notwithstanding any other provision of this Advance Notice By-Law, notice given to the Corporate Secretary of the Corporation may only be given by personal delivery, facsimile transmission or by email (at such email address as stipulated from time to time by the Corporate Secretary of the Corporation for purposes of this notice), and shall be deemed to have been given and made only at the time it is served by personal delivery, email (at the aforesaid address) or sent by facsimile transmission (provided that receipt of confirmation of such transmission has been received) to the Corporate Secretary of the Corporation at the address of the principal executive offices of the Corporation; provided that if such delivery or electronic communication is made on a day which is a not a business day or later than 5 :00 p.m. (Montreal time) on a day which is a business day, then such delivery or electronic communication shall be deemed to have been made on the subsequent day that is a business day.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Board may, in its sole discretion, waive any requirement in this Advance Notice By-Law.

The foregoing Advance Notice By-Law was adopted by the Board of Directors of the Corporation pursuant to the provisions of the Business Corporations Act (Quebec), on June 30, 2014 and ratified by the shareholders on July 30, 2014.

These factors are not intended to represent a complete list of the factors that could affect us; however, these factors should be considered carefully.

There can be no assurance that forward-looking statements will prove to be accurate, as actual results and future events could differ materially from those expressly or impliedly expected or estimated in such statements. BUSINESS OF THE CORPORATION

Overview

Amaya is a leading provider of technology-based solutions, products and services in the global gaming and interactive entertainment industries. Through its two reportable segments, Business-to-Consumer ("B2C") and Business-to-Business ("B2B"), Amaya is focused on developing, operating and acquiring interactive technology-based assets with high-growth potential in existing and new markets and industries or verticals. Amaya's B2C business currently consists of the operations of Amaya Group Holdings (IOM) Limited (formerly known as Oldford Group Limited) and its subsidiaries (collectively, "Rational Group"), which, among other things, currently offer online and mobile real-money and play-money poker and other gaming products, including casino and sports betting (also known as sportsbook), as well as certain live poker tours and events, branded poker rooms at popular casinos in major cities and poker programming for television and online audiences. Amaya's B2B business currently consists of the operations of certain of its subsidiaries, which offer interactive, land-based and lottery gaming solutions. Amaya strives to not only improve and expand upon its current offerings, including its portfolio of what it believes to be high-growth interactive technology-based assets, but to pursue and capitalize on new global growth opportunities. Amaya seeks to take advantage of technology to provide gaming and interactive entertainment to large networks of customers.

Since the Rational Group Acquisition in August 2014, Amaya's primary business has been its B2C segment, which currently generates the vast majority of Amaya's revenues and profits. Based in the Isle of Man and operating globally, Rational Group owns and operates gaming and related interactive entertainment businesses, which it offers under several owned brands, including, among others, PokerStars, Full Tilt, European Poker Tour, PokerStars Caribbean Adventure, Latin American Poker Tour and Asia Pacific Poker Tour. These brands collectively form the largest poker business in the world, comprising online poker games and tournaments, live poker competitions, branded poker rooms in major global casinos and poker programming created for television and online audiences. In addition to expanding its existing real-money and play-money poker businesses into new markets, Rational Group has recently targeted growth into other online gaming verticals, notably casino and sportsbook.

Rational Group's primary brands are PokerStars and Full Tilt, each of which provides a distinct online gaming platform. Currently, according to online poker tracking site Pokerscout.com, the PokerStars and Full Tilt sites collectively hold a majority of the global market share of real-money poker player liquidity, or the volume of people playing as measured by average daily seated ring game real-money poker players, and are among the leaders in play-money poker player liquidity. Since its 2001 launch, PokerStars has become the world's largest real-money online poker site based on, among other things, player liquidity, according to Pokerscout.com, and the Corporation believes that it has distinguished itself as one of the world's premier poker brands.

Amaya's B2B business includes the design, development, manufacturing, distribution, sale and service of technology-based gaming solutions for the regulated gaming industry worldwide, primarily to land-based and online gaming operators and governmental agencies and bodies and ultimately indirectly to end-users and consumers. Amaya's B2B solutions are designed to provide end-users with popular, engaging and cutting-edge content across multiple formats and through a secure technology environment, all of which is intended to improve the profitability, productivity, security and brands of the operators. Amaya has developed its portfolio of solutions through both internal development and strategic acquisitions. Amaya's B2B segment includes Amaya Alberta Inc. (formerly known as Chartwell Technology Inc. ("Chartwell")), acquired in July 2011, CryptoLogic Ltd. ("CryptoLogic"), acquired in April 2012, Cadillac Jack Inc. ("Cadillac Jack"), acquired in November 2012, and Diamond Game Enterprises ("Diamond Game"), acquired in February 2014, all of which provide technology, content and services to a diversified base of customers in the regulated gaming industry.

As of the date of this annual information form, and as previously announced with respect to certain subsidiaries, Amaya and its management have initiated a strategic review process to explore the divestiture of these assets. The fundamental objective of this review is to expedite the Corporation's overall business strategy and maximize shareholder value. In furtherance of its B2B assets review and overall business strategy, the Corporation completed its sale of Ongame Network Ltd ("Ongame") to NYX Gaming Group Limited (TSXV: NYX) ("NYX Gaming Group") in the fourth quarter of 2014, as detailed below, and announced the Innova Offering and the CJ Sale (each as defined below).

On March 26, 2015, Amaya announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Innova Gaming Group Inc. ("Innova"), had filed and obtained a receipt for a preliminary prospectus in respect of Innova's proposed initial public offering of common shares with the securities regulatory authorities in all of the provinces and territories in Canada (the "Innova Offering"). The Innova Offering contemplates a treasury offering of common shares by Innova and a secondary offering of common shares of Innova by Amaya, which will receive the net proceeds from such secondary offering. Amaya formed Innova in connection with the Innova Offering and, upon consummation of the Offering, Innova will hold all of the shares of Diamond Game.

On March 30, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into a definitive agreement to sell Cadillac Jack (the "CJ Sale") for approximately $476 million comprising cash consideration of $461 million, subject to adjustment, and a $15 million payment-in-kind note, bearing interest at 5.0% per annum and due on the eighth anniversary of the closing date. Subject to receipt of gaming regulatory and antitrust approvals and other customary closing conditions, Amaya anticipates closing the CJ Sale in 2015. Amaya anticipates using the net proceeds from the CJ Sale primarily for deleveraging, including the repayment of the CJ Credit Facilities and New CJ Facilities (each as defined below).

Pending its strategic review of its remaining B2B assets, Amaya intends to continue its strategy of maximizing long-term shareholder value and pursuing sustainable, profitable growth. There can be no assurance as to if and when the Innova Offering or CJ Sale will occur or whether the Corporation's strategic review process for its remaining B2B assets will result in the consummation of any specific action.

B2C

Online and Mobile Poker

Rational Group's primary brands are PokerStars and Full Tilt, each of which provides distinct online and mobile gaming platforms. Since the Rational Group Acquisition in August 2014, Amaya, through Rational Group, has maintained PokerStars and Full Tilt as two distinct brands while connecting the two platforms (although not player liquidity) to facilitate increased customer game play and transfer and use of funds. As part of this dual brand strategy, Amaya has kept the PokerStars and Full Tilt development teams separate, allowing both to continue creating distinct user experiences while permitting its customers to link accounts between the sites, thereby simplifying the transfer of funds and game play. Descriptions of these brands and their respective offerings are provided below.

PokerStars

PokerStars, which launched in 2001, is the world's largest online poker site and as of December 31, 2014, serves a global customer base of more than 68 million registered members (which includes all customer accounts whether or not any such account is currently active) in nearly 30 different languages. PokerStars provides both desktop (through its downloadable client interface, which includes the new PokerStars 7 interface, and online sites) and mobile (through its mobile applications) services and products to its customers, including real-money online poker ring (or cash) game and tournament variations, such as scheduled tournaments, spin & go's, which are fast-paced, three-handed sit and go tournaments, and jackpot spin & go's, among others. PokerStars' poker product offerings are also currently varied among buy-in and limit amounts and types, as well as among 13 poker game variants (e.g., Texas Hold-'Em, Omaha, Stud, Draw and mixed games). PokerStars, through various Rational Group subsidiaries, is licensed or legally operates under third party licenses, as applicable, to operate in various jurisdictions throughout the world, including the Isle of Man, Malta, Estonia, Spain, Greece, Denmark, Belgium, France, Italy, the United Kingdom and Bulgaria. According to Pokerscout.com, PokerStars is home to the largest online poker events and the biggest weekly tournaments, both in terms of dollar amount and number of players, and offers more daily tournaments than any other online poker site. More than 115 billion hands of poker have been dealt on PokerStars since inception, which is more than any other online real-money poker site. PokerStars has set many records, including the largest number of players in an online poker tournament (225,000), the largest prize pool awarded for a series of online tournaments (approximately US$75.6 million), and the largest ever single online tournament prize (approximately US$12.4 million). As of December 31, 2014, PokerStars' mobile applications were among the most popular play-money and real-money poker applications on the iOS and Android platforms according to App Annie and Apple's iTunes App Store and based on the number of downloads and overall customer ratings.

PokerStars also offers social gaming through one of its online sites, PokerStars.net, and through the PokerStars Play mobile application on various mobile platforms, such as Facebook, Apple's iOS and Google's Android. Social gaming involves playing poker or other online casino games for play-money, or virtual currency, with other people through social networks. PokerStars' current social gaming offerings, which are limited to poker, are free to play, attract a diverse community of players and attempt to leverage the global connectivity of various social networks. Through the use of play-money, which is awarded or may be purchased, these social games are designed to create social interaction, engagement and competition.

Amaya's product development team continuously analyzes the data generated by its customers' game play and social interactions, as well as customer feedback, to guide the creation of new content, game variants and features, and enhance the overall customer experience.

Full Tilt

Full Tilt, which launched in 2004, quickly became a popular online poker site by delivering what the Corporation believes is innovative and realistic online poker game play, which has evolved from and is based on input from some of the world's leading poker players. As of December 31, 2014, Full Tilt served a global customer base of more than 22.8 million registered members (which includes all customer accounts whether or not any such account is currently active). In addition to its ring game and tournament variations, which are similar to those offered under the PokerStars brand, through its unique poker formats, such as Rush Poker and Adrenaline Rush Poker, Full Tilt offers its players fast-paced, quick-fold gameplay, including the ability to move tables for each hand and place early bets (i.e., prior to the flop), on both desktop (through its downloadable client interface and online sites) and mobile (through its mobile applications). Full Tilt, through various Rational Group subsidiaries, is licensed or legally operates under third party licenses, as applicable, in various jurisdictions throughout the world under licenses, including, the Isle of Man, Malta, Greece and United Kingdom governments. Since inception, Full Tilt has dealt over 34 billion hands of poker.

Other Online and Mobile Gaming Products

In addition to expected organic growth in online and mobile poker in existing and new markets, Amaya believes that there are potentially significant opportunities for growth in new verticals. Specifically, Amaya believes that these new verticals initially include online and mobile casino and sportsbook, and such potential opportunities include the ability to capitalize on cross-selling these new verticals to its existing customer base, as well as to new customers. In addition to online and mobile casino and sportsbook, Amaya currently intends to explore other growth opportunities, including, without limitation, expanding upon its current social gaming offering and pursuing opportunities in fantasy sports.

Casino

In January 2014, Full Tilt expanded its game portfolio by initially offering a variety of play-money table and casino games on its global online sites, including a range of single- and multi-player variations of blackjack and roulette, online slots and live dealer games. As of December 31, 2014, Full Tilt had launched a real-money online casino offering in numerous jurisdictions, including in the United Kingdom and certain other European jurisdictions. Since its initial launch, Amaya has been successful in cross-selling Full Tilt's online casino offering to approximately 30% of its active poker customers in eligible markets.

In December 2014, Amaya completed the introduction of play and real-money casino games under the PokerStars brand to players in eligible markets on the global PokerStars.com network and in the ringfenced market of PokerStars.es. Amaya has made the casino table games, single- and multi-player blackjack and roulette, available through the new PokerStars 7 client interface. Amaya believes that, like the Full Tilt casino offerings, offering casino games under the PokerStars brand may attract new customers as well as provide a beneficial cross-selling opportunity to its existing customer base. Amaya currently expects to expand its online casino game offerings in certain markets beginning in the first half of 2015 to include slot machines and additional games under the PokerStars brand. Additionally, Amaya currently intends to launch online and mobile versions of full-featured casinos on both its PokerStars and Full Tilt casino platforms by the end of 2015.

Sportsbook

Real-money online sportsbook involves online wagering on the outcome of sporting events as well as horse and dog races using real-money. Amaya currently expects to launch sports betting, initially for sporting events and later for horse and dog races, under the PokerStars brand beginning in the first half of 2015, first within select jurisdictions on the PokerStars global network and later in additional markets and through mobile platforms. Similar to real-money online casino, Amaya believes that real-money online sportsbook may attract new customers as well as provide it with a strong cross-selling opportunity to its current customer base. The Corporation intends to leverage third-party services for non-differentiating components of its sports betting offering while it continues to control the payments, customer service, marketing and other key differentiating factors of the business.

B2B

In addition to its B2C business, Amaya offers diversified gaming solutions, products and services through its B2B business. Amaya's B2B business includes the design, development, manufacturing, distribution, sale and service of technology-based gaming solutions for the regulated gaming and interactive entertainment industries worldwide, primarily to land-based and online gaming operators and governmental agencies and bodies, as well as to the hospitality industry and ultimately indirectly to end-users and consumers. These solutions, products and services primarily consist of interactive gaming solutions, land-based gaming solutions and lottery solutions, each of which is described below. As of the date of this annual information form, and as previously announced with respect to certain subsidiaries, Amaya and its management have initiated a strategic review process to explore alternatives for its B2B business. The fundamental objective of this review is to expedite the Corporation's overall business strategy and maximize shareholder value. In furtherance of this B2B strategy, the Corporation completed its sale of Ongame to NYX Gaming Group in the fourth quarter of 2014, and announced the Innova Offering on March 26, 2015 and the CJ Sale on March 30, 2015. See "Business of the Corporation – Overview". Pending its strategic review of its remaining B2B assets, Amaya intends to continue its strategy of maximizing long-term shareholder value and pursuing sustainable, profitable growth. There can be no assurance as to if and when the Innova Offering or CJ Sale will occur or whether the Corporation's strategic review process for its remaining B2B assets will result in the consummation of any specific action. See "Business Strategy of the Corporation" below.

Interactive Gaming Solutions

Amaya's interactive gaming solutions include:

Casino Gaming System

Amaya's Casino Gaming System ("CGS") offers gaming operators a complete online casino solution with immediate access to a library of more than 500 online casino games from Amaya and multiple third party content developers, including Scientific Games (specifically its subsidiaries Bally Technologies and SHFL Entertainment), IGT, Aristocrat and Betsoft. This library of both proprietary and third-party content is available via a seamless integration of Amaya's CGS with the operator's platform, providing the operator with access to top quality content from multiple game developers through an efficient, one point integration rather than through multiple remote gaming servers. For third-party content developers, Amaya believes that it can provide rapid time-to-market by offering such developers' games as part of the CGS through online gaming portals operated by Amaya's licensees. Amaya's CGS includes:

- mobile-ready (HTML5) game titles to support a mobile casino offering;

- a range of slot, table, video poker, shared jackpot, fixed odds and remote live dealer table games;
- branded titles featuring popular games, movie themes and characters developed by companies that have entered into licensing agreements with Amaya and its third party content providers;
- game styles suited for all demographics;
- games certified by regulatory bodies for use in multiple jurisdictions;
- regular introduction of new and innovative games;
- ongoing introduction of new game titles from Amaya's growing list of well-known third-party content providers; and
- a powerful back office solution including:
    - reporting functionality, including game, player transaction, daily and monthly overview and jackpot reports;
    - configuration capability, for betting limits, betting denominations, jackpots and return-to-player percentage levels;
    - bonus offering provision capability, including deposit bonuses, loyalty points, code bonuses and registration bonuses; and
    - a customer service team for operators and their players with support in multiple languages and a risk team that works to identify and prevent fraudulent activity and conduct transaction analysis to monitor for possible money laundering.

Amaya also provides related services beyond its technology, customer service and risk support, such as promotional and marketing services for affiliate management, product and games operation and management, website development, player retention, search engine optimization, business intelligence and analytics, and customer relationship management.

Ongame Poker Solution

Amaya acquired the Ongame poker software and network solutions platform through its acquisition of Ongame in November 2012. Amaya subsequently sold this portion of the B2B business in November 2014; however, until then, Ongame, which operated as a subsidiary of the Corporation, offered a complete business-to-business online poker solution for gaming operators that allowed these businesses to offer poker under their own brand and through their own custom designed web portals while participating in a network of poker players from Ongame's gaming operator licensees. See "General Development of the Business - Divestitures".

Game Office Platform

The AGO platform provides gaming operators with support for multiple custom-built web portals and brands on all devices with the ability to offer all interactive gaming verticals including online casino, poker, sportsbook and bingo. It also allows for the seamless integration of content for these verticals from Amaya and third-party providers and incorporates third party customer relationship management, business intelligence, and marketing tools which are tightly integrated to provide marketers with the ability to run seamless end-to-end automated campaigns and promotions. All customer and game data are available through a central repository data warehouse. Related services include end-user technical support, software maintenance and hosting services, software security and backup services, payment and anti-fraud services. Amaya subsequently sold this portion of the B2B business along with Ongame in November 2014. See "General Development of the Business – Key Completed Transactions - Divestitures".

Mosino

Mosino, an all-in-one hospitality platform, targets hospitality industry participants in addition to gaming operators. Depending on the environment, the Mosino platform can provide:

- digital concierge services that manage all guest requests and communications on a single platform; and
- revenue producing services, such as:
  - Internet and WiFi access for all guest devices anywhere in the resort;
  - video-on-demand service with continuously updated content;
  - online casino games, including peer-to-peer or house-banked games, through networked or stand-alone play.

Land-Based Gaming Solutions

Amaya's land-based gaming solutions consist primarily of games, game systems and related services and support, for the Mexican gaming market and Class II and Class III gaming markets in the United States (as described below in "Regulatory Environment"), as well as commercial casinos, slot route operators, charitable gaming establishments/bingo halls, the video lottery terminal (VLT) market and racetracks and racinos.

Through its subsidiary, Cadillac Jack, Amaya designs, manufactures and markets a dynamic portfolio of:

- electronic games and systems for the regulated global gaming industry, offering a variety of high performing, feature-rich products designed for premium player experiences, including a variety of game themes, bonus options and math models;
- progressive product lines including wide-area, local-area, and multi-level progressives which offer players rewarding jackpots across a variety of cabinet styles and games; and
- slot management services and systems, including tools to monitor and balance the mix of gaming machines on a casino floor.

Cadillac Jack's gaming machines feature proprietary games from a library of more than 100 game titles, with new titles developed on a continuous basis, that are available in multiple cabinet configurations.

Through its subsidiary Diamond Game, Amaya designs, develops, produces, markets and services games, systems and instant tickets for the North American gaming industry, predominantly for the business to government lottery sector and also for the Class II bingo markets.

Lottery Solutions

Amaya's lottery solutions are designed to permit gaming jurisdictions to exploit additional sources of revenue. They consist primarily of the following:

Instant Ticket Vending Machines ("ITVM")

The Lottery Products division of Diamond Game creates innovative products for public gaming and charity markets. Diamond Game's primary lottery product is the LT-3 ITVM. The LT-3 is a ticket dispenser with a video monitor that dispenses pre-printed instant scratch or break open or pull-tab tickets on each play but also includes video animation of the game result to enhance entertainment and bring excitement to the player experience. Diamond Game's full library of game themes is available for all LT-3 cabinet types, and the game result can be displayed using various video animation options including pull tab display, scratch display, popping symbols or spinning reels. The LT-3 is designed for "stay and play" use, creating longer play sessions and higher sales volumes, to assist lotteries with expanding their existing retailer base into less traditional venues, such as bars, taverns, bingo halls, veteran's halls, and social clubs. Through Diamond Game, Amaya holds multiple patents related to the unique devices. The ITVMs can also be linked across locations to a robust central system that provides accounting records. Through Diamond Game, Amaya believes it can provide a turnkey solution including the machines, tickets, central system, and service.

Business Strategy of the Corporation

Following the Rational Group Acquisition, Amaya's primary strategy has been to enter into and expand its B2C business while conducting a strategic review of its B2B business. Amaya continues to focus on the creation of long-term shareholder value by building upon its existing strengths and expanding and strengthening its portfolio of products and services that the Corporation expects will deliver sustainable, profitable long-term growth. To do this, Amaya is undertaking a number of ongoing strategic initiatives, including:

- Strengthening and Expanding its Products and Services and Developing its Intellectual Property: While seeking to grow its online and mobile poker offerings through innovative marketing campaigns, Amaya intends to expand its B2C business through the addition of online and mobile sports betting and the continued introduction of online and mobile casino games, as well as through expanded social gaming offerings and potentially fantasy sports in the future. Through the introduction of sports betting and a full casino offering, Amaya expects to attract new customers, cross-sell to existing customers and keep customer leisure time and spending within Amaya's various products and services. In addition, Amaya presently intends to continue to invest in and support the development of its online, mobile and live poker offerings. Amaya seeks to become the global market leader across all gaming verticals through its comprehensive product offerings, customer service and dedication to security, game integrity and transparency. See "Business Strategy of the Corporation - B2C" and "Regulatory Environment - Regulatory Strategy". Moreover, Amaya seeks to develop its products and services and the intellectual property underlying them by, among other things, (i) developing product enhancements and improvements, including with respect to the security of its technology and customer data, as well as with respect to new content and features to enhance the overall customer experience, (ii) expanding the flexibility of its product offerings and technology infrastructure to allow for customization and integration to address new markets and jurisdictional demands, including new niche markets, (iii) improving its product and service offerings and underlying software and technology platform to adapt to the rapidly changing nature of the gaming and interactive entertainment industries, and (iv) protecting its intellectual property in jurisdictions where the Corporation determines there are strategic or other benefits for doing so.
- Expanding its Geographical Reach: We currently intend to expand our geographical reach by seeking to obtain licensure in jurisdictions as they regulate online gaming, such as the United States, and by promoting the regulation of new markets, such as Asia. Amaya's B2C business currently has relatively little exposure to markets in Asia and it generates no revenue in the United States. If and when certain of these markets become regulated, Amaya expects they can become significant growth opportunities for the Corporation. With respect to the United States, Amaya is currently offering its B2B interactive gaming solutions to online gaming operators in the State of New Jersey and has an application in process to obtain licenses that would enable the Corporation to operate its PokerStars and Full Tilt business in the State of New Jersey. See "Regulatory Environment - Regulation of the B2C Business - United States - New Jersey". In addition, Amaya intends to offer its online poker products in certain other U.S. states, subject to implementation of a regulatory framework and required licensure, as states pass legislation approving online gaming within their borders, such as the State of California. The Corporation's current strategy in Asia primarily seeks to promote brand awareness and market development through various gaming, non-gaming and land-based efforts, such as the recent PokerStars sponsorship of a Japanese model and actress as a new celebrity brand ambassador, the 2015 Nanjing Millions Event to be held at the Nanjing Olympic Sports Centre in April 2015 and the PokerStars LIVE branded poker room at the City of Dreams in Manila. Amaya is also actively seeking to obtain new licenses in certain regulated gaming markets to provide its online gaming offerings. Amaya's multi-faceted strategy to expand its geographical reach includes (i) building relationships with governments, online and land-based casino operators and hospitality industry operators, and (ii) working with regulators and government officials to implement regulations beneficial to each of the U.S. states and other jurisdictions in which we may seek to operate, customers and operators.

- Pursuing Strategic Acquisitions and Divestitures: Since 2011, Amaya has completed numerous strategic acquisitions that it believes have significantly expanded its diversified gaming solutions, delivered distribution capability and expanded market reach. The most significant of these acquisitions was Amaya's entrance into its B2C business through the transformative Rational Group Acquisition. Amaya may pursue additional strategic acquisitions to leverage its large customer base and further its strategy of long-term growth and enhanced shareholder value. In addition, Amaya may also pursue strategic divestitures for the same or similar purposes. In this regard, Amaya is exploring strategic opportunities to divest its B2B business and to use the proceeds to repay outstanding indebtedness or repurchase the Corporation's Common Shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB (as defined below). In furtherance of this B2B strategy, the Corporation completed its sale of Ongame to NYX Gaming Group in the fourth quarter of 2014, and announced the Innova Offering on March 26, 2015 and the CJ Sale on March 30, 2015. See "Business of the Corporation – Overview". Pending its strategic review of its remaining B2B assets, Amaya intends to continue its strategy of maximizing long-term shareholder value and pursuing sustainable, profitable growth. There can be no assurance as to if and when the Innova Offering or CJ Sale will occur or whether the Corporation's strategic review process for its remaining B2B assets will result in the consummation of any specific action.

B2C Marketing Strategy and Revenue Model

B2C Marketing Strategy

Amaya's B2C marketing strategy seeks to widen brand appeal to new and more casual and recreational customers, while continuing to provide exceptional service to existing and more experienced customers, who currently represent the vast majority of revenues through and traffic on the Corporation's sites. Although the anticipated focus will initially be on poker, as casino, and later sportsbook, offerings become more significant elements of the B2C business, we currently anticipate increasing our focus and attention on marketing efforts that highlight these offerings.

Amaya markets its B2C brands, products and services, including PokerStars and Full Tilt, as applicable, through various legally permissible platforms and channels, including, without limitation, live poker tours and branded poker rooms, which also generate nominal revenue, endorsement agreements and various media outlets. Below is a general description of such platforms and channels.

Poker Tours and Events

In addition to providing online and mobile gaming products, Amaya also produces some of the world's largest live poker tours and televised poker events. Through Rational Group, Amaya stages and hosts popular live poker tournament series in major cities globally through the European Poker Tour, Asia-Pacific Poker Tour, Latin America Poker Tour and PokerStars Caribbean Adventure. Each tour is sponsored directly by PokerStars, which provides additional promotion for the PokerStars brand through the tour's widespread television and multimedia distribution. The live poker tours are also largely marketed through various media sources and news coverage.

Founded in 2004, the European Poker Tour is known in the industry as Europe's most popular poker tour, and has staged and hosted successful tournament series across Europe, currently stopping in seven destinations, including Monte Carlo, London, Sanremo, Barcelona and Prague. The European Poker Tour is filmed and widely televised throughout Europe. The European Poker Tour attracts numerous players from across the world and offers lucrative prize pools, with the latest completed season (completed in May 2014) including over 11,500 players from 118 countries with a total prize pool of approximately €98 million. The Asia-Pacific Poker Tour, which hosts events at luxury casinos throughout Asia, has been operating since 2007 and we believe has helped expand the popularity of poker in Asia. The Asia-Pacific Poker Tour is responsible for bringing the first major government-sanctioned real-money "Texas hold 'em" poker tournaments to South Korea and China. Founded in May 2008, the Latin America Poker Tour brings world-class poker tournaments to locations such as Panama, Brazil, Peru and Uruguay, and attracted more than 3,800 players from 51 countries in the latest completed season (completed in May 2014) with a total prize pool of approximately US$6.5 million. The PokerStars Caribbean Adventure, which was founded in 2004 on a popular Caribbean cruise ship, is held each year at the Atlantis Casino and Resort on Atlantis Paradise Island in the Bahamas. The PokerStars Caribbean Adventure is considered in the industry as one of the most popular in the world and, since inception, has awarded more than US$203 million in prize money. The PokerStars Caribbean Adventure involves thousands of players, including hundreds of qualifiers from PokerStars.com, as well as various professional athletes and celebrities.

Branded Poker Rooms

Amaya has also branded, under the PokerStars LIVE name, live poker rooms at popular casinos in major cities around the world, including the Hippodrome Casino in London and the City of Dreams Casino in both Macau and most recently, Manila. The Corporation anticipates that this new integrated casino resort in Manila may become a premier leisure and entertainment destination in the Philippines, which has a thriving poker community, much like its regional neighbour Macau. These PokerStars LIVE branded rooms adhere to the same global design concept but are tailored to the specific location, which in each case is developed by the Corporation along with a design agency, and is intended to provide a strong brand presence through common elements across each location.

Endorsement Agreements

Amaya endorses several celebrities and professional poker players, or ambassadors, both at global and regional levels. In particular, these ambassadors comprise four categories: Team Pro, which includes professional poker players; Team SportStars, which includes professional athletes; celebrities, which includes local, regional and global celebrities with an interest in poker; and friends, which includes ambassadors that have a personal connection to certain of the Corporation's brands. Celebrities are engaged primarily to generate new customer participation and vertical growth whereas Team Pro and Team SportStars are engaged primarily for customer experience and retention.

Media

Amaya has a multimedia approach focusing on acquiring and retaining customers both online and offline for its brands, products and services, including PokerStars and Full Tilt. This includes, among other things, legally permissible television programming and television advertisement campaigns, affiliate partnerships, digital advertisements and online campaigns, paid search optimization, and various social media campaigns.

The Corporation broadcasts various televised poker programs and advertisement campaigns that run throughout the year at different intervals. Live poker tournaments are also filmed at various PokerStars events, including our PokerStars sponsored tours, and broadcast as television shows on different channels in several countries. These live events are also broadcast online on various sites, including YouTube and PokerStars.tv. Other forms of television programs that the Corporation broadcasts include reality shows and poker-based dramas which are developed and produced together with various production companies.

The Corporation also engages third party search engine and online traffic optimization companies to increase the Corporation's online presence and traffic to its websites. In addition, the Corporation employs various display campaigns through banner advertisements, social media campaigns, and paid-for placements in search engines. These campaigns are directed at both existing and new desktop and mobile customers.

Revenue Model

Amaya's B2C revenue model is based primarily on two main offerings, real-money games, both online and mobile (and nominally through its live poker tours and branded poker rooms), and online and mobile play-money games. Although prior to the Rational Group Acquisition in August 2014 the vast majority of Amaya's revenues in 2014 were generated by its B2B land-based and interactive gaming solutions, following the Rational Group Acquisition, the vast majority of its revenues were, and the Corporation expects its revenues to continue to be, generated by its client interface, online and mobile gaming platforms under the B2C business segment. Following the Rational Group Acquisition, the B2C revenues were generated almost entirely through the provision of real-money poker offerings, followed by play-money and casino offerings.

Real-Money Games

The Corporation's current real-money gaming offerings are poker, casino and sportsbook, each with its own revenue model.

In poker, players play against each other in either ring games (i.e., games for cash on a hand-by-hand basis) or in tournaments (i.e., players play against each other for tournament chips with prize money distributed to the last remaining competitors) or variations thereof. The Corporation collects a percentage of each pot, or the rake, in ring games and a tournament entry fee for scheduled tournaments and sit and go tournaments, and does not have any of its own capital at risk. These amounts comprise gross revenue, which is typically reduced by offsets to arrive at net revenue. Offsets are the portion of gross revenue that the Corporation allocates to customer bonuses, loyalty programs, free play and promotions, which are used to acquire new customers and retain existing customers.

Online casino offerings typically include the full suite of games seen in a land-based casino, such as blackjack, roulette and slot machines. For these offerings, the Corporation functions in a similar fashion to land-based casinos, generating revenue through hold, or gross winnings, as players play against the house. In online casino, the Corporation believes there is typically lower volatility from the statistical norm versus land-based casinos as there are a larger number of bets placed at small denominations. Also similar to land-based casinos, offsets are typically provided by the Corporation in the same or substantially similar form as they are provided for poker.

Sportsbook involves players wagering on the outcome of sporting events as well as horse and dog races. Like casino offerings, the Corporation will generate sportsbook revenues through hold based on a certain margin to ensure that the house has an advantage. Like online casino, in online sportsbook, the Corporation believes there is typically lower volatility from the statistical norm versus land-based sportsbook as there are a larger number of bets placed at smaller denominations. The Corporation's offsets currently include various forms of free play and promotions, and may, but there is no guarantee that they will, later include sign-up bonuses.

Play-Money Games

Play-money gaming, which is permitted in various jurisdictions, including the United States, that do not otherwise permit real-money gaming, involves players receiving virtual currency for free, or paying a fee to receive additional virtual currency, which can be used to play certain gaming offerings. In the future, the Corporation expects that some play-money games may require an additional fee to download software upgrades or to buy-in to certain advanced play. The Corporation's current play-money game offering primarily consists of poker, including through PokerStars Play. There are no cash prizes or other prizes for monetary value, and in most cases, all the player fees are passed to the Corporation as revenue, unless the games are played through social platforms, in which case the platform operator retains a certain percentage for hosting the offering (typically 30% for the hosted versions of the Corporation's play-money games). Play-money games may be played through the Corporation's poker client interface, online and mobile platforms, including on social gaming platforms. Offsets include fees charged to the Corporation by the various social platforms, such as Facebook, iOS and Android, marketing and promotions.

B2B Sales and Distribution Strategy and Revenue Model

Sales and Distribution Strategy

Amaya distributes its B2B solutions, products and services through a combination of direct and indirect sales channels. The Corporation believes this strategy allows it to broaden its customer base, while at the same time remaining in contact with its existing customer base and managing costs.

Among other things, Amaya conducts one-on-one meetings with its clients to demonstrate its solutions, products and services at their locations, hosts customers at private demonstrations at their offices and at other locations, and participates in various trade shows domestically and internationally each year. In certain cases, the Corporation responds to competitive requests for proposals from private and public entities who are seeking to procure gaming solutions and services. Amaya also advertises in trade and consumer publications that appeal to casino operators, their employees and casino clients.

Direct Sales Strategy

Amaya's sales and business development team includes dedicated salespeople assigned to specific customer accounts who seek to build on its existing relationships with customers, as well as closely monitoring the Corporation's target markets for potential deployments and new customer opportunities.

Indirect Sales Channel Strategy

Amaya utilizes sales agents and distributors to market and offer many of its solutions in various jurisdictions where its marketing reach is otherwise constrained. Amaya's distributors and sales agents are selected based on experience in the gaming industry, including, without limitation, the number of contacts in the Corporation's target customer segments.

Amaya's sales agents and distributors receive ongoing training from Amaya, work with dedicated Amaya account managers, participate in co-operative marketing programs and receive market development funds and support materials for customer sales. Amaya's personnel assist distributors with initial deployment of the Corporation's solutions in an effort to provide quality assurance to customers.

Revenue Model

Amaya generates revenues from its B2B business solutions, products and services by outright sales, technology licensing, leasing or on a product participation basis, either directly or indirectly through distribution partners in various jurisdictions. In the product participation and licensing model, products and technology are owned by Amaya and leased or licensed to customers either on a fee basis or at a rate based on a percentage of the revenues generated from the use of the solutions.

Revenues from Amaya's interactive gaming solutions are typically generated via software licensing based on a percentage of the gaming operator's net gaming revenue (or rake in the case of Amaya's poker platform). Other revenues include ongoing hosting and network administration fees, set-up fees for platform integrations, training, and consultancy services.

Revenues from Amaya's land-based gaming solutions, including its lottery products, are primarily generated through participation agreements, or on a fixed fee basis, with the gaming operator, under which Amaya receives a percentage share of the revenue generated by its gaming machines and systems or in other instances, a daily fee. Revenues are also generated through the sale of gaming machines either on an outright basis or on a finance or lease basis. Diamond Game primarily generates revenues on a participation agreement or fixed-fee basis for its lottery ITVMs.

Service and Warranty

Amaya provides standard warranties of various lengths with its B2B solutions, products and services, which differ by product or service type and the terms under which gaming machines were placed into gaming facilities, and typically cover defects in materials and workmanship. Warranty obligations and other maintenance services are performed either on-site or at Amaya's facilities. In the event that the maintenance services are beyond the coverage of the warranty, or the warranty has expired, Amaya charges the client the applicable rate for its technicians in addition to the costs associated with the service call.

Technology Infrastructure and Research and Development

The technology infrastructure used to support Amaya's B2C and B2B businesses was designed to support its growth by having the flexibility and scalability to adapt and conform to the demands and changes in its solutions, products and services. Amaya is continuously developing its proprietary platforms and has invested significantly in its technology infrastructure since inception to ensure a positive experience for its customers, not only from a gameplay perspective with respect to its B2C business, but most importantly with respect to security and integrity across business segments and verticals. To support Amaya's strong reputation for security and integrity, Amaya employs what it believes to be industry-leading practices and systems with respect to various aspects of its technology infrastructure, including payment security, game integrity, customer fund protection, marketing and promotion, customer support and VIP rewards and loyalty programs. These security and integrity systems routinely review and evaluate customer backgrounds, game play, financial and transactional activity and related risks, through a variation of management systems, including "know your customer" and related background screening (which collects age and identity information, as well as monitoring against certain prohibited persons and other watch lists), deposit screening, chip dumping screening (which detects abnormal game play and movement of funds), withdrawals screening, collusion detection, bots detection (which detects artificial intelligence-drive game play), multiple account alerts, account restriction and ban detection and a safe mode system (which is based on a customer's risk profile and limits access to high risk deposit methods). See also "Regulatory Environment — Regulatory Strategy".

The Company's research and development ("R&D") strategy seeks to provide broad market applications for products derived from its technology base. The Corporation's R&D efforts are focused primarily on the following areas: (i) developing and delivering the Corporation's pipeline of new products and services; (ii) revitalizing its existing product and services offerings through continued innovation; (iii) developing core technology and platforms for existing and future verticals; (iv) evolving the functionality, security and performance of its offerings and platforms; (v) building software including operating systems, source code, graphics and media frameworks, application runtimes, networking technologies, and mobile applications; (vi) developing server and desktop software for enterprise and consumer environments; (vii) developing infrastructure systems to provide the underlying support for our offerings, systems and platforms; (viii) providing a platform and tools for operations and marketing; and (ix) improving development and testing technologies. The Corporation also engages from time to time in longer term fundamental research and may do so in the future either directly or through the funding of third party projects. The Corporation dedicates a major portion of its R&D investments to its B2C business.

Markets and Customers

The gaming industry is a large, dynamic and growing global market with a variety of segments, including online, mobile and land-based poker rooms, sports betting, casinos, bingo rooms, lotteries and other gaming mediums. According to gaming industry consultants, H2 Gambling Capital, from 2003 to 2014, the combined global interactive gaming markets, including online poker, casino, sports betting, bingo, lottery and other gaming markets have grown from approximately €6.6 billion to €36.9 billion in 2014 and are expected to grow to approximately €42.8 billion by the end of 2018.

B2C

Online and mobile gaming is the virtual equivalent of many popular land-based games, such as poker, blackjack, roulette, slot machines and sports betting. Online and mobile gaming operators take advantage of scale and technology to provide gaming to large networks of customers. Originating in the mid 1990's, online gaming has grown steadily over time. Over the past decade, as technology, security and public sentiment has improved, we believe this growth has accelerated.

Online poker saw a rapid rise in popularity beginning in 2003 when Chris Moneymaker won the main event at the World Series of Poker, a prize of US$2.5 million, after winning his entry in a US$39.00 buy-in online satellite tournament on PokerStars. This rise in popularity saw gross gaming revenues ("GGR") from global online poker grow from a €300.7 million per year industry in 2003 to a €2.8 billion per year industry in 2014, according to H2 Gambling Capital. H2 Gambling Capital forecasts that the online poker market is expected to grow at a compounded annual growth rate ("CAGR") of approximately 11.5% from 2014 through 2018, driven by growth from various U.S. states regulating online poker.

Online casino has also seen rapid growth over the past decade, with GGRs from the global market growing from €1.6 billion in 2003 to €6.5 billion in 2014 according to H2 Gambling Capital. As online operators continue to expand content and increase product offerings, H2 Gambling Capital forecasts a CAGR in this market of 10.3% from 2014 to 2018. According to industry experts and sources, including H2 Gambling Capital, much of this growth is expected to come from continuing regulation and expansion in the United States.

According to H2 Gambling Capital, online betting makes up the largest segment of the online gaming market at nearly €14.3 billion in revenue in 2013. As with online poker and online casino, according to H2 Gambling Capital, online sports betting saw significant growth from 2003 through 2014 as technology improved and e-commerce became more mainstream. While data collected by H2 Gambling Capital suggests that growth is expected to moderate slightly, the online sports betting market is still projected by H2 Gambling Capital to grow at a CAGR of nearly 7.7% from 2014 through 2018, reaching a total market size of €19.2 billion.

B2B

Amaya believes that the market for its B2B solutions, products and services is large and quickly growing, particularly the market for its lottery, land-based, and interactive solutions. Data compiled by H2 Gambling Capital projects total global gaming market GGRs to increase to approximately €396 billion in 2018 from an estimated €347 billion in 2014, with gaming divided into the product verticals of betting, casino, lotteries, gaming machines and bingo/other gaming and interactive gaming divided into the product verticals of betting, casino, poker, state lotteries, bingo, and skill/other gaming/commercial lotteries.

Competition

B2C

The industries in which Amaya operates its B2C business are highly competitive, constantly evolving and subject to regulatory and rapid technological change. Amaya faces significant competition in all aspects of its B2C business and competes for customers with other online, mobile and land-based gaming and interactive entertainment developers and operators, as applicable, on the basis of many factors, including, without limitation, the quality of the customer experience, brand awareness, reputation, security, integrity and access to other distribution channels. Although we believe that we compete favorably, our competitors could develop more compelling content and offerings, which could adversely affect our ability to attract and retain customers. Moreover, technological advances have reduced barriers to entry, making it easier for new competitors to enter the market. These competitors, whether known or unknown, may also take advantage of large user and customer bases and networks through social networks to grow rapidly.

There are multiple B2C competitors specializing in offering online and mobile gaming and interactive entertainment products, including developers for online, mobile and social networks, operators of regulated online real-money gaming, live poker tournaments, developers for consoles and other platforms, and other forms of media and entertainment. These competitors range from small, localized companies to large multinational corporations in the jurisdictions where we conduct business. These competitors include, among others, 888 Holdings, bwin.party, Playtech, Paddy Power, Bet365 and Betfair, and traditionally brick and mortar competitors such as William Hill and Ladbrokes. Also, increasing cross-over with social gaming companies, such as Zynga and Caesars Interactive Entertainment, exists for both free-to-play, play-money social offerings and real-money online gaming.

In addition to the factors listed below regarding Amaya's ability to effectively compete with its B2B competitors, which generally apply across business segments, Amaya's ability to compete effectively with its B2C competitors is based on a number of factors, including, but not limited to, its ability to (i) maintain its strong reputation among its customers, (ii) maintain appropriate liquidity and a large customer base, (iii) provide comprehensive and varied gaming and entertainment offerings, (iv) provide a superior customer experience, including, the lowest fees, highest promotions, and best-in-class software development, customer service, payment processing, security and integrity, and (v) develop products and offerings designed for distribution across multiple channels with superior functionality and efficient implementation.

B2B

Like the B2C market, the market for B2B diversified gaming solutions, products and services is also highly competitive, constantly evolving and subject to regulatory and rapid technological change. Amaya's B2B business competes with other gaming solutions providers as well as with gaming operators providing games and gaming solutions and technologies directly to players and customers. Similar to the B2C competitors, Amaya's B2B competitors range from small localized companies to large multi-national corporations, some of which may have greater financial resources, in every jurisdiction where we conduct business. In addition, new or expanding gaming operators and the legalization of gaming in new jurisdictions each create new product demand and have contributed to significant growth in the overall installed base of gaming solutions, products and services during the past few decades.

There are multiple B2B competitors specializing in specific segments, such as interactive gaming and entertainment, land-based gaming, and lottery, which directly compete for certain segments of the Corporation's target markets. Amaya's more significant B2B gaming solutions competitors include Scientific Games Corporation, IGT, the Novomatic Group of Companies and Intralot. Some of these competitors also offer online and mobile gaming and interactive entertainment solutions, products and services directly to operators and end-users.

In addition to the factors listed above regarding Amaya's ability to effectively compete with its B2C competitors, which also generally apply across business segments, Amaya's ability to compete effectively with its B2B competitors is also based on a number of factors including, but not limited to, its ability to (i) develop and offer games and games systems with higher earnings performance for its customers than the games and gaming solutions of its competitors, (ii) enhance, expand and constantly refresh Amaya's solutions offerings, (iii) adapt Amaya's solutions for use with new technologies, (iv) implement product innovation and reliability, (v) implement effective sales and distribution strategies and customer support, and (iv) offer competitive pricing.

Amaya seeks to create solutions with functionality and features superior to other competing products, using innovative architecture and technologies, resulting in a higher degree of customer acceptance and player preference. Amaya believes that its dedicated customer service and support, efficient manufacturing and supply chain management, and extensive research and development activities are competitive advantages for the Corporation. Amaya believes that its reputation for consistently delivering and supporting high quality products will encourage operators to select Amaya's solutions.

Manufacturing and Supply Chain Management

With respect to the B2C business, the Corporation primarily develops and produces its products and services internally through, among others, internal engineering teams, software architects, internal network operations teams and production operations staff. Amaya's B2C business development and production includes, without limitation, software development and quality assurance, hosting of software, including gaming services, within the Corporation's data centers, development of network infrastructure and operations monitoring and maintenance of our products and services. The Corporation engages third parties to assist in development and production on an as-needed basis.

With respect to the B2B business, the Corporation internally develops its solutions, including software development and the integration thereof on hardware gaming devices. Amaya has adopted a hybrid sourcing model. The production of key hardware components is outsourced, while the final assembly, software integration and testing are performed internally. The Corporation currently works with numerous suppliers domiciled in various jurisdictions around the world, including Canada, the United States, the United Kingdom, France, China and Taiwan. Quality assurance is provided by independent testing laboratories specializing in electrical product safety testing, electromagnetic compatibility testing, and benchmark performance testing.

Overall, the Corporation seeks to negotiate competitive pricing with its component and other suppliers, and generally believes that the availability of components and other supplies that it uses are adequate and can be sourced from more than one supplier.

Intellectual Property Rights

The development and protection of intellectual property is a core part of the Corporation's business strategy and is a key element to our success. We believe that our intellectual property rights currently provide broad and comprehensive coverage for our products and services. Since inception, we have followed a policy and practice of protecting our intellectual property rights in our core business areas through a combination of patents, copyrights, industrial designs, trademarks and trade secret laws, and generally through contractual provisions with third parties who have access to or are otherwise involved in the creation or development of our intellectual property. These protections generally include non-disclosure and confidentiality policies and provisions and the use of appropriate intellectual property ownership and assignment provisions and restrictive covenant agreements with, among others, our employees, contractors, consultants, manufacturers, suppliers, customers and stakeholders. The Corporation actively seeks to protect and enforce its intellectual property rights to prevent unauthorized use by third parties, including through applications for injunctive relief and litigation, as necessary.

In addition, the Corporation seeks to preserve the integrity and confidentiality of its data, trade secrets and know-how by maintaining the physical security of its facilities and the electronic security of its information technology systems. Measures taken by the Corporation to maintain confidentiality of its facilities and systems include the use of monitoring methods to prevent third party access to confidential information and certain software, such as the underlying source code, as well as systems, practices and procedures designed to prevent unauthorized third party access to such information and software. While the Corporation has confidence in these individuals, organizations and systems, the Corporation's security measures may be breached, and legal recourse may not provide adequate remedies for any such breach.

The Corporation's active intellectual property portfolio contains, among other rights, approximately 80 issued patents, 135 patent applications, 610 registered trademarks, 245 trademark applications and 22 industrial designs. In addition, the Corporation owns in excess of 7,000 domain names, as well as unregistered intellectual property, which includes copyright works, including source codes, software codes, logos, audio-visual elements, graphics, original music, story lines, interfaces, advertisements, films and videos, copyrights and databases (including customer lists), unregistered trademark rights, confidential information and trade secrets. Issued and registered rights (and applications for such rights) are held by the Corporation in numerous jurisdictions around the world, including the United States, Canada, Europe, Russia, certain South American countries, China and certain Australasian countries. The terms and extent of protection afforded under our issued and registered rights vary depending on the date and jurisdiction of filing.

The Corporation's patent strategy is focused on protecting novel elements of its technology design covering the principal jurisdictions where the Corporation currently carries on business and where we believe filing for such protection is strategically, commercially, technologically or otherwise, appropriate and beneficial. These elements include, among others, core design features, implementation technologies and inventions and developments of games, in each case, where possible. In addition to the issued patents mentioned above, the Corporation has pending patent applications in the United States and certain key commercial foreign countries, such as Canada and in Europe, and files new patent applications as and where it deems appropriate. The actual protection afforded by a patent depends upon the type of patent, the scope of its coverage and the availability of legal remedies in the applicable jurisdiction.

In addition to patent rights, the Corporation has registered trademarks for, among other things, its primary brands, including PokerStars, Full Tilt, and its related live poker tours in more than 40 jurisdictions around the world where the Corporation believes there is a commercial benefit for having such registrations. The Corporation continuously monitors its trademark portfolio and files new registration applications as and when it deems appropriate. To complement the Corporation's B2B intellectual property, the Corporation has also entered into brand licensing agreements with various third parties such as Paramount Licensing Inc., Playboy Enterprises International Inc., and Warner Bros. Consumer Products Inc. to develop games based on their respective marks, characters and themes. We believe that our use of licensed brand names and related intellectual property contributes to the appeal and success of our products. These licensing agreements are subject to various conditions and typically involve Amaya paying royalties to each licensor on a fixed percentage or unit basis. Licensors also typically have the right to inspect and approve the use of licensed property.

The source code for the Corporation's software, including the proprietary software embedded in its hardware gaming devices, is protected under trade secret law and confidential information law, as the case may be in a particular jurisdiction, as well as applicable copyright law. The Corporation recognizes, however, that effective protection may be limited or not be available in some countries in which it offers its solutions. The Corporation licenses the use of its software to its customers and resellers for its B2B business and only to end-users for its B2C business, in each case providing additional protection through the use of contractual provisions in the applicable license agreements. In particular, these licenses generally contain, among other restrictions, customary provisions prohibiting the unauthorized reproduction, disclosure, reverse engineering and transfer of the Corporation's licensed software and related intellectual property. Moreover, any licensing of the Corporation's intellectual property is on what the Corporation believes to be strict licensing terms, with licenses being non-exclusive and limited in duration and scope.

The Corporation also seeks to protect its copyright works through either or both the registration of such works with applicable governmental authorities (where available and it deems registration strategically beneficial) and reliance on international treaties. The Corporation believes that such protection is adequate for its purposes in the jurisdictions in which it operates, or currently expects to operate in the near term. Similar to its other intellectual property rights, the Corporation continuously monitors its copyright portfolio and updates its policy regarding the registration of copyrights to seek the appropriate protection available under applicable laws.

In addition to the brand licensing agreements discussed above, the Corporation also enters into various types of licensing agreements related to technology and intellectual property rights. The Corporation enters certain of these agreements to obtain rights that may be necessary to produce and sell its products and services. The Corporation may also license its technology and intellectual property to third parties through various licensing agreements.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Corporation may not be successful in obtaining the patents, trademarks, industrial designs and other protections for which it has applied. Our issued patents and registered intellectual property rights and those that may be issued or registered in the future, may be challenged, narrowed, circumvented or found to be invalid or unenforceable, which could limit our ability to stop competitors from marketing related products or services or the length of term of protection that we may have for our products or services. Despite efforts to protect its proprietary rights, third parties may infringe on the Corporation's intellectual property rights and in such situations the Corporation may be required to defend such rights. The defense of such rights may divert management's attention to the business and involve a significant expense, and the Corporation may not be successful in defending its rights. In addition, others, including our competitors, may be able to independently develop substantially equivalent intellectual property, and the rights granted to us under any of our issued or registered intellectual property, or future rights, may not provide us with any meaningful competitive advantages against these competitors. Regulatory Environment

General

The offering and operation of online real-money gaming platforms and the manufacture, distribution and use of gaming equipment and related software and solutions is subject to extensive regulation and approval by various federal, state, provincial, tribal and foreign agencies (collectively, "gaming authorities"). Gaming laws require us to obtain licenses or findings of suitability from gaming authorities for Amaya, including each of our subsidiaries engaged in these activities, and certain of our directors, officers, employees and in some instances, significant shareholders (typically beneficial owners of more than 5% of a company's outstanding equity). The criteria used by gaming authorities to make determinations as to qualification and suitability of an applicant varies among jurisdictions, but generally require the submission of detailed personal and financial information followed by a thorough investigation. Gaming authorities have broad discretion in determining whether an applicant qualifies for licensing or should be found suitable. Gaming authorities generally look to the following criteria when determining to grant a license or finding of suitability, including (i) the financial stability, integrity and responsibility of the applicant, (ii) the quality and security of the applicant's online real-money platform and gaming equipment and related software, as applicable, (iii) the past history of the applicant, and (iv) the effect on competition. Gaming authorities may, subject to certain administrative proceeding requirements, (i) deny an application, or limit, condition, restrict, revoke or suspend any license, registration, finding of suitability or approval, and (ii) fine any person licensed, registered or found suitable or approved. Notwithstanding the foregoing, some jurisdictions explicitly prohibit gaming in all or certain forms. The Corporation does not actively market its gaming solutions, products or services that are prohibited in such jurisdictions.

If any director, officer or employee of ours fails to qualify for a license or is found unsuitable (including due to the failure to submit the required documentation) by a gaming authority, we may deem it necessary, or be required to, sever our relationship with such person, which may include terminating the employment of any such person.

Gaming authorities have the right to investigate any individual or entity having a material relationship to, or material involvement with, us or any of our subsidiaries, to determine whether such individual or entity is suitable or should be licensed to do business as a business associate of ours. In addition, certain gaming authorities monitor the activities of the entities they regulate both in their respective jurisdiction and in other jurisdictions to ensure that such entities are in compliance with local standards on a worldwide basis.

As a regulated entity, we are required to maintain strong corporate governance standards and are required to, among other things, maintain effective internal controls over our financial reporting and disclosure controls and procedures, maintain systems for accurate record keeping, file periodic reports with gaming authorities and maintain strict compliance with various laws and regulations applicable to us. In addition, there are various other factors associated with gaming operations that could burden our business and operations, including, without limitation, compliance with multiple and sometimes conflicting regulatory requirements, jurisdictional limitations on contract enforcement, foreign currency risks, certain restrictions on gaming activities, potentially adverse tax risks and tax consequences, and changes in the political and economic stability, regulatory and taxation structures and the interpretation thereof in the jurisdictions in which the Corporation and its licensees operate. Any or all of such factors could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, operating results and financial condition. See also "Risk Factors and Uncertainties".

Regulation of the B2C Business

Our B2C subsidiaries operate pursuant to licenses granted by gaming authorities in the Isle of Man, Malta, Italy, France, Spain, Greece, Denmark, Germany, United Kingdom, Belgium, Bulgaria and Estonia. Each of these licenses grant us the authority to operate our B2C websites and authorize us to offer and operate online real-money games including, most notably, poker, casino games and betting, including sports betting, in certain permissible jurisdictions. As other jurisdictions enact gaming laws and regulations permitting online gaming, we expect our B2C subsidiaries to seek additional licenses and approvals to operate in those jurisdictions.

As set forth below, the licenses granted to us by the applicable gaming authorities in the Isle of Man and Malta generally permit us to operate and accept customers in various jurisdictions around the world, excluding jurisdictions that have an independent regulatory and licensing scheme that specifically requires licensure in that country. In particular, our subsidiaries that hold Malta licenses use the same to offer services to residents in other European Union member states in compliance with established European Union principles of free movement of services within the European Union. Our other licenses are country-specific and are based on where our subsidiaries are located.

Isle of Man

Under the Online Gambling Regulation Act 2001 (the "OGRA"), the Isle of Man Gambling Supervision Commission (the "IoM Gaming Commission") maintains responsibility for the regulation and supervision of all online gaming activities in the Isle of Man, and for investigating the character and financial status of any person applying for or holding a license in connection with online gaming. The IoM Gambling Commission is authorized to grant a license to conduct online gaming to a company if the Commission is satisfied: (i) that the company is under the control of persons of integrity; (ii) as to the beneficial ownership of the share capital of the company; (iii) that the activities of the company are under the management of persons of integrity and competence; and (iv) that the company has adequate financial means available to conduct online gaming. Licenses are generally valid for a maximum of five years. The IoM Gambling Commission may revoke a license if the licensee fails, at any time, to meet any of the initial licensure requirements. The IoM Gambling Commission may suspend or revoke a license if the holder of the license or designated official is convicted of certain offenses, or is convicted "by a court in any country or territory in the world of an offense punishable (in that country or territory) in the case of an adult by custody for an unlimited period or a term of two years or more." The license may also be suspended or revoked for other reasons, including the failure to pay required fees, failure to comply with license conditions or obligations.

Two of our subsidiaries hold licenses issued by the IoM Gambling Commission allowing us to provide poker, casino and betting under the PokerStars and Full Tilt brands, each of which were renewed on March 10, 2014 and expire on March 9, 2019.

Malta

Under the Maltese Lotteries and Other Games Act 2001 and the Remote Gaming Regulations (S.L. 438) (collectively, the "Maltese Regulations"), the Malta Lotteries and Gaming Authority (the "Maltese Authority") regulates all aspects of gaming in Malta. Pursuant to the Maltese Regulations, any person who operates, promotes, sells, supplies or manages interactive gaming in or from Malta must obtain the appropriate license from the Maltese Authority. The Maltese Authority issues four classes of Remote Gaming Licenses: (i) a Class 1 Remote Gaming License which is a remote gaming license; (ii) a Class 2 Remote Gaming License - remote betting office license; (iii) a Class 3 Remote Gaming License - license to promote and/or abet remote gaming from Malta; and (iv) a Class 4 Remote Gaming License - license to host and manage remote gaming operators, excluding the licensee. The above-referenced licenses or an authorized equivalent from a European Economic Area jurisdiction approved by the Maltese Authority are required to operate, promote, sell, or abet internet gaming in or from Malta.

Three of our subsidiaries hold an aggregate of 12 licenses issued by the Maltese Authority, including Class 1, Class 2, Class 3 and Class 4 licenses, which enables such subsidiaries to offer all respective products and services listed above. Absent any renewals or extension under the terms of the governing licensing agreements, the Class 1 licenses are set to expire on dates ranging from December 17, 2018 to February 20, 2020, the Class 2 licenses are set to expire on January 20, 2020, the Class 3 licenses are set to expire on dates ranging from December 22, 2016 to December 10, 2017 and the Class 4 licenses are set to expire on December 22, 2016.

Remote gaming operators are required to pay a gaming tax to the Maltese Authority. The amount of this tax varies depending on the type of license issued and maintained by the operator or software or services supplier.

Estonia

The Estonian Tax and Customs Board maintains responsibility for the issuance of activity licenses and operating permits for gaming and lotteries in Estonia, and also acts as the gaming supervisory agency in Estonia. The Estonia Gambling Act, RT I 2008, 47, 261 (the "Estonia Gambling Act") was enacted to establish elevated requirements for gaming operators, provide measures for the protection of players, and reduce the negative consequences of gaming and its impact on society. "Remote gambling" under the Estonia Gambling Act is generally defined as the gaming organization of gambling where the outcome of the game is determined by an electronic device, and the player can participate in the game by electronic means of communication, including telephone, internet and media services.

On August 18, 2010, one of our subsidiaries was awarded an activity license which became effective on August 23, 2010. Activity licenses are generally valid for an unspecified period of time. On September 20, 2010, that subsidiary was further awarded an operating permit for the organizing of games of chance in the form of remote gambling concerning one of our domain names. This operating permit is valid from September 20, 2010 through September 20, 2015.

Spain

In Spain, gaming is traditionally regulated by the seventeen autonomous regions within each of the respective territories. Spain's Gambling Act (the "Spanish Gambling Act") became effective on May 29, 2011, in order to, among other things, regulate online gaming nationwide. The Spanish Gambling Act covers "gaming operations through electronic, interactive, and technological means" including the internet, television, mobile phones, and land lines. The types of gaming activities controlled under the Spanish Gambling Act include sports betting, horse racing betting, raffles, competitions, and "other games," which includes poker. The Spanish Gambling Commission is responsible for enforcement of the Spanish Gambling Act and has sanctioning authority.

The Spanish Gambling Act establishes two categories of licenses: general and single, as well as a permit for offering occasional games. A general license is required to offer certain types of betting games, raffles, and games categorized as "other games." General licenses are valid for a ten year term, and may be renewed for additional ten year periods. The Spanish Gambling Commission offers general licenses through a competitive and public process. The Gambling Act requires applicants to apply for provisional registration in the General Register of Gambling Licenses prior to requesting a call, or public notice of application, for a general license. The Gambling Act grants the Spanish Gambling Commission the authority to restrict the number of licenses awarded for each type of game based on public interest and whether a company requests a call, in each case allowing the Spanish Gambling Commission to control the license review and authorization process. If the number of licenses for a particular type of game is restricted, the licenses offered during that call are not automatically renewable.

On June 1, 2012, one of our subsidiaries was granted a general license for the development and operation of games in the “Other Games” category and a singular license for the offering of online poker. The same subsidiary is also authorized to conduct the advertising, sponsorship and promotion of the games authorized by the licenses. This general license is valid for a ten year term and the singular license is valid for a five year term. This subsidiary has also been granted singular licenses for Blackjack and Roulette.

Greece

In Greece, the Hellenic Gaming Commission (the “HGC”), in partnership with the Greek Ministry of Finance (the “Greek Ministry”) is responsible for regulating and supervising the online gaming industry. In 2011, the Greek government enacted new legislation relating to all forms of gaming (the “Greek Gambling Act”). Under the Greek Gambling Act, companies that have been licensed by the Greek Ministry through public tenders are authorized to offer online gaming and may partner or otherwise contract with third parties, who do not have licenses issued by the Greek Ministry, to offer online gaming. The Greek Gambling Act also allows for companies that hold licenses in other member states of the European Union to apply for interim temporary licenses, valid until the formal licenses are awarded. The HGC issued twenty-four temporary licenses under the Gambling Act.

In November 2013, the Rational Group partnered with Diamond Link Ltd. (“Diamond Link”) to allow Greek players to utilize our product offerings. Diamond Link is one of the twenty-four temporary license holders in Greece, and through our partnership, two of our websites operate under that authorization.

Denmark

Under the Denmark Gambling Act, the Denmark Gambling Authority (the “DGA”) maintains the licensing procedure for individuals and entities looking to provide betting and online casino services in Denmark. The DGA defines online casino services as “those where the player and operator do not meet physically, for instance where games are sold via the internet, telephone or television.” Online casino games can include roulette, blackjack, baccarat, punto banco, poker and “combination games”. A license to operate online casino services is valid for a term of five years. If the applicant has not yet obtained the required certifications for its gaming system through testing, the DGA will issue a fixed-term one-year license until such certifications are complete.

On December 15, 2011, one of our subsidiaries was awarded a one-year fixed-term license to provide online casino services. The license was effective on January 1, 2012 and expired on December 31, 2012. On December 10, 2012, one of our subsidiaries was then granted a five year license to provide online casino games which expires on December 31, 2016.

Belgium

The Belgium Gaming Commission (the “Belgian Commission”) is responsible for issuing gaming licenses for the operation of games of chance, and ensuring the proper supervision of these games and the implementation of any regulation promulgated under applicable law. Belgian law generally prohibits the operation of a gaming establishment or the offering of gaming in any form, in any place, or in any direct or indirect way, unless a license is granted by the Belgian Commission in accordance with the Belgian law.

Gambling Management S.A., the owner and operator of Casino de Namur in Belgium, was granted a license to operate and offer online gaming through one of our domain names. Casino de Namur partnered with us to offer online gaming in Belgium. On April 20, 2011, one of our subsidiaries was awarded a ten-year Class E gaming license as a service provider to Gambling Management S.A.

France

The Collège De L’Autorité de Régulation des Jeux En Ligne (the “ARJEL”) oversees gaming licensing in France. Act No. 2010-476 of 12 May 2010 authorized online gaming in France for betting on sports, horse races, and circle games. Each type of online gaming requires a separate license. Government decrees and orders are also a part of the French regulatory system. The decrees and orders that the Corporation believes are relevant to its business are Decree No. 2010-482 of May 12, 2010, which addresses, among other topics, changes of control, Decree No. 2010-518 from May 19, 2010, which addresses customer accounts, and Order of May 17, 2010, which addresses the licensing process.

On June 25, 2010, one of our subsidiaries was granted a license by ARJEL for online poker games. The license expires on June 25, 2015.

Italy

Currently, L'Amministrazione Autonoma dei Monopoli di Stato (the "AAMS") regulates gaming in Italy. Since July 2002, the AAMS has been authorized to govern the Italian gaming industry. All operators, both foreign and domestic, are required to obtain a license from the AAMS to provide online gaming services to residents in Italy. Applicants based in the European Economic Area ("EEA"), or those with an EEA passport, are eligible for a license.

On December 17, 2010, a concession to operate, among other things, poker and sports betting in Italy was awarded to one of our subsidiaries. This license was supplemented in March 2011, and expires on June 30, 2016.

United Kingdom

Gaming in the United Kingdom is regulated by the Gaming Act 2005 (the "UK Act"). The UK Act established a gambling commission as the regulator that is responsible for granting licenses to operate as well as overseeing compliance with the UK Act. In 2014, the Gambling (Licensing and Advertising) Act 2014 was passed by Parliament which required all remote gambling operators serving UK customers and advertising in the UK to obtain a license from the UK Gambling Commission.

Since November 1, 2014, one of our subsidiaries has been offering services under a continuation license issued by the UK Gambling Commission and on March 18, 2015 a final license was granted. The Corporation understands that so long as the applicable license fees are paid, it remains compliant with applicable UK licensure requirements and the license is not suspended, revoked or otherwise surrendered, the license will remain valid indefinitely. See "General Development of the Business – Other Announcements".

Germany

The German state of Schleswig Holstein issued a license to one of our subsidiaries pursuant to a law adopted in 2012 that regulated and licensed online gaming. Although the law has since been repealed, our license will remain valid until December 21, 2018. Under such license, and only until the expiration date, which may not be extended, we may offer poker games and certain casino games only to residents of Schleswig Holstein. We currently expect to begin offering such games by the by the end of the first half of 2015.

Bulgaria

In Bulgaria, the State Commission for Gambling ("Bulgarian Commission") issues and maintains licenses for "gambling games" including online casino games. A license for organizing online betting must explicitly state the intended gaming activity by the holder, and may not be transferred. Bulgaria requires that the licensee be registered in a European Union member state, another state signatory to the European Economic Area Agreement, or in the Swiss Confederation. The licensee must also appoint an authorized representative with an address in Bulgaria, with the authority to represent the licensee before state authorities or Bulgarian courts.

All bets must be placed and winnings must be paid out only in Bulgarian levs and the Euro, unless the Bulgarian Commission grants preliminary permission to issue wagers and winnings in foreign currencies. The Bulgarian Gambling Act requires that certain communication equipment must be located in Bulgaria for reporting purposes.

On February 18, 2014, one of our subsidiaries was awarded a license to offer online poker to Bulgarian residents. The license is valid for 10 years.

United States

Generally, intrastate online gaming is lawful in the United States provided the relevant gaming complies with the Unlawful Internet Gambling Enforcement Act ("UIGEA") and the particular state has enacted legislation or otherwise properly authorized the same. Further, the Federal Wire Act of 1961 (the "Federal Wire Act") makes it unlawful to use electronic communications to make bets or wagers, or transmit information that assists in making bets or wagers, on any sporting event or contest, over state lines. In December of 2011, the United States Department of Justice (the "DOJ") issued an opinion from its Office of Legal Counsel indicating that it is the official opinion of the Department of Justice that the Federal Wire Act "prohibits only the transmission of communications related to bets or wagers on sporting events or contests. More specifically, "interstate transmissions of wire communications that do not relate to a 'sporting event or contest' [. . .] fall outside of the reach of the Wire Act." Pursuant to this guidance, the legislatures of New Jersey, Nevada and Delaware authorized intrastate online gaming, provided that the gambling does not concern a sporting event or contest. More detail on the regulatory scheme in New Jersey is provided directly below.

New Jersey

The provision of online gaming, and other aspects of casino gaming in New Jersey, are subject to the requirements of New Jersey Casino Control Act (the "NJ Act") and the regulations promulgated thereunder. The NJ Act created the New Jersey Casino Control Commission (the "NJ CCC") and the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement (the "NJ DGE"). On February 26, 2013, New Jersey Governor Chris Christie signed a bill into law authorizing online gaming. Under the legislation, online wagering sites can be hosted only by New Jersey's casino licensees. All primary equipment and data centers used by casino licensees to conduct Internet gaming must be located within a licensed casino facility in Atlantic City, New Jersey. Primary equipment includes all hardware required for player management, funds management and game operation. Eligible patrons must be over 21 years of age and physically present within the State of New Jersey. Upon obtaining an online gaming permit, casino licensees are allowed to offer online versions of all games authorized under the NJ Act, including slot machines, poker, roulette, baccarat, blackjack, craps, big six and other games. New Jersey commenced online gaming operations in November 2013.

Under the online gaming legislation, third party companies may provide services to casino licensees to facilitate the conduct of online gaming, including website hosting, electronic commerce capabilities related to online gaming, and the provision of game content. Such service providers must first obtain a casino service industry enterprise (a "CSIE") license. The NJ DGE has the responsibility to investigate all license applications and to prosecute violations of the New Jersey Act. The NJ CCC has the authority to decide a CSIE license application when the NJ DGE recommends the denial of a CSIE license application.

A CSIE license application consists of disclosure forms for the applicant, each of its holding companies, and each individual required to be found suitable by the NJ DGE, along with applicable fees. The NJ DGE requires certain individuals affiliated with the CSIE applicant be found suitable by a showing of clear and convincing evidence that, among other things, the individuals are of good character, honesty and financially stable. The persons affiliated with an applicant who must be found qualified by the NJ DGE are certain officers, directors and management employees, all beneficial owners of 5% or more of the applicant, and any other person the NJ DGE deems appropriate. With respect to security holders, the NJ DGE may waive the qualification requirement for "institutional investors", as defined in the NJ Act, of an applicant if certain investment conditions are met.

Due to the length of investigative time prior to issuing of a plenary CSIE license, the New Jersey regulations allow a CSIE applicant to petition the NJ DGE for a transactional waiver. The transactional waiver allows a CSIE applicant to conduct business with a casino licensee if (i) a completed application for the appropriate CSIE license has been filed, (ii) the applicant for the CSIE files a certification from a designee of the CSIE applicant stating that neither the CSIE applicant, nor any of its qualifiers, are disqualified under the New Jersey Casino Control Act, (iii) the applicant shows good cause for granting the petition, and (iv) the CSIE applicant agrees, within 30 business days of transacting business, to supply the NJ DGE, in writing, a detailed explanation of any business transacted with a casino licensee. The granting of a transactional waiver prior to the issuance of a license is at the discretion of the NJ DGE. If granted, the transactional waiver is valid for a period of six months and may be renewed upon petition to the NJ DGE.

The NJ DGE has broad discretion regarding the issuance, suspension or revocation of a CSIE license. The NJ DGE may also impose conditions on a license. In addition, the NJ DGE has the authority to impose fines, suspend, or revoke a license for violations of the NJ Act, including the failure to satisfy the licensure requirements. A CSIE license is effective for five years and will essentially remain effective thereafter unless the license is suspended, expires, or is revoked. The applicant is asked to submit updated information every five years, and is under a continuing duty to keep all information supplied within its license application current. All costs of the license investigation are borne by the CSIE applicant.

In addition to the required licensure, all software related to Internet gaming, Internet content and gaming equipment manufactured, distributed or sold to New Jersey casino licensees is subject to a technical examination and approval by the NJ DGE for, at a minimum, quality, design, integrity, fairness, honesty, suitability and compliance with technical standards. The approval process includes the submission of same to the NJ DGE for testing, examination and analysis and for comparison with documentation of the schematics, game logic, and random number generator and written explanation of the method of operation, odds determination and all other pertinent information. All costs of such testing, examination and analysis are borne by the CSIE applicant.

Prior to a decision by the NJ DGE to approve online gaming activities, it may require a trial period to test the same on a licensed casino licensee’s website. Once approved by the NJ DGE, it may be operated consistently with the version tested by the NJ DGE. Any changes are subject to prior approval by the NJ DGE.

In early 2013, the Oldford Group applied for a casino license with the NJ DGE in connection with the potential acquisition of The Atlantic Club Casino Hotel. However, the potential transaction was terminated in April 2013. Thereafter, the Oldford Group transitioned the casino license application to a CSIE license application for the provision of online gaming services to casino licensees in New Jersey. On December 6, 2013, the NJ DGE advised that the license of Rational Services Limited, a subsidiary of Oldford Group, would be suspended for two years, primarily because of the unresolved federal indictment of Isai Scheinberg and the involvement of certain other individuals in online gaming operations in the United States following the enactment of UIGEA. Notwithstanding, the NJ DGE allowed for the reactivation of the license if Oldford Group were to demonstrate certain “significantly changed circumstances”, a phrase which was not defined in the applicable NJ DGE correspondence.

In connection with the Rational Group Acquisition, Isai Scheinberg ceased his involvement with Oldford Group and its related entities and subsidiaries, and Mark Scheinberg sold his interest in Oldford Group to the Corporation and he, along with certain other executives and members of management, ceased to serve as officers or directors, as applicable. Following this, the Corporation submitted a letter to the NJ DGE on June 16, 2014 requesting the reactivation of the license application. The NJ DGE reactivated the license application and is currently investigating the Corporation with respect to the same.

Regulation of the B2B Business

Our B2B subsidiaries operate pursuant to licenses granted by gaming authorities in several jurisdictions throughout the world, the most significant of which include the United States, Canada, Mexico, Malta and Gibraltar. Each of these licenses grant us the authority to operate our B2B business, including the manufacture, development and distribution of our B2B solutions, products and services. Internationally, the regulatory environment governing our B2B business is complex and varies by jurisdictional. Certain foreign countries permit the importation, sale and operation of gaming solutions, products and services in casino and non-casino environments. Generally, the regulatory environment with respect to our B2B business, for both the Corporation and its solutions, products and services, is subject to a level of scrutiny similar to that of Canada or the United States.

In certain jurisdictions, before the Corporation can sell a new gaming device as part of its B2B offerings, it must first be homologated and approved by the local gaming control agency or government. The gaming authorities conduct integrity testing of the gaming device and related equipment, and may require a field trial before homologating the gaming device and related software and issuing notice that the governmental authority's technical standards have been met. The gaming authorities may also require subsequent modifications or integrity testing and approvals. In certain jurisdictions, the product homologation can be performed concurrently with the corporate registration or licensing process, while in others the Corporation must first secure a corporate license prior to initiating the homologation process.

The following is a brief description of the principal regulations that apply to the Corporation and its subsidiaries in the jurisdictions in which it conducts its B2B activities.

United States

Tribal Casinos

Gaming on Native American lands in the United States is regulated by the National Indian Gaming Commission ("NIGC") and governed by the Indian Gaming Regulatory Act (the "IGRA"), specific tribal ordinances and regulations. Most Tribal authorities, in the exercise of their sovereignty, have also established gaming commissions or agencies that regulate gaming operations on their Tribal lands. The Corporation is required to comply with all such sources of law, which may impose different requirements with respect to licensing, product approvals, and operations.

The IGRA provides a statutory basis for Native American tribes to operate certain gaming activities, depending on how a particular game is classified and whether the laws of the state where the Native American tribe is located allow or prohibit the particular game.

The gaming classifications are Class I, Class II and Class III:

- Class I gaming include traditional Native American social and ceremonial games and is regulated only by the tribes;
- Class II gaming includes bingo and certain card games such as poker, so long as the card game is not prohibited by the laws of the state where the tribe is located, the card game is played somewhere in the state and the playing of the card game conforms to any applicable state law; and
- Class III gaming consists of all forms of gaming that are not Class I or Class II, such as multi gaming terminals, most table games and keno.

Class III gaming on Native American lands is subject to the negotiation of a compact between the tribe and the state in which they plan to operate a gaming facility. These tribal-state compacts typically include provisions entitling the state to receive a portion of the tribe's gaming revenues and may also impose conditions and requirements on both the Corporation and the Tribal gaming operations.

Amaya must also obtain certification from third party test laboratories prior to the installation of its solutions in certain Tribal jurisdictions, and generally must obtain approval as a gaming supplier with each federally recognized tribe.

Amaya, through its subsidiaries, holds in excess of 100 tribal gaming licenses and registrations in the United States.

Commercial Casinos

States that allow some form of casino-style gaming usually have extensive regulatory requirements that must be met before products can be marketed to commercial casinos located within the state. Generally, each state's respective gaming commission requires that a license or finding of suitability be issued with respect to Amaya, its B2B subsidiaries, its products, or any combination thereof, as applicable. While some states require regulatory approval for both Amaya, as an entity, and its products, some states consider such approval simultaneously and others require that the Corporation obtain company approval before considering product approval and certification. If a state requires that the Corporation obtain company approval, Amaya is required to submit detailed financial and operating reports and furnish other information of the Corporation.

Amaya's officers, directors, certain key employees and any person having a material relationship with Amaya may have to qualify with the state gaming commission and obtain a finding of suitability, as generally described in "Regulatory Environment - General" and "Regulatory Environment - Regulation of the B2C Business - United States" above.

Some states also require that gaming products be placed in the market on a trial basis before receiving final approvals and some states require the licenses and findings of suitability to be renewed on a regular basis.

Amaya and its subsidiaries have licenses, registrations or findings of suitability in more than ten states, including transactional waiver approvals to conduct business with certain New Jersey Casino licensees. The transactional waiver approvals have been extended and are still valid, and these subsidiaries are providing online gaming services in New Jersey, with one subsidiary also provided land-based casino games. See also "Regulatory Environment - Regulation of the B2C Business - United States - New Jersey" above.

Canada

Gaming activities are strictly regulated in Canada under the Criminal Code (the "Criminal Code") and provincial legislation. The Criminal Code prohibits most gaming activity subject to certain prescribed exemptions. These exemptions include manufacturing of gaming solutions conducted by a duly licensed entity. In order to market products in a given province of Canada, the Corporation must first receive the requisite licenses and registrations from a provincial lottery and gaming commission (each, a "Gaming Commission").

Each province of Canada in which Amaya markets products has gaming control legislation in force under which that province regulates gaming activities. The gaming control legislation, regulations promulgated thereunder and rules adopted by Gaming Commissions take into account a number of public policy concerns, including: the integrity of gaming; the prevention of unsuitable persons from having a direct or indirect involvement with gaming at any time or in any capacity; the establishment and maintenance of responsible accounting practices and procedures; the maintenance of effective controls over the financial practices of registrants; and the prevention of cheating and fraudulent practices in gaming. Provincial gaming legislation permits the registration of private entities to provide gaming-related services as agents, service providers or service suppliers to provincial Crown corporations to conduct and manage gaming in the relevant province.

Amaya is subject to both general and specific reporting and disclosure requirements to the respective Gaming Commissions. General reporting and disclosure requirements include the obligation to provide Gaming Commissions with information pertaining to financing arrangements and issuances of securities. The Gaming Commissions may conduct investigations or inquire as to the nature and source of financing, including the identity of persons who acquire Amaya's securities or lend funds to the Corporation. These inquiries are made pursuant to the Gaming Commissions' general powers of investigation and general authority to conduct investigation or inquiry with respect to any participant in the gaming industry at any level of monetary or shareholder interest.

The gaming regulations also require Amaya to report, disclose and obtain the approval of Gaming Commissions for certain financing arrangements, material loans and leases, acquisitions, dispositions and issuances of securities and changes to directors, officers, associates or interest holders. An "associate or interest holder" may include security holders, beneficial interest holders, contingent interest holders, interested parties and suppliers of credit, and goods or services above a certain threshold. Normally, these reporting obligations arise where certain threshold tests of "interest" are met. Notwithstanding there being specific reporting thresholds, a Gaming Commission may at any time exercise its discretion to require reporting by any person who has an interest in the Corporation, regardless of the type of interest.

All of Amaya's directors, officers, associates and key employees have been or may be required to be found suitable and require registration by the Gaming Commission. An applicant seeking registration must submit detailed personal and financial information to the Gaming Commission, may be subject to an investigation by the Gaming Commission and must pay or cause to be paid all the costs of any such investigation. In Amaya's experience such investigations have included complete background checks on all key employees, including but not limited to criminal, credit and personal history checks followed by individual interviews with each of these key employees. Additionally, exhaustive forensic historical audits, going back five years, have been performed on Amaya and on the personal finances of each of these key employees. A Gaming Commission may deny an application for registration for any reason which it deems appropriate.

Amaya currently holds gaming licenses and registrations in two provinces, both of which are renewable annually provided certain conditions are met.

Mexico

The Corporation's land-based solutions are placed in the Mexican market under the jurisdiction of the Secretaría de Gobernación (Ministry of the Interior), a branch of the federal government of Mexico. The entities and individuals who have obtained the necessary permits may only operate gaming equipment that complies with Mexican law and regulations. The Corporation only offers solutions that have successfully passed compliance certification with an approved independent test laboratory.

As of December 31, 2014, the Mexican Congress approved a bill which will allow operators to provide licensed interactive gaming solutions to residents of Mexico. Final regulations have not yet been adopted nor has the formal licensing plan been announced, however Amaya anticipates closely monitoring relevant developments and expects to seek licensure, if eligible, as soon as reasonably possible.

Malta

The vast majority of the Corporation's interactive B2B gaming operations are based in Malta. Malta is a key interactive gaming hub as a result of adopting a comprehensive interactive gaming policy which hosts many of the industry's largest operators. For additional information, see "Regulatory Environment — Regulation of the B2C Business — Malta" above.

Gibraltar

Interactive gaming is heavily regulated in Gibraltar by the Gibraltar Gambling Commission, appointed under the provisions of the Gambling Act 2005 (the "Gibraltar Act") under the supervision of the Ministry for Education, Financial Services, Gaming, Telecommunications and Justice (the "Licensing Authority"). The Gibraltar Act grants the Gambling Commissioner powers to ensure that licensees conduct their operations in accordance with their licenses and in such a manner as to maintain the good reputation of Gibraltar.

Further, the Licensing Authority will only consider licensing blue chip companies with a proven track record in gambling, licensed in a reputable jurisdiction, of good financial standing and with proven experience in gambling services. In addition, the licensee's operations need to be effectively controlled and managed from Gibraltar. In this regard, a list of key personnel needs to be produced, which includes the CVs and other similar pieces of information. Shareholders, directors and executive managers should be included on this list. As such, licenses are difficult to obtain. See also "Regulatory Environment – General".

Regulatory Strategy

As a responsible provider to the regulated gaming industry, Amaya seeks to ensure that its systems and solutions comply with all the regulations and guidelines published by the jurisdictions in which its customers operate. This applies to both its B2C and B2B businesses where such regulation exists. The Corporation partners with regulatory and governmental bodies, and its products, including, without limitation, its games, software engines and random number generators, undergo comprehensive, exhaustive and rigorous testing by independent industry leading internal and third-party testing, accreditation and certification laboratories (including, without limitation GLI, TST (Technical Systems Testing), BMM and eCOGRA Limited) to ensure security, consistency and game integrity. The Corporation seeks to meet or exceed best operational and customer protection practice requirements, each with a particular emphasis on fair and responsible gaming.

Amaya seeks to ensure that it obtains all permits, authorizations, registrations and/or licenses necessary to manufacture and distribute its solutions, products and services in the jurisdictions in which it carries on business globally. Amaya further seeks a zero tolerance approach to money laundering, fraud and collusion and works with regulators and law enforcement globally on such matters. Amaya believes that it has a robust and extensive anti-money laundering policy and framework in effect, and conducts customer due diligence and background investigations while routinely monitoring customer activity (including, without limitation, deposits, cashouts, customer-to-customer transfers and game play), all in accordance with applicable legislation. Amaya also has a dedicated compliance team that works with the Corporation's employees and various departments to implement routine business activity monitoring and seeks to ensure that the Corporation complies with its regulatory obligations under its licenses, as well as all applicable anti-money laundering, anti-fraud and anti-collusion rules and laws. See also "Technology Infrastructure and Research and Development" for a description of how the Corporation uses its technology infrastructure to assist the implementation of its regulatory strategy.

In order to fulfil its objectives of pursuing opportunities in the manufacturing and marketing of electronic gaming solutions and platforms on a global basis, Amaya intends to undergo the necessary processes to obtain regulatory approval in jurisdictions in which its intends to carry on business (to the extent not already obtained). With respect to online gaming, Amaya intends to seek licensure in all jurisdictions in which licensure is available and strives to be among the first of the licensed operators in newly regulated jurisdictions.

Other Regulatory Considerations

We collect data relating to customer activity, which is subject to the rules relating to the protection of privacy and data that apply in various jurisdictions in which we operate, particularly across Europe. Data protection laws require those collecting data to only use and process such data for lawful uses where the data subject has given consent to the processing and has been provided with certain information as to the use and transferability of the data. Failure to comply with applicable laws on data protection and privacy can give rise to regulatory sanctions, fines and in certain limited cases, criminal liability. As a result, we provide privacy statements and terms and conditions indicating the way in which we use data.

We are also subject to multiple laws and regulations relating to unfair commercial practices, misleading and comparative advertising and unfair terms in consumer contracts.

Amaya is dedicated to responsible gaming practices and seeks to provide its customers with the resources and services they need to play responsibly. These practices, resources and services include deposit limits, table and game play limits, voluntary restrictions on access and use of certain games, self-exclusion and cooling off periods, and voluntary permanent exclusions from our services, sites and applications. Amaya has also partnered with various responsible gaming organizations around the world that conduct research, education and direct counselling for players. These organizations include GameCare and Responsible Gaming Trust in the United Kingdom, Adictel in France, Tactus in the Netherlands, FEJAR in Spain, the National Council of Problem Gambling in the United States, Responsible Gaming Council in Canada and GamblingTherapy.org worldwide.

Human Resources

As of the date hereof, the Corporation has approximately 2,475 full-time employees of which approximately 1,340 are located in Europe, approximately 215 are located in Canada, approximately 495 are located in the United States, approximately 285 are located in Latin America and the Caribbean (notably Mexico), and approximately 140 are located in Australasia. These employees provide services in either general and administration, marketing, operations, including customer support and services, or information technology and research and development capacities, with operations comprising the largest department. The significant increase in the number of employees from December 31, 2013 through December 31, 2014 is primarily the result of the Rational Group Acquisition, which added a total of approximately 1,700 employees. Although certain of our employees in Italy, France and Australia may be party to collective bargaining or related agreements and certain of our employees in the European Union may be represented by labour unions, to our knowledge, the vast majority of our employees are not. However, the Corporation has never experienced any employment-related work stoppages and believes its relationship with its employees is very good. The Corporation has a policy of entering into confidentiality and non-disclosure agreements with its employees and limiting access to and dissemination of its proprietary technology and confidential information. In addition, the Corporation has adopted a Disclosure, Confidentiality and Insider Trading Policy designed to promote good governance, transparency and effective communication between employees, management and the public, as well as an Anti-Bribery & Anti-Corruption Policy to provide rules and guidelines regarding compliance with Canada's Corruption of Foreign Public Officials Act, the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, and any local anti-bribery or anti-corruption laws that may be applicable, and to evidence Amaya's commitment to full compliance, including compliance by its officers, directors, employees and agents, therewith.

Specialized Skill and Knowledge

The development, design, marketing and distribution of the Corporation's gaming solutions, products and services require specialized skills and knowledge particularly in the areas of software architecture, development, conceptualization, and graphic design as well as in the poker, casino and sports betting verticals. Amaya has personnel with the required specialized skills and knowledge to carry out its operations. While the current labour market in the industry is highly competitive, the Corporation expects to, but there can be no assurance that it will, attract and maintain appropriately qualified employees for fiscal 2015. If we fail to attract and maintain appropriately qualified employees, our business, financial condition and operating results could be materially adversely affected.

Facilities

The Corporation's headquarters are located in Pointe-Claire, Québec, Canada. The Corporation's research and development, manufacturing, assembly, services and support, and administration departments operate from the Corporation's headquarters. These premises are leased and consist of approximately 28,000 square feet of rentable space, with a lease term that expires on October 31, 2018.

Rational Group's general and administrative, marketing and information technology departments, including its research and development, operate from its headquarters in Douglas, Isle of Man. Rational Group's headquarters consist of approximately 65,000 square feet of office space and are owned by Amaya.

The Corporation also maintains approximately 15 other offices, in leased premises, in Toronto, Calgary, London, Dublin, Stockholm, Atlanta, Miami, Mexico, Malta, Paris, Sydney, Moscow and San Jose (Costa Rica) and elsewhere internationally.

Amaya believes that its facilities are suitable and adequate for its current needs.

GENERAL DEVELOPMENT OF THE BUSINESS

Amaya was incorporated in 2004 and completed its IPO on the TSX, Venture Exchange in July, 2010. Immediately following its IPO, the Corporation's revenues were generated primarily through technology it had developed internally, notably Mosino and its short message service, or "SMS", based mobile lottery solution. In early 2011, the Corporation announced plans to further strengthen its market position and facilitate its anticipated growth through acquisitions. In this regard, Amaya began to selectively assess acquisition opportunities based on the jurisdiction of the target company, the core technology synergies between the target company and Amaya, and the extent to which the target company had a complementary customer base. Since that time, Amaya completed multiple strategic acquisitions that have significantly expanded its diversified gaming and interactive entertainment solutions, products and services, which deliver distribution channel capability and expanded market reach. The Corporation believes that the increased scope and scale of its gaming and interactive entertainment solutions, products and services following such acquisitions have also shifted its focus from emerging markets to significantly larger markets, including the United States and Europe, where its acquired companies have established operations and customer relationships. More recently, the Rational Group Acquisition completed in August 2014 significantly expanded Amaya's operations into the B2C business and has made it the world's largest publicly-traded online gaming company. These acquisitions are detailed below within the section "Key Completed Transactions". The Corporation believes that these acquisitions, along with certain divestitures, financings and capital markets activities, corporate initiatives, and other announcements, each as also described below, have been the primary influence on the general development of Amaya's business during the last three completed financial years.

Key Completed Transactions

Acquisitions

CryptoLogic Ltd.

On July 30, 2012, after previously taking control of CryptoLogic's board of directors and purchasing 80.79% of its issued and outstanding share capital, Amaya acquired all of the remaining issued and outstanding share capital of then-publicly-traded (London Stock Exchange ("LSE"), NASDAQ Stock Market ("NASDAQ") and Toronto Stock Exchange ("TSX")) CryptoLogic, a leading developer and supplier of Internet gaming software and known in the industry as a pioneer of online casino, at a valuation of approximately US$35.8 million, thereby taking CryptoLogic private. With rights to more than 300 games, CryptoLogic had one of the most comprehensive online casino suites in the world, with award-winning games featuring branded content, including popular action and entertainment characters. CryptoLogic also provided software licensing, e-cash management and customer support services for its online gambling software to an international client base, including many top online gaming brands. Along with its business-to-business solutions, CryptoLogic operated an online casino under various brands, including InterCasino, which launched in 1996 as one of the world's first online casinos. Shares of CryptoLogic were delisted from the LSE, NASDAQ and TSX. The Corporation filed a business acquisition report on the System for Electronic Document Analysis and Retrieval ("SEDAR") on June 13, 2012 in connection with the acquisition, which was a "significant acquisition" within the meaning of applicable Canadian securities laws.

Ongame Network Ltd.

In November 2012, Amaya completed the purchase of Ongame, a provider of poker software and network solutions, from Bwin.Party Digital Entertainment plc, for approximately €25 million on a cash-free and debt-free basis, which included contingent consideration of up to €10.0 million payable by Amaya in the event online gaming became regulated in the United States within five years of the acquisition. The exact amount of the contingent consideration depended upon the extent of U.S. regulation of online gaming, including the number of states that chose to regulate it and the total population living in those regulated states. Amaya subsequently sold Ongame in November 2014 to NYX Gaming Group prior to any contingent consideration being paid. Details on this divestiture are described below under the heading "Divestitures".

Cadillac Jack Inc.

Also in November 2012, Amaya completed the purchase of Cadillac Jack for an aggregate consideration of approximately $177.0 million, which consideration was used to purchase all of the issued and outstanding equity of Cadillac Jack, retire its debt, pay transaction costs and fund working capital. Amaya financed the transaction through a combination of cash on hand and a $110.0 million non-convertible senior secured term loan secured by Cadillac Jack's assets (the "2012 Loan"). Cadillac Jack designs and manufactures a portfolio of physical gaming machines, including video reel slots, wide area and multi-level progressives and Latin style bingo games. It also develops content and technologies specific to the needs of each of the markets it serves, including the tribal, commercial and charitable gaming markets in the United States and the gaming market in Mexico. Cadillac Jack's gaming machines feature proprietary games from a library of more than 100 game titles, with new titles developed on a continuous basis and which are available in multiple configurations. The Corporation filed a business acquisition report on SEDAR on November 5, 2012 in connection with the acquisition, which was a "significant acquisition" within the meaning of applicable Canadian securities laws.

Diamond Game Enterprises

In February 2014, Amaya completed its acquisition of all the issued and outstanding equity of Diamond Game for approximately US$25.0 million, subject to customary post-closing purchase price adjustments, which included the retirement of Diamond Game's then-outstanding debt. Amaya paid approximately US$18.0 million at closing with cash on hand and, per the terms of the definitive purchase agreement, held back approximately US$7.0 million in escrow for certain contingent liabilities and other items. Diamond Game is a designer and manufacturer of gaming related products for the global land-based casino gaming and lottery industries. Diamond Game has two primary business units: (i) casino products, which develops products for the video lottery terminal, Class II, Class III, commercial casino and racetrack markets; and (ii) lottery products, which creates and manufactures products for the land-based public gaming and charity markets, including its LT-3 instant ticket vending machine ("ITVM"), which dispenses pull tab or break open or scratch tickets while simultaneously displaying the results of each ticket on a touchscreen video monitor in an entertaining fashion. Diamond Game's development of ITVMs with video display has resulted in the issuance of numerous product patents in Canada and the United States. The LT-3 ITVM is designed for "stay and play" use, which is intended to create longer play sessions and higher sales volumes, and enable lotteries to expand their existing retailer base into venues where traditional slot machines may not be permitted, such as bingo halls, social clubs, veterans offices, bars and taverns. The LT-3 ITVM can be customized to serve varying market needs, including through the offering of different cabinet, display and ticket types, as well other customizable features.

Rational Group

In August 2014, Amaya expanded its operations into the B2C business by completing the purchase of all the issued and outstanding equity of the Rational Group in an all-cash transaction for a purchase price of approximately US$4.9 billion, including certain deferred payments payable within 30 months of the closing of the transaction. The purchase price of the transaction was financed through a combination of debt financing, equity financing and cash on hand. For a detailed description of the financing used for the purchase price, see the disclosure below under the heading "General Development of the Business – Financings and Capital Market Activities". Rational Group is based in the Isle of Man and operates globally, owning and operating gaming and related businesses offered under several owned brands, including, among others, PokerStars, Full Tilt, European Poker Tour, PokerStars Caribbean Adventure, Latin American Poker Tour and Asia Pacific Poker Tour. These brands collectively form the largest poker business in the world, comprising online poker games and tournaments, live poker competitions, branded poker rooms in major global casinos and poker programming created for television and online audiences. Divestitures

WagerLogic Malta Holdings Ltd.

In February 2014, one of Amaya's subsidiaries completed the sale of all of the issued and outstanding shares of WagerLogic Malta Holdings Ltd. ("WagerLogic") to Goldstar Acquisitionco Inc. ("Goldstar") for approximately $70.0 million (the "Purchase Price"), less a closing working capital adjustment of approximately $7.5 million and subject to further customary post-closing adjustments, satisfied through cash consideration of $52.5 million and a vendor take-back in the form of a promissory note of $10.0 million, bearing interest at 6.0% per annum payable semi-annually in arrears starting on the second anniversary of the closing date and maturing on the fourth anniversary of the closing date. WagerLogic, through a wholly owned subsidiary, operates an online casino through its "Inter" brand, which includes InterCasino, InterPoker and InterBingo, among other names (the "InterCasino Business"). Amaya acquired the InterCasino Business through its acquisition of CryptoLogic in July 2012. The share purchase agreement for this divestiture also provides for a bonus payment of US$10.0 million to be paid by Goldstar to Amaya if CryptoLogic Operations Limited ("Cryptologic Operations") achieves an annual net revenue target of at least US$30.0 million during the second year following the closing date (payable in 12 monthly installments during the third year following the closing date), and an additional bonus payment of US$10.0 million if CryptoLogic Operations achieves an annual net revenue target of at least US$40.0 million during the third year following the closing date (payable in 12 monthly installments during the fourth year following the closing date).

Amaya continues to license online casino games to Wagerlogic for the InterCasino Business. Amaya and certain of its subsidiaries have entered into a revenue guarantee agreement under which they jointly and severally guarantee the financial obligations of such subsidiaries under the service agreements, including an obligation to pay CryptoLogic Operations, during the two years following the closing date of the divestiture, an amount equal to the shortfall between CryptoLogic Operation's quarterly net revenue and a pre-established quarterly net revenue target of US$4.75 million.

As of December 31, 2014, Amaya also beneficially owned and controlled common shares (the "Intertain Common Shares") of WagerLogic's parent company, The Intertain Group Ltd. (TSX: IT) ("Intertain") (the outstanding securities of Goldstar were exchanged for securities of Intertain in February 2014), representing less than 10% of the issued and outstanding Intertain Common Shares at that date. The Intertain Common Shares were issued to Amaya in exchange for Goldstar shares then held by Amaya. Further, Amaya completed the purchase of additional Intertain Common Shares in early 2014. As of December 31, 2014, Amaya also owned $3.85 million aggregate principal amount of 5.0% unsecured subordinate convertible debentures of Intertain maturing on December 31, 2018 (TSX: IT.DB), which are convertible at the holder's option into Intertain Common Shares at a price of $6.00 per share (each, an "Intertain Debenture"), as well as 353,000 Intertain Common Share purchase warrants, with each whole warrant being exercisable by Amaya for one Intertain Common Share at an exercise price of $5.00 per share until December 31, 2015 (each, an "Intertain Warrant"). As at the date of this annual information form, the Corporation holds 2,253,000 Intertain Common Shares (following the exercise in full by the Corporation of the Intertain Warrants), 3,850 Intertain Debentures and no Intertain Warrants.

Ongame Network Ltd.

In November 2014, pursuant to a sale and transfer agreement (the "Sale and Transfer Agreement"), Amaya sold Ongame to NYX Gaming (Gibraltar) Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of NYX Gaming Group, for a purchase price equal to the sum of (i) US$1.00 (paid at the closing), plus (ii) an amount equal to eight times Ongame's earnings before interest, taxes, depreciation and amortization, or EBITDA, for the year ended December 31, 2015, less any required working capital adjustments. The purchase price is only payable in 2016 upon determination of such amount based on Ongame's 2015 year-end EBITDA, as calculated in accordance with the Sale and Transfer Agreement. In connection with this divestiture, Amaya and NYX Gaming Group entered into a strategic investment transaction pursuant to which NYX Gaming Group issued, and Amaya purchased, a $10.0 million unsecured convertible debenture on November 17, 2014 which matures two years after the date of issuance and bears interest at 6.00% per annum, payable at maturity. At Amaya's option, both interest and principal are payable in ordinary shares of NYX Gaming Group at any time prior to the maturity date of November 17, 2016. Amaya subsequently assigned an aggregate of $1.0 million of the unsecured convertible debenture to four individuals.

Concurrently with the completion of the sale of Ongame, Amaya entered into a right of first offer agreement with NYX Gaming Group (the "Right of First Offer") pursuant to which Amaya granted NYX Gaming Group a right of first offer to purchase the B2B online casino business operated by each of Cryptologic and Amaya (Alberta) Inc. (collectively, the "Covered Business"). The Right of First Offer expires on December 30, 2015.

In parallel, an indirect affiliate of Amaya, Amaya (International) Ltd. (previously known as Chartwell Games (International) Ltd.) ("Chartwell International") and NextGen Gaming Pty Ltd., a wholly owned subsidiary of NYX Gaming Group ("NextGen"), entered into a work order (the "Work Order") pursuant to a certain software master license agreement, dated May 19, 2011 (as amended on December 1, 2013 and as amended from time to time thereafter, the "SMLA"), pursuant to which NextGen supplies computer-based wagering games to Chartwell International. The Work Order provides for the supply of certain Games to Chartwell International and its affiliates subject to a one-year minimum license fee equal to the greater of (i) US$350,000 per month, and (ii) the license fee provided for in the SMLA. The Work Order also provides that, notwithstanding the foregoing, upon the sale of the Covered Business, only the license fee provided under the SMLA would be payable.

Financings and Capital Markets Activities

January 2012 Offering

In January and February 2012, Amaya raised aggregate gross proceeds of approximately $28.8 million through a private placement of special warrants (the "2012 Special Warrants") completed in two closings, the proceeds of which were held in escrow until the satisfaction of all conditions to the acquisition of CryptoLogic, which occurred on March 28, 2012 (the "January 2012 Offering"). The net proceeds from the January 2012 Offering were used to fund a portion of the all-cash offer for all the remaining issued and outstanding shares of CryptoLogic that Amaya did not already own as of the closing date. On March 27, 2012, Amaya announced that it had obtained a receipt for its final short form prospectus, dated the same day, filed with the securities authorities in the provinces of Alberta, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Ontario and Québec to qualify the distribution of the 28,750 units of Amaya (each, a "2012 Unit") issuable upon the deemed exercise of the 2012 Special Warrants. Each 2012 Unit consisted of one convertible debenture (each, a "2012 Convertible Debenture") and 50 Common Share purchase warrants (each, a "2015 Warrant"). Each 2012 Convertible Debenture carried interest at 10.5% per annum and was convertible, at the holder's option, into Common Shares at a price of $3.25 per Common Share, which represented a ratio of approximately 308 Common Shares per 2012 Convertible Debenture. Each 2015 Warrant entitles its holder to acquire one Common Share at a price of $3.00 per Common Share until April 30, 2015. The 2012 Convertible Debentures and 2015 Warrants were subsequently listed for trading on the TSX Venture Exchange and the 2015 Warrants currently trade on the TSX.

In December 2012, the Board authorized Amaya's management to assess alternatives with respect to retiring the outstanding 2012 Convertible Debentures. On January 8, 2013, Amaya announced that it would redeem for cash all of its 2012 Convertible Debentures on February 7, 2013 (the "Redemption Date"), in accordance with the redemption rights attached thereto. As of the Redemption Date, all 2012 Convertible Debenture holders had converted their 2012 Convertible Debentures into Common Shares in accordance with the terms thereof.

June 2012 Offering

In July 2012, Amaya completed the final closing of a private placement of Common Shares at a price of $4.05 per Common Share, first announced on May 29, 2012 and primarily conducted in June 2012 (the "June 2012 Offering"). Gross proceeds raised in the June 2012 Offering including proceeds raised under the first closing, were approximately $107.4 million. The net proceeds from the June 2012 Offering were used to help implement Amaya's growth strategy and for working capital and general corporate purposes.

February 2013 Offering

In February 2013, Amaya closed a private placement of units (the "February 2013 Units"), originally announced on January 17, 2013, at a price of $1,000.00 per unit, for aggregate gross proceeds of $30.0 million, including gross proceeds of $10.0 million following the exercise in full by the underwriters of the offering of an over-allotment option (the "February 2013 Offering"). The net proceeds of the February 2013 Offering were used for Amaya's working capital and general corporate purposes. Each February 2013 Unit consisted of: (i) $1,000.00 principal amount of unsecured non-convertible subordinated debentures (the "2013 Debentures"); and (ii) 48 Common Share purchase warrants (each a "2016 Warrant"). The 2013 Debentures bear interest at a rate of 7.50% per annum, payable semi-annually in arrears on January 31 and July 31 in each year commencing on July 31, 2013. Interest payments are payable in cash and the 2013 Debentures have a maturity date of January 31, 2016. Each 2016 Warrant entitles the holder thereof to acquire one Common Share at a price per Common Share equal to $6.25 at any time until January 31, 2016.

June 2013 Offering and TSX Graduation

In July 2013, Amaya closed a private placement of Common Shares, originally announced on June 19, 2013, at a price of $6.25 per Common Share, for total gross proceeds of approximately $40.0 million (the "June 2013 Offering"). The net proceeds from the June 2013 Offering were used for working capital and general corporate purposes to assist in the implementation of Amaya's growth strategy and the expansion of its international activities.

On September 30, 2013, Amaya announced that it had received final approval from the TSX to graduate from the TSX Venture Exchange and list its Common Shares, 2015 Warrants, 2016 Warrants, and 2013 Debentures (collectively, the "Securities") on the TSX. The Securities commenced trading on the TSX effective October 1, 2013. The Common Shares trade on the TSX under the symbol "AYA", the 2015 Warrants under the symbol "AYA.WT", the 2013 Debentures under the symbol "AYA.DB.A" and the 2016 Warrants under the symbol "AYA.WT.A". On September 22, 2014, Amaya was added to the S&P/TSX Composite Index.

CJ Credit Facilities and New CJ Facilities

In December 2013, Cadillac Jack, one of Amaya's subsidiaries, entered into an agreement for the refinancing of its credit facilities. The refinancing was provided by an entity sub-advised by an affiliate of GSO Capital Partners LP and certain funds or accounts managed or advised by it or its affiliates (collectively, "GSO"). Under this agreement, Cadillac Jack borrowed term loans in an aggregate principal amount of US$160.0 million (collectively, the "CJ Credit Facilities"). The CJ Credit Facilities replaced the existing 2012 Loan that was made available to Amaya to finance the acquisition of Cadillac Jack by Amaya. The CJ Credit Facilities were used to fully repay the outstanding balance on the 2012 Loan, as well as related fees and expenses, and to fund the ongoing working capital and other general corporate purposes of Cadillac Jack. The CJ Credit Facilities have a term of five years from the closing date and are secured by the stock of Cadillac Jack and the assets of Cadillac Jack and its subsidiaries. Amaya has provided an unsecured guarantee of the obligations of Cadillac Jack in favor of the lenders under the CJ Credit Facilities.

In May 2014, Amaya amended the CJ Credit Facilities and secured additional financing in the form of a mezzanine loan financed by funds also sub-advised by an affiliate of GSO (the "CJ Mezzanine Facility"). The amendment to the CJ Credit Facilities, among other things, extended the maturity date and provided for the advance of an incremental US$80.0 million term loan to the existing CJ Credit Facilities, with the new aggregate principal amount of US$240.0 million bearing interest at a per annum rate equal to LIBOR plus 8.5% with a 1% LIBOR floor

(as amended, the “CJ Senior Facility”). Under the CJ Mezzanine Facility, Cadillac Jack borrowed a subordinated term loan in the aggregate principal amount of US$100.0 million, bearing interest at a per annum rate equal to 13%, provided that, at the option of Cadillac Jack, interest accruing at a per annum rate of 7% may instead be paid in-kind (by adding the interest to the outstanding principal amount of the loan) in lieu of cash (the CJ Mezzanine Facility, and the CJ Senior Facility, collectively, the “New CJ Facilities”). The CJ Senior Facility will mature over a 5-year term and the CJ Mezzanine Facility will mature over a 6-year term. The CJ Senior Facility is secured by the stock of Cadillac Jack and the assets of Cadillac Jack and its subsidiaries and the CJ Mezzanine Facility is unsecured. Amaya has provided an unsecured guarantee of the obligations under the New CJ Facilities of Cadillac Jack in favor of the lenders. The New CJ Facilities contain customary covenants, including, without limitation, maintenance and incurrence covenants based on certain agreed-upon leverage and coverage ratios. In connection with the CJ Mezzanine Facility, Amaya granted 4,000,000 Common Share purchase warrants to the lenders under the New CJ Facilities, entitling the holders thereof to acquire one Common Share per warrant at a price per Common Share equal to $19.17 at any time up to a period ending ten years after the closing date of the New CJ Facilities (the “CJ Warrants”). The Corporation used the funds from the New CJ Facilities to finance working capital expenses and for general corporate purposes.

The Corporation currently anticipates using the net proceeds from the CJ Sale primarily for deleveraging, including the repayment of the CJ Credit Facilities and New CJ Facilities. There can be no assurance as to if and when the CJ Sale will occur.

Rational Group Acquisition Financing

On August 1, 2014 (the “Rational Group Acquisition Closing Date”), the Corporation acquired Rational Group in an all-cash transaction for a purchase price of approximately US$4.9 billion, including certain deferred payments. The purchase price of the transaction was financed through a combination of debt and equity financing and existing cash on hand.

The debt financing consisted of (i) a US$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan priced at LIBOR plus 4.00% and a €200.0 million seven-year first lien term loan priced at Euribor plus 4.25%, in each case with a 1.00% floor, (ii) a US$100.0 million five-year first lien revolving credit facility priced at LIBOR plus 4.00%, none of which was drawn as of the closing of the Rational Group Acquisition, and (iii) an US$800.0 million eight-year second lien term loan priced at LIBOR plus 7.00%, with a 1.00% floor (collectively, the “Rational Group Facilities”). The Rational Group Facilities were fully underwritten by Deutsche Bank AG New York Branch (“Deutsche Bank AG”), Barclays Bank PLC (“Barclays”) and MIHI LLC. The obligations of the lenders under the Rational Group Facilities are several and not joint. Deutsche Bank AG acted as sole administrative agent and as sole collateral agent for the first lien facilities and Barclays acted as sole administrative agent and as sole collateral agent for the second lien facility. Both GSO and BlackRock Financial Management, Inc. and certain funds or accounts managed or advised by it or its affiliates (collectively, “BlackRock”) participated in the debt financing. On March 16, 2015, Amaya announced it had entered into the Swap Agreements (as defined below) that it anticipates will result in lower interest payments on existing debt and mitigate the impact of fluctuations in the Euro to US$ exchange rate. The Swap Agreements allow for the creation of synthetic Euro-denominated debt with fixed Euro interest payments at an average rate of 4.6016% to replace the US$ interest payments bearing a minimum floating interest rate of 5.0% related to the US$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan secured by Amaya on August 1, 2014. For more details, see “General Development of the Business – Other Announcements”.

The equity financing comprised the issuance, on a private placement basis, of (i) US$1.05 billion of Preferred Shares (the “Preferred Share Financing”), (ii) $640.0 million of subscription receipts (the “Subscription Receipts” and, the offering of the Subscription Receipts, the “Subscription Receipt Offering”) and (ii) US$55.0 million of Common Shares to GSO at a price of $20.00 per Common Share. In connection with the transaction, as payment for a portion of the fees payable to GSO and BlackRock and consideration for their significant roles in the financing of the transaction, the Corporation also granted 11,000,000 Common Share purchase warrants to GSO (the “GSO Warrants”) and 1,750,000 Common Share purchase warrants to BlackRock (the “BlackRock Warrants”), each with an exercise price of $0.01 and exercisable for a term of ten years.

In connection with the Preferred Share Financing, Amaya entered into an agreement with Canaccord Genuity Corp. ("Canaccord Genuity") pursuant to which Canaccord Genuity purchased from treasury, on an underwritten bought-deal, private placement basis, approximately US$179.2 million of Preferred Shares (the "Bought Deal Component"). The Corporation also entered into separate subscription agreements with each of GSO and BlackRock pursuant to which (i) GSO purchased US$600.0 million of Preferred Shares, and (ii) BlackRock purchased approximately US$270.8 million of Preferred Shares. The Preferred Shares are not listed on any exchange but, subject to certain limitations and restrictions, are freely transferable at the option of the holder. Each Preferred Share has an initial principal amount of $1,000.00 and is convertible, at the holder's option, initially into approximately 41.67 Common Shares based on a conversion price of $24.00 per Common Share, in each case, subject to adjustments (including 6% accretion to the Conversion Ratio) and compounded semi-annually. The Corporation may, at any time after the first three years of the issuance date, give notice of its election to cause all of its outstanding Preferred Shares to be automatically converted, subject to certain conditions. The Preferred Share Financing closed on the Rational Group Acquisition Closing Date. The terms of the Preferred Shares are set forth below under the heading "Description of Capital Structure – Preferred Shares".

The Subscription Receipt Offering was completed on a bought-deal, fully underwritten, private-placement basis pursuant to an underwriting agreement entered into among Amaya and a syndicate of underwriters led by Canaccord Genuity, Cormark Securities Inc. ("Cormark") and Desjardins Capital Markets ("Desjardins", and together with Canaccord Genuity, Cormark and the remaining members of the syndicate, the "Underwriters"). Under the terms of the underwriting agreement, the Underwriters purchased 32,000,000 Subscription Receipts at a price of $20.00 per Subscription Receipt, for aggregate gross proceeds to Amaya of $640.0 million. The Subscription Receipt Offering closed on July 7, 2014 and the Subscription Receipts converted into Common Shares on a one-to-one basis upon the completion of the Rational Group Acquisition. The price per Subscription Receipt represented a premium of approximately 66.4% of the closing price of $12.02 per Common Share on the TSX on June 11, 2014, the last trading day prior to the announcement of the Rational Group Acquisition, and a premium of approximately 108.5% over the 30-day trading day volume-weighted average price of $9.59 per Common Share on the TSX, up to and including June 11, 2014.

Amaya funded approximately US$213.0 million from cash on hand, which included a US$50.0 million deposit made on June 12, 2014, the date of the announcement of the Rational Group Acquisition.

In connection with the Rational Group Acquisition, each of GSO and BlackRock entered into separate registration rights agreements with the Corporation (each, a "Registration Rights Agreement", and together, the "Registration Rights Agreements") regarding the qualification for resale of Common Shares and other registrable securities held by GSO or BlackRock (collectively, the "Registrable Securities") by way of a Canadian shelf prospectus. The Registration Rights Agreements also grant GSO and BlackRock the right to make a written request that the Corporation effect a public underwritten offering and sale of all or part of the Registrable Securities for cash pursuant to a Canadian shelf prospectus, provided that the anticipated aggregate offering price therefor, net of underwriting discounts and commissions, is at least US$50.0 million. In November 2014, the Corporation, GSO and BlackRock agreed to amend the Registration Rights Agreements in order to provide an extension to the time the Corporation has to obtain a final receipt from Canadian securities regulatory authorities in respect of the Canadian shelf prospectus to a date that is no later than 60 days following the date of this annual information form.

Each of GSO and BlackRock also entered into separate voting disenfranchisement agreements with Amaya (each, a "Voting Disenfranchisement Agreement" and together, the "Voting Disenfranchisement Agreements") under which they agreed that as long as each of them beneficially owns, or has control or direction over, Common Shares issued or issuable upon conversion of the Preferred Shares representing more than 50% of the number of Common Shares that each of them may be deemed to hold on an as-converted basis on the Rational Group Acquisition Closing Date, each of them will not vote more than 50% of such Common Shares in ordinary course shareholder proxy votes for Board composition related matters (provided that GSO and BlackRock are each entitled to vote up to the full amount of such Common Shares if they are voting in favor of Board nominees proposed by Amaya or its senior management). Notwithstanding the foregoing, the Voting Disenfranchisement Agreements provide that each of GSO and BlackRock will not be disenfranchised for any other matters to be presented to shareholders, including, without limitation, approval of mergers and acquisitions, business combinations or amendments to a stock option plan.

Further details of the Rational Group Acquisition are included in Amaya's public filings on SEDAR at www.sedar.com, including related press releases, the Corporation's Management Information Circular, dated June 30, 2014, for the annual and special meeting of shareholders of the Corporation held on July 30, 2014 (the "2014 Management Information Circular") and the Rational Group Acquisition BAR.

On February 13, 2015, Amaya announced that the TSX approved its notice of intention to make a normal course issuer bid (the "2015 NCIB") to purchase for cancellation up to 6,644,737 Common Shares, representing approximately 5% of Amaya's issued and outstanding as of January 26, 2015. The Corporation may purchase the Common Shares at prevailing market prices and by means of open market transactions through the facilities of the TSX or by such other means as may be permitted by the TSX rules and policies. The Corporation will determine in its sole discretion from time to time the actual number of Common Shares that it will purchase and the timing of any such purchases. In accordance with the applicable TSX rules, daily purchases under the 2015 NCIB may not exceed 161,724 Common Shares, representing 25% of the average daily trading volume of the Common Shares for the six-month period ending on January 31, 2015, and the Corporation may make, once per calendar week, a block purchase of Common Shares not owned, directly or indirectly, by insiders of Amaya that exceeds the daily repurchase restriction. The 2015 NCIB commenced on February 18, 2015 and will remain in effect until the earlier of February 17, 2016 or the date on which the Corporation has purchased the maximum number of Common Shares permitted under the 2015 NCIB. Amaya is making the 2015 NCIB because it believes that, from time to time, the prevailing market price of its Common Shares may not reflect the underlying value of the Corporation, and that purchasing Common Shares for cancellation will increase the proportionate interest of, and be advantageous to, all remaining shareholders. As of March 30, 2015, the Corporation has not purchased any Common Shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB, and has been under its routine quarterly blackout period since the 2015 NCIB period began.

Other Announcements

On February 19, 2014, Amaya announced that its subsidiary Diamond Game had been awarded a 5-year contract with the Maryland Lottery and Gaming Control Agency (the "Maryland Lottery"), with the Maryland Lottery holding a five year renewal option, to provide Veterans' Organizations ("VOs") in the state with ITVMs and related services. The contract allows for the placement of up to five ITVMs at each qualified VO meeting hall in Maryland. A total of 146 LT-3s were deployed in VOs across the State of Maryland in 2014, and additional LT-3s are currently on order by the Maryland Lottery for deployment in 2015. Under the contract, Diamond Game receives a firm-fixed percentage of the ITVM proceeds. The contract amount is estimated by the Maryland Lottery at up to US$57.0 million over the original five year term and an additional amount of up to US$60.0 million for the renewal option based upon its projected number of ITVMs placed at VO meeting halls and the projected win for those ITVMs.

The agreement allows for the potential integration of other gaming websites operated by Ultimate Gaming to CGS in the future. The majority of units shipped were Class II machines, with Class III machines being sold to applicable governmental bodies in the States of Oklahoma and California. The Licensing Agreement is separate from the Rational Group Acquisition. During that same period, Amaya completed the integration of its CGS platform for websites of several other major online casino operators. Amaya also launched new online and mobile casino games for its customers and completed the integration of new games from multiple third-party suppliers onto Amaya's CGS platform.

Amaya currently expects to expand its online casino game offerings in certain markets beginning in the first half of 2015 to include additional games under the PokerStars brand, including, among other games, slot machines. Additionally, Amaya intends to launch online and mobile versions of a full featured casino on both its PokerStars and Full Tilt casino platforms by the end of 2015.

On March 16, 2015, Amaya announced it had entered into cross currency swap agreements (collectively, the "Swap Agreements") that it anticipates will result in lower interest payments on existing debt and mitigate the impact of fluctuations in the Euro to US$ exchange rate. The Swap Agreements allow for the creation of synthetic Euro-denominated debt with fixed Euro interest payments at an average rate of 4.6016% to replace the US$ interest payments bearing a minimum floating interest rate of 5.0% related to the US$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan secured by Amaya on August 1, 2014. The interest and principal payments for the Swap Agreements, which have a stated termination date of five years, will be made at a Euro to US$ foreign exchange rate of 1.1102 on a US$ notional amount of US$1.74125 billion.

On March 20, 2015, Amaya announced that it had received licenses from the UK Gambling Commission for PokerStars and Full Tilt to operate online poker and other gaming within the United Kingdom. RISK FACTORS AND UNCERTAINTIES

Certain factors may have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, and results of operations. Current and prospective investors should consider carefully the risks and uncertainties described below, in addition to other information contained in this annual information form, as well as our management's discussion and analysis and consolidated financial statements and related notes. The risks and uncertainties described below are not the only ones we face. Additional risks and uncertainties that we are unaware of, or that we currently believe are not material, may also become important factors that could adversely affect our business. If any of the following risks actually occur, our business, financial condition, results of operations, and future prospects could be materially and adversely affected. In that event, the trading price of our securities could decline, and you could lose part or all of your investment.

Risks Related to the Corporation's Substantial Indebtedness

The Corporation's substantial indebtedness requires that it use a significant portion of its cash flow to make interest payments, which could adversely affect its ability to raise additional capital to fund its operations, limit its ability to react to changes in the economy or in the Corporation's industry and prevent it from making debt service payments.

The Corporation is highly leveraged. As at March 30, 2015, Amaya had approximately US$3.1 billion of outstanding indebtedness, and the Corporation currently estimates that its debt service for the next 12 months at US$240 million, including both required principal and interest payments. The Corporation's substantial indebtedness could have significant consequences, including:

- requiring a substantial portion of cash flow from operations to be dedicated to the payment of principal and interest on its indebtedness, therefore reducing its ability to use cash flow to fund its operations, capital expenditures and potential future business opportunities;
- making it more difficult for the Corporation to make payments on its indebtedness, and any failure to comply with the obligations of any of its debt instruments, including restrictive covenants and borrowing conditions, could result in an event of default under the agreements governing its indebtedness;
- limiting its ability to obtain additional financing for working capital, capital expenditures, debt service requirements, acquisitions and general corporate or other purposes;
- reducing the Corporation's flexibility in planning for, or reacting to, changes in its operations or business;
- prohibiting the Corporation from making strategic acquisitions, developing new products and product features, introducing new technologies or exploiting business opportunities;
- placing the Corporation at a competitive disadvantage as compared to its less-highly-leveraged competitors;
- making the Corporation more vulnerable to downturns in its business or the economy;
- negatively affecting the Corporation's ability to renew gaming and other licenses; and
- exposing the Corporation to the risk of increased interest rates as certain of its borrowings are at variable rates of interest.

Any of the foregoing could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, financial conditions, results of operations, liquidity and prospects.

Amaya's secured credit facilities and provisions governing the Preferred Shares contain restrictions that limit its flexibility in operating its business.

Amaya's secured credit facilities and provisions governing the Preferred Shares, as applicable, contain various provisions that limit Amaya's ability to, among other things:

- incur additional indebtedness or issue preferred shares;
- pay dividends on, redeem or repurchase capital stock, redeem or repurchase subordinated debt or make other restricted payments;

- make investments;
- create liens;
- sell assets;
- enter into agreements that restrict dividends or other payments from its restricted subsidiaries to the Corporation;
- consolidate, merge, sell or otherwise dispose of all or substantially all of the Corporation' assets;
- engage in transactions with affiliates;
- enter into hedging contracts;
- create unrestricted subsidiaries; and
- enter into sale and leaseback transactions.

A breach of any of these covenants could result in a default under one or more of these agreements. Upon the occurrence of an event of default under the Corporation's secured credit facilities, the lenders could elect to declare all amounts outstanding thereunder to be immediately due and payable and terminate all commitments to extend further credit. If the Corporation were unable to repay those amounts, then the lenders under such facility could proceed against the collateral granted to them to secure that indebtedness. If the lenders under the Corporation's credit facility accelerate the repayment of borrowings, Amaya cannot assure that it will have sufficient assets to repay the amounts outstanding, which could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, liquidity and results of operation.

Amaya may not be able to generate sufficient cash flows to meet its debt service obligations.

The Corporation's ability to make scheduled payments on or to refinance its debt obligations and to make distributions to enable it to service its debt obligations depends on its financial and operating performance and the ability to generate cash from its operations. These variables are subject to prevailing economic and competitive conditions and to certain financial, business, legal, regulatory and other factors beyond the Corporation's control, including fluctuations in interest rates, market liquidity conditions, operating costs and trends in its industry. If the Corporation's cash flows and capital resources are insufficient to fund its debt service obligations, then it may be forced to reduce or delay activities and capital expenditures, sell assets, seek additional capital, or restructure or refinance its indebtedness. Depending on the capital markets at the time of any such restructuring or refinancing, it is possible that such restructuring or refinancing could be available, if at all, only on unattractive terms, leading to significant increases in debt service costs and interest expenses and could potentially result in additional restrictions on the Corporation's operations. Any required refinancing or restructuring may not be successful and may not permit the Corporation to meet its scheduled debt service obligations. In such circumstances, the Corporation could face inadequate liquidity and might be required to dispose of material assets or operations to meet debt service and other obligations.

Additionally, if the Corporation were to require additional debt financing, such additional debt could adversely affect, among other things:

- its ability to expand its business, market its products and make investments and capital expenditures;
- the cost and availability of funds from commercial lenders and other debt financing sources; and
- the Corporation's competitive position relative to its competitors with less debt.

Any default by the Corporation in timely meeting its debt service obligations would have a material adverse effect on its business, liquidity, operating results and financial condition.

Amaya's outstanding credit facilities subject it to financial covenants which may limit its flexibility. Amaya is also exposed to the risk of increased interest rates.

The Corporation's outstanding credit facilities subjects it to a number of financial covenants, including certain maximum leverage ratios. The Corporation's failure or inability to comply with these covenants will cause an event of default, which, if not cured, could cause the entire outstanding borrowings under the relevant credit facility to become immediately due and payable. The credit facilities also include restrictions that may limit Amaya's flexibility in planning for, or reacting to, changes in Amaya's business and the industry.

The indebtedness under some of the Corporation's senior secured credit facilities accrues interest at variable rates, which exposes the Corporation to interest rate risk. If interest rates increase, then the Corporation's interest payment obligations under its variable rate indebtedness would increase, requiring that the Corporation use more of its available funds for the payment of debt service. Any increase in interests rates would reduce the Corporation's cash flow available for, among other things, investment in and expansion of its business; and a significant increase in interest rates could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, results of operation and financial condition. Although the Corporation entered into the Swap Agreements on March 15, 2015, which it anticipates will result in lower interest payments on existing debt and potentially mitigate the impact of fluctuations in the Euro to US$ exchange rate, there can be no assurance that the anticipated benefits will be realized and as such, the Corporation remains subject to the risk of increased interest rates described herein. See "General Development of the Business – Other Announcements".

Risks Related to Amaya's Business

The gaming and interactive entertainment industries are intensely competitive. Amaya faces competition from a growing number of companies and, if Amaya is unable to compete effectively, its business could be negatively impacted.

There is intense competition amongst gaming solution providers. There are a number of established, well-financed companies producing both land-based and online gaming and interactive entertainment products and systems that compete with the products of the Corporation. As some of the Corporation's competitors have financial resources that are greater than Amaya's, they may spend more money and time on developing and testing products, undertake more extensive marketing campaigns, adopt more aggressive pricing policies or otherwise develop more commercially successful products than the Corporation, which could impact the Corporation's ability to win new contracts and renew existing ones. Furthermore, new competitors may enter the Corporation's key market areas. If the Corporation is unable to obtain significant market presence or if it loses market share to its competitors, the Corporation's results of operations and future prospects would be materially adversely affected. There are many companies with already established relationships with third parties, including gaming operators, that are able to introduce directly competitive products and have the potential and resources to quickly develop competitive technologies. The Corporation's success depends on its ability to develop new products and enhance existing products at prices and on terms that are attractive to its customers.

There has also been consolidation among the Corporation's competitors in the gaming industry. Such consolidation could result in the formation of larger competitors with increased financial resources and altered cost structures, which may enable them to offer more competitive pricing models, gain a larger market share of customers, expand product offerings and broaden their geographic scope of operations.

Amaya's online offerings are part of new and evolving industries, which presents significant uncertainty and business risks.

The online gaming and interactive entertainment industry, which includes social, casual and mobile gaming and interactive entertainment, is relatively new and continues to evolve. Whether these industries grow and whether Amaya's online business will ultimately succeed, will be affected by, among other things, developments in social networks, mobile platforms, legal and regulatory developments (such as the passage of new laws or regulations or the extension of existing laws or regulations to online gaming activities), taxation of gaming activities, data privacy laws and regulation and other factors that the Corporation is unable to predict and which are beyond the Corporation's control. Given the dynamic evolution of these industries, it can be difficult to plan strategically, and it is possible that competitors will be more successful than the Corporation at adapting to change and pursuing business opportunities. Additionally, as the online gaming industry advances, including with respect to regulation, the Corporation may become subject to additional compliance-related costs. Consequently, the Corporation cannot provide assurance that the Corporation's online and interactive offerings will grow at the rates expected, or be successful in the long term.

Several companies have launched online social casino offerings, and new competitors are likely to continue to emerge, some of which may be operated by social gaming companies with a larger base of existing users, or by casino operators with more experience in operating a casino. If Amaya's products do not obtain popularity or maintain popularity, or fail to grow in a manner that meets the Corporation's expectations, Amaya's results of operations and financial condition could be harmed.

Amaya's success in the competitive gaming and interactive entertainment industries depends in large part on its ability to develop and manage frequent introductions of innovative products.

The gaming and interactive entertainment industries are characterized by dynamic customer demand and technological advances, including for land-based and online gaming products. As a result, the Corporation must continually introduce and successfully market new themes and technologies in order to remain competitive and effectively stimulate customer demand. The process of developing new products and systems is inherently complex and uncertain. It requires accurate anticipation of changing customer needs and end user preferences as well as emerging technological trends. If the Corporation's competitors develop new content and technologically innovative products, and Amaya fails to keep pace, its business could be adversely affected. Additionally, the introduction of products embodying new technology and the emergence of new industry standards can render the Corporation's existing solutions obsolete and unmarketable and can exert price pressures on existing solutions. To remain competitive, the Corporation must invest resources towards its research and development efforts to introduce new and innovative products with dynamic features to attract new customers and retain existing customers. If the Corporation fails to accurately anticipate customer needs and end-user preferences through the development of new products and technologies, it could lose business to its competitors, which would adversely affect the Corporation's results of operations and financial position.

The Corporation intends to continue investing resources toward its research and development efforts. There is no assurance that its investments in research and development will lead to successful new technologies or timely new products. If a new product does not gain market acceptance, the Corporation's business could be adversely affected. Most directly, if a product is unsuccessful, the Corporation could incur losses. Additionally, if the Corporation cannot efficiently adapt its processes and infrastructure to meet the needs of its product innovations, its business could be negatively impacted. There is no certainty that the Corporation's new products will attain market acceptance or that its competitors will not more effectively anticipate or respond to changing customer preferences. In addition, any delays by the Corporation in introducing new products could negatively impact its operating results by providing an opportunity for its competitors to introduce new products and gain market share.

The Corporation cannot give assurance that it will successfully develop new products or enhance and improve its existing products, that new products and enhanced and improved existing products will achieve market acceptance or that the introduction of new products or enhanced existing products by others will not render the Corporation's products obsolete. Dynamic customer demand and technological advances often demand high levels of research and development expenditures in order to meet accelerated product introductions, and the life cycles of certain products may be short, which could adversely affect the Corporation's operating results. In some cases, the Corporation's new products and solutions may require long development and testing periods and may not be introduced in a timely manner or may not achieve the broad market acceptance necessary to generate significant revenue. The Corporation's inability to develop solutions that meet customer needs and compete successfully against competitors' offerings could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, financial condition and results of operations.

Amaya's dependency on customers' acceptance of its products, and the Corporation's inability to meet changing consumer preferences may negatively impact Amaya's business and results of operations.

The demands of the Corporation's customers, both in its B2B and B2C segments, are continually changing. There is constant pressure to develop and market new content and technologically innovative products. The Corporation's revenues are dependent on the earning power and life span of its offerings; therefore, the Corporation faces continual pressure to design and deploy new and successful content and online offerings to maintain its revenue and remain competitive. The success of newly introduced technology and products is dependent on customer acceptance, as well as the reliability and performance of the Corporation's products. In the B2B segment, customers will generally accept a new product only if the Corporation can show that it is likely to produce more revenue and net wins than the Corporation's existing products and competitors' products. In the B2C segment, the Corporation's customers choose between its offerings and those of other online and mobile gaming and interactive entertainment developers and operators on the basis of many factors, including, without limitation, the quality of the customer experience, brand awareness, reputation, security, integrity and access to other distribution channels. If the Corporation's products do not gain and retain customers' acceptance, then its business and results of operations may be negatively and adversely affected.

The Corporation's products are becoming more sophisticated, resulting in additional expenses and the increased potential for loss in the case of an unsuccessful product.

The Corporation's newer products are generally technologically more sophisticated than its earlier products, and the Corporation must continually refine its development capabilities to meet the needs of its product innovation. If the Corporation cannot adapt its manufacturing and technological infrastructure to meet the needs of its product innovations, if it is unable to make upgrades to its development capacity in a timely manner or if it commits significant resources to upgrades for products that are ultimately unsuccessful, the business of the Corporation could be adversely affected. In addition, because of the sophistication of the Corporation's newer products and the resources committed to their development, they are generally more expensive to produce. If the increase in the average price of these new products is not proportionate to the increase in development costs, in each case as compared to the Corporation's prior products or, if the average cost of development does not go down over time, whether by reason of long-term customer acceptance, the Corporation's ability to find greater efficiencies in the development process as it refines its development capabilities or a general decrease of the cost of the technology, the Corporation's margins will suffer, which would adversely affect the Corporation's operating results. Additionally, if one of the Corporation's new products or platforms is ultimately unsuccessful, the Corporation may not be able to recover its investment in such products or platforms, resulting in losses.

Acquisitions involve risks that could negatively affect the Corporation's operating results, cash flows and liquidity.

The Corporation has grown significantly in recent years through acquisitions, in particular through the transformative Rational Group Acquisition. Currently, the Corporation anticipates that it may continue to make strategic acquisitions, some of which may be significant; however, the Corporation may not be able to identify suitable acquisition or strategic investment opportunities, or may be unable to obtain any required consent of its lenders and therefore may not be able to complete such acquisitions or strategic investments. The Corporation may pay for acquisitions or strategic investments with its Common Shares or with convertible securities, which may dilute the ownership interests of its shareholders, or it may decide to pursue acquisitions with which the Corporation's investors may not agree. In addition, acquisitions place significant demands on the Corporation's operational and financial infrastructure, and, if the Corporation does not manage its growth effectively, its business, liquidity and operating results may be materially adversely affected. Additionally, acquisitions may expose the Corporation to operational challenges and risks, including:

- the ability to profitably manage acquired businesses or successfully integrate the acquired business' operations, financial reporting and accounting control systems into the Corporation's business;

- the expense of integrating acquired businesses;
- increased indebtedness;
- the ability to fund cash flow shortages that may occur if anticipated revenue is not realized or is delayed, whether by general economic or market conditions, or unforeseen internal difficulties;
- the availability of funding sufficient to meet increased capital needs;
- diversion of management's attention; and
- the ability to retain or hire qualified personnel required for expanded operations.

In addition, acquired companies may have liabilities that the Corporation failed, or was unable, to discover in the course of performing due diligence investigations. The Corporation cannot be sure that the indemnification granted to it by sellers of acquired companies will be sufficient in amount, scope or duration to fully offset the possible liabilities associated with businesses or properties the Corporation assumes upon consummation of an acquisition. The Corporation may learn additional information about its acquired businesses that could materially adversely affect it, such as unknown or contingent liabilities, unprofitable products and liabilities related to compliance with applicable laws. Any such liabilities, individually or in the aggregate, could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business. Failure to successfully manage the operational challenges and risks associated with, or resulting from, acquisitions could adversely affect the Corporation's results of operations, cash flows and liquidity. Borrowings or issuances of convertible debt associated with these acquisitions may also result in higher levels of indebtedness which could impact the Corporation's ability to service its debt within the scheduled repayment terms.

The Corporation could face considerable business and financial risks in investigating, completing and implementing acquisitions.

Part of the Corporation's strategy has been and continues to be the pursuit of expansion and acquisition opportunities. The Corporation may incur significant expenses in connection with potential acquisitions, including those related to professional advisors and due diligence efforts; and there is no assurance that the time and resources expended on pursuing a particular acquisition will result in a completed transaction, or that any completed transaction will ultimately be successful. Acquisitions could result in potentially dilutive issuances of equity securities, significant expenditures of cash, the incurrence of debt and contingent liabilities or an increase in amortization expenses. In connection with any acquisitions, the Corporation could face significant administrative, operational, economic, geographic or cultural challenges in managing and integrating the expanded or combined operations, including acquired assets, operations and personnel. Acquisitions may also provide to be less valuable than the price paid by the Corporation because of, among other things, a failure to realize anticipated benefits such as cost savings and revenue enhancements or because of the assumption of liabilities in an acquisition, including unforeseen or contingent liabilities in excess of the amounts estimated. An acquisition may not produce the revenues, earnings or business synergies the Corporation anticipates for a variety of reasons, including, without limitation: (i) the integration of the operations, financial reporting, internal controls, technologies, products and employees; (ii) potential impairments in acquired assets; (iii) entry into markets or acquisition of products or technologies with which Amaya has limited or no prior experience; (iv) expenses associated with any potential or unknown legal liabilities; and (v) management of worldwide operations and the exploitation of acquired intellectual property or the development, sale or lease of acquired products. In addition, there can be no assurance that acquisition opportunities will be available on acceptable terms or at all or that the Corporation will be able to obtain necessary financing or regulatory approvals to complete potential acquisitions. The Corporation's ability to succeed in implementing its acquisition strategy will depend significantly on whether management can identify, complete and successfully integrate commercially viable acquisitions. Acquisition transactions may also disrupt Amaya's ongoing business and distract management from other responsibilities. The risks associated with acquisitions could have a material adverse effect upon the Corporation's business, financial condition and operating results.

Lengthy and variable sales cycle for the Corporation's land-based products makes it difficult to forecast the timing of revenue from its B2B activities.

The sales cycle for the Corporation's land-based products and services is variable, typically ranging from between a few weeks to several months and in some cases even longer, from the point of initial contact with a potential customer to the actual completion of a sale. It is difficult for the Corporation to forecast the timing of revenue from its activities because its customers typically invest substantial time, money and other resources researching their needs and available competitive alternatives before deciding to purchase the Corporation's solutions. Typically, the larger the potential sale, the more time, money and other resources will be invested by customers. In addition, the Corporation may rely on its channel partners to sell its products to customers and, therefore, the Corporation's sales efforts are vulnerable to delays at both the channel partner and the end-customer level. Unfavorable changes in the sales environment during such sales cycles, many of which are outside the control of the Corporation, including, without limitation, changes that could affect the size or timing of the order or even cause it to be cancelled, or that could have a materially adverse effect on the business, operating results and financial condition of the Corporation.

Failure to attract, retain and motivate key employees may adversely affect the Corporation's ability to compete and the loss of the services of key personnel could have a material adverse effect on Amaya's business.

The Corporation depends on the services of its executive officers as well as its key technical, sales, marketing and management personnel. The loss of any of these key persons could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, results of operations and financial condition. The Corporation's success is also highly dependent on its continuing ability to identify, hire, train, motivate and retain highly qualified technical, sales, marketing and management personnel. Competition for such personnel can be intense, and the Corporation cannot provide assurance that it will be able to attract or retain highly qualified technical, sales, marketing and management personnel in the future. Stock options comprise a significant component of key employee compensation, and if the Corporation's Common Share price declines, it may be difficult to retain such individuals. Similarly, changes in the Corporation's share price may hinder the Corporation's ability to recruit key employees, as they may elect to seek employment with other companies that they believe have better long-term prospects. The Corporation's inability to attract and retain the necessary technical, sales, marketing and management personnel may adversely affect its future growth and profitability. The Corporation's retention and recruiting may require significant increases in compensation expense, which would adversely affect the Corporation's results of operation.

The leadership of Amaya's chief executive officer, Mr. David Baazov, and other executive officers has been a critical element of the Corporation's success. The departure, death or disability of Mr. Baazov or other extended or permanent loss of his services, or any negative market or industry perception with respect to him or arising from his loss, could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business. Amaya's other executive officers and other members of senior management have substantial experience and expertise in Amaya's business and have made significant contributions to its growth and success. The unexpected loss of services of one or more of these individuals could also adversely affect the Corporation. Amaya is not protected by key man or similar life insurance covering members of senior management, other than with respect to its Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, David Baazov.

The Corporation's insurance coverage may not be adequate to cover all possible losses it may suffer, and, in the future, its insurance costs may increase significantly or it may be unable to obtain the same level of insurance coverage.

The Corporation may suffer damage to its property due to a casualty loss (such as fire, natural disasters and acts of war or terrorism) that could severely disrupt its business or subject it to claims by third parties who are injured or harmed. Although Amaya maintains insurance that it believes is adequate, that insurance may be inadequate or unavailable to cover all of the risks which the Corporation's business and assets may be exposed. Should an uninsured loss (including a loss which is less than Amaya's deductible) or loss in excess of insured limits occur, it could have a significant adverse impact on Amaya's operations and revenues.

Amaya generally renews its insurance policies on an annual basis. If the cost of coverage becomes too high, Amaya may need to reduce its policy limits or agree to certain exclusions from its coverage in order to reduce the premiums to an acceptable amount. Among other factors, national security concerns, catastrophic events or any change in the current applicable statutory requirement that insurance carriers offer coverage for certain acts of terrorism could adversely affect available insurance coverage and result in increased premiums on available coverage (which may cause Amaya to elect to reduce its policy limits) and additional exclusions from coverage. Among other potential future adverse changes, in the future Amaya may elect to not, or may be unable to, obtain any coverage for losses due to acts of terrorism.

Contract awards granted by lottery authorities are not necessarily extended and there is no assurance that the Corporation will be granted such contracts in the future.

With respect to the Corporation's B2B segment, contract awards by lottery authorities are sometimes challenged by unsuccessful bidders, which can result in costly and protracted legal proceedings that can result in delayed implementation or cancellation of the award. Further, there can be no assurance that the Corporation's current contracts will be extended or that it will be awarded new contracts as a result of competitive bidding processes in the future. The termination, expiration or failure to renew one or more of the Corporation's contracts could cause it to lose substantial revenues, which could have an adverse effect on the Corporation's ability to win or renew other contracts or pursue other growth initiatives.

New products may be subject to complex and dynamic revenue recognition standards, which could materially affect the Corporation's financial results.

As the Corporation introduces new products and as transactions become increasingly complex, additional analysis and judgment is required to account for and recognize revenues in accordance with IFRS. Transactions may include multiple element arrangements, software components, and/or unique new product offerings, and applicable accounting principles or regulatory product approval delays could further change the timing of revenue recognition, which could adversely affect Amaya's financial results for any given period.

The Corporation's business is vulnerable to changing economic conditions and to other factors that adversely affect the industries in which it operates.

The demand for entertainment and leisure activities tends to be highly sensitive to changes in consumers' disposable income, and thus can be affected by changes in the economy and consumer tastes, both of which are difficult to predict and beyond the control of the Corporation. Unfavorable changes in general economic conditions, including recessions, economic slowdown, sustained high levels of unemployment, and increasing fuel or transportation costs, may reduce customers' disposable income or result in fewer individuals visiting casinos, whether land-based or online, or otherwise engaging in entertainment and leisure activities. As a result, the Corporation cannot ensure that demand for its products or services will remain constant. Continued or renewed adverse developments affecting economies throughout the world, including a general tightening of availability of credit, decreased liquidity in many financial markets, increasing interest rates, increasing energy costs, acts of war or terrorism, transportation disruptions, natural disasters, declining consumer confidence, sustained high levels of unemployment or significant declines in stock markets, as well as concerns regarding epidemics and the spread of contagious diseases, could lead to a further reduction in discretionary spending on leisure activities, such as gambling. Any significant or prolonged decrease in consumer spending on entertainment or leisure activities could reduce the Corporation's online games, reducing the Corporation's cash flows and revenues. If the Corporation experiences a significant unexpected decrease in demand for its products, it could incur losses.

Additionally, a general economic decline in the gaming industry and any difficulty or inability of the Corporation's B2B customers to obtain adequate levels of capital to finance their ongoing operations may reduce their resources available to purchase Amaya's B2B products and services or affect Amaya's ability to collect outstanding receivables, which would adversely affect the Corporation's revenues.

Changes in ownership of customers or consolidations within the gaming industry may negatively impact pricing and lead to downward pricing pressures which could reduce revenue.

A decline in demand for the Corporation's products in the gaming industry could adversely affect its business. Demand for the Corporation's products is driven primarily by the replacement of existing products as well as the expansion of existing online gaming, casinos (online and land-based) and the expansion of new channels of distribution, such as mobile gaming. Because repeat customers form a portion of the Corporation's sales, its business could be affected if one of its customers is sold to or merges with another entity that utilizes the products and services of one of the Corporation's competitors or that reduces spending on its products or causes downward pricing measures. Such consolidations could lead to order cancellation or negatively impact pricing and purchasing decisions or results in the removal of some or all of the Corporation's products. Additionally, consolidation within the online poker market could result in the Corporation facing competition from larger combined entities, which may benefit from greater resources and economies of scale. Also, any fragmentation within the industry creating a number of smaller, independent operators with fewer resources could also adversely affect the Corporation's business as these operators might cause a further slowdown in the replacement cycle for the Corporation's products or otherwise adjust the number and frequency of orders they place with the Corporation to save money.

Litigation costs and the outcome of litigation could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business.

From time to time, Amaya may be subject to litigation claims through the ordinary course of its business operations regarding, but not limited to, employment matters, security of consumer and employee personal information, contractual relations with suppliers, marketing and infringement of trademarks and other intellectual property rights. Litigation to defend Amaya against claims by third parties, or to enforce any rights that Amaya may have against third parties, may be necessary, which could result in substantial costs and diversion of Amaya's resources, causing a material adverse effect on its business, financial condition and results of operations. Although the Corporation is not aware of any current material legal proceedings outstanding, threatened or pending as of the date hereof by or against the Corporation, given the nature of its business, it is, and may from time to time in the future be, party to various, and at times numerous, legal, administrative and regulatory inquiries, investigations, proceedings and claims that arise in the ordinary course of business. Because the outcome of litigation is inherently uncertain, if one or more of such legal matters were to be resolved against the Corporation for amounts in excess of management's expectations, the Corporation's results of operations and financial condition could be materially adversely affected. See "Legal Proceedings".

The Corporation relies on its internal marketing and branding function, as well as its relationship with ambassadors, distributors, service providers and channel partners to promote its products and generate revenue, and the failure to maintain and develop these relationships could adversely affect the business and financial condition of the Corporation.

The Corporation is dependent upon its internal marketing and branding function as well as its ability to establish and develop new relationships and to build on existing relationships with ambassadors, distributors and service providers on which it relies to promote and, at time sell its current and future products and services. The Corporation cannot provide assurance that it will be successful in maintaining or advancing such internal function or relationship. In addition, the Corporation cannot provide assurance that its distributors and service providers will act in a manner that will promote the success of the Corporation's products and services. Failure by its internal marketing and branding function or channel partners to promote and support the Corporation's products and services or failure by the Corporation to establish and develop new relationships and to build on existing relationships with ambassadors, distributors and service providers, could adversely affect the Corporation's business, results of operations and financial condition. Even if the Corporation is successful in maintaining or advancing such internal function or establishing and developing new relationships and in building on existing relationships with distributors or service providers, there is no guarantee that this will result in a growth in revenue.

Moreover, if some of the Corporation's competitors offer their products and services to distributors on more favorable terms or have more products or services available to meet their needs, there may be pressure on the Corporation to reduce the price of its products or services, failing which the Corporation's distributors and service providers may stop carrying its products or services or de-emphasize the sale of its products and services in favor of the products and services of competitors.

Risks Related to International Operations

The risks related to international operations, in particular in countries outside of the United States and Canada, could negatively affect the Corporation's results.

A significant portion of the Corporation's operations are conducted in foreign jurisdictions including, but not limited to: Native American Tribal jurisdictions with sovereign immunity, various U.S. states, Malta, and other members of the European Union. For the year ended December 31, 2014, the Corporation derived more than 95% of its revenue from transactions denominated in currencies other than the Canadian dollar, and the Corporation expects that receivables with respect to foreign sales will continue to account for a significant majority of its total accounts and receivables outstanding. As such, the Corporation's operations may be adversely affected by changes in foreign government policies and legislation or social instability and other factors which are not within the control of the Corporation, including, but not limited to, recessions in foreign economies, expropriation, nationalization and limitation or restriction on repatriation of funds, assets or earnings, longer receivables collection periods and greater difficulty in collecting accounts receivable, changes in consumer tastes and trends, renegotiation or nullification of existing contracts or licenses, changes in gaming policies, regulatory requirements or the personnel administering them, currency fluctuations and devaluations, exchange controls, economic sanctions and royalty and tax increases, risk of terrorist activities, revolution, border disputes, implementation of tariffs and other trade barriers and protectionist practices, taxation policies, including royalty and tax increases and retroactive tax claims, volatility of financial markets and fluctuations in foreign exchange rates, difficulties in the protection of intellectual property particularly in countries with fewer intellectual property protections, the effects that evolving regulations regarding data privacy may have on the Corporation's online operations, adverse changes in the creditworthiness of parties with whom the Corporation has significant receivables or forward currency exchange contracts, labour disputes and other risks arising out of foreign governmental sovereignty over the areas in which the Corporation's operations are conducted. The Corporation's operations may also be adversely affected by social, political and economic instability and by laws and policies of such foreign jurisdictions affecting foreign trade, taxation and investment. If the Corporation's operations are disrupted and/or the economic integrity of its contracts is threatened for unexpected reasons, its business may be harmed.

The Corporation's international activities may require protracted negotiations with host governments, national companies and third parties. Foreign government regulations may favor or require the awarding of contracts to local contractors or require foreign contractors to employ citizens of, or purchase supplies from, a particular jurisdiction. In the event of a dispute arising in connection with the Corporation's operations in a foreign jurisdiction where it conducts its business, the Corporation may be subject to the exclusive jurisdiction of foreign courts or may not be successful in subjecting foreign persons to the jurisdictions of the courts of Canada or enforcing Canadian judgments in such other jurisdictions. The Corporation may also be hindered or prevented from enforcing its rights with respect to a governmental instrumentality because of the doctrine of sovereign immunity. Accordingly, the Corporation's activities in foreign jurisdictions could be substantially affected by factors beyond the Corporation's control, any of which could have a material adverse effect on it. The Corporation believes that management's experience to date in commercializing its products and solutions in Europe and the Caribbean may be of assistance in helping to reduce these risks. Some countries in which the Corporation may operate may be considered politically and economically unstable.

Doing business in the industries in which the Corporation operates often requires compliance with numerous and extensive procedures and formalities. These procedures and formalities may result in unexpected or lengthy delays in commencing important business activities. In some cases, failure to follow such formalities or obtain relevant evidence may call into question the validity of the entity or the actions taken. Management of the Corporation is unable to predict the effect of additional corporate and regulatory formalities which may be adopted in the future including whether any such laws or regulations would materially increase Amaya's cost of doing business or affect its operations in any area.

Amaya may in the future enter into agreements and conduct activities outside of the jurisdictions where it currently carries on business, which expansion may present challenges and risks that Amaya has not faced in the past, any of which could adversely affect the results of operations and/or financial condition of Amaya.

The Corporation is subject to foreign exchange and currency risks that could adversely affect its operations, and the Corporation's ability to mitigate its foreign exchange risk through hedging transactions may be limited.

For the year ended December 31, 2014, the Corporation derived in excess of 95% of its revenues in currencies other than the Canadian dollar; however, a substantial portion of the Corporation's operating expenses are incurred in Canadian dollars. Fluctuations in the exchange rate between the U.S. dollar, the Euro and other currencies may have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, financial condition and operating results. The Corporation's consolidated financial results are affected by foreign currency exchange rate fluctuations. Foreign currency exchange rate exposures arise from current transactions and anticipated transactions denominated in currencies other than Canadian dollars and from the translation of foreign-currency-denominated balance sheet accounts into Canadian dollar-denominated balance sheet accounts. The Corporation is exposed to currency exchange rate fluctuations because portions of its revenue and expenses are denominated in currencies other than the Canadian dollar, particularly the Euro. In particular, uncertainty regarding economic conditions in Europe and the debt crisis affecting certain countries in the European Union pose risk to the stability of the Euro. Exchange rate fluctuations could adversely affect the Corporation's operating results and cash flows and the value of its assets outside of Canada. If a foreign currency is devalued in a jurisdiction in which the Corporation is paid in such currency, then the Corporation's customers may be required to pay higher amounts for the Corporation's products, which they may be unable or unwilling to pay.

While the Corporation may enter into forward currency swaps and other derivative instruments intended to mitigate the foreign currency exchange risk, there can be no assurance the Corporation will do so or that any instruments that the Corporation enters into will successfully mitigate such risk. If the Corporation enters into foreign currency forward or other hedging contracts, the Corporation would be subject to the risk that a counterparty to one or more of these contracts defaults on its performance under the contracts. During an economic downturn, a counterparty's financial condition may deteriorate rapidly and with little notice, and the Corporation may be unable to take action to protect its exposure. In the event of a counterparty default, the Corporation could lose the benefit of its hedging contract, which may harm its business and financial condition. In the event that one or more of the Corporation's counterparties becomes insolvent or files for bankruptcy, its ability to eventually recover any benefit lost as a result of that counterparty's default may be limited by the liquidity of the counterparty. The Corporation expects that it will not be able to hedge all of its exposure to any particular foreign currency, and it may not hedge its exposure at all with respect to certain foreign currencies. Changes in exchange rates and the Corporation's limited ability or inability to successfully hedge exchange rate risk could have an adverse impact on the Corporation's liquidity and results of operations. Although the Corporation entered into the Swap Agreements on March 15, 2015, which it anticipates will result in lower interest payments on existing debt and potentially mitigate the impact of fluctuations in the Euro to US$ exchange rate, there can be no assurance that the anticipated benefits will be realized and as such, the Corporation remains subject to foreign exchange and currency risks described herein. See "General Development of the Business – Other Announcements".

The Corporation is subject to various laws relating to trade, export controls, and foreign corrupt practices, the violation of which could adversely affect its operations, reputation, business, prospects, operating results and financial condition.

The Corporation must comply with all applicable international trade, export and import laws and regulations of Canada, the United States and other countries, and it is subject to export controls and economic sanctions laws and embargoes imposed by the U.S. and Canadian Governments. Changes in trade sanctions laws may restrict the Corporation's business practices, including cessation of business activities in sanctioned countries or with sanctioned entities. The Corporation is also subject to the U.S. Foreign Corrupt Practices Act, referred to as the FCPA, and other anti-bribery laws that generally prohibit the offering, promising, giving, or authorizing others to give anything of value, either directly or indirectly, to a non-U.S. government official in order to influence official action, or otherwise obtain or retain business.

The Corporation's business is heavily regulated and therefore involves significant interaction with public officials, including officials of various governments worldwide. The Corporation has implemented safeguards and policies to discourage practices by its employees and agents that would violate the FCPA and other applicable laws. However, Amaya cannot ensure that its compliance controls, policies, and procedures will in every instance protect the Corporation from acts committed by its employees, agents, contractors, or collaborators that would violate the laws or regulations of the jurisdictions in which Amaya operates.

Violations of these laws and regulations could result in significant fines, criminal sanctions against Amaya, its officers or its employees, requirements to obtain export licenses, disgorgement of profits, cessation of business activities in sanctioned countries, prohibitions on the conduct of its business and its inability to market and sell the Corporation's products in one or more countries. Additionally, any such violations could materially damage the Corporation's reputation, brand, international expansion efforts, ability to attract and retain employees and the Corporation's business, prospects, operating results and financial condition.

Privacy concerns could result in regulatory changes and impose additional costs and liabilities on the Corporation, limit its use of information, and adversely affect its business.

Personal privacy has become a significant issue in the United States, Europe, and many other countries in which the Corporation operates. Many federal, state, and foreign legislatures and government agencies have imposed or are considering imposing restrictions and requirements about the collection, use, and disclosure of personal information obtained from individuals. Changes to laws or regulations affecting privacy could impose additional costs and liability on the Corporation and could limit its use of such information to add value for customers. If the Corporation were required to change its business activities or revise or eliminate services, or to implement burdensome compliance measures, its business and results of operations could be harmed. In addition, the Corporation may be subject to fines, penalties, and potential litigation if it fails to comply with applicable privacy regulations, any of which could adversely affect the Corporation's business, liquidity and results of operation.

The Corporation's results of operations could be affected by natural events in the locations in which it operates or where its customers or suppliers operate.

Amaya, its customers, and its suppliers have operations in locations subject to natural occurrences such as severe weather and other geological events, including hurricanes, earthquakes, floods, or tsunamis that could disrupt operations. Any serious disruption at any of Amaya's facilities or the facilities of its customers or suppliers due to a natural disaster could have a material adverse effect on Amaya's revenues and increase its costs and expenses. If there is a natural disaster or other serious disruption at any of Amaya's facilities, it could impair its ability to adequately supply its customers, cause a significant disruption to its operations, cause Amaya to incur significant costs to relocate or re-establish these functions and negatively impact its operating results. While Amaya insures against certain business interruption risks, such insurance may not adequately compensate Amaya for any losses incurred as a result of natural or other disasters. In addition, any natural disaster that results in a prolonged disruption to the operations of Amaya's customers or suppliers may adversely affect its business, results of operations or financial condition.

Risks Related to Regulation

The gaming industry is heavily regulated and failure by the Corporation to comply with applicable requirements could be disruptive to its business and could adversely affect its operations.

The gaming industry is subject to extensive scrutiny and regulation at all levels of government, both domestic and foreign, including but not limited to, federal, state, provincial, local, and in some instances, tribal authorities. While the regulatory requirements vary by jurisdiction, most require:

- licenses and/or permits;
- findings of suitability;
- documentation of qualifications, including evidence of financial stability; and
- other required approvals for companies who operate in online gaming or manufacture or distribute gaming equipment and services, including but not limited to approvals for new products.

Any license, permit, approval or finding of suitability may be revoked, suspended or conditioned at any time. The loss of a license in one jurisdiction could trigger the loss of a license or affect the Corporation's eligibility for a license in another jurisdiction. The Corporation may be unable to obtain or maintain all necessary registrations, licenses, permits or approvals, and could incur fines or experience delays related to the licensing process which could adversely affect its operations. The finding of suitability process may be expensive and time-consuming. The Corporation's delay or failure to obtain licenses and approvals in any jurisdiction may prevent it from distributing its solutions and generating revenues. A gaming regulatory body may refuse to issue or renew a registration if the Corporation, or one of its directors, officers, employees or associates: (i) is considered to be a detriment to the integrity or lawful conduct or management of gaming, (ii) no longer meets a registration requirement, (iii) has breached or is in breach of a condition of registration or an operational agreement with a regulatory authority, (iv) has made a material misrepresentation, omission or misstatement in an application for registration or in reply to an enquiry by a person conducting an audit, investigation or inspection for a gaming regulatory authority, (v) has been refused a similar registration in another jurisdiction, (vi) has held a similar registration, or license in that province, state or another jurisdiction which has been suspended, revoked or cancelled, or (vii) has been convicted of an offence, inside or outside of Canada and the United States that calls into question the Corporation's honesty or integrity or the honesty or integrity of one of its directors, officers, employees or associates.

Additionally, the Corporation's solutions must be approved in most jurisdictions in which they are offered; this process cannot be assured or guaranteed. Obtaining these approvals is a time-consuming process that can be extremely costly. A manufacturer of gaming solutions may pursue corporate regulatory approval with regulators of a particular jurisdiction while it pursues technical regulatory approval for its gaming solutions by that same jurisdiction. It is possible that after incurring significant expenses and dedicating substantial time and effort towards such regulatory approvals, that Amaya may not obtain either of them. If the Corporation fails to obtain the necessary certification, registration, license, approval or finding of suitability in a given jurisdiction, it would likely be prohibited from distributing its solutions in that particular jurisdiction altogether. If the Corporation fails to seek, does not receive, or receives a revocation of a license in a particular jurisdiction for its games and gaming machines, hardware or software, then it cannot sell, service or place on a participation or leased basis or license its products in that jurisdiction and its issued licenses in other jurisdictions may be impacted. Furthermore, some jurisdictions require license holders to obtain government approval before engaging in some transactions, such as business combinations, reorganizations, stock offerings and repurchases. The Corporation may not be able to obtain all necessary registrations, licenses, permits, approvals or findings of suitability in a timely manner, or at all. Delays in regulatory approvals or failure to obtain such approvals may also serve as a barrier to entry to the market for the Corporation's solutions. If the Corporation is unable to overcome the barriers to entry, it will materially affect its results of operations and future prospects. To the extent new gaming jurisdictions are established or expanded, the Corporation cannot guarantee it will be successful in penetrating such new jurisdictions or expanding its business in line with the growth of existing jurisdictions. As the Corporation enters into new markets, it may encounter legal and regulatory challenges that are difficult or impossible to foresee and which could result in an unforeseen adverse impact on planned revenues or costs associated with the new market opportunity. If the Corporation is unable to effectively develop and operate within these new markets, then its business, operating results and financial condition could be impaired. See “Business of the Corporation – Regulatory Environment”. The Corporation’s failure to obtain the necessary regulatory approvals in jurisdictions, whether individually or collectively, would have a material adverse effect on its business.

To expand into new jurisdictions, the Corporation may need to be licensed, obtain approvals of its products and/or seek licensure of its officers, directors, major shareholders, key employees or business partners. Any delays in obtaining or difficulty in maintaining regulatory approvals needed for expansion within existing markets or into new jurisdictions can negatively affect the Corporation’s opportunities for growth or delay its ability to recognize revenue from the sale or installation of products in any such jurisdictions.

The Corporation is subject to regulation affecting Internet gaming which varies from one jurisdiction to another and future legislative and court proceedings pertaining to Internet gaming may have a material impact on the operations and financial results of Amaya.

The Corporation and its licensees are subject to applicable laws in the jurisdictions in which they operate. Some countries have introduced regulations attempting to restrict or prohibit Internet gaming, while others have taken the position that Internet gaming should be regulated and have adopted or are in the process of considering legislation to enable that regulation.

While the U.K. and other European countries such as Malta, Alderney and Gibraltar have currently adopted a regime which permits its licensees to accept wagers from any jurisdiction, other countries, including Canada and the United States have, or are in the process of implementing, regimes which permit only the targeting of the domestic market provided a local license is obtained and local taxes accounted for. Other European territories continue to defend a licensing regime that protects monopoly providers and have combined this with an attempt to outlaw all other supplies.

Future legislative and court decisions may have a material impact on the operations and financial results. There is a risk that governmental authorities may view the Corporation or its licensees as having violated their local laws, despite, particularly with respect to the B2B business, Amaya’s contractual requirement that each of its licensees be licensed to operate an Internet gaming business by the governmental authority of the country in which the gaming servers associated with the licensees’ gaming operations are located. Therefore, there is a risk that civil and criminal proceedings, including class actions brought by or on behalf of prosecutors or public entities incumbent monopoly providers, or private individuals, could be initiated against the Corporation, its licensees, Internet service providers, credit card processors, advertisers and others involved in the Internet gaming industry. Such potential proceedings could involve substantial litigation expense, penalties, fines, seizure of assets, injunctions or other restrictions being imposed upon the Corporation or its licensees or other business partners, while diverting the attention of key executives. Such proceedings could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation’s business, revenues, operating results and financial condition as well as impact upon the Corporation’s reputation.

There can be no assurance that legally enforceable prohibiting legislation will not be proposed and passed in jurisdictions relevant or potentially relevant to the Corporation’s business to legislate or regulate various aspects of the Internet or the online gaming industry (or that existing laws in those jurisdictions will not be interpreted negatively). Compliance with any such legislation may have a material adverse effect on the Corporation’s business, financial condition and results of operations, either as a result of the Corporation’s determining that a jurisdiction should be blocked, or because a local license may be costly for the Corporation or its licensees to obtain and/or such licenses may contain other commercially undesirable conditions.

The Corporation may not be able to capitalize on the expansion of online or other forms of interactive gaming or other trends and changes in the gaming industry, including due to laws and regulations governing these industries.

The Corporation participates in the new and evolving interactive gaming industry through its online, social and mobile products. The Corporation intends to take advantage of the liberalization of online and mobile gaming, both within the U.S. and internationally; however, expansion of online and mobile gaming involves significant risks and uncertainties, including legal, business and financial risks. The success of online and mobile gaming and the Corporation's interactive products and services may be affected by future developments in social networks, including Facebook, mobile platforms, regulatory developments, data privacy laws and other factors that the Corporation is unable to predict and are beyond its control. Consequently, the Corporation's future operating results relating to its online gaming products and services are difficult to predict, and Amaya cannot provide assurance that its products and services will grow at expected rates or be successful in the long term.

Additionally, the Corporation's ability to successfully pursue its interactive gaming strategy depends on the laws and regulations relating to wagering through interactive channels. In the United States, until recently, there was uncertainty as to whether the Federal Wire Act prohibited U.S. states from conducting intrastate lottery transactions via the internet if the transmissions over the internet during the transaction crossed state lines. In late 2011, the Office of Legal Counsel of the U.S. Department of Justice ("DOJ") issued an opinion to the effect that state lottery ticket sales over the internet to in-state adults do not violate the Federal Wire Act. The opinion provided an impetus for states to authorize forms of interactive lottery or interactive gaming in order to generate additional revenue. However, to the extent states wish to pursue interactive gaming, such states may be required or otherwise deem it advisable to enact enabling legislation or new regulations addressing the sale of lottery tickets or the offering of other forms of gaming through interactive channels, such as the actions taken by Delaware, Nevada and New Jersey to authorize various forms of internet gaming.

Despite the 2011 DOJ opinion, there are still significant forces working to limit or prohibit interactive lottery and gaming in the U.S. On February 4, 2015, Representative Jason Chaffetz introduced the Restoration of America's Wire Act ("RAWA") in the U.S. House of Representatives. As proposed, RAWA would revise the Federal Wire Act to ban most forms of online gambling, including sports betting, online poker, online casino games, fantasy sports and other activities. The enactment of online gaming legislation that federalizes significant aspects of the regulation of online gaming and/or limits the forms of online wagering that are permissible could have an adverse impact on the Corporation's ability to pursue its interactive strategy in the United States.

Internationally, laws relating to online gaming are evolving, particularly in Europe. To varying degrees, a number of European governments have taken steps to change the regulation of online wagering through the implementation of new or revised licensing and taxation regimes, including the possible imposition of sanctions on unlicensed providers. The corporation cannot predict the timing, scope or terms of any such state, federal or foreign laws and regulations, or the extent to which any such laws and regulations will facilitate or hinder its interactive strategy.

The Corporation's ability to operate in its existing land-based or online jurisdictions or expand in new land-based or online jurisdictions could be adversely affected by new or changing laws or regulations, new interpretations of existing laws or regulations, and difficulties or delays in obtaining or maintaining required licenses or product approvals.

Changes in existing gaming laws or regulations, new interpretations of existing gaming laws or regulations or changes in the manner in which existing laws and regulations are enforced, all with respect to land-based and online gaming activities, may hinder or prevent the Corporation from continuing to operate in those jurisdictions where it currently carries on business, which would harm its operating results and financial condition. Furthermore, gaming regulatory bodies may from time to time amend the various disclosures and reporting requirements. If the Corporation fails to comply with any existing or future disclosure or reporting requirements, the regulators may take action against the Corporation which could ultimately include fines, the conditioning, suspension or revocation of approvals, registrations, permits or licenses and other disciplinary action. It cannot be assured that the Corporation will be able to adequately adjust to such potential changes. Additionally, evolving laws and regulations regarding data privacy, cybersecurity and anti-money laundering could adversely impact opportunities for growth in Amaya's online business, and could result in additional compliance-related costs.

Public opinion can also exert a significant influence over the regulation of the gaming industry. A negative shift in the public's perception of gaming could affect future legislation in different jurisdictions. Among other things, such a shift could cause jurisdictions to abandon proposals to legalize gaming, thereby limiting the number of new jurisdictions into which the Corporation could expand. Negative public perception could also lead to new restrictions on or to the prohibition of gaming in jurisdictions in which the Corporation currently operates.

Potential changes to the Class II regulatory scheme may cause the Corporation to modify its Class II games which may result in the Corporation's products becoming less competitive.

The Corporation's Native American tribal customers that operate Class II games under the IGRA are subject to regulation by the NIGC. Any required conversion of games pursuant to changing regulatory schemes could cause a disruption to the Corporation's business. In addition, the Corporation could lose market share to competitors who offer games that do not appear to comply with published regulatory restrictions on Class II games and therefore offer features not available in the Corporation's products.

Regulations that may be adopted with respect to the Internet and electronic commerce may decrease the growth in the use of the Internet and lead to the decrease in the demand for Amaya's products and services.

In addition to regulations pertaining to the gaming industry in general and specifically to online gaming, the Corporation may become subject to any number of laws and regulations that may be adopted with respect to the Internet and electronic commerce. New laws and regulations that address issues such as user privacy, pricing, online content regulation, taxation, advertising, intellectual property, information security, and the characteristics and quality of online products and services may be enacted. As well, current laws, which predate or are incompatible with the Internet and electronic commerce, may be applied and enforced in a manner that restricts the electronic commerce market. The application of such pre-existing laws regulating communications or commerce in the context of the Internet and electronic commerce is uncertain. Moreover, it may take years to determine the extent to which existing laws relating to issues such as intellectual property ownership and infringement, libel and personal privacy are applicable to the Internet. The adoption of new laws or regulations relating to the Internet, or particular applications or interpretations of existing laws, could decrease the growth in the use of the Internet, decrease the demand for Amaya's products and services, increase Amaya's cost of doing business or could otherwise have a material adverse effect on Amaya's business, revenues, operating results and financial condition.

Amaya's shareholders are subject to extensive governmental regulation and if a shareholder is found unsuitable by a gaming authority, that shareholder would not be able to beneficially own the Corporation's Common Shares directly or indirectly.

In many jurisdictions, gaming laws can require any of the Corporation's shareholders to file an application, be investigated, and qualify or have his, her or its suitability determined by gaming authorities. Gaming authorities have very broad discretion in determining whether an applicant should be deemed suitable. Subject to certain administrative proceeding requirements, the gaming regulators have the authority to deny any application or limit, condition, restrict, revoke or suspend any license, registration, finding of suitability or approval, or fine any person licensed, registered or found suitable or approved, for any cause deemed reasonable by the gaming authorities.

Furthermore, any person required by a gaming authority to be found suitable, who is found unsuitable by the gaming authority, may not hold directly or indirectly ownership of any voting security or the beneficial or record ownership of any nonvoting security or any debt security of any public corporation which is registered with the relevant gaming authority beyond the time prescribed by the relevant gaming authority. A violation of the foregoing may constitute a criminal offence. A finding of unsuitability by a particular gaming authority impacts that person's ability to associate or affiliate with gaming licensees in that particular jurisdiction and could impact the person's ability to associate or affiliate with gaming licensees in other jurisdictions.

Many jurisdictions also require any person who acquires beneficial ownership of more than a certain percentage of voting securities of a gaming company and, in some jurisdictions, non-voting securities, typically 5%, to report the acquisition to gaming authorities, and gaming authorities may require such holders to apply for qualification or a finding of suitability, subject to limited exceptions for "institutional investors" that hold a company's voting securities for investment purposes only.

On July 30, 2014 the Corporation's shareholders approved amendments to the Corporation's articles to include certain provisions to ensure that the Corporation complies with applicable gaming regulations. These amendments were effected in November 2014 and provide, among other things, that the Corporation shall have the right, subject to the conditions set out in the gaming provisions share terms, to redeem Common Shares held by an unsuitable person. Such redemption rights may negatively affect the trading price of the Common Shares and may negatively affect the liquidity of the Common Shares.

Current environmental laws and regulations, or those enacted in the future, could result in additional liabilities and costs.

The manufacturing of the Corporation's products may require the use of materials that are subject to a variety of environmental, health and safety laws and regulations (such as climate change legislation). Compliance with these laws could increase Amaya's costs and impact the availability of components required to manufacture its products. Violation of these laws may subject Amaya to significant fines, penalties or disposal costs, which could negatively impact its results of operations, financial position or cash flows.

Risks Related to the Corporation's Intellectual Property and Technology

Amaya's intellectual property may be insufficient to properly safeguard its technology and brands.

The Corporation holds patents, trademarks and other intellectual property rights. The Corporation has also applied for patent protection in the United States, Canada, Europe and other countries relating to certain existing and proposed processes, designs and methods and other product innovations. Patent applications can however take many years to issue and the Corporation can provide no assurance that any of these patents will be issued at all. If the Corporation is denied any or all of these patents, it may not be able to successfully prevent its competitors from imitating its solutions or using some or all of the processes that are the subject of such patent applications. Such imitation may lead to increased competition within the finite market for the Corporation's solutions. Even if pending patents are issued to the Corporation, its intellectual property rights may not be sufficiently comprehensive to prevent its competitors from developing similar competitive products and technologies. The Corporation's success may also depend on its ability to obtain trademark protection for the names or symbols under which it markets its products and to obtain copyright protection and patent protection of its proprietary technologies, intellectual property and other game innovations and if the granted patents are challenged, protection may be lost. The Corporation may not be able to build and maintain goodwill in its trademarks or obtain trademark or patent protection, and there can be no assurance that any trademark, copyright or issued patent will provide competitive advantages for Amaya or that Amaya's intellectual property will not be successfully challenged or circumvented by competitors.

Source codes for Amaya's technology may also receive protection under international copyright laws. However, for many third parties who intend to use Amaya source codes without Amaya's consent, the presence of copyright protection in the source codes alone may not be enough of a deterrent to prevent such use. As such, Amaya may need to initiate legal proceedings following such use to obtain orders to prevent further use of the source code.

The Corporation also relies on trade secrets, ideas and proprietary know-how. Although the Corporation generally requires its employees and independent contractors to enter into confidentiality and intellectual property assignment agreements, it cannot be assured that the obligations therein will be maintained and honoured. If these agreements are breached, it is unlikely that the remedies available to the Corporation will be sufficient to compensate it for the damages suffered. In spite of confidentiality agreements and other methods of protecting trade secrets, the Corporation's proprietary information could become known to or independently developed by competitors. If the Corporation fails to adequately protect its intellectual property and confidential information, its business may be harmed and its liquidity and results of operations may be materially adversely impacted.

The Corporation may be subject to claims of intellectual property infringement or invalidity and adverse outcomes of litigation could unfavorably affect its operating results.

Monitoring infringement and misappropriation of intellectual property can be difficult and expensive, and the Corporation may not be able to detect infringement or misappropriation of its proprietary rights. Although the Corporation intends to aggressively pursue anyone who is reasonably believed to be infringing upon its intellectual property rights and who poses a significant commercial risk to the business, to protect and enforce its intellectual property rights, initiating and maintaining suits against such third parties will require substantial financial resources. The Corporation may not have the financial resources to bring such suits, and, if it does bring such suits, it may not prevail. Regardless of the Corporation's success in any such actions, the expenses and management distraction involved may have a material adverse effect on its financial position. A significant portion of the Corporation's revenues is generated from products using certain intellectual property rights, and Amaya's operating results would be negatively impacted if it was unsuccessful in licensing certain of those rights and/or protecting those rights from infringement, including losses of proprietary information from breaches of the Corporation's cybersecurity efforts.

A significant portion of the Corporation's revenues is generated from products using certain intellectual property rights, and Amaya's operating results would be negatively impacted if it was unsuccessful in licensing certain of those rights and/or protecting those rights from infringement, including losses of proprietary information from breaches of the Corporation's cybersecurity efforts.

Further, the Corporation's competitors have been granted patents protecting various gaming products and solutions features, including systems, methods and designs. If the Corporation's products and solutions employ these processes, or other subject matter that is claimed under its competitors' patents, or if other companies obtain patents claiming subject matter that the Corporation uses, those companies may bring infringement actions against it. The question of whether a product infringes a patent involves complex legal and factual issues, the determination of which is often uncertain. In addition, because patent applications can take many years to issue, there may be applications now pending of which the Corporation is unaware, which might later result in issued patents that the Corporation's products and solutions may infringe. There can be no assurance that the Corporation's products, including those with currently pending patent applications, will not be determined to have infringed upon an existing third party patent. If any of the Corporation's products and solutions infringes a valid patent, the Corporation may be required to discontinue offering certain products or systems, pay damages, purchase a license to use the intellectual property in question from its owner, or redesign the product in question to avoid infringement. A license may not be available or may require Amaya to pay substantial royalties, which could in turn force Amaya to attempt to redesign the infringing product or to develop alternative technologies at a considerable expense. Additionally, the Corporation may not be successful in any attempt to redesign the infringing product or to develop alternative technologies, which could force the Corporation to withdraw its product or services from the market.

The Corporation may also infringe other intellectual property rights belonging to third parties, such as trademarks, copyrights and confidential information. As with patent litigation, the infringement of trademarks, copyrights and confidential information involve complex legal and factual issues and the Corporation's products, branding or associated marketing materials may be found to have infringed existing third party rights. When any third party infringement occurs, the Corporation may be required to stop using the infringing intellectual property rights, pay damages and, if it wishes to keep using the third party intellectual property, purchase a license or otherwise redesign the product, branding or associated marketing materials to avoid further infringement. Such a license may not be available or may require Amaya to pay substantial royalties.

It is also possible that the validity of any of Amaya's intellectual property rights might be challenged either in standalone proceedings or as part of infringement claims. There can be no assurance that Amaya's intellectual property rights will withstand an invalidity claim and, if declared invalid, the protection afforded to the product, branding or marketing material will be lost.

Moreover, the future interpretation of intellectual property law regarding the validity of intellectual property by governmental agencies or courts in Canada, Europe, the United States or other jurisdictions in which Amaya has rights could negatively affect the validity or enforceability of the Corporation's current or future intellectual property. This could have multiple negative impacts including, without limitation, the marketability of, or anticipated revenue from, certain of Amaya's products. Additionally, due to the differences in foreign patent, trademark, trade dress, copyright and other laws concerning proprietary rights, the Corporation's intellectual property may not receive the same degree of protection in foreign countries as it would in Canada, Europe or the United States. The Corporation's failure to possess, obtain or maintain adequate protection of its intellectual property rights for any reason in these jurisdictions could have a material adverse effect on its business, results of operations and financial condition.

Furthermore, infringement and other intellectual property claims, with or without merit, can be expensive and time-consuming to litigate, and the Corporation may not have the financial and human resources to defend itself against any infringement suits that may be brought against Amaya. Litigation can also distract management from day-to-day operations of the business.

In addition, the Corporation's business is dependent in part on the intellectual property of third parties. For example, the Corporation licenses trademarks and other intellectual property from third parties for use in its gaming products. The future success of the Corporation may depend upon its ability to obtain licenses to use new marks and its ability to retain or expand existing licenses for certain products. If the Corporation is unable to obtain new licenses or renew or expand existing licenses, it may be required to discontinue or limit its use of such products that use the licensed marks and its financial condition, operating results or prospects may be harmed.

Compromises of the Corporation's systems or unauthorized access to confidential information or Amaya's customers' personal information could materially harm Amaya's reputation and business.

Amaya collects and stores confidential, personal information relating to its customers for various business purposes, including marketing and financial purposes, and credit card information for processing payments. For example, the Corporation handles, collects and stores personal information in connection with its online gaming products. The Corporation may share this personal and confidential information with vendors or other third parties in connection with processing of transactions, operating certain aspects of Amaya's business or for marketing purposes. The Corporation's collection and use of personal data is governed by federal, state and provincial laws and regulations as well as the applicable laws and regulations in other countries in which it operates. Privacy law is an area that changes often and varies significantly by jurisdiction. Amaya may incur significant costs in order to ensure compliance with the various privacy requirements. In addition, privacy laws and regulations may limit Amaya's ability to market to its customers.

Amaya assesses and monitors the security of collection, storage and transmission of customer information on an ongoing basis. See "Technology Infrastructure and Research and Development". Amaya utilizes commercially available software and technologies to monitor, assess and secure its network. However, the systems currently used for transmissions and approval of payment card transactions, and the technology utilized in payment cards themselves, all of which can put payment card data at risk, are determined and controlled by the payment card industry, not Amaya. Although Amaya has taken steps designed to safeguard its customers' confidential personal information, its network and other systems and those of third parties, such as service providers, could be compromised by a third party breach of Amaya's system's security or that of a third party provider or as a result of purposeful or accidental actions of third parties, Amaya's employees or those employees of a third party. Advances in computer and software capabilities and encryption technology, new tools and other developments may increase the risk of such a breach. As a result of any security breach, customer information or other proprietary data may be accessed or transmitted by or to a third party. Despite these measures, there can be no assurance that Amaya is adequately protecting its customers' information.

Any loss, disclosure or misappropriation of, or access to, customers' or other proprietary information or other breach of Amaya's information security could result in legal claims or legal proceedings, including regulatory investigations and actions, or liability for failure to comply with privacy and information security laws, including for failure to protect personal information or for misusing personal information, which could disrupt Amaya's operations, damage its reputation and expose it to claims from its customers, financial institutions, regulators, payment card associations, employees and other persons, any of which could have an adverse effect on Amaya's business, revenues, financial conditions and operations.

Service interruptions of Internet service providers could impair the Corporation's ability to carry on its business.

Most of the Corporation's customers and some of the Corporation's licensees rely on Internet service providers to allow the Corporation's customers or its licensees' customers and servers to communicate with each other. If Internet service providers experience service interruptions, communications over the Internet may be interrupted and impair the Corporation's ability to carry on business. In addition, the Corporation's ability to process e-commerce transactions depends on bank processing and credit card systems. In order to prepare for system problems, the Corporation continuously seeks to strengthen and enhance its current facilities and the capability of its system infrastructure and support. Nevertheless, any system failure as a result of reliance on third parties, including network, software or hardware failure, which causes a delay or interruption in the Corporation's online services and products and e-commerce services, could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, revenues, operating results and financial condition.

There is a risk that the Corporation's network systems will be unable to meet the growing demand for its online products.

The growth of Internet usage has caused frequent interruptions and delays in processing and transmitting data over the Internet. There can be no assurance that the Internet infrastructure or the Corporation's own network systems will continue to be able to meet the demand placed on it by the continued growth of the Internet, the overall online gaming and interactive entertainment industry and the Corporation's customers.

The Internet's viability as a medium for products and services offered by the Corporation could be affected if the necessary infrastructure is not sufficient, or if other technologies and technological devices eclipse the Internet as a viable channel.

End-users of the Corporation's products and services depend on Internet service providers, online service providers and the Corporation's system infrastructure for access to the Corporation's or its licensees' products and services. Many of these services have experienced service outages in the past and could experience service outages, delays and other difficulties due to system failures, stability or interruption. The Corporation's licensees may lose customers as a result of delays or interruption in service, including delays or interruptions relating to high volumes of traffic or technological problems. As a result, the Corporation may not be able to meet service levels that it has contracted for, putting it in breach of contractual commitments, which in turn could materially adversely affect the Corporation's business, revenues, operating results and financial condition.

Systems, network or telecommunications failures or cyber-attacks may disrupt the Corporation's business and have an adverse effect on Amaya's results of operations.

Any disruption in the Corporation's network or telecommunications services could affect the Corporation's ability to operate its games and online offerings, which would result in reduced revenues and customer down time. The Corporation's network and databases of business or customer information, including intellectual property, trade secrets, and other proprietary business information and those of third parties Amaya utilizes, are susceptible to outages due to fire, floods, power loss, break-ins, cyber-attacks, network penetration, data privacy or security breaches, denial of service attacks and similar events, including inadvertent dissemination of information due to increased use of social media. Despite implementation of network security measures and data protection safeguards by Amaya, including a disaster recovery strategy for back office systems, the Corporation's servers and computer resources are vulnerable to viruses, malicious software, hacking, break-ins or theft, third-party security breaches, employee error or malfeasance, and other potential compromises. Disruptions from unauthorized access to or tampering with the Corporation's computer systems, or those of third parties Amaya utilizes, in any such event could result in a wide range of negative outcomes, including devaluation of the Corporation's intellectual property, increased expenditures on data security, and costly litigation, and can have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, revenues, reputation, operating results and financial condition.

Amaya's land-based products and online operations may experience losses due to technical problems or fraudulent activities.

The Corporation's products and solutions are complex and, accordingly, they may contain defects or errors, particularly when first introduced or as new versions are released. The Corporation may not discover such defects or errors until after a product or solution has been released and used by its end-customers. Defects and errors in the Corporation's products and solutions could materially and adversely affect the Corporation's reputation, result in significant costs to it, delay planned release dates and impair its ability to sell its products in the future. The costs incurred in correcting any product or solution defects or errors may be substantial and could adversely affect the Corporation's operating margins. Furthermore, there can be no assurance that the Corporation's efforts to monitor, develop, modify and implement appropriate test and processes for the Corporation's products or solutions will be sufficient to permit it to avoid a rate of failure in its products or solutions that results in substantial delays, significant repair or replacement costs or potential damage to its reputation, any of which could have a materially adverse effect on the Corporation's business, results of operations and financial condition.

The Corporation may also be subject to claims that its products or solutions are defective or that some function or malfunction of its products caused or contributed to damages. The Corporation attempts to minimize this risk by incorporating provisions into its standard agreements that are designed to limit the Corporation's exposure to potential claims of liability, in addition to maintaining an errors and omissions insurance policy. No assurance can be given that all claims will be barred by the contractual provisions limiting liability or that the provisions will be enforceable. The Corporation may be liable for an unforeseen failure regarding the use of its products or services. A significant liability claim against the Corporation could have a materially adverse effect on its operating results and financial position.

The Corporation's success depends on its ability to avoid, detect, replicate and correct software and hardware errors and fraudulent manipulation of the Corporation's gaming machines, systems, and online offerings. The Corporation incorporates security features into the design of its gaming machines and software and other systems which are designed to prevent the Corporation and its customers from being defrauded. However, there can be no guarantee that the Corporation's security features will continue to be effective in the future. If the Corporation's security systems fail to prevent fraud, the Corporation's operating results could be adversely affected. Additionally, if third parties breach the Corporation's security systems and defraud the Corporation's customers, the public may lose confidence in the Corporation's products and online operations and the Corporation could become subject to legal claims by its customers or to investigation by applicable regulatory authorities.

Games, online gaming and gaming machines may also be replaced by land-based or online casinos and other gaming machine operators if they do not perform according to expectations, or may be shut down by regulators. The occurrence of fraudulent manipulation of the Corporation's games, gaming machines, online gaming software or systems may give rise to claims for lost revenues and related litigation by the Corporation's customers and may subject the Corporation to investigation or other action by gaming regulatory authorities including suspension or revocation of the Corporation's gaming licenses, or disciplinary action.

Amaya's customers may attempt or commit fraud or cheat in order to increase winnings. Acts of fraud or cheating may involve various tactics, possibly in collusion with employees of the Corporation. Internal acts of cheating could also be conducted by employees through collusion with programmers and other personnel. Failure to discover such acts or schemes in a timely manner could result in losses in Amaya's operations. In addition, negative publicity related to such schemes could have an adverse effect on Amaya's reputation, potentially causing a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, financial condition, results of operations and cash flow.

Risks Related to the Corporation's Common Shares

The Corporation's Common Shares rank junior to the Preferred Shares with respect to amounts payable in the event of a liquidation.

The Common Shares rank junior to the Preferred Shares with respect to amounts payable in the event of its liquidation, dissolution or winding-up. If the Corporation voluntarily or involuntarily liquidates, dissolves or winds-up, no distribution of its assets may be made to holders of Common Shares until the Corporation has paid to holders of the Preferred Shares a liquidation preference equal to the greater of (i) $1,000 per Preferred Share, which is the initial liquidation preference, multiplied by an adjustment factor calculated by dividing the Conversion Ratio (as defined below) then in effect by 41.67, which is the initial Conversion Ratio; and (ii) the amount that a holder of Preferred Shares would have been entitled to receive if the Preferred Shares were converted into Common Shares immediately prior to the liquidation.

Certain provisions of the Preferred Shares could delay or prevent an otherwise beneficial takeover attempt of Amaya and, therefore, the ability of holders to exercise their rights associated with a potential fundamental change.

Certain provisions of the Preferred Shares could make it more difficult or more expensive for a third party to acquire the Corporation. For example, if a fundamental change were to occur, holders of the Preferred Shares may have the right to convert their Preferred Shares, in whole or in part, at an increased conversion rate and will also be entitled to receive a fundamental change make-whole amount. These features of the Preferred Shares could increase the cost of acquiring the Corporation or otherwise discourage a third party from acquiring it.

The Corporation's advance notice bylaws may prevent attempts by its shareholders to replace or remove its current management.

Provisions in the Corporation's bylaws may frustrate or prevent any attempts by the Corporation's shareholders to replace or remove current management by making it more difficult for shareholders to remove Amaya's directors. These charter provisions could make the removal of management more difficult. Furthermore, the existence of the foregoing provisions could limit the price that investors might be willing to pay in the future for Common Shares. They could also deter potential acquisitions of the Corporation, thereby reducing the likelihood that shareholders could receive a premium for Common Shares in an acquisition.

Future sales or the possibility of future sales of a substantial amount of the Corporation's Common Shares may depress the price of the Corporation's Common Shares.

Future sales or the availability for sale of substantial amounts Common shares in the public market could adversely affect the prevailing market price of the Common Shares and could impair Amaya's ability to raise capital through future sales of equity securities.

The Corporation cannot predict the size of future issuances of its Common Shares or other securities or the effect, if any, that future issuances of Common Shares or other securities of the Corporation will have on the market price of the Common Shares. Sales of substantial amounts of Common Shares (including Common Shares issued in connection with an acquisition), or the perception that such sales could occur, may adversely affect prevailing market prices for Common Share.

The price and trading volume of the Common Shares may fluctuate significantly.

The market price of the Common Shares may be highly volatile and could be subject to wide fluctuations. In addition, the trading volume of the Common Shares may fluctuate and cause significant price variations to occur. Volatility in the market price of the Common Shares may prevent a holder of Common Shares from being able to sell their shares. The market price for Common Shares could fluctuate significantly for various reasons, including:

- the Corporation's operating and financial performance;

- the Corporation's quarterly or annual earnings, or those of other companies in Amaya's industry;
- conditions that impact demand for the Corporation's products and services;
- the public's reaction to Amaya's press releases, other public announcements and filings with securities authorities;
- changes in earnings estimates or recommendations by securities analysts who track the Common Shares;
- market and industry perception of the Corporation's success, or lack thereof, in pursuing Amaya's growth strategy;
- strategic actions by Amaya or its competitors, such as acquisitions or restructurings;
- changes in government and environmental regulation, including gaming taxes;
- changes in accounting standards, policies, guidance, interpretations or principles;
- arrival and departure of key personnel;
- changes in Amaya's capital structure;
- sale of Common Shares by the Corporation or by members of the management team;
- the expiration of contractual lockup agreements; and
- changes in general market, economic and political conditions in the United States and global economies or financial markets, including those resulting from natural disasters, terrorist attacks, acts of war and responses to such events.

In addition, in recent years, the stock market has experienced significant price and volume fluctuations. This volatility has had a significant impact on the market price of securities issued by many companies, including companies in the gaming industry. The changes frequently appear to occur without regard to the operating performance of the affected companies. Hence, the price of the Common Shares could fluctuate based upon factors that have little or nothing to do with Amaya, and these fluctuations could materially reduce the Common Share price.

Because Amaya has not paid dividends since its initial public offering and does not anticipate paying dividends on its Common Shares in the foreseeable future, holders of Common Shares should not expect to receive dividends on Common Shares.

The Corporation has no present plans to pay cash dividends to its shareholders and, for the foreseeable future, intends to retain all of its earnings for use in its business. The declaration of any future dividends by the Corporation is within the discretion of the Board and will depend on the Corporation's earnings, financial condition and capital requirements, as well as any other factors deemed relevant by the Board.

The Corporation's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, GSO and BlackRock, each individually and collectively, own a significant amount of the Corporation's voting shares and may be able to exert influence over matters requiring shareholder approval in the future.

As of March 30, 2015, Mr. Baazov, GSO and BlackRock beneficially owned or had control over 12%, 19.3% and 9.11%, respectively, of Amaya's outstanding shares on a fully-diluted basis. As a result, each individually and collectively may be able to exercise significant influence over any matter requiring shareholder approval in the future.

DIVIDENDS

The Corporation has never declared or paid any dividend. The Corporation currently intends to retain any future earnings to fund the development and growth of its business and does not anticipate paying any dividend in the foreseeable future. Any future determination to pay dividends will be at the discretion of the Board and will depend upon many factors, including, without limitation, the Corporation's results of operations, capital requirements and other factors as the Board may deem relevant, and any restrictions under applicable laws or its articles.

DESCRIPTION OF CAPITAL STRUCTURE

Amaya's authorized share capital consists as of the date hereof of an unlimited number of Common Shares and 1,139,249 Preferred Shares. As of the date hereof, there are a total of (i) 133,165,366 Common Shares issued and outstanding, (ii) 1,139,249 Preferred Shares issued and outstanding, (iii) 359,950 2015 Warrants issued and outstanding, (iii) 597,749 2016 Warrants issued and outstanding, and (iv) 9,630,305 options to purchase Common Shares issued under the Corporation's share option plan, of which 2,656,583 were exercisable. For more information on the 2015 Warrants and 2016 Warrants, see "General Development of the Business - Financings and Capital Markets Activities". For more information on our options and stock option plan, see "Market for Securities – Prior Sales" and the 2014 Management Information Circular, which is available on SEDAR at www.sedar.com.

In addition to the foregoing, during the year ended December 31, 2014, Amaya granted the CJ Warrants to purchase 4,000,000 Common Shares to the lenders under the New CJ Facilities. The CJ Warrants entitle the holders thereof to acquire one Common Share per warrant at a price per Common Share equal to $19.17 at any time until the ten-year anniversary of the closing date of the New CJ Facilities. In connection with the closing of the Rational Group Acquisition, the Corporation also granted the GSO Warrants and BlackRock Warrants to each of GSO and BlackRock, respectively, which are exercisable for an aggregate of 12,750,000 Common Shares at a price per Common Share equal to $0.01 at any time until the ten-year anniversary of the Rational Group Acquisition Closing Date. For more information on the CJ Warrants, GSO Warrants and BlackRock Warrants, see "General Development of the Business – Financings and Capital Markets Activities".

Common Shares

Each Common Share entitles its holder to notice of, and to one vote on, all matters submitted to the shareholders for their consideration. The holders of Common Shares are entitled to receive, after payment of the full dividend on any preferred shares, non-cumulative annual dividends if, as and when declared by the Board. There are no fixed dates or time limits on payment of dividends on shares of the Corporation. Holders of Common Shares do not have any pre-emptive rights or other rights to subscribe for additional shares, or any conversion rights. In the event of liquidation, dissolution or winding-up of the Corporation, the net assets of the Corporation available for distribution to its shareholders will be distributed rateably among the holders of the Common Shares, subject to the rights, privileges, restrictions and conditions of the Corporation's then issued and outstanding preferred shares.

On July 30, 2014, the Corporation's shareholders authorized the creation of gaming provisions affecting the Common Shares in order to facilitate compliance with gaming regulations (the "Gaming Provisions"). The Gaming Provisions became effective on November 28, 2014 pursuant to articles of amendment to the Corporation's articles filed on the same date. The purpose of the Gaming Provisions is to protect the Corporation from the consequences of having a shareholder (an "Unsuitable Person") whose ownership of Common Shares or whose failure to make an application to seek licensure or suitability review from or otherwise comply with the requirements of a gaming regulatory authority may result in the loss, suspension, revocation of, (or similar action) with respect to any license, permit, authorization, waiver or other gaming regulatory approval held by the Corporation, or the denial of any license, permit, authorization, waiver or other gaming regulatory approval sought by the Corporation, in each case as determined by the Board, in its sole discretion, after consultation with legal counsel and the applicable gaming regulatory authority. The Gaming Provisions provide the Corporation with a right to redeem all Common Shares held by an Unsuitable Person at a redemption price determined pursuant to a written valuation and fairness opinion from an investment banking firm of nationally recognized standing in the United States. This redemption right is required for the Corporation to comply with regulation in various jurisdictions where Amaya does business or is expected to do business, which prohibit Unsuitable Persons from holding shares of a corporation that require a gaming license to operate. The Gaming Provisions require individuals who plan to, either on their own or as part of a group acting in concert, acquire or dispose of 5% or more of Common Shares, to provide advance written notice to the Corporation prior to effecting such an acquisition or disposition. Notwithstanding the Gaming Provisions, the Corporation may not be able to exercise its redemption rights in full or at all. Under the QBCA, a corporation may not make any payment to redeem shares if the payment would cause the corporation to be unable to pay its liabilities as they become due or if making the payment would cause the corporation to be unable to pay, when due, the entire redemption price of its redeemable shares. Furthermore, Amaya may become subject to contractual restrictions on its ability to redeem its shares by, for example, entering into a secured credit facility subject to such restrictions.

Preferred Shares

In connection with its financing of the Rational Group Acquisition, on August 1, 2014, the Corporation issued US$1.05 billion of Preferred Shares. The Preferred Shares were issued at an offering price of $1,000.00 per Preferred Share. Each Preferred Share is convertible at the holder's option at any time in whole or in part, initially into 41.67 Common Shares (the "Conversion Ratio"), based on an initial conversion price of $24.00 per Common Share (the "Initial Conversion Price"), subject to adjustments. Based on the Initial Conversion Price, approximately 47,473,167 Common Shares would be issuable upon the conversion of all of the Preferred Shares as of December 31, 2014. The Preferred Shares rank senior to the Common Shares in receiving payment of their liquidation preference (which is initially $1,000 per Preferred Share, subject to adjustments to the Conversion Ratio), upon the liquidation, winding up or dissolution of the Corporation or in any other distribution of substantially all of its assets (a "Liquidation"), are not entitled to receive dividends and have no voting rights except for amendments to the terms of the Preferred Shares or as otherwise required under applicable laws. The Conversion Ratio, representing the number of Common Shares that will be issued to a holder of Preferred Shares for each Preferred Share upon exercise of the conversion right, will be adjusted each February 1 and August 1 by multiplying the Conversion Ratio then in effect immediately prior to such adjustment by 1.03.

Amaya cannot force a mandatory conversion of the Preferred Shares until August 1, 2017. Thereafter, however, Amaya may give notice to holders of Preferred Shares to force conversion (in whole or in part under certain circumstances) if the following two conditions are satisfied: (i) the closing share price of the Common Shares has been in excess of 175% of the Initial Conversion Price on any 20 trading days within a 30 consecutive day period, and (ii) except in certain circumstances, the average daily volume on any 20 trading days within the 30 consecutive day period referred to above was at least 1.75 million Common Shares. Any mandatory conversion will also be subject to specified regulatory and consent conditions.

The Preferred Shares also contain anti-dilution Conversion Ratio adjustments for certain dividends or distributions (cash, shares or otherwise), share splits, share combinations, below market equity issuances or rights, options or warrant issuance, tender offer or exchange offer payments, and reorganization events. In addition, upon a "fundamental change", additional Common Shares may be issuable to holders of Preferred Shares as a premium. "Fundamental change" events include:

- a person or group (other than Amaya, its subsidiaries, GSO, BlackRock or any owner of 10% or more of the Common Shares as of August 1, 2014) becoming the beneficial owner of more than 50% of voting power for the election of Amaya's directors;

- the consummation of a (i) recapitalization in which Common Shares are converted into or exchanged for other securities or assets; (ii) share exchange or merger in which Common Shares convert into cash, securities, other property; or (iii) sale, lease or other transfer of all or substantially all of Amaya's assets to a third party (other than an Amaya subsidiary);
- Common Shares being delisted from any of the TSX, New York Stock Exchange ("NYSE"), NASDAQ or LSE, if then listed on any such exchange; or
- Amaya's shareholders approving a Liquidation.

Under the terms of the Preferred Shares, for so long as each of GSO and BlackRock holds 50% or more of the Preferred Shares issued to it on August 1, 2014, Amaya undertakes:

- not to incur indebtedness unless (i) the ratio of Consolidated Net Debt to LTM EBITDA (as each term is defined in the Preferred Share terms) would be 6.7 to 1 or less on a pro forma basis, or (ii) such indebtedness is Permitted Debt (as defined in the Preferred Share terms);
- not to issue equity securities ranking equal or superior to the Preferred Shares;
- not to make acquisitions that (i) individually exceed US$250.0 million, or (ii) since August 1, 2014, total US$500.0 million or more (subject to specified ordinary course of business and consent exceptions);
- (i) not to require a mandatory conversion of Preferred Shares if such mandatory conversion would require a regulatory filing or waiver for any holder of Preferred Shares in excess of that required for an institutional investor waiver in the State of New Jersey, and (ii) to notify GSO and BlackRock in writing at least 60 days prior to any action that will require a regulatory filing or waiver for any holder of Preferred Shares in excess of that required for an institutional investor waiver in New Jersey;
- to cooperate with holders of Preferred Shares in connection with anti-trust or competition filings relating to their investment in Amaya and/or conversion of Preferred Shares;
- to list the Common Shares on the NYSE, NASDAQ or the LSE on or before November 1, 2015; and
- to comply with Amaya's continuous disclosure requirements and provisions of the registration rights agreement to which it is a party.

If Amaya fails to comply with these undertakings, the Conversion Ratio may be increased between a range of 2% and 6% per annum, depending on which undertaking is breached, for each year in which the breach occurs.

A further description of the terms of the Preferred Shares is included in the 2014 Management Information Circular, which is available on SEDAR at www.sedar.com.

2013 Debentures

The Corporation issued the 2013 Debentures pursuant to a first supplemental debenture indenture, dated as of February 7, 2013, to the debenture indenture, dated as of January 17, 2012 (the "First Supplemental Indenture"), by and between the Corporation and Computershare Trust Company of Canada (the "Debenture Agent"). The 2013 Debentures are non-convertible, not guaranteed by any person and subordinated to the senior indebtedness of the Corporation in accordance with the provisions of the First Supplemental Indenture, including, without limitation, with respect to any distribution of the assets of the Corporation, any dissolution, winding up, liquidation or reorganization of the Corporation, and any payment, assignment or distribution to a trustee in bankruptcy, receiver or assignee for the benefit of creditors or other liquidation agent. In addition, the senior creditors, a receiver or any other enforcement agent may sell, mortgage, or otherwise dispose of the Corporation's assets in whole or in part, free and clear of all 2013 Debenture liabilities and without the approval of, or any requirement to account to, the holders thereof or the Debenture Agent.

Conflicts of Interest

The directors and officers of the Corporation are required by law to act honestly and in good faith with a view to the best interest of the Corporation and to disclose any interests which they may have in any transaction, project or opportunity of the Corporation. However, the Corporation's directors and officers may serve on the boards and/or as officers of other companies which may compete in the same industry as the Corporation, giving rise to potential conflicts of interest, including, without limitation, with respect to negotiating terms of and consummating certain transactions in which such companies and the Corporation may participate. Conflicts of interest that arise at a meeting of the Board must be disclosed and the conflicted director must recuse himself or herself from the meeting and abstain from participating and voting for or against the approval of any transaction, project or opportunity in which they may have an interest. The remaining directors will determine whether or not the Corporation will participate in any such transaction, project or opportunity. Subject to such disclosure and recusal and any limitations in the Corporation's constating documents, a transaction would not be void or voidable because it was made between the Corporation and one or more of its directors or officers who have a conflict of interest or by reason of such director or officer being present at the meeting at which such transaction, project or opportunity was approved.

To the best of the Corporation's knowledge, there is no known existing or potential conflict of interest among the Corporation, its promoter, directors, officers or other members of management of the Corporation as a result of their respective outside business interests.

The directors and officers of the Corporation are aware of the existence of laws governing accountability of directors and officers for usurping corporate opportunities and requiring disclosures by directors or officers of conflicts of interest, and the Corporation will rely upon such laws in respect of any conflict of interest or breach of duty. Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee

The responsibility for determining the principles for compensation of executives and other key employees of the Corporation rests with the Board. The Board has established the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee which takes the principal role in establishing the Corporation's executive compensation plans and policies. For more information on the Corporation's Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, please see the 2014 Management Information Circular which is available on SEDAR at www.sedar.com.

LEGAL PROCEEDINGS AND REGULATORY ACTIONS

The Corporation is currently not, and was not, a party to any material legal proceedings, and its property and assets are not and were not the subject of material legal proceedings, during the year ended December 31, 2014. The Corporation is not aware of any material legal proceedings outstanding, threatened or pending as of the date hereof by or against the Corporation. Notwithstanding the foregoing, given the nature of its business, the Corporation is, and may from time to time in the future be, party to various, and at times numerous, legal, administrative and regulatory inquiries, investigations, proceedings and claims that arise in the ordinary course of business. With respect to such legal and regulatory matters, the Corporation believes that the amount or estimable range of reasonably possible loss will not, either individually or in the aggregate, have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, consolidated financial position, results of operations, or cash flows. However, the outcome of litigation is inherently uncertain. Therefore, if one or more of such legal matters were to be resolved against the Corporation for amounts in excess of management's expectations, its results of operations and financial condition, including in a particular reporting period, could be materially adversely affected. On March 11, 2015, Amaya commented on a tax dispute between a subsidiary of Rational Group and Italian tax authorities related to operations of such subsidiary, particularly under the PokerStars brand, in Italy prior to the Rational Group Acquisition. Amaya was aware of the dispute prior to Rational Group Acquisition, but believes Rational Group has operated in compliance with the applicable local tax regulations and has paid €120 million in local taxes during the period subject to the dispute. The merger agreement related to the transaction provides remedies to address certain income tax and other liabilities that might occur post-closing but stemming from operations prior to the date of acquisition, including monies held in escrow as initial sources for indemnification. Amaya does not anticipate that these tax issues would apply to future fiscal periods.

The Corporation is not and was not subject to, during the year ended December 31, 2014: (i) penalties or sanctions imposed by a court relating to Canadian securities legislation or by a Canadian securities regulatory authority; (ii) any other penalties or sanctions imposed by a court or regulatory body that would likely be considered important to a reasonable investor in making an investment decision; and (iii) settlement agreements entered into before a court relating to Canadian securities legislation or with a Canadian securities regulatory authority. As announced on December 11, 2014, the Autorité des marchés financiers, the securities regulatory authority in the Province of Quebec, is investigating trading activities in Amaya's securities surrounding the company's announcement of the Rational Group Acquisition (the "AMF Investigation"). Also related to trading surrounding such acquisition, on July 8, 2014 and December 9, 2014, the Corporation received written inquiries from the U.S. Financial Industry Regulatory Authority seeking information from the Corporation and a number of its financial advisers regarding certain communications with certain investors (the "FINRA Inquiry"). To the Corporation's knowledge, the AMF Investigation and FINRA Inquiry, do not involve any allegations of wrongdoing by the Corporation. The Corporation will continue to cooperate, if and as requested, consistent with its practice to always cooperate with regulatory authorities.

In the normal course of business, to facilitate transactions of services and products, we have agreed to indemnify certain parties with respect to certain matters. We have agreed to hold certain parties harmless against losses arising from a breach of representations or covenants, or out of intellectual property infringement or other claims made by third parties. These agreements may limit the time within which an indemnification claim can be made and the amount of the claim. In addition, we have entered into indemnification agreements with our officers, directors, and certain employees, and our constituting documents contain similar indemnification obligations. It is not possible to determine the maximum potential amount under these indemnification agreements due to the limited history of prior indemnification claims and the unique facts and circumstances involved in each particular agreement.

INTEREST OF MANAGEMENT AND OTHERS IN MATERIAL TRANSACTIONS

To the Corporation's knowledge, there are no material interests, direct or indirect, of directors, executive officers, any shareholder who beneficially owns, directly or indirectly, more than 10% of any class or series of voting securities of the Corporation, or any associate or affiliate of such persons, in any transaction within the last three most recently completed fiscal years or in any proposed transaction which has materially affected or would reasonably be expected to materially affect the Corporation.

TRANSFER AGENT AND REGISTRAR

The transfer agent and registrar for the Common Shares in Canada is Computershare Investor Services Inc. at its principal offices in Montréal, Québec and Toronto, Ontario. The transfer agent and registrar for the 2015 Warrants, 2016 Warrants, 2013 Debentures and the Preferred Shares is Computershare Trust Company of Canada Inc. at its principal offices in Montréal, Québec and Toronto, Ontario.

OVERVIEW

Amaya is a leading provider of technology-based solutions, products and services in the global gaming and interactive entertainment industries. Through its two reportable segments, Business-to-Consumer ("B2C") and Business-to-Business ("B2B"), Amaya is focused on developing, operating and acquiring interactive technology-based assets with high-growth potential in existing and new markets and industries or verticals. Amaya's B2C business currently consists of the operations of Amaya Group Holdings (IOM) Limited (formerly known as Oldford Group Limited) and its subsidiaries (collectively, "Rational Group"), which, among other things, currently offer online and mobile real- and play-money poker and other gaming products, including casino and sports betting (also known as sportsbook), as well as certain live poker tours and events, branded poker rooms in popular casinos in major cities around the world and poker programming for television and online audiences. Amaya's B2B business currently consists of the operations of certain of its subsidiaries, which offer interactive, land-based and lottery gaming solutions. Amaya strives to not only improve and expand upon its current offerings, including its portfolio of what it believes to be high-growth interactive technology-based assets, but to pursue and capitalize on new global growth opportunities. Amaya seeks to take advantage of technology to provide gaming and interactive entertainment to large networks of customers.

B2C

Since the acquisition of the Rational Group on August 1, 2014 (the "Rational Group Acquisition"), Amaya's primary business has been its B2C segment, which currently generates the vast majority of Amaya's revenues and profits. Based in the Isle of Man and operating globally, Rational Group owns and operates gaming and related interactive entertainment businesses, which it offers under several owned brands, including, among others, PokerStars, Full Tilt, European Poker Tour, PokerStars Caribbean Adventure, Latin American Poker Tour and Asia Pacific Poker Tour. These brands collectively form the largest poker business in the world, comprising online poker games and tournaments, live poker competitions, branded poker rooms in popular casinos around the world and poker programming created for television and online audiences. In addition to expanding its existing real- and play-money poker businesses into new markets, Rational Group has recently targeted growth into other online gaming verticals, notably casino and sportsbook.

Rational Group's primary brands are PokerStars and Full Tilt, each of which provides a distinct online gaming platform. Currently, according to online poker tracking site Pokerscout.com, the PokerStars and Full Tilt sites collectively hold a majority of the global market share of real-money poker player liquidity, or the volume of people playing as measured by average daily seated ring game real money poker players, and are among the leaders in play-money poker player liquidity. Since its 2001 launch, PokerStars has become the world's largest real money online poker site based on, among other things, player liquidity, according to Pokerscout.com, and the Corporation believes that it has distinguished itself as one of the world's premier poker brands.

Amaya's B2B business includes the design, development, manufacturing, distribution, sale and service of technology-based gaming solutions for the regulated gaming industry worldwide, primarily to land-based and online gaming operators and governmental agencies and bodies, and ultimately indirectly to end-users and consumers. Amaya's B2B solutions are designed to provide end-users with popular, engaging and cutting-edge content across multiple formats and through a secure technology environment, all of which is intended to improve the profitability, productivity, security and brands of the operators. Amaya has developed its portfolio of solutions through both internal development and strategic acquisitions, including Amaya (Alberta) Inc. (formerly Chartwell Technology Inc.), acquired in July 2011, and CryptoLogic Ltd. ("CryptoLogic"), acquired in April 2012, Cadillac Jack Inc. ("Cadillac Jack"), acquired in November 2012, and Diamond Game Enterprises ("Diamond Game"), acquired in February 2014, all of which provide technology, content and services to a diversified base of customers in the regulated gaming industry. As of the date of this MD&A, and as previously announced with respect to certain subsidiaries, Amaya and its management ("Management") have initiated a strategic review process to explore the divestiture of these B2B assets. The fundamental objective of this review is to expedite the Corporation's overall business strategy and maximize shareholder value. There can be no assurance that the Corporation's strategic review process will result in the consummation of any specific action. See "Overview —Recent Highlights—B2B Assets Review" below.

Recent Highlights

Set forth below is a general summary of certain recent corporate highlights, developments and announcements. For additional corporate developments and announcements for the reporting period and up to the date hereof, see the disclosure under the heading "General Development of the Business" in the Annual Information Form.

B2B Assets Review

As previously announced, Amaya is exploring strategic opportunities to divest its B2B business and to use the proceeds to repay outstanding indebtedness or repurchase the Corporation's common shares ("Common Shares") pursuant to the 2015 NCIB (as defined below). The fundamental objective of the B2B assets review is to expedite the Corporation's overall business strategy and maximize shareholder value. In furtherance of its B2B assets review and overall business strategy, the Corporation completed its sale of Ongame Network Ltd ("Ongame") to NYX Gaming Group Limited (TSXV: NYX) ("NYX Gaming Group") in the fourth quarter of 2014, as detailed below, and announced the Innova Offering (as defined below) on March 26, 2015 and the CJ Sale (as defined below) on March 30, 2015.

On March 26, 2015, Amaya announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Innova Gaming Group Inc. ("Innova"), had filed and obtained a receipt for a preliminary prospectus in respect of Innova's proposed initial public offering of common shares with the securities regulatory authorities in all of the provinces and territories in Canada (the "Innova Offering"). The Innova Offering contemplates a treasury offering of common shares by Innova and a secondary offering of common shares of Innova by Amaya, which will receive the net proceeds from such secondary offering. Amaya formed Innova in connection with the Innova Offering and, upon consummation of the Offering, Innova will hold all of the shares of Diamond Game.

On March 30, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into a definitive agreement to sell Cadillac Jack (the "CJ Sale") for approximately $476 million comprising cash consideration of $461 million, subject to adjustment, and a $15 million payment-in-kind note, bearing interest at 5.0% per annum and due on the eighth anniversary of the closing date. Subject to receipt of gaming regulatory and antitrust approvals and other customary closing conditions, Amaya anticipates closing the CJ Sale in 2015. Amaya anticipates using the net proceeds from the CJ Sale primarily for deleveraging, including the repayment of the Credit Facilities, Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility (each as defined below).

Pending its strategic review of its remaining B2B assets, Amaya intends to continue its strategy of maximizing long-term shareholder value and pursuing sustainable, profitable growth. There can be no assurance as to if and when the Innova Offering or CJ Sale will occur or whether the Corporation's strategic review process for its remaining B2B assets will result in the consummation of any specific action.

UK Licenses

On March 20, 2015, Amaya announced that it received licenses from the UK Gambling Commission for PokerStars and Full Tilt to operate online poker and other gaming offerings within the United Kingdom. Since late 2014, the brands had been operating under temporary continuation licenses, and prior to that, they were white-listed under applicable Isle of Man gaming licenses.

Cross Currency Swap Agreements

On March 16, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into cross currency swap agreements (the "Swap Agreements") that it anticipates will result in lower interest payments on existing debt and mitigate the impact of fluctuations in the Euro to USD exchange rate. The Swap Agreements allow for the creation of synthetic Euro-denominated debt with fixed Euro interest payments at an average rate of 4.6016% (a simple average of the different interest rates for the various Swap Agreements) to replace the USD interest payments bearing a minimum floating interest rate of 5.0% (USD 3 month LIBOR plus a 4.0% margin, with a LIBOR floor of 1.0%) related to the USD$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan secured by Amaya on August 1, 2014 to finance a portion of the Rational Group Acquisition. The interest and principal payments for the Swap Agreements, which mature in five years, will be made at a Euro to USD forex rate of 1.1102 on USD notional amounts of $1.74125 billion.

Italian Tax Matter

On March 11, 2015, Amaya commented on a tax dispute between a subsidiary of Rational Group and Italian tax authorities related to operations of such subsidiary, particularly under the PokerStars brand, in Italy prior to the Rational Group Acquisition. Amaya was aware of the dispute prior to Rational Group Acquisition, but believes Rational Group has operated in compliance with the applicable local tax regulations and has paid €120 million in local taxes during the period subject to the dispute. The merger agreement related to the transaction provides remedies to address certain income tax and other liabilities that might occur post-closing but stemming from operations prior to the date of acquisition, including monies held in escrow as initial sources for indemnification. Amaya does not anticipate that these tax issues would apply to future fiscal periods.

On February 13, 2015, Amaya announced that the Toronto Stock Exchange (the "TSX") approved its notice of intention to make a normal course issuer bid ("2015 NCIB") to purchase for cancellation up to 6,644,737 Common Shares, representing approximately 5% of Amaya's issued and outstanding as of January 26, 2015. The Corporation may purchase the Common Shares at prevailing market prices and by means of open market transactions through the facilities of the TSX or by such other means as may be permitted by the TSX rules and policies. The Corporation will determine in its sole discretion from time to time the actual number of Common Shares that it will purchase and the timing of any such purchases. In accordance with the applicable TSX rules, daily purchases under the 2015 NCIB may not exceed 161,724 Common Shares, representing 25% of the average daily trading volume of the Common Shares for the six-month period ended on January 31, 2015, and the Corporation may make, once per calendar week, a block purchase of Common Shares not owned, directly or indirectly, by insiders of Amaya that exceeds the daily repurchase restriction. The 2015 NCIB commenced on February 18, 2015 and will remain in effect until the earlier of February 17, 2016 or the date on which the Corporation has purchased the maximum number of Common Shares permitted under the 2015 NCIB. Amaya is making the 2015 NCIB because it believes that, from time to time, the prevailing market price of its Common Shares may not reflect the underlying value of the Corporation, and that purchasing Common Shares for cancellation will increase the proportionate interest of, and be advantageous to, all remaining shareholders. As of March 30, 2015, the Corporation has not purchased any Common Shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB, and has been under its routine quarterly blackout period since the 2015 NCIB period began.

Ongame Sale

In furtherance of its overall business strategy, pursuant to a sale and transfer agreement (the "Ongame Sale and Transfer Agreement"), Amaya sold Ongame to NYX Gaming (Gibraltar) Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of NYX Gaming Group, for a purchase price equal to the sum of (i) US$1.00 (paid at the closing), plus (ii) an amount equal to eight times Ongame's EBITDA for the year ending December 31, 2015, less any required working capital adjustments. The purchase price is only payable in 2016 upon determination of such amount based on Ongame's 2015 year-end EBITDA, as calculated in accordance with the Ongame Sale and Transfer Agreement. In connection with this divestiture, Amaya and NYX Gaming Group entered into a strategic investment transaction pursuant to which NYX Gaming Group issued, and Amaya purchased, a $10.0 million unsecured convertible debenture on November 17, 2014 which matures two years after the date of issuance and bears interest at 6.00% per annum, payable at maturity. At Amaya's option, both interest and principal are payable in ordinary shares of NYX Gaming Group at any time prior to the maturity date of November 17, 2016. Amaya subsequently assigned an aggregate of $1.0 million of the unsecured convertible debenture to four individuals.

Concurrently with the completion of the sale of Ongame, Amaya entered into a right of first offer agreement with NYX Gaming Group (the "Right of First Offer") pursuant to which Amaya granted NYX Gaming Group a right of first offer to purchase the B2B online casino business operated by each of Cryptologic and Amaya (Alberta) Inc. The Right of First Offer expires on December 30, 2015.

Ongame is classified as discontinued operations for all periods in the MD&A and financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2014.

OUTLOOK

Since the Rational Group Acquisition in August 2014 and as a result thereof, Amaya has become the world's largest publicly traded online gaming company, with its B2C segment, including the PokerStars and Full Tilt brands, being its primary business and source of revenue. With what it believes to be a premier, scalable platform that diversifies its products and services both geographically and across verticals, Amaya currently expects that the Rational Group Acquisition will help facilitate an increase in shareholder value and the delivery of sustainable, profitable long-term growth.

Currently, according to online poker tracking site Pokerscout.com, the PokerStars and Full Tilt sites collectively hold a majority of the global market share of real-money poker player liquidity, or the volume of people playing multiplied by the dollars wagered as measured by average daily seated ring game real money poker players, and are among the leaders in play-money poker player liquidity. Since its 2001 launch, PokerStars has become the world's largest real money online poker site based on, among other things, the number of players and player liquidity, according to Pokerscout.com, and the Corporation believes that it has distinguished itself as one of the world's premier poker brands. In addition, Amaya is continuously developing its proprietary platforms and has invested significantly in its technology infrastructure since inception to ensure a positive experience for its customers, not only from a gameplay perspective with respect to its B2C business, but most importantly with respect to security and integrity across business segments and verticals. To support Amaya's strong reputation for security and integrity, Amaya employs what it believes to be industry-leading practices and systems with respect to various aspects of its technology infrastructure, including payment security, game integrity, customer fund protection, marketing and promotion, customer support, responsible gaming and VIP rewards and loyalty programs. Further, Amaya dedicates a major portion of its research and development investments to its B2C business, which seeks to provide broad market applications for products derived from its technology base.

Amaya, through certain of its subsidiaries, is licensed or legally operates under third party licenses, as applicable, in various jurisdictions throughout the world, including the Isle of Man, Malta, Estonia, Spain, Greece, Denmark, Belgium, France, Italy, the United Kingdom and Bulgaria. Amaya seeks to ensure that it obtains all permits, authorizations, registrations and/or licenses necessary to manufacture, distribute and offer its solutions, products and services, as applicable in the jurisdictions in which it carries on business globally and where it is otherwise required to do so. In addition to expected organic growth in online and mobile poker in existing and new markets, however, Amaya believes that there are potentially significant opportunities for growth in new verticals. Specifically, Amaya believes that these new verticals initially include online and mobile casino and sportsbook, and such potential opportunities include the ability to leverage its brand recognition and capitalize on cross-selling these new verticals to its existing customer base, as well as to new customers. In addition to online and mobile casino and sportsbook, Amaya currently intends to explore other growth opportunities, including, without limitation, expanding upon its current social gaming offering and pursuing opportunities in fantasy sports. With respect to online gaming, Amaya intends to seek licensure in all jurisdictions in which licensure is available and strives to be among the first of the licensed operators in newly regulated jurisdictions. For example, see "Regulatory Environment—Regulation of the B2C Business—United States" in the Annual Information Form.

Amaya also continues to focus on the creation of long-term shareholder value by building upon its existing strengths and expanding and strengthening its portfolio of products and services that the Corporation expects will deliver sustainable, profitable long-term growth. To do this, Amaya is undertaking a number of ongoing strategic initiatives, including: (i) strengthening and expanding its products and services and developing its intellectual property; (ii) expanding its geographical reach; and (iii) pursuing strategic acquisitions and divestitures. See "Business Strategy of the Corporation" in the Annual Information Form. With respect to its B2B business, Amaya is exploring strategic opportunities to divest its B2B business and to use the proceeds to repay outstanding indebtedness or repurchase the Corporation's Common Shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB. There can be no assurance as to if and when this divestiture will occur. Pending its strategic review of its B2B business, Amaya intends to continue its strategy of maximizing long-term shareholder value and pursuing sustainable, profitable growth by, among other things, increasing its market share through facilitating the delivery of gaming content across physical and interactive media through its B2B business, strengthening and expanding its existing portfolio of developed and acquired technologies and expanding its geographical reach.

The Corporation's growth in revenues during the year ended December 31, 2014, as compared to during the year ended December 31, 2013, was primarily a result of the revenues generated from the B2C operations, primarily through the PokerStars brand, which was acquired in August 2014 as a result of the Rational Group Acquisition. The Corporation's net loss decreased in 2014 primarily as a result of the revenues generated from the B2C operations, primarily through the PokerStars brand, which was acquired in August 2014 as a result of the Rational Group Acquisition, offset by a loss from discontinued operations in connection with the sale of Ongame.

The Corporation's growth in revenues during the year ended December 31, 2013, as compared to during the year ended December 31, 2012, was primarily a result of the incorporation of a full period of revenues generated from Cadillac Jack, Cryptologic and Ongame, which were all acquired in 2012. The Corporation's net loss increased in 2013 primarily as a result of losses from its B2B interactive gaming solutions and partially as a result of substantial investments made to develop its B2B interactive gaming solutions in preparation for the launch of real money online gaming in the State of New Jersey in late November 2013.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

The Corporation's asset base increase of approximately $6.70 billion was primarily the result of the Rational Group Acquisition, the sale of WagerLogic Malta Holdings Ltd. ("WagerLogic") for aggregate gross proceeds of $62.50 million, the Credit Facilities, Senior Facility and the Mezzanine Facility. See also "Liquidity and Capital Resources" below.

The Corporation evaluates revenue performance by both geographic area and revenue type. The following table sets out the proportion of revenue attributable to each of the legal gaming jurisdictions in which it sells its products, solutions and services for the years ended December 31, 2014 and 2013.

	2014 $000's	2013 $000's
Americas	203,572	105,839
Europe	423,618	40,044
Rest of world	61,032	9
Total	688,222	145,892

The revenue increase in all geographic areas for the year ended December 31, 2014 as compared to the year ended December 31, 2013 was primarily attributable to the revenue generated by the B2C business, particularly the products and services offered under the PokerStars brand.

Although prior to the Rational Group Acquisition in August 2014 the vast majority of Amaya's revenues in 2014 were generated by its B2B land-based and interactive gaming solutions, following the Rational Group Acquisition, the vast majority of its revenues were, and the Corporation expects its revenues to continue to be, generated by its client interface, online and mobile gaming platforms under the B2C business segment. Following the Rational Group Acquisition, the B2C revenues were generated almost entirely through the provision of real-money poker offerings, followed by casino play-money and casino offerings. For a description of the Corporation's B2B assets strategic review, see "Overview—Recent Highlights—B2B Assets Review".

The increase in revenues during the quarters ended September 30, 2014 and December 31, 2014, as compared to the previous six quarters, was primarily attributable to the revenue generated by the B2C operations following the Rational Group Acquisition on August 1, 2014, and to the consolidation of results from the Corporation's overall business as of that date.

The increase in revenues from the quarter ended September 30, 2014 to the quarter ended December 31, 2014 was primarily attributable to the consolidation of a full quarter of revenue generated by the B2C operations, as opposed to only two months of revenue generated by the B2C operations consolidated in the third quarter of 2014 following the Rational Group Acquisition on August 1, 2014. The sale of Ongame to NYX Gaming in the fourth quarter of December 31, 2014 also had an impact on the Corporation's financial condition. See "Overview—Recent Highlights—Ongame Sale".

Our results of operations can fluctuate due to seasonal trends and other factors. Historically, given the geographies where we operate and the majority of our customers are located, and the related climate and weather in such geographies, among other things, revenues from our B2C operations have been generally higher in the first and fourth fiscal quarters than in the second and third fiscal quarters. As such, results for any quarter are not necessarily indicative of the results that may be achieved in another quarter or for the full fiscal year. There can be no assurance that the seasonal trends and other factors that have impacted our historical results will repeat in future periods as we cannot influence or forecast many of these factors. For other factors that may cause our results to fluctuate, see "Business Risks and Uncertainties" below.

* The Corporation acquired the B2C business on August 1, 2014 pursuant to the Rational Group Acquisition. The B2C revenue is currently primarily generated through hosted poker.

Revenue for the three-month period ended December 31, 2014 was $368.64 million as compared to $37.08 million for the comparable prior year period, representing an increase of 894%. This increase was primarily attributable to (i) consolidating B2C revenue, primarily generated by PokerStars, with B2B revenue and (ii) consolidating Diamond Game revenue, partially offset by significant finance lease revenue earned during 2013.

Revenue for the year ended December 31, 2014 was $688.22 million as compared to $145.89 million for the year ended December 31, 2013, representing an increase of 372%. This increase was primarily attributable to (i) consolidating B2C revenue, primarily generated by PokerStars, with B2B revenue, and (ii) consolidating Diamond Game revenue, partially offset by (a) significant finance lease revenue earned during 2013, (b) WagerLogic hosted casino revenue earned during 2013 and (c) significant upfront software licensing fees earned during 2013.

The increase was primarily the result of advertising expenses incurred by the B2C business during the three month period ended December 31, 2014.

Sales and marketing expenses increased from $13.73 million for the year ended December 31, 2013 to $101.49 million for the year ended December 31, 2014, representing an increase of 639%. The increase was primarily the result of advertising expenses incurred by the B2C business during the year ended December 31, 2014.

General and Administrative

General and administrative expenses increased from $29.69 million for the three-month period ended December 31, 2013 to $207.69 million for the three-month period ended December 31, 2014, representing an increase of 600%. The increase was primarily the result of (i) a growing employee base due to the acquisition of Diamond Game and the Rational Group Acquisition, (ii) gaming duty and processing costs incurred by the B2C business in connection with generating B2C revenues, (iii) impairments and losses on B2B redundant assets and (iv) increased amortization of purchase price allocated intangibles. The Corporation determined that a number of B2B-related intangible and tangible assets are redundant to its core operations, notably its B2C business. Impairment losses of approximately $6.13 million and a loss on disposal of assets of approximately $1.40 million were recognized in the fourth quarter of 2014.

General and administrative expenses increased from $109.55 million for the year ended December 31, 2013, to $430.10 million for the year ended December 31, 2014, representing an increase of 293%. The increase was primarily the result of (i) a growing employee base due to the acquisition of Diamond Game and the Rational Group Acquisition, (ii) gaming duty and processing costs incurred by the B2C business in connection with generating B2C revenues, (iii) impairments and losses on B2B redundant assets and (iv) increased amortization of purchase price allocated intangibles. Financial expenses increased from $6.16 million for the three month period ended December 31, 2013 to $72.92 million for the three month period ended December 31, 2014, representing an increase of 1,084%. This increase was primarily the result of interest incurred on the USD First Lien Term Loans, USD Second Lien Term Loans, Credit Facilities, Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility (each as defined below) during the three month period ended December 31, 2014, as offset by unrealized gain on the re-valuation of the EUR First Lien Term Loan during the same period.

Current income taxes decreased from $10.0 million for the year ended December 31, 2013 to $8.64 million for the year ended December 31, 2014.

For the three month period ended December 31, 2014, the Corporation recognized deferred income tax expense of $26.33 million as compared to recognized deferred income tax expense of $2.86 million for the comparable prior year period. This increase was primarily attributable to movements in the valuation allowance in respect of deferred tax assets during the year.

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

Based on the Corporation’s current revenue and continued growth expectations, primarily from its B2C business, the funds available from the Corporation’s private placement of debt and shares and the funds available from its existing its USD$100 million five-year first lien revolving credit facility, Management believes that the Corporation will have the cash resources to satisfy current working capital needs, fund development activities and other capital expenditures for at least the next 12 months.

Moreover, Management is of the opinion that investing is a key element necessary for the continued growth of the Corporation’s customer base and the future development of new and innovative products and solutions. The state of capital markets may influence the Corporation’s ability to secure the capital resources required to fund future projects and support growth.

The Corporation is exposed to liquidity risk with respect to its contractual obligations and financial liabilities. The Corporation manages liquidity risk by continuously monitoring forecast and actual cash flows and matching maturity profiles of financial assets and liabilities. The Corporation’s objective is to maintain a balance between continuity of funding and flexibility through borrowing facilities available through the Corporation’s banks and other lenders. The Corporation’s policy is to seek to ensure adequate funding is available from operations, established lending facilities and other sources as required.

The Corporation obtained these credit facilities on August 1, 2014 and they are priced at LIBOR plus 3.75% or ABR plus 2.75%, and mature on August 1, 2019. The applicable commitment fee on these revolving credit facilities is based on a leverage ratio of 3.75 to 1.00 and could range from 0.375% to 0.50%.

As at each of December 31, 2013 and December 31, 2014, the outstanding amount of the USD $100 million revolving unsecured demand credit facility equaled USD$ nil and as at December 31, 2014, the outstanding amount of the $3 million first lien revolving demand credit facility equaled $ nil.

First and Second Lien Term Loans

On August 1, 2014, Amaya completed the Rational Group Acquisition, which was partly financed through the issuance of long term debt, allocated as follows:

First Lien Term Loans

The first lien term loans consist of a USD$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan priced at LIBOR plus 4.00% (the "USD First Lien Term Loan") and a €200 million seven-year first lien term loan priced at Euribor plus 4.25% (the "EUR First Lien Term Loan" and, together with the USD First Lien Term Loan, the "First Lien Term Loans"), in each case with a 1.00% LIBOR and Euribor floor.

The Corporation is required to allocate 50% of the excess cash flow of the Corporation to the principal repayment of the First Lien Term Loans. Excess cash flow is referred to as EBITDA of the Rational Group on a consolidated basis for such excess cash flow period (i.e., each fiscal year commencing with the fiscal year ending on December 31, 2015), minus, without duplication, debt service, capital expenditures, permitted business acquisitions and investments, taxes paid in cash, increases in working capital, cash expenditures in respect of swap agreements, any extraordinary, unusual or nonrecurring loss, income or gain on asset dispositions, and plus, without any duplication, decreases in working capital, capital expenditures funded with the proceeds of the issuance of debt or the issuance of equity, cash payments received in respect of swap agreements, any extraordinary, unusual or nonrecurring gain realized in cash and cash interest income to the extent deducted in the computation of EBITDA.

The percentage allocated to the principal repayment can fluctuate based on the following:

- If the total secured leverage ratio at the end of the applicable excess cash flow period is less than or equal to 4.75 to 1.00 but is greater than 4.00 to 1.00, the repayments will be 25% of the excess cash flow.
- If the total secured leverage ratio at the end of the applicable excess cash flow period is less than or equal to 4.00 to 1.00, the repayment will be 0% of the excess cash flow.

The agreement for the First Lien Term Loans restricts the Corporation from, among other things, incurring additional debt or granting additional liens on its assets and equity, distributing equity interests and distributing any assets to third parties.

During the year ended December 31, 2014, the Corporation incurred $46.24 million in interest of which $4.84 million relates to interest accretion in relation to the USD First Lien Term Loan.

Cash Provided by (Used In) Operations

The Corporation generated positive cash flows from operating activities for the three-month period ended December 31, 2014. This was primarily the result of B2C revenue generated by the B2C business. Cash generated by operating activities for the three-month period ended December 31, 2014 was $55.76 million as compared to $3.04 million for the comparable prior year period.

The Corporation generated positive cash flows from operating activities for the year ended December 31, 2014. This is also primarily the result of B2C revenue generated by the B2C business. Cash generated by operating activities for the year ended December 31, 2014 was $190.66 million as compared to $(0.06) million for the nine-month period ending September 30, 2013.

Cash Provided by (Used In) Financing Activities

The cash used for financing activities for the three-month period ended December 31, 2014 and provided from financing activities for the three-month period ended December 31, 2013 was $1.76 million and $55.13 million, respectively. During the three-month period ended December 31, 2014, the primary expenditure affecting the cash used for financing activities was the repayment of debt. During the three-month period ended December 31, 2013, the Corporation primarily derived cash from financing activities through the Credit Facilities, Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility that provided additional gross proceeds of $55 million during such period.

The cash provided from financing activities for the year ended December 31, 2014 and December 30, 2013 was $4,892.91 million and $114.84 million, respectively. During the year ended December 31, 2014, the Corporation derived cash from financing activities primarily through the proceeds from the (i) USD First Lien Term Loan and USD Second Lien Term Loan, (ii) issuance of Common Shares and the Corporation's preferred shares ("Preferred Shares") and (iii) Credit Facilities, Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility. During the year ended December 31, 2013, the Corporation derived cash from financing activities primarily through the (i) private placement of debt for aggregate gross proceeds of $30 million, (ii) private placement of shares for aggregate gross proceeds of $40 million and (iii) the Credit Facilities, Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility that provided additional gross proceeds of $55 million, partially offset by a share buyback of 660,800 Common Shares, each during the period.

Cash Provided by (Used In) Investing Activities

The use of cash in investing activities for the three-month period ended December 31, 2014 was $0.32 million as compared to $25.06 million for the comparable prior year period. During the three-month period ended December 31, 2014, the Corporation's use of cash in investing activities primarily resulted from restricting cash for the Rational Group deferred payment and further investments in Diamond Game and Cadillac Jack revenue producing assets, offset by proceeds from the sale of investments. During the three-month period ended December 31, 2013, the Corporation's use of cash in investing activities primarily resulted from (i) the continued investment in development of proprietary technology and gaming content, (ii) the deployment of Cadillac Jack revenue producing assets and (iii) an additional investment in The Intertain Group Ltd. (TSX: IT) ("Intertain").

The use of cash in investing activities for the year ended December 31, 2014 was $4,600.44 million as compared to $57.42 million for the year ended December 31, 2013. During the year ended December 31, 2014, the primary expenditure affecting the use of cash in investing activities was the Rational Group Acquisition. During the year ended December 31, 2013, the Corporation's use of cash in investing activities primarily resulted from (i) the continued investment in development of proprietary technology and gaming content, (ii) the deployment of Cadillac Jack revenue producing assets and (iii) an additional investment in Intertain.

SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Presentation

The Corporation's consolidated financial statements and all financial information presented in the MD&A, have been prepared in accordance with IFRS.

Principles of Consolidation

A subsidiary is an entity controlled by the Corporation. As such, the Corporation is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with such entity and has the ability to affect those returns through its current ability to direct such entity's relevant activities (i.e., power over the investee).

The existence and effect of substantive potential voting rights that the Corporation has the practical ability to exercise (i.e., substantive rights) are considered when assessing whether the Corporation controls another entity.

The Corporation's consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries. With consolidation, all inter-entity transactions and balances have been eliminated.

Upon the loss of control of a subsidiary, the Corporation's profit or loss on disposal is calculated as the difference between (i) the fair value of the consideration received and of any investment retained in the former subsidiary and (ii) the previous carrying amount of the assets (including any goodwill) and liabilities of the subsidiary and any non-controlling interests.

Discontinued Operations and Assets Held for Sale

Discontinued operations

These are either separate major lines of business or geographical operations that have been sold or classified as held for sale. When held for use, discontinued operations were a cash-generating unit or a group of cash-generating units. They comprise operations and cash flows that can be clearly distinguished, operationally and for financial reporting purposes, from the rest of the entity. Their results are presented separately in the statements of earnings on a comparative basis.

Non-current assets held for sale

A non-current asset (or disposal group) held for sale represents an asset whose carrying amount will be recovered principally through a sale transaction rather than through continuing use. For this to be the case, the sale must be highly probable and the non-current asset (or disposal group) must be available for immediate sale in its present condition. The appropriate level of management must be committed to the sale which should be expected to qualify for recognition as a completed sale within one year from its classification. Disposal groups and non-current assets held for sale are included in the consolidated statements of financial position at fair value less costs to sell, if such amount is lower than the previous carrying amount. Once an asset is classified as held for sale or included in a group of assets held for sale, no further depreciation or amortization is recorded.

Revenue Recognition

Revenue is recognized when all the following criteria are met:

- the Corporation has transferred to the buyer the significant risks and rewards;
- the amount of revenue can be reliably measured;

- it is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transaction will flow to the Corporation; and
- the costs incurred or to be incurred in respect of the transaction can be reliably measured.

In addition to the aforementioned general policies, the following are the specific revenue recognition policies for each major category of revenue:

B2C Revenue

Revenue from the B2C operations consists primarily of online poker gaming revenue and is recognized when it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the Corporation and the amount of revenue can be measured reliably. Revenue is recognized in the accounting periods in which the transactions occurred after deduction of certain offsets, such as promotional bonuses and frequent player points granted to customers, and is measured at the fair value of the consideration received or receivable.

Online poker gaming revenue represents the commission charged from each poker hand in ring games and entry fees for participation in poker tournaments. In poker tournaments, entry fee revenue is recognized when the tournament has concluded.

The B2C operations operate loyalty programs for its customers that award customer loyalty points based on amounts wagered. Management estimates the value of this liability using relevant historical information about the likelihood and magnitude of an outflow of resources.

B2B Revenue

Multiple-element revenue arrangements

Certain contracts of the Corporation include license fees, training, installation, consulting, maintenance, product support services and periodic upgrades.

Where such agreements exist, the amount of revenue allocated to each element is based upon the relative fair values of the various elements. The fair values of each element are determined based on the current market price of each of the elements when sold separately. Revenue is only recognized when, in Management's judgment, the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred or when the obligation has been fulfilled.

Product sales

Revenue from product sales is recognized when the product is shipped to the customer and when there are no unfulfilled obligations of the Corporation that affect the customer's final acceptance of the product pursuant to the arrangement. Any cost of warranties and remaining obligations that are inconsequential or perfunctory are accrued when the corresponding revenue is recognized.

Participation leases and arrangements

In contracts that stipulate profit sharing arrangements, revenues are earned based on revenue splits established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. Revenues are recognized when performance has been achieved and collectability is reasonably assured.

Software licensing

Typically, license fees, including fees from master license agreements, most of which are contingent upon the licensee's customer usage, are calculated as a percentage of each licensee's level of activity. The percentage is as established in the contract and can vary depending on the particular contract and the terms thereof. The license fees are recognized on an accrual basis as earned.

Lease revenues

In the course of its normal business, the Corporation enters into lease agreements for its gaming equipment.

Assets subject to finance leases are initially recognized at an amount equal to the net investment in the lease, which is the fair value of the asset, or, if lower, the present value of the minimum lease payments. Leases revenues are recognized on the same basis as revenues from product sales. Finance income is subsequently recognized over the term of the applicable leases based on the effective interest rate method. Finance income is grouped with the revenues, in the statements of comprehensive income (loss).

Assets under operating leases are included in property and equipment. Lease income from operating leases is recognized on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease and is included in revenues in the statements of comprehensive income (loss).

Translation of Foreign Operations and Foreign Currency Transactions

Functional and presentation currency

IFRS requires entities to consider primary and secondary indicators when determining the functional currency. Primary indicators are closely linked to the primary economic environment in which the entity operates and are given more weight. Secondary indicators provide supporting evidence to determine an entity's functional currency. Once the functional currency of an entity is determined, it should be used consistently, unless significant changes in economic factors, events and conditions indicate that the functional currency has changed.

A change in functional currency is accounted for prospectively from the date of the change by translating all items into the new functional currency using the exchange rate at the date of the change.

Based on an analysis of the primary and secondary indicators, the functional currency of each of the Corporation and its entities have been determined. The Corporation's consolidated financial statements are presented in Canadian dollars.

Transactions and balances

Foreign currency transactions are translated into the functional currency using the exchange rates prevailing on the dates of the transactions or valuation where items are re-measured. Foreign exchange gains and losses resulting from the settlement of such transactions and from the translation at year-end exchange rates of monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are recognized in the statements of net earnings (loss).

Group companies

Each foreign operation determines its own functional currency and items included in the financial statements of each foreign operation are measured using that functional currency.

The results and financial position of the Corporation's entities that have a functional currency different from the presentation currency are translated into the presentation currency as follows:

(i) assets and liabilities for each statement of financial position presented are translated at the closing exchange rate on the date of that statement of financial position;

(ii) income and expenses for each statement of net earnings (loss) and statement of other comprehensive income are translated at average exchange rates (unless such average is not a reasonable approximation of the cumulative effect of the rates prevailing on the transaction dates at issue, in which case income and expenses are translated at the exchange rate on the dates of such transactions); and

(iii) all resulting exchange rate differences are recognized in other comprehensive income (loss) and are transferred to net earnings as part of gain (loss) on the disposal of subsidiaries.

The following functional currencies are referred to herein:

Currency Symbol	Currency Description
CAD	Canadian Dollar
USD	United States Dollar
EUR	European Euro
GBP	Great Britain Pound Sterling

Business Combination

Business combinations are accounted for using the acquisition method. Under this method, the identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed, including contingent liabilities, are recognized, regardless of whether they have been previously recognized in the acquiree's financial statements prior to the acquisition. On initial recognition, the assets and liabilities of the acquired entity are included in the consolidated statements of financial position at their respective fair values. Goodwill is recorded based on the excess of the fair value of the consideration transferred over the fair value of the Corporation's interest in the acquiree's net identifiable assets on the date of the acquisition. Any excess of the identifiable net assets over the consideration transferred is immediately recognized in net earnings.

The consideration transferred by the Corporation to acquire control of an entity is calculated as the sum of the acquisition-date fair values of the assets transferred, liabilities incurred and equity interests issued by the Corporation, including the fair value of all the assets and liabilities resulting from a deferred payment arrangement. Acquisition related costs are expensed as incurred.

Operating Segments

Amaya has two reportable segments, its B2C segment and B2B segment. In the year ended December 31, 2014, the B2C segment consisted of Rational Group, while the B2B segment consisted of Amaya's B2B interactive, land-based and lottery gaming solutions.

Amaya's primary business is currently its B2C operations which were acquired on August 1, 2014 through the Rational Group Acquisition. The Corporation's operating segments are organized around the markets they serve (i.e., B2C and B2B) and are reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting provided to the Corporation's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, who serves as the Corporation's chief operating decision-maker. An operating segment is a component of the Corporation that engages in business activities from which it may earn revenues and incur expenses, including revenues and expenses relating to transactions with other components of the Corporation.

Financial Instruments

Financial assets

Financial assets are initially recognized at fair value and are classified either as "fair value through profit or loss"; "available-for-sale"; "held-to-maturity"; or "loans and receivables". The classification depends on the purpose for which the financial instruments were acquired and their respective characteristics. Except in very limited circumstances, the classification may not be changed subsequent to initial recognition.

Fair value through profit or loss

Financial assets at fair value through profit or loss are financial assets held-for-trading. A financial asset is classified in this category if acquired principally for the purpose of selling in the short-term or otherwise as determined by Management. Financial assets classified at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value, with the realized and unrealized changes in fair value recognized each reporting period in profit or loss.

Available-for-sale

Available-for-sale assets are non-derivative financial assets that are either designated in this category or not classified in any of the other categories. Such assets are included in other non-current financial assets unless Management intends to dispose of them within twelve months of the date of the consolidated statements of financial position. Financial assets classified as available-for-sale are carried at fair value with changes in fair value recorded in other comprehensive income (loss). Interest on available-for-sale assets is calculated using the effective interest rate method and is recognized in profit or loss. When a decline in fair value is determined to be “other-than-temporary”, the cumulative loss included in accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) is removed as such and then recognized in the profit or loss. Gains and losses realized on the disposal of available-for-sale assets are recognized in profit or loss. The Corporation has current and non-current investments classified as available-for-sale (see note 8).

Held-to-maturity and loans and receivables

Held-to-maturity financial assets are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments and fixed maturity dates for which an entity has the intention and ability to hold until maturity. Loans and receivables are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments but which are not quoted in an active market. All such assets with maturities equal to or less than 12 months from the date of the consolidated statements of financial position are classified as current assets, while those with maturities greater than twelve months from such date are classified as non-current assets. Financial instruments classified as held-to-maturity and loans and receivables are initially recorded at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. None of the Corporation’s financial assets are held-to-maturity. Cash, restricted cash, receivables under finance leases, accounts receivable and promissory notes are classified as loans and receivables.

Impairment

At the end of each reporting period, the Corporation assesses whether a financial asset or a group of financial assets, other than those classified as fair value through profit or loss, is impaired. If there is objective evidence that impairment exists, the loss is recognized in profit or loss. The impairment loss is measured as the difference between the acquisition cost and the current fair value, less any impairment loss on that financial asset previously recognized in profit or loss.

Financial liabilities

Financial liabilities are classified as either “financial liabilities at fair value through profit or loss”, or “other financial liabilities”. Financial liabilities are initially measured at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest rate method. The Corporation’s financial liabilities are classified as other liabilities.

Transaction costs

Transaction costs that are directly attributable to the acquisition or issuance of financial assets and financial liabilities (other than financial assets and financial liabilities that are classified as “through profit or loss”) are added to or deducted, as applicable, from the fair value of the financial instrument on initial recognition. These costs are expensed to financial expenses on the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) over the term of the related financial asset or financial liability using the effective interest method. When a debt facility is retired by the Corporation, any remaining balance of related debt transaction costs is expensed to financial expenses on the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) in the period that the debt facility is retired. Transaction costs related to financial instruments at fair value through profit or loss are expensed when incurred.

Compound financial instruments

Debt and equity instruments issued by the Corporation and its subsidiaries are classified as either financial liabilities or as equity in accordance with the substance of the contractual arrangements and the definitions of a financial liability and an equity instrument. The Corporation has issued, and in the future may issue, compound financial instruments comprising both financial liability and equity components. The financial liability component is initially recognized at the fair value of a similar liability. The proceeds are then allocated between the financial liability and the equity components using the residual method. Any directly attributable transaction costs are allocated to the financial liability and equity components in proportion to their initial carrying amounts. The financial liability component of a compound financial instrument is subsequently re-measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. The equity components are not re-measured subsequent to their initial recognition.

Embedded derivatives

Derivatives may be embedded in other financial and non-financial instruments (the "host instrument"). Embedded derivatives are treated as separate derivatives when their economic characteristics and risks are not closely related to those of the host instrument, the terms of the embedded derivative are the same as those of a stand-alone derivative and the combined instrument (i.e., the embedded derivative plus the host instrument) is not held-for-trading or designated at fair value. These embedded derivatives are measured at fair value with subsequent changes recognized in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss).

Determination of fair value

Fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. When measuring the fair value of an asset or a liability, the Corporation uses market observable data to the extent possible. If the fair value of an asset or a liability is not directly observable, it is estimated by the Corporation using valuation techniques that maximize the use of relevant observable inputs and minimize the use of unobservable inputs (e.g., by the use of the market comparable approach that reflects recent transaction prices for similar items, discounted cash flow analysis, or option pricing models refined to reflect the issuer's specific circumstances). Inputs used are consistent with the characteristics of the asset or liability that market participants would take into account.

For the Corporation's financial instruments which are recognized in the statements of financial position at fair value, the fair value measurements are categorized based on the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement in its entirety and the degree to which the inputs are observable. The significance levels are classified as follows in the fair value hierarchy:

Level 1 – Quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities;

Level 2 – Inputs other than quoted prices included in Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly; and

Level 3 – Inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data.

Transfers between levels of the fair value hierarchy are recognized by the Corporation at the end of the reporting period during which the transfer occurred.

Inventory Valuation

Inventories are priced at the lower of cost and net realizable value. Cost is determined on a weighted average basis. The cost of inventories comprises all costs of purchase and other costs incurred in delivering the inventory to its present location and condition. Raw materials and purchased finished goods are valued at purchase cost. Net realizable value represents the estimated selling price for inventory less all estimated costs necessary to make the sale.

Prepaid Expenses and Deposits

Prepaid expenses and deposits consist of amounts paid in advance or deposits made for which the Corporation will receive goods or services.

Property and Equipment

Property and equipment which have finite lives are recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation and impairment losses. Depreciation is expensed from the month the particular asset is available for use over the estimated useful life of such asset at the following rates, which in each case are intended to reduce the carrying value of the asset to the estimated residual value:

Revenue-producing assets	Declining balance	20%
Furniture and fixtures	Declining balance	20%
Computer equipment	Declining balance	20%
Building	Straight-line	25 years

Intangible Assets

Software technology	Straight-line	5 years
Customer relationships	Straight-line	15 years
Brands	N/A	Indefinite useful life

The depreciation method, useful life and residual values are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment, whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount may not be recoverable.

Upon retirement or disposal, the cost of the asset disposed of and the related accumulated amortization and depreciation are removed from the accounts and any gain or loss is reflected in net earnings. Expenditures for repairs and maintenance are expensed as incurred.

Goodwill

Goodwill represents the excess of the purchase price over the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired in a business acquisition. After initial recognition, goodwill is measured at cost less any accumulated impairment losses.

Goodwill is tested for impairment at least annually, or more frequently if circumstances such as significant declines in expected sales, net earnings or cash flows indicate that that the cash-generating unit(s) to which goodwill is allocated might be impaired.

Impairment of Non-Current Assets

At the end of each reporting period, the carrying amounts of property and equipment and intangible assets with finite useful lives are assessed to determine if there is any evidence that an asset is impaired. If there is such evidence, the recoverable amount of the cash-generating unit to which the asset or intangible asset with a definite useful life is allocated is estimated.

The recoverable amount of an asset or a cash generating unit is the higher of value-in-use and fair value less costs of disposal.

Assets are grouped into the smallest group of assets that generate cash inflows through continued use that are largely independent of the cash inflows from other assets or groups of assets (“cash-generating unit” or “CGU”). For the impairment test of goodwill, goodwill has been allocated to two groups of CGUs. The level at which the impairment is tested represents the lowest level at which Management monitors goodwill for internal Management purposes in accordance with its operating segments. Goodwill acquired in a business combination is allocated to the group of CGUs that is expected to benefit from synergies of the related business combination.

The Corporation’s corporate assets do not generate separate cash flows. If there is evidence that a corporate asset is impaired, the recoverable amount is determined for the CGU to which the corporate asset is allocated. Impairments are recorded when the carrying amount of an asset or its CGU is higher than its recoverable amount. Impairment charges are recognized in net earnings.

Impairment losses recognized for a CGU (or group of CGUs) first reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to that CGU and then reduce the carrying amounts of the other assets of the CGU (or group of CGUs) pro rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the CGU (or group of CGUs).

An impairment loss recognized for goodwill may not be reversed. On each reporting date, the Corporation assesses if there is an indication that impairment losses recognized in previous periods for other assets have decreased or no longer exist. An impairment loss is reversed if there has been a change in the estimates used to determine the recoverable amount. The increased carrying amount of an asset attributable to a reversal of an impairment loss shall not exceed the carrying amount that would have been determined (net of amortization or depreciation) had no impairment loss been recognized.

Research and Development

Research and development costs are expensed except in cases where development costs meet certain identifiable criteria for deferral. Development costs, which have probable future economic benefits, can be clearly defined and measured, and are incurred for the development of new products or technologies, are capitalized. These development costs net of related research and development investment tax credits are not amortized until the products or technologies are commercialized, at which time, they are amortized over the estimated life of the commercial production of such products or technologies.

The amortization method and the life of the commercial production are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment whenever there's an indication that an asset might be impaired.

The Corporation claims research and development investment tax credits as a result of incurring scientific research and experimental development expenditures. Research and development investment tax credits are recognized when the related expenditures are incurred and there is reasonable assurance of their realization. Investment tax credits are accounted for by the cost reduction method whereby the amounts of tax credits are applied as a reduction of the expense or deferred development costs.

Taxation

Income tax expense represents the sum of current and deferred taxes. Current and deferred taxes are recognized in net earnings, except to the extent it relates to items recognized in other comprehensive income (loss) or directly in equity.

Current tax

The tax currently payable is based on taxable income for the year. Taxable income differs from earnings as reported in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) because of items of income or expense that are taxable or deductible in other years and items that are never taxable or deductible. The Corporation's liability for current tax is calculated using tax rates that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the particular reporting period.

Deferred tax

Deferred tax is recognized on temporary differences between the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities in the Corporation's consolidated financial statements and the corresponding tax bases used in the computation of taxable income. Deferred tax liabilities are generally recognized for all taxable temporary differences. Deferred tax assets are recognized for all deductible temporary differences to the extent that it is probable that taxable income will be available against which those deductible temporary differences can be utilized. Such deferred tax assets and liabilities are not recognized if the temporary difference arises from goodwill or from the initial recognition (other than in a business combination) of other assets and liabilities in a transaction that affects neither the taxable income nor the accounting earnings.

Deferred tax liabilities are recognized for taxable temporary differences associated with investments and interests in subsidiaries and associates, except where the Corporation is able to control the reversal of the temporary difference and it is probable that the temporary difference will not reverse in the foreseeable future. Deferred tax assets arising from deductible temporary differences associated with such investments and interests are only recognized to the extent that it is probable that there will be sufficient taxable income against which to utilize the benefits of the temporary differences and they are expected to reverse in the foreseeable future.

The carrying amount of deferred tax assets is reviewed at the end of each reporting period and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable income will be available to allow all or part of any such asset to be recovered.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply in the period in which the liability is settled or the asset is realized, in each case based on tax rates and tax laws that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the reporting period. The measurement of deferred tax liabilities and assets reflects the tax consequences that would follow from the manner in which the Corporation expects, at the end of the particular reporting period, to recover or settle the carrying amount of its assets and liabilities.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are offset when there is a legally enforceable right to set off current tax assets against current tax liabilities and when they relate to income taxes levied by the same taxation authority and the Corporation intends to settle its current tax assets and liabilities on a net basis.

Stock-Based Compensation

The Corporation has one share option plan and accounts for grants under this plan in accordance with the fair value-based method of accounting for stock-based compensation. Compensation expense for equity settled stock options awarded to employees under the plan is measured at the fair value at the grant date using the Black-Scholes valuation model and is recognized using the graded vesting method over the vesting period of the options granted. Compensation expense recognized is adjusted to reflect the number of options that has been estimated by Management for which conditions attaching to service will be fulfilled as of the grant date until the vesting date so that the recognized expense corresponds to the options that have actually vested. The compensation expense credit is attributed to contributed surplus when the expense is recognized in profit or loss. When options are exercised or shares are purchased, any consideration received from employees as well as the related compensation cost recorded as contributed surplus are credited to share capital.

Non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the goods and services received, except where that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the fair value cannot be measured reliably, non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the equity instrument granted as measured at the date the entity obtains the goods or the counterparty renders the service. The Corporation subsequently re-measures non-employee equity-settled share-based payments at each vesting period and settlement date with any changes in fair value recognized in profit or loss. Stock-based compensation expense is recognized over the contract life of the options or the option settlement date, whichever is earlier.

Leases

The determination of whether an arrangement is or contains a lease is based on the substance of such arrangement and requires an assessment of whether there is a conveyance of a right to use the asset subject to the arrangement. When substantially all risks and rewards of ownership are transferred from the lessor to the lessee, lease transactions are accounted for as finance leases. All other leases are accounted for as operating leases.

Corporation is the lessee

Leases of assets classified as finance leases are presented in the consolidated statements of financial position according to their nature. The interest element of the lease payment is recognized over the term of the lease based on the effective interest rate method and is included in financial expense in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss).

Payments made under operating leases are recognized in profit or loss on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease.

Provisions

Provisions represent liabilities of the Corporation for which the amount or timing of payment is uncertain. Provisions are recognized when the Corporation has a present legal or constructive obligation as a result of past events, it is probable that an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation, and the amount can be reliably estimated. Provisions are measured at the present value of the expected expenditures required to settle the obligation using a discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the obligation. The increase in provisions due to the passage of time is recognized in financial expenses on the consolidated statements of earnings (loss).

Provision for jackpot

Several of the Corporation's licensees participate in progressive jackpot games. Each time a progressive jackpot game is played, a portion of the amount wagered by the player is contributed to the jackpot for that specific game or group of games. Once a jackpot is won, the progressive jackpot is reset with a predetermined base amount. The Corporation maintains a provision for the reset for each jackpot and the progressive element added as the jackpot game is played. The provision for jackpots at the reporting date is included in provisions (see note 15). The Corporation believes that its provisions are sufficient to cover the full amount of any required payout.

Contingent consideration

The acquisition-date fair value of any contingent consideration is recognized as part of the consideration transferred by the Corporation in exchange for the acquiree. Changes in the fair value of contingent consideration that result from additional information obtained during the measurement period (i.e., a maximum of one year from the acquisition date) about facts and circumstances that existed at the acquisition date are adjusted retrospectively against goodwill. The adjustment is recognized in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) in accordance with the requirements for changes in assets or liabilities of the same nature.

Provision for minimum revenue guarantee

A provision for minimum revenue guarantee is recognized pursuant to an agreement with the vendor in the sale of Wagerlogic Ltd and Ongame Networks Ltd. The Corporation recognizes the best estimate of the amount that would be required to settle this obligation and the estimate is based on information that produces a range of amounts.

Royalties

The Corporation licenses various royalty rights from several owners of intellectual property rights. Generally, these arrangements require material prepayments of minimum guaranteed amounts which have been recorded as prepayments in the consolidated statements of financial position. These prepaid amounts are amortized over the life of the arrangement as gross revenue is generated or on a straight-line basis if the underlying games are expected to have an effective royalty rate greater than the agreed amount. The amortization of these amounts is recorded as royalty expense within selling expenses on the consolidated statements of earnings (loss).

The Corporation regularly reviews its estimates of future revenues under its license arrangements.

Critical Accounting Estimates and Judgments

The preparation of the Corporation's consolidated financial statements in accordance with IFRS requires Management to make estimates and assumptions that can have a significant effect on the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the consolidated financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period.

Estimates and judgments are significant when:

- the outcome is highly uncertain at the time the estimates are made; or
- different estimates or judgments could reasonably have been used that would have had a material impact on the consolidated financial statements.

The consolidated financial statements include estimates based on currently available information and Management's judgment as to the outcome of future conditions and circumstances. Management uses historical experience, general economic conditions and trends, as well as assumptions regarding probable future outcomes as the basis for determining estimates.

Estimates and their underlying assumptions are reviewed on a regular basis and the effects of any changes are recognized immediately. Changes in the status of certain facts or circumstances could result in material changes to the estimates used in the preparation of the consolidated financial statements and actual results could differ from the estimates and assumptions.

Set forth below are descriptions of items that require Management's most critical estimates and judgments.

Estimates

Fair value assessments on business combinations

The recognition of business combinations requires the excess of the purchase price of acquisitions over the net book value of net assets acquired to be allocated to the assets acquired and liabilities assumed of the acquiree. The Corporation makes judgements and estimates in relation to the determination of the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired, namely the intangible assets. The excess is assigned to goodwill.

Contingent consideration

The Corporation re-evaluates the fair value of the contingent consideration, including an "earn out", on its business acquisitions at the end of each reporting period. Significant estimates are required to determine the fair value of the contingent consideration. The Corporation considers the key inputs of the particular arrangement and market participant assumptions when developing the projected cash flows that are used to determine the fair value of the contingent consideration. This includes the need to estimate the likelihood and timing of achieving the relevant milestones of the "earn out". The Corporation exercises judgment when applying a probability assessment for each of the potential outcomes. In addition, the Corporation must consider the time value of money. In determining the discount rate applied to the estimated cash outflows, the Corporation considers the risks inherent to the contingent agreement such as projection risks, credit risks and liquidity risks.

Compound financial instruments

The Corporation has issued, and in the future may issue, compound financial instruments comprising both financial liability and equity components. The financial liability component is initially recognized at the fair value of a similar liability. The proceeds are then allocated between the financial liability and the equity components using the residual method. Significant estimates are made in determining the fair value of the financial liability component. To do so, Management determines the expected cash outflows that market participants would expect to incur in fulfilling the respective obligations. Then, Management estimates a market interest rate based on interest rates for a similar financial liability that does not have an equity conversion option. This market interest rate is used to discount the financial liability component. Actual cash outflows and interest rates may be different from estimates and may have an impact on the allocation of the proceeds to the financial liability and equity components.

Stock-based compensation and warrants

The Corporation estimates the expense related to stock-based compensation and the value of warrants using the Black-Scholes valuation model. This model takes into account Management's best estimate of the exercise price of the stock option or warrant, an estimate of the expected life of the option or warrant, the current price of the underlying stock, an estimate of the stock's or warrant's volatility, an estimate of future dividends on the underlying stock, the risk-free rate of return expected for an instrument with a term equal to the expected life of the option or warrant, and the expected forfeiture rate of stock options granted (see note 20).

Income taxes

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are due to temporary differences between the carrying amount for accounting purposes and the tax basis of certain assets and liabilities, as well as undeducted tax losses. Estimation is required for the timing of the reversal of these temporary differences and the applicable tax rate. The carrying amounts of assets and liabilities are based on amounts recorded in the consolidated financial statements and are subject to the accounting estimates inherent in those balances. The tax basis of assets and liabilities and the amount of undeducted tax losses are based on the applicable income tax legislation, regulations and interpretations. The timing of the reversal of the temporary differences and the timing of deduction of tax losses are based on estimations of the Corporation's future financial results.

The Corporation recognizes an income tax expense in each of the jurisdictions in which it operates. However, actual amounts of income tax expense only become final upon filing and acceptance of the tax return by the relevant authorities, which occur subsequent to the issuance of the financial statements. Additionally, estimation of income taxes includes evaluating the recoverability of deferred tax assets based on an assessment of the ability to use the underlying future tax deductions before they expire against future taxable income.

Such assessment is based upon enacted or substantively enacted tax laws and estimates of future taxable income. To the extent estimates differ from the actual amounts determined when preparing the final tax returns, earnings would be affected in a subsequent period.

Changes in the expected operating results, enacted tax rates, legislation or regulations, and the Corporation's interpretations of the same, will result in adjustments to the expectations of future timing difference reversals and may require material deferred tax adjustments. To the extent that forecasts differ from actual results, adjustments are recognized in subsequent reporting periods.

Judgments

Useful lives of long-lived assets

Judgment is used to estimate each component of an asset's useful life and is based on an analysis of all pertinent factors including, but not limited to, the expected use of the asset and, in the case of an intangible asset, contractual provisions that enable the renewal or extension of the asset's legal or contractual life without substantial cost, as well as renewal history. Incorrect estimates of useful lives could result in an increase or decrease in the annual amortization expense and future impairment charges.

Functional currency

The Corporation's worldwide operations expose the Corporation to transactions denominated in a number of different currencies, which are required to be translated into one currency for consolidated financial statement reporting purposes. The Corporation's foreign currency translation policy is designed to reflect the economic exposure of the Corporation's operations to various currencies.

The Corporation's foreign operations (including subsidiaries, joint ventures, associates and branches) based mainly outside Canada may have different functional currencies. The functional currency of an operation is the currency of the primary economic environment to which it is exposed. In other to determine the functional currency, Management will first consider the currency that influences sales prices of the goods and services provided by the operations and the currency that influences the costs incurred by the operations. Then, if based on these two primary factors, the functional currency is not obvious, Management will examine secondary factors such as the currency in which funds from financing are obtained, the currency in which cash receipts are retained and the levels of interactions with the parent company. In determining the functional currency of an operation, Management uses its judgement to determine the functional currency that most faithfully represents the economic effects of the underlying transactions, events and conditions.

RECENT ACCOUNTING PRONOUNCEMENTS

Changes in Accounting Policies Adopted

Offsetting Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities (Amendments to IAS 32)

Effective for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014, on a retrospective basis. The adoption of this standard did not have a material impact on the financial position and results of the Corporation.

Recoverable Amount Disclosures for Non-Financial Assets: Amendments to IAS 36

The International Accounting Standards Board ("IASB") has published Recoverable Amount Disclosures for Non-Financial Assets (Amendments to IAS 36). These narrow-scope amendments to IAS 36, Impairment of Assets, address the disclosure of information about the recoverable amount of impaired assets if that amount is based on fair value less costs of disposal.

The amendments are to be applied retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014. The adoption of this standard did not have an impact on the disclosures presented in these consolidated financial statements.

Novation of Derivatives and Continuation of Hedge Accounting: Amendments to IAS 39

The amendments to IAS 39 provide relief from the requirement to discontinue hedge accounting when a derivative designated as a hedge instrument is novated under certain circumstances. The amendments also clarify that any change to the fair value of the derivative designated as a hedging instrument arising from the novation should be included in the assessment and measurement of hedge effectiveness. The amendments required retrospective application. The adoption of this standard did not have a material impact on the financial position and results of the Corporation.

Levies: Amendments to IFRIC 21

International Financial Reporting Standards Interpretations Committee ("IFRIC") 21 addresses the issue of when to recognize a liability to pay a levy. The interpretation defines a "levy" and specifies that the obligation event that gives rise to the liability is the activity that triggers the payment of the levy, as identified by legislation. The interpretation provides guidance on how different levy arrangements should be accounted for, in particular, it clarifies that neither economic compulsion nor the going concern basis of financial statements preparation implies that an entity has a present obligation to pay a levy that will be triggered by operating in a future period. IFRIC 21 requires retrospective application. The adoption of this standard did not have a material impact on the financial position and results of the Corporation.

New Accounting Pronouncements Not Yet Effective

IFRS 9, Financial Instruments

The IASB issued IFRS 9 relating to the classification and measurement of financial assets. IFRS 9 uses a single approach to determine whether a financial asset is measured at amortized cost or fair value, replacing the many different rules in IAS 39. The approach in IFRS 9 is based on how an entity manages its financial instruments (i.e., its business model) and the contractual cash flow characteristics of such financial assets.

IFRS 9 also includes a new hedge accounting model, together with corresponding disclosures about risk management activity for those applying hedge accounting.

An entity shall apply IFRS 9 retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2018 with early adoption permitted. The Corporation is currently evaluating the impact of applying this standard.

IFRS 15, Revenues from Contracts with Customers

The Financial Accounting Standards Board and IASB have issued converged standards on revenue recognition. This new IFRS 15 affects any entity using IFRS that either enters into contracts with customers to transfer goods or services or enters into contracts for the transfer of nonfinancial assets, in each case, unless those contracts are within the scope of other standards. This IFRS will supersede the revenue recognition requirements in IAS 18 and most industry-specific guidance.

The core principle of the guidance is that an entity should recognize revenue to depict the transfer of promised goods or services to customers in an amount that reflects the consideration to which the entity expects to be entitled in exchange for those goods or services. To achieve that core principle, an entity should apply the following steps:

- Step 1: Identify the contract with a customer.

- Step 2: Identify the performance obligations in the contract.
- Step 3: Determine the transaction price.
- Step 4: Allocate the transaction price to the performance obligations in the contract.
- Step 5: Recognize revenue when (or as) the entity satisfies a performance obligation.

An entity shall apply IFRS 15 for annual reporting periods beginning on or after January 1, 2017. Earlier application is permitted. The Corporation is currently evaluating the impact of applying this standard.

OFF BALANCE SHEET ARRANGEMENTS

The Corporation's commitments under lease agreements for premises, hardware support contracts, and purchase obligations, but exclusive of occupancy and escalation charges, aggregate to approximately $87.31 million. The minimum annual payments are as follows:

	$000's
Within one year	17,393
Later than one year but not later than 5 years	34,224
More than 5 years	35,696

OUTSTANDING SHARE DATA

As at March 30, 2015, the Corporation had a total of 133,165,366 Common Shares issued and outstanding, 1,139,249 Preferred Shares issued and outstanding, 9,630,305 options issued under the Corporation's share option plan, of which 2,656,583 were exercisable, and 957,699 share purchase warrants issued and outstanding.

DISCLOSURE CONTROLS AND PROCEDURES AND INTERNAL CONTROL OVER FINANCIAL REPORTING

National Instrument 52-109 ("NI 52-109"), entitled Certification of Disclosure in Issuers' Annual and Interim Filings, requires Amaya's certifying officers, namely, the Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") and the Chief Financial Officer ("CFO"), to establish and maintain disclosure controls and procedures ("DC&P") and internal control over financial reporting ("ICFR"), as those terms are defined in NI 52-109. In compliance with NI 52-109, the Corporation has filed certificates signed by the CEO and the CFO that, among other things, report on the design and effectiveness of each of DC&P and ICFR.

Disclosure Controls and Procedures

The CEO and CFO have designed DC&P, or have caused them to be designed under their supervision, in order to provide reasonable assurance that:

- material information relating to the issuer is made known to them by others, particularly during the period in which the annual filings are being prepared;
- information required to be disclosed in the annual filings, interim filings or other reports filed or submitted under securities legislation is recorded, processed, summarized and reported within the time periods specified in the securities legislation.

The CEO and CFO have evaluated, or caused to be evaluated under their supervision, the effectiveness of Amaya's DC&P at the financial year end December 31, 2014. Based on that evaluation, the CEO and CFO concluded that DC&P are effective.

Internal Control over Financial Reporting

The CEO and CFO have designed ICFR, or have caused it to be designed under their supervision, in order to provide reasonable assurance regarding the reliability of financial reporting and the preparation of financial statements for external purposes in accordance with Amaya's accounting and reporting standards.

The CEO and CFO have evaluated, or caused to be evaluated under their supervision, the effectiveness of Amaya's ICFR at the financial year end December 31, 2014, based on the criteria set forth by the Committee of Sponsoring Organizations of the Treadway Commission in Internal Control – Integrated Framework (1992) (COSO Framework). Based on that evaluation, the CEO and CFO concluded that ICFR is effective.

There has been no change in Amaya's ICFR that occurred during the period beginning on January 1, 2014 and ended on December 31, 2014 that has materially affected, or is reasonably likely to materially affect, Amaya's ICFR.

Limitation on Scope of Design

NI 52-109 allows an issuer to limit its design of DC&P and/or ICFR to exclude a business acquired not more than 365 days before the end of the period to which the certificate relates. During the year ended December 31, 2014, Amaya acquired two businesses, namely Diamond Game, effective February 13, 2014, and Rational Group, effective August 1, 2014. As allowed by NI 52-109, the CEO and CFO have limited the scope of their design of DC&P and ICFR to exclude controls, policies and procedures of these two businesses. Summary financial information about these two businesses is disclosed in this MD&A.

BUSINESS RISKS AND UNCERTAINTIES

Certain factors may have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, and results of operations. Current and prospective investors should consider carefully the risks and uncertainties described below, in addition to other information contained in this MD&A, the Annual Information Form and our consolidated financial statements and related notes. The risks and uncertainties described below are not the only ones we face. Additional risks and uncertainties that we are unaware of, or that we currently believe are not material, may also become important factors that could adversely affect our business. If any of the following risks actually occur, our business, financial condition, results of operations, and future prospects could be materially and adversely affected. In that event, the trading price of our securities could decline, and you could lose part or all of your investment.

The Corporation's current principal risks and uncertainties as identified by Management are summarized below, each of which could, among other things, have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, liquidity and results of operations:

- The Corporation's substantial indebtedness requires that it use a significant portion of its cash flow to make interest payments, which could adversely affect its ability to raise additional capital to fund its operations, limit its ability to react to changes in the economy or in the Corporation's industry and prevent it from making debt service payments. Amaya's secured credit facilities and provisions governing the Preferred Shares contain restrictions that limit its flexibility in operating its business. Amaya may not be able to generate sufficient cash flows to meet its debt service obligations.
- Amaya's outstanding credit facilities subject it to financial covenants which may limit its flexibility. Amaya is also exposed to the risk of increased interest rates.
- The gaming and interactive entertainment industries are intensely competitive. Amaya faces competition from a growing number of companies and, if Amaya is unable to compete effectively, its business could be negatively impacted.
- Amaya's online offerings are part of new and evolving industries, which presents significant uncertainty and business risks.
- Amaya's success in the competitive gaming and interactive entertainment industries depends in large part on its ability to develop and manage frequent introductions of innovative products.

- Amaya's dependency on customers' acceptance of its products, and the Corporation's inability to meet changing consumer preferences may negatively impact Amaya's business and results of operations.
- The Corporation's products are becoming more sophisticated, resulting in additional expenses and the increased potential for loss in the case of an unsuccessful product.
- Acquisitions involve risks that could negatively affect the Corporation's operating results, cash flows and liquidity.
- The Corporation could face considerable business and financial risks in investigating, completing and implementing acquisitions.
- Lengthy and variable sales cycle for the Corporation's land-based products makes it difficult to forecast the timing of revenue from its B2B activities.
- Failure to attract, retain and motivate key employees may adversely affect the Corporation's ability to compete and the loss of the services of key personnel could have a material adverse effect on Amaya's business.
- The Corporation's insurance coverage may not be adequate to cover all possible losses it may suffer, and, in the future, its insurance costs may increase significantly or it may be unable to obtain the same level of insurance coverage.
- Contract awards granted by lottery authorities are not necessarily extended and there is no assurance that the Corporation will be granted such contracts in the future.
- New products may be subject to complex and dynamic revenue recognition standards, which could materially affect the Corporation's financial results.
- The Corporation's business is vulnerable to changing economic conditions and to other factors that adversely affect the industries in which it operates.
- Changes in ownership of customers or consolidations within the gaming industry may negatively impact pricing and lead to downward pricing pressures which could reduce revenue.
- Litigation costs and the outcome of litigation could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business.
- The Corporation relies on its internal marketing and branding function, as well as its relationship with ambassadors, distributors, service providers and channel partners to promote its products and generate revenue, and the failure to maintain and develop these relationships could adversely affect the business and financial condition of the Corporation.
- The risks related to international operations, in particular in countries outside of the United States and Canada, could negatively affect the Corporation's results.
- The Corporation is subject to foreign exchange and currency risks that could adversely affect its operations, and the Corporation's ability to mitigate its foreign exchange risk through hedging transactions may be limited.
- The Corporation is subject to various laws relating to trade, export controls, and foreign corrupt practices, the violation of which could adversely affect its operations, reputation, business, prospects, operating results and financial condition.
- Privacy concerns could result in regulatory changes and impose additional costs and liabilities on the Corporation, limit its use of information, and adversely affect its business.
- The Corporation's results of operations could be affected by natural events in the locations in which it operates or where its customers or suppliers operate.

- The gaming industry is heavily regulated and failure by the Corporation to comply with applicable requirements could be disruptive to its business and could adversely affect its operations.
- The Corporation may not be able to capitalize on the expansion of online or other forms of interactive gaming or other trends and changes in the gaming industry, including due to laws and regulations governing these industries.
- The Corporation's ability to operate in its existing land-based or online jurisdictions or expand in new land-based or online jurisdictions could be adversely affected by new or changing laws or regulations, new interpretations of existing laws or regulations, and difficulties or delays in obtaining or maintaining required licenses or product approvals.
- Potential changes to the Class II regulatory scheme may cause the Corporation to modify its Class II games which may result in the Corporation's products becoming less competitive.
- Regulations that may be adopted with respect to the Internet and electronic commerce may decrease the growth in the use of the Internet and lead to the decrease in the demand for Amaya's products and services.
- Amaya's shareholders are subject to extensive governmental regulation and if a shareholder is found unsuitable by a gaming authority, that shareholder would not be able to beneficially own the Corporation's Common Shares directly or indirectly.
- Current environmental laws and regulations, or those enacted in the future, could result in additional liabilities and costs.
- Amaya's intellectual property may be insufficient to properly safeguard its technology and brands.
- The Corporation may be subject to claims of intellectual property infringement or invalidity and adverse outcomes of litigation could unfavorably affect its operating results.
- Compromises of the Corporation's systems or unauthorized access to confidential information or Amaya's customers' personal information could materially harm Amaya's reputation and business.
- Service interruptions of Internet service providers could impair the Corporation's ability to carry on its business.
- There is a risk that the Corporation's network systems will be unable to meet the growing demand for its online products.
- Systems, network or telecommunications failures or cyber-attacks may disrupt the Corporation's business and have an adverse effect on Amaya's results of operations.
- Amaya's land-based products and online operations may experience losses due to technical problems or fraudulent activities.
- The Corporation's Common Shares rank junior to the Preferred Shares with respect to amounts payable in the event of a liquidation.
- Certain provisions of the Preferred Shares could delay or prevent an otherwise beneficial takeover attempt of Amaya and, therefore, the ability of holders to exercise their rights associated with a potential fundamental change.
- The Corporation's advance notice bylaws may prevent attempts by its shareholders to replace or remove its current management.
- Future sales or the possibility of future sales of a substantial amount of the Corporation's Common Shares may depress the price of the Corporation's Common Shares.
- The price and trading volume of the Common Shares may fluctuate significantly.
- The Corporation's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, GSO and BlackRock, each individually and collectively, own a significant amount of the Corporation's voting shares and may be able to exert influence over matters requiring shareholder approval.

Management's Responsibility for the Consolidated Financial Statements

Management is responsible for the preparation and fair presentation of these consolidated financial statements in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board, and for such internal control as management determines is necessary to enable the preparation of consolidated financial statements that are free from material misstatement, whether due to fraud or error.

Auditor's Responsibility

Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these consolidated financial statements based on our audit. We conducted our audit in accordance with Canadian generally accepted auditing standards. Those standards require that we comply with ethical requirements and plan and perform the audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the consolidated financial statements are free from material misstatement.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the consolidated financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the consolidated financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the consolidated financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the consolidated financial statements.

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.

Opinion

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Amaya Inc. as at December 31, 2014, and its financial performance and its cash flows for the year then ended in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board.

Other Matters

The consolidated financial statements of Amaya Inc. for the year ended December 31, 2013 (prior to adjustments described in Note 30) were audited by another auditor who expressed an unmodified opinion on those consolidated financial statements on March 31, 2014.

As part of our audit of the consolidated financial statements of Amaya Inc. for the year ended December 31, 2014 we also audited the adjustments described in Note 30, that were applied to retrospectively adjust the consolidated financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2013. In our opinion, such adjustments are appropriate and have been properly applied. We were not engaged to audit, review, or apply any procedures to the consolidated financial statements of Amaya Inc. for the year ended December 31, 2013 other than with respect to the adjustments related to discontinued operations and, accordingly, we do not express an opinion or any other form of assurance on the consolidated financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2013 taken as a whole.

An audit involves performing procedures to obtain audit evidence about the amounts and disclosures in the consolidated financial statements. The procedures selected depend on the auditor's judgment, including the assessment of the risks of material misstatement of the consolidated financial statements, whether due to fraud or error. In making those risk assessments, the auditor considers internal control relevant to the entity's preparation and fair presentation of the consolidated financial statements in order to design audit procedures that are appropriate in the circumstances, but not for the purpose of expressing an opinion on the effectiveness of the entity's internal control. An audit also includes evaluating the appropriateness of accounting policies used and the reasonableness of accounting estimates made by management, as well as evaluating the overall presentation of the consolidated financial statements.

We believe that the audit evidence we have obtained in our audits is sufficient and appropriate to provide a basis for our audit opinion.

Opinion

In our opinion, the consolidated financial statements present fairly, in all material respects, the financial position of Amaya Inc. and its subsidiaries as at December 31, 2013 and their financial performance and their cash flows for the year ended December 31, 2013 in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board.

Other Matters

As part of our audit of the consolidated financial statements of Amaya Inc. for the year ended December 31, 2013 we have not audited the adjustments described in Note 30, that were applied to retrospectively adjust the consolidated financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2013. We were not engaged to audit, review, or apply any procedures to the adjustments related to discontinued operations and, accordingly, we do not express an opinion or any other form of assurance on the adjustments related to discontinued operations reflected on the consolidated financial statements for the year ended December 31, 2013.

2. SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Basis of Presentation

The Corporation’s consolidated financial statements have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board (“IASB” and, the International Financial Reporting Standards as issued by the IASB, “IFRS”).

Principles of Consolidation

A subsidiary is an entity controlled by the Corporation. As such, the Corporation is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with such entity and has the ability to affect those returns through its current ability to direct such entity’s relevant activities (i.e., power over the investee).

The existence and effect of substantive potential voting rights that the Corporation has the practical ability to exercise (i.e., substantive rights) are considered when assessing whether the Corporation controls another entity.

The Corporation’s consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries. With consolidation, all inter-entity transactions and balances have been eliminated.

Upon the loss of control of a subsidiary, the Corporation’s profit or loss on disposal is calculated as the difference between (i) the fair value of the consideration received and of any investment retained in the former subsidiary and (ii) the previous carrying amount of the assets (including any goodwill) and liabilities of the subsidiary and any non-controlling interests.

Discontinued Operations and Assets Held for Sale

Non-current assets held for sale

A non-current asset (or disposal group) held for sale represents an asset whose carrying amount will be recovered principally through a sale transaction rather than through continuing use. For this to be the case, the sale must be highly probable and the non-current asset (or disposal group) must be available for immediate sale in its present condition. The appropriate level of management must be committed to the sale which should be expected to qualify for recognition as a completed sale within one year from its classification. Disposal groups and non-current assets held for sale are included in the consolidated statements of financial position at fair value less costs to sell, if such amount is lower than the previous carrying amount. Once an asset is classified as held for sale or included in a group of assets held for sale, no further depreciation or amortization is recorded.

Discontinued operations

These are either separate major lines of business or geographical operations that have been sold or classified as held for sale. When held for use, discontinued operations were a cash-generating unit or a group of cash-generating units. They comprise operations and cash flows that can be clearly distinguished, operationally and for financial reporting purposes, from the rest of the entity. Their results are presented separately in the statements of earnings on a comparative basis.

Revenue Recognition

Revenue is recognized when all the following criteria are met:

- the Corporation has transferred to the buyer the significant risks and rewards;
- the amount of revenue can be reliably measured;
- it is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transaction will flow to the Corporation; and
- the costs incurred or to be incurred in respect of the transaction can be reliably measured.

In addition to the aforementioned general policies, the following are the specific revenue recognition policies for each major category of revenue:

B2C Revenue

Revenue from the B2C operations consists primarily of online poker gaming revenue and is recognized when it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the Corporation and the amount of revenue can be measured reliably. Revenue is recognized in the accounting periods in which the transactions occurred after deduction of certain offsets, such as promotional bonuses and Frequent player points granted to customers, and is measured at the fair value of the consideration received or receivable.

Online poker gaming revenue represents the commission charged from each poker hand in ring games and entry fees for participation in poker tournaments. In poker tournaments, entry fee revenue is recognized when the tournament has concluded.

The B2C operations operate loyalty programs for its customers that award customer loyalty points based on amounts wagered. Management estimates the value of this liability using relevant historical information about the likelihood and magnitude of an outflow of resources.

B2B Revenue

Multiple-element revenue arrangements

Certain contracts of the Corporation include license fees, training, installation, consulting, maintenance, product support services and periodic upgrades.

Where such agreements exist, the amount of revenue allocated to each element is based upon the relative fair values of the various elements. The fair values of each element are determined based on the current market price of each of the elements when sold separately. Revenue is only recognized when, in Management’s judgment, the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred or when the obligation has been fulfilled.

Product sales

Revenue from product sales is recognized when the product is shipped to the customer and when there are no unfulfilled obligations of the Corporation that affect the customer’s final acceptance of the product pursuant to the arrangement. Any cost of warranties and remaining obligations that are inconsequential or perfunctory are accrued when the corresponding revenue is recognized.

Participation leases and arrangements

In contracts that stipulate profit sharing arrangements, revenues are earned based on revenue splits established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. Revenues are recognized when performance has been achieved and collectability is reasonably assured.

Software licensing

Typically, license fees, including fees from master license agreements, most of which are contingent upon the licensee's customer usage, are calculated as a percentage of each licensee's level of activity. The percentage is as established in the contract and can vary depending on the particular contract and the terms thereof. The license fees are recognized on an accrual basis as earned.

Lease revenues

In the course of its normal business, the Corporation enters into lease agreements for its gaming equipment.

Assets subject to finance leases are initially recognized at an amount equal to the net investment in the lease, which is the fair value of the asset, or, if lower, the present value of the minimum lease payments. Leases revenues are recognized on the same basis as revenues from product sales. Finance income is subsequently recognized over the term of the applicable leases based on the effective interest rate method. Finance income is grouped with the revenues, in the statements of comprehensive income (loss).

Assets under operating leases are included in property and equipment. Lease income from operating leases is recognized on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease and is included in revenues in the statements of comprehensive income (loss).

Translation of Foreign Operations and Foreign Currency Transactions

Functional and presentation currency

IFRS requires entities to consider primary and secondary indicators when determining the functional currency. Primary indicators are closely linked to the primary economic environment in which the entity operates and are given more weight. Secondary indicators provide supporting evidence to determine an entity's functional currency. Once the functional currency of an entity is determined, it should be used consistently, unless significant changes in economic factors, events and conditions indicate that the functional currency has changed.

A change in functional currency is accounted for prospectively from the date of the change by translating all items into the new functional currency using the exchange rate at the date of the change.

Based on an analysis of the primary and secondary indicators, the functional currency of each of the Corporation and its entities have been determined. The Corporation's consolidated financial statements are presented in Canadian dollars.

Transactions and balances

Foreign currency transactions are translated into the functional currency using the exchange rates prevailing on the dates of the transactions or valuation where items are re-measured. Foreign exchange gains and losses resulting from the settlement of such transactions and from the translation at year-end exchange rates of monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are recognized in the statements of net earnings (loss).

Group companies

Each foreign operation determines its own functional currency and items included in the financial statements of each foreign operation are measured using that functional currency.

The results and financial position of the Corporation's entities that have a functional currency different from the presentation currency are translated into the presentation currency as follows:

(i) assets and liabilities for each statement of financial position presented are translated at the closing exchange rate on the date of that statement of financial position;

(ii) income and expenses for each statement of net earnings (loss) and statement of other comprehensive income are translated at average exchange rates (unless such average is not a reasonable approximation of the cumulative effect of the rates prevailing on the transaction dates at issue, in which case income and expenses are translated at the exchange rate on the dates of such transactions); and

(iii) all resulting exchange rate differences are recognized in other comprehensive income (loss) and are transferred to net earnings as part of gain (loss) on the disposal of subsidiaries.

The following functional currencies are referred to herein:

Currency Symbol	Currency Description
CAD	Canadian Dollar
USD	United States Dollar
EUR	European Euro
GBP	Great Britain Pound Sterling

Business Combination

Business combinations are accounted for using the acquisition method. Under this method, the identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed, including contingent liabilities, are recognized, regardless of whether they have been previously recognized in the acquiree's financial statements prior to the acquisition. On initial recognition, the assets and liabilities of the acquired entity are included in the consolidated statements of financial position at their respective fair values. Goodwill is recorded based on the excess of the fair value of the consideration transferred over the fair value of the Corporation's interest in the acquiree's net identifiable assets on the date of the acquisition. Any excess of the identifiable net assets over the consideration transferred is immediately recognized in net earnings.

The consideration transferred by the Corporation to acquire control of an entity is calculated as the sum of the acquisition-date fair values of the assets transferred, liabilities incurred and equity interests issued by the Corporation, including the fair value of all the assets and liabilities resulting from a deferred payment arrangement. Acquisition related costs are expensed as incurred.

Operating Segments

Amaya has two reportable segments, its B2C segment and B2B segment. In the year ended December 31, 2014, the B2C segment consisted of Rational Group, while the B2B segment consisted of Amaya's B2B interactive, land-based and lottery gaming solutions.

Amaya's primary business is currently its B2C operations which were acquired on August 1, 2014 through the Rational Group Acquisition. The Corporation's operating segments are organized around the markets they serve (i.e., B2C and B2B) and are reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting provided to the Corporation's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, who serves as the Corporation's chief operating decision-maker. An operating segment is a component of the Corporation that engages in business activities from which it may earn revenues and incur expenses, including revenues and expenses relating to transactions with other components of the Corporation.

Financial Instruments

Financial assets

Financial assets are initially recognized at fair value and are classified either as "fair value through profit or loss"; "available-for-sale"; "held-to-maturity"; or "loans and receivables". The classification depends on the purpose for which the financial instruments were acquired and their respective characteristics. Except in very limited circumstances, the classification may not be changed subsequent to initial recognition.

Fair value through profit or loss

Financial assets at fair value through profit or loss are financial assets held-for-trading. A financial asset is classified in this category if acquired principally for the purpose of selling in the short-term or otherwise as determined by Management. Financial assets classified at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value, with the realized and unrealized changes in fair value recognized each reporting period in profit or loss.

Available-for-sale

Available-for-sale assets are non-derivative financial assets that are either designated in this category or not classified in any of the other categories. Such assets are included in other non-current financial assets unless Management intends to dispose of them within twelve months of the date of the consolidated statements of financial position. Financial assets classified as available-for-sale are carried at fair value with changes in fair value recorded in other comprehensive income (loss). Interest on available-for-sale assets is calculated using the effective interest rate method and is recognized in profit or loss. When a decline in fair value is determined to be "other-than-temporary", the cumulative loss included in accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) is removed as such and then recognized in the profit or loss. Gains and losses realized on the disposal of available-for-sale assets are recognized in profit or loss. The Corporation has current and non-current investments classified as available-for-sale (see note 8).

Held-to-maturity and loans and receivables

Held-to-maturity financial assets are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments and fixed maturity dates for which an entity has the intention and ability to hold until maturity. Loans and receivables are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments but which are not quoted in an active market. All such assets with maturities equal to or less than 12 months from the date of the consolidated statements of financial position are classified as current assets, while those with maturities greater than twelve months from such date are classified as non-current assets. Financial instruments classified as held-to-maturity and loans and receivables are initially recorded at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. None of the Corporation's financial assets are held-to-maturity. Cash, restricted cash, receivables under finance leases, accounts receivable and promissory notes are classified as loans and receivables.

Impairment

At the end of each reporting period, the Corporation assesses whether a financial asset or a group of financial assets, other than those classified as fair value through profit or loss, is impaired. If there is objective evidence that impairment exists, the loss is recognized in profit or loss. The impairment loss is measured as the difference between the acquisition cost and the current fair value, less any impairment loss on that financial asset previously recognized in profit or loss.

Financial liabilities

Financial liabilities are classified as either "financial liabilities at fair value through profit or loss", or "other financial liabilities". Financial liabilities are initially measured at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest rate method. The Corporation's financial liabilities are classified as other liabilities.

Transaction costs

Transaction costs that are directly attributable to the acquisition or issuance of financial assets and financial liabilities (other than financial assets and financial liabilities that are classified as "through profit or loss") are added to or deducted, as applicable, from the fair value of the financial instrument on initial recognition. These costs are expensed to financial expenses on the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) over the term of the related financial asset or financial liability using the effective interest method. When a debt facility is retired by the Corporation, any remaining balance of related debt transaction costs is expensed to financial expenses on the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) in the period that the debt facility is retired. Transaction costs related to financial instruments at fair value through profit or loss are expensed when incurred.

Compound financial instruments

Debt and equity instruments issued by the Corporation and its subsidiaries are classified as either financial liabilities or as equity in accordance with the substance of the contractual arrangements and the definitions of a financial liability and an equity instrument. The Corporation has issued, and in the future may issue, compound financial instruments comprising both financial liability and equity components. The financial liability component is initially recognized at the fair value of a similar liability. The proceeds are then allocated between the financial liability and the equity components using the residual method. Any directly attributable transaction costs are allocated to the financial liability and equity components in proportion to their initial carrying amounts. The financial liability component of a compound financial instrument is subsequently re-measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. The equity components are not re-measured subsequent to their initial recognition.

Embedded derivatives

Derivatives may be embedded in other financial and non-financial instruments (the "host instrument"). Embedded derivatives are treated as separate derivatives when their economic characteristics and risks are not closely related to those of the host instrument, the terms of the embedded derivative are the same as those of a stand-alone derivative and the combined instrument (i.e., the embedded derivative plus the host instrument) is not held-for-trading or designated at fair value. These embedded derivatives are measured at fair value with subsequent changes recognized in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss).

Determination of fair value

Fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. When measuring the fair value of an asset or a liability, the Corporation uses market observable data to the extent possible. If the fair value of an asset or a liability is not directly observable, it is estimated by the Corporation using valuation techniques that maximize the use of relevant observable inputs and minimize the use of unobservable inputs (e.g., by the use of the market comparable approach that reflects recent transaction prices for similar items, discounted cash flow analysis, or option pricing models refined to reflect the issuer's specific circumstances). Inputs used are consistent with the characteristics of the asset or liability that market participants would take into account.

For the Corporation's financial instruments which are recognized in the statements of financial position at fair value, the fair value measurements are categorized based on the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement in its entirety and the degree to which the inputs are observable. The significance levels are classified as follows in the fair value hierarchy:

Level 1 – Quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities;

Level 2 – Inputs other than quoted prices included in Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly; and

Level 3 – Inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data.

Transfers between levels of the fair value hierarchy are recognized by the Corporation at the end of the reporting period during which the transfer occurred.

Inventory Valuation

Inventories are priced at the lower of cost and net realizable value. Cost is determined on a weighted average basis. The cost of inventories comprises all costs of purchase and other costs incurred in delivering the inventory to its present location and condition. Raw materials and purchased finished goods are valued at purchase cost. Net realizable value represents the estimated selling price for inventory less all estimated costs necessary to make the sale.

Prepaid Expenses and Deposits

Prepaid expenses and deposits consist of amounts paid in advance or deposits made for which the Corporation will receive goods or services.

Property and Equipment

Property and equipment which have finite lives are recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation and impairment losses. Depreciation is expensed from the month the particular asset is available for use over the estimated useful life of such asset at the following rates, which in each case are intended to reduce the carrying value of the asset to the estimated residual value:

Revenue-producing assets	Declining balance	20%
Furniture and fixtures	Declining balance	20%
Computer equipment	Declining balance	20%
Building	Straight-line	25 years

Intangible Assets

Software technology	Straight-line	5 years
Customer relationships	Straight-line	15 years
Brands	N/A	Indefinite useful life

The depreciation method, useful life and residual values are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment, whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount may not be recoverable.

Upon retirement or disposal, the cost of the asset disposed of and the related accumulated amortization and depreciation are removed from the accounts and any gain or loss is reflected in net earnings. Expenditures for repairs and maintenance are expensed as incurred.

Goodwill

Goodwill represents the excess of the purchase price over the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired in a business acquisition. After initial recognition, goodwill is measured at cost less any accumulated impairment losses.

Goodwill is tested for impairment at least annually, or more frequently if circumstances such as significant declines in expected sales, net earnings or cash flows indicate that that the cash-generating unit(s) to which goodwill is allocated might be impaired.

Impairment of Non-Current Assets

At the end of each reporting period, the carrying amounts of property and equipment and intangible assets with finite useful lives are assessed to determine if there is any evidence that an asset is impaired. If there is such evidence, the recoverable amount of the cash-generating unit to which the asset or intangible asset with a definite useful life is allocated is estimated.

The recoverable amount of an asset or a cash generating unit is the higher of value-in-use and fair value less costs of disposal.

Assets are grouped into the smallest group of assets that generate cash inflows through continued use that are largely independent of the cash inflows from other assets or groups of assets (“cash-generating unit” or “CGU”). For the impairment test of goodwill, goodwill has been allocated to two groups of CGUs. The level at which the impairment is tested represents the lowest level at which Management monitors goodwill for internal Management purposes in accordance with its operating segments. Goodwill acquired in a business combination is allocated to the group of CGUs that is expected to benefit from synergies of the related business combination.

The Corporation’s corporate assets do not generate separate cash flows. If there is evidence that a corporate asset is impaired, the recoverable amount is determined for the CGU to which the corporate asset is allocated. Impairments are recorded when the carrying amount of an asset or its CGU is higher than its recoverable amount. Impairment charges are recognized in net earnings.

Impairment losses recognized for a CGU (or group of CGUs) first reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to that CGU and then reduce the carrying amounts of the other assets of the CGU (or group of CGUs) pro rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the CGU (or group of CGUs).

An impairment loss recognized for goodwill may not be reversed. On each reporting date, the Corporation assesses if there is an indication that impairment losses recognized in previous periods for other assets have decreased or no longer exist. An impairment loss is reversed if there has been a change in the estimates used to determine the recoverable amount. The increased carrying amount of an asset attributable to a reversal of an impairment loss shall not exceed the carrying amount that would have been determined (net of amortization or depreciation) had no impairment loss been recognized.

Research and Development

Research and development costs are expensed except in cases where development costs meet certain identifiable criteria for deferral. Development costs, which have probable future economic benefits, can be clearly defined and measured, and are incurred for the development of new products or technologies, are capitalized. These development costs net of related research and development investment tax credits are not amortized until the products or technologies are commercialized, at which time, they are amortized over the estimated life of the commercial production of such products or technologies.

The amortization method and the life of the commercial production are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment whenever there's an indication that an asset might be impaired.

The Corporation claims research and development investment tax credits as a result of incurring scientific research and experimental development expenditures. Research and development investment tax credits are recognized when the related expenditures are incurred and there is reasonable assurance of their realization. Investment tax credits are accounted for by the cost reduction method whereby the amounts of tax credits are applied as a reduction of the expense or deferred development costs.

Taxation

Income tax expense represents the sum of current and deferred taxes. Current and deferred taxes are recognized in net earnings, except to the extent it relates to items recognized in other comprehensive income (loss) or directly in equity.

Current tax

The tax currently payable is based on taxable income for the year. Taxable income differs from earnings as reported in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) because of items of income or expense that are taxable or deductible in other years and items that are never taxable or deductible. The Corporation's liability for current tax is calculated using tax rates that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the particular reporting period.

Deferred tax

Deferred tax is recognized on temporary differences between the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities in the Corporation's consolidated financial statements and the corresponding tax bases used in the computation of taxable income. Deferred tax liabilities are generally recognized for all taxable temporary differences. Deferred tax assets are recognized for all deductible temporary differences to the extent that it is probable that taxable income will be available against which those deductible temporary differences can be utilized. Such deferred tax assets and liabilities are not recognized if the temporary difference arises from goodwill or from the initial recognition (other than in a business combination) of other assets and liabilities in a transaction that affects neither the taxable income nor the accounting earnings.

Deferred tax liabilities are recognized for taxable temporary differences associated with investments and interests in subsidiaries and associates, except where the Corporation is able to control the reversal of the temporary difference and it is probable that the temporary difference will not reverse in the foreseeable future. Deferred tax assets arising from deductible temporary differences associated with such investments and interests are only recognized to the extent that it is probable that there will be sufficient taxable income against which to utilize the benefits of the temporary differences and they are expected to reverse in the foreseeable future.

The carrying amount of deferred tax assets is reviewed at the end of each reporting period and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable income will be available to allow all or part of any such asset to be recovered.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply in the period in which the liability is settled or the asset is realized, in each case based on tax rates and tax laws that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the reporting period. The measurement of deferred tax liabilities and assets reflects the tax consequences that would follow from the manner in which the Corporation expects, at the end of the particular reporting period, to recover or settle the carrying amount of its assets and liabilities.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are offset when there is a legally enforceable right to set off current tax assets against current tax liabilities and when they relate to income taxes levied by the same taxation authority and the Corporation intends to settle its current tax assets and liabilities on a net basis.

Stock-based Compensation

The Corporation has one share option plan and accounts for grants under this plan in accordance with the fair value-based method of accounting for stock-based compensation. Compensation expense for equity settled stock options awarded to employees under the plan is measured at the fair value at the grant date using the Black-Scholes valuation model and is recognized using the graded vesting method over the vesting period of the options granted. Compensation expense recognized is adjusted to reflect the number of options that has been estimated by Management for which conditions attaching to service will be fulfilled as of the grant date until the vesting date so that the recognized expense corresponds to the options that have actually vested. The compensation expense credit is attributed to contributed surplus when the expense is recognized in profit or loss. When options are exercised or shares are purchased, any consideration received from employees as well as the related compensation cost recorded as contributed surplus are credited to share capital.

Non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the goods and services received, except where that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the fair value cannot be measured reliably, non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the equity instrument granted as measured at the date the entity obtains the goods or the counterparty renders the service. The Corporation subsequently re-measures non-employee equity-settled share-based payments at each vesting period and settlement date with any changes in fair value recognized in profit or loss. Stock-based compensation expense is recognized over the contract life of the options or the option settlement date, whichever is earlier.

Leases

The determination of whether an arrangement is or contains a lease is based on the substance of such arrangement and requires an assessment of whether there is a conveyance of a right to use the asset subject to the arrangement. When substantially all risks and rewards of ownership are transferred from the lessor to the lessee, lease transactions are accounted for as finance leases. All other leases are accounted for as operating leases.

Corporation is the lessee

Leases of assets classified as finance leases are presented in the consolidated statements of financial position according to their nature. The interest element of the lease payment is recognized over the term of the lease based on the effective interest rate method and is included in financial expense in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss).

Payments made under operating leases are recognized in profit or loss on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease.

Provisions

Provisions represent liabilities of the Corporation for which the amount or timing of payment is uncertain. Provisions are recognized when the Corporation has a present legal or constructive obligation as a result of past events, it is probable that an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation, and the amount can be reliably estimated. Provisions are measured at the present value of the expected expenditures required to settle the obligation using a discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the obligation. The increase in provisions due to the passage of time is recognized in financial expenses on the consolidated statements of earnings (loss).

Provision for jackpot

Several of the Corporation's licensees participate in progressive jackpot games. Each time a progressive jackpot game is played, a portion of the amount wagered by the player is contributed to the jackpot for that specific game or group of games. Once a jackpot is won, the progressive jackpot is reset with a predetermined base amount. The Corporation maintains a provision for the reset for each jackpot and the progressive element added as the jackpot game is played. The provision for jackpots at the reporting date is included in provisions (see note 15). The Corporation believes that its provisions are sufficient to cover the full amount of any required payout.

Contingent consideration

The acquisition-date fair value of any contingent consideration is recognized as part of the consideration transferred by the Corporation in exchange for the acquiree. Changes in the fair value of contingent consideration that result from additional information obtained during the measurement period (i.e., a maximum of one year from the acquisition date) about facts and circumstances that existed at the acquisition date are adjusted retrospectively against goodwill. The adjustment is recognized in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) in accordance with the requirements for changes in assets or liabilities of the same nature.

Provision for minimum revenue guarantee

A provision for minimum revenue guarantee is recognized pursuant to an agreement with the vendor in the sale of Wagerlogic Ltd and Ongame Networks Ltd. The Corporation recognizes the best estimate of the amount that would be required to settle this obligation and the estimate is based on information that produces a range of amounts.

Royalties

The Corporation licenses various royalty rights from several owners of intellectual property rights. Generally, these arrangements require material prepayments of minimum guaranteed amounts which have been recorded as prepayments in the consolidated statements of financial position. These prepaid amounts are amortized over the life of the arrangement as gross revenue is generated or on a straight-line basis if the underlying games are expected to have an effective royalty rate greater than the agreed amount. The amortization of these amounts is recorded as royalty expense within selling expenses on the consolidated statements of earnings (loss).

The Corporation regularly reviews its estimates of future revenues under its license arrangements.

Critical Accounting Estimates and Judgments

The preparation of the Corporation's consolidated financial statements in accordance with IFRS requires Management to make estimates and assumptions that can have a significant effect on the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the consolidated financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period.

Estimates and judgments are significant when:

- the outcome is highly uncertain at the time the estimates are made; or
- different estimates or judgments could reasonably have been used that would have had a material impact on the consolidated financial statements.

The consolidated financial statements include estimates based on currently available information and Management's judgment as to the outcome of future conditions and circumstances. Management uses historical experience, general economic conditions and trends, as well as assumptions regarding probable future outcomes as the basis for determining estimates.

Estimates and their underlying assumptions are reviewed on a regular basis and the effects of any changes are recognized immediately. Changes in the status of certain facts or circumstances could result in material changes to the estimates used in the preparation of the consolidated financial statements and actual results could differ from the estimates and assumptions.

Set forth below are descriptions of items that require Management's most critical estimates and judgments.

Estimates

Fair value assessments on business combinations

The recognition of business combinations requires the excess of the purchase price of acquisitions over the net book value of net assets acquired to be allocated to the assets acquired and liabilities assumed of the acquiree. The Corporation makes judgements and estimates in relation to the determination of the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired, namely the intangible assets. The excess is assigned to goodwill.

Contingent consideration

The Corporation re-evaluates the fair value of the contingent consideration, including an “earn out”, on its business acquisitions at the end of each reporting period. Significant estimates are required to determine the fair value of the contingent consideration. The Corporation considers the key inputs of the particular arrangement and market participant assumptions when developing the projected cash flows that are used to determine the fair value of the contingent consideration. This includes the need to estimate the likelihood and timing of achieving the relevant milestones of the “earn out”. The Corporation exercises judgment when applying a probability assessment for each of the potential outcomes. In addition, the Corporation must consider the time value of money. In determining the discount rate applied to the estimated cash outflows, the Corporation considers the risks inherent to the contingent agreement such as projection risks, credit risks and liquidity risks.

Compound financial instruments

The Corporation has issued, and in the future may issue, compound financial instruments comprising both financial liability and equity components. The financial liability component is initially recognized at the fair value of a similar liability. The proceeds are then allocated between the financial liability and the equity components using the residual method. Significant estimates are made in determining the fair value of the financial liability component. To do so, Management determines the expected cash outflows that market participants would expect to incur in fulfilling the respective obligations. Then, Management estimates a market interest rate based on interest rates for a similar financial liability that does not have an equity conversion option. This market interest rate is used to discount the financial liability component. Actual cash outflows and interest rates may be different from estimates and may have an impact on the allocation of the proceeds to the financial liability and equity components.

Stock-based compensation and warrants

The Corporation estimates the expense related to stock-based compensation and the value of warrants using the Black-Scholes valuation model. This model takes into account Management’s best estimate of the exercise price of the stock option or warrant, an estimate of the expected life of the option or warrant, the current price of the underlying stock, an estimate of the stock’s or warrant’s volatility, an estimate of future dividends on the underlying stock, the risk-free rate of return expected for an instrument with a term equal to the expected life of the option or warrant, and the expected forfeiture rate of stock options granted (see note 20).

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are due to temporary differences between the carrying amount for accounting purposes and the tax basis of certain assets and liabilities, as well as undeducted tax losses. Estimation is required for the timing of the reversal of these temporary differences and the applicable tax rate. The carrying amounts of assets and liabilities are based on amounts recorded in the consolidated financial statements and are subject to the accounting estimates inherent in those balances. The tax basis of assets and liabilities and the amount of undeducted tax losses are based on the applicable income tax legislation, regulations and interpretations. The timing of the reversal of the temporary differences and the timing of deduction of tax losses are based on estimations of the Corporation’s future financial results.

The Corporation recognizes an income tax expense in each of the jurisdictions in which it operates. However, actual amounts of income tax expense only become final upon filing and acceptance of the tax return by the relevant authorities, which occur subsequent to the issuance of the financial statements. Additionally, estimation of income taxes includes evaluating the recoverability of deferred tax assets based on an assessment of the ability to use the underlying future tax deductions before they expire against future taxable income.

Such assessment is based upon enacted or substantively enacted tax laws and estimates of future taxable income. To the extent estimates differ from the actual amounts determined when preparing the final tax returns, earnings would be affected in a subsequent period.

Changes in the expected operating results, enacted tax rates, legislation or regulations, and the Corporation's interpretations of the same, will result in adjustments to the expectations of future timing difference reversals and may require material deferred tax adjustments. To the extent that forecasts differ from actual results, adjustments are recognized in subsequent reporting periods.

Judgments

Useful lives of long-lived assets

Judgment is used to estimate each component of an asset's useful life and is based on an analysis of all pertinent factors including, but not limited to, the expected use of the asset and, in the case of an intangible asset, contractual provisions that enable the renewal or extension of the asset's legal or contractual life without substantial cost, as well as renewal history. Incorrect estimates of useful lives could result in an increase or decrease in the annual amortization expense and future impairment charges.

Functional currency

The Corporation's worldwide operations expose the Corporation to transactions denominated in a number of different currencies, which are required to be translated into one currency for consolidated financial statement reporting purposes. The Corporation's foreign currency translation policy is designed to reflect the economic exposure of the Corporation's operations to various currencies.

The Corporation's foreign operations (including subsidiaries, joint ventures, associates and branches) based mainly outside Canada may have different functional currencies. The functional currency of an operation is the currency of the primary economic environment to which it is exposed. In other to determine the functional currency, Management will first consider the currency that influences sales prices of the goods and services provided by the operations and the currency that influences the costs incurred by the operations. Then, if based on these two primary factors, the functional currency is not obvious, Management will examine secondary factors such as the currency in which funds from financing are obtained, the currency in which cash receipts are retained and the levels of interactions with the parent company. In determining the functional currency of an operation, Management uses its judgement to determine the functional currency that most faithfully represents the economic effects of the underlying transactions, events and conditions.

3. RECENT ACCOUNTING PRONOUNCEMENTS

Changes in Accounting Policies Adopted

Offsetting Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities (Amendments to IAS 32)

Effective for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014, on a retrospective basis. The adoption of this standard did not have a material impact on the financial position and results of the Corporation.

Recoverable Amount Disclosures for Non-Financial Assets: Amendments to IAS 36

The IASB has published Recoverable Amount Disclosures for Non-Financial Assets (Amendments to IAS 36). These narrow-scope amendments to IAS 36, Impairment of Assets, address the disclosure of information about the recoverable amount of impaired assets if that amount is based on fair value less costs of disposal.

The amendments are to be applied retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014. The adoption of this standard did not have an impact on the disclosures presented in these consolidated financial statements.

Novation of Derivatives and Continuation of Hedge Accounting: Amendments to IAS 39

The amendments to IAS 39 provide relief from the requirement to discontinue hedge accounting when a derivative designated as a hedge instrument is novated under certain circumstances. The amendments also clarify that any change to the fair value of the derivative designated as a hedging instrument arising from the novation should be included in the assessment and measurement of hedge effectiveness. The amendments required retrospective application. The adoption of this standard did not have a material impact on the financial position and results of the Corporation.

Levies: Amendments to IFRIC 21

IFRIC 21 addresses the issue of when to recognize a liability to pay a levy. The interpretation defines a "levy" and specifies that the obligation event that gives rise to the liability is the activity that triggers the payment of the levy, as identified by legislation. The interpretation provides guidance on how different levy arrangements should be accounted for, in particular, it clarifies that neither economic compulsion nor the going concern basis of financial statements preparation implies that an entity has a present obligation to pay a levy that will be triggered by operating in a future period. IFRIC 21 requires retrospective application. The adoption of this standard did not have a material impact on the financial position and results of the Corporation.

New Accounting Pronouncements – Not Yet Effective

IFRS 9, Financial Instruments

The IASB issued IFRS 9 relating to the classification and measurement of financial assets. IFRS 9 uses a single approach to determine whether a financial asset is measured at amortized cost or fair value, replacing the many different rules in IAS 39. The approach in IFRS 9 is based on how an entity manages its financial instruments (i.e., its business model) and the contractual cash flow characteristics of such financial assets.

IFRS 9 also includes a new hedge accounting model, together with corresponding disclosures about risk management activity for those applying hedge accounting.

An entity shall apply IFRS 9 retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2018 with early adoption permitted. The Corporation is currently evaluating the impact of applying this standard.

IFRS 15, Revenues from Contracts with Customers

The Financial Accounting Standards Board and IASB have issued converged standards on revenue recognition. This new IFRS 15 affects any entity using IFRS that either enters into contracts with customers to transfer goods or services or enters into contracts for the transfer of nonfinancial assets, in each case, unless those contracts are within the scope of other standards. This IFRS will supersede the revenue recognition requirements in IAS 18 and most industry-specific guidance.

The core principle of the guidance is that an entity should recognize revenue to depict the transfer of promised goods or services to customers in an amount that reflects the consideration to which the entity expects to be entitled in exchange for those goods or services. To achieve that core principle, an entity should apply the following steps:

- Step 1: Identify the contract with a customer.
- Step 2: Identify the performance obligations in the contract.
- Step 3: Determine the transaction price.
- Step 4: Allocate the transaction price to the performance obligations in the contract.
- Step 5: Recognize revenue when (or as) the entity satisfies a performance obligation.

An entity shall apply IFRS 15 for annual reporting periods beginning on or after January 1, 2017. Earlier application is permitted. The Corporation is currently evaluating the impact of applying this standard.

A number of B2B-related intangible assets have been determined to be redundant to the Corporation's core operations, its B2C operation. Impairment losses in the amount of $6,176,000 (2013 - $nil) were therefore recognized during the year ended December 31, 2014.

Goodwill and intangible assets are allocated to the following cash generating units (CGUs):

Impairment Testing

Annual impairment tests were carried out in connection with the preparation of the financial statements as at December 31, 2014 for the B2C operations and the Other CGUs. In each case, a recoverable amount has been determined based on fair value less costs of disposal methodologies.

The principal assumptions made in determining the fair value less costs of disposal of the B2C operations are as follows:

Management used the implied trading multiple of its net earnings from continuing operations before income taxes, income from investments, gain on sale of subsidiary, depreciation and amortization, financial expenses and acquisition-related costs ("Adjusted EBITDA") estimated for the twelve months ending December 31, 2014 to determine the fair value less costs of disposal amount of the B2C operations. Key assumptions include the Corporation's share price, a control premium, estimated costs of disposal and estimated Adjusted EBITDA for the twelve months ending December 31, 2014. The share price used in the valuation was determined using the volume weighted average price for the 20 days up to December 31, 2014. A control premium of 9.4% was used, based on market research of premiums implied in similar transactions. Costs of disposal were estimated at 1% of the fair value amount. Estimated Adjusted EBITDA was based on the actual Adjusted EBITDA for the five months ended December 31, 2014. Based on the key assumptions, the implied multiple of enterprise value to estimated Adjusted EBITDA for the last twelve months was 16x. The recoverable amount of the B2C operations was determined by applying the Corporation's implied multiple of 16x to the estimated Adjusted EBITDA of the B2C operations.

Any reasonable possible change to these principal assumptions is unlikely to cause the CGU's carrying value to exceed its recoverable amount. This fair value measurement is a level 3 measurement in the fair value hierarchy.

Based on the impairment tests performed, the recoverable amount of each CGU was in excess of its carrying amount and accordingly, there is no impairment of the carrying value of the goodwill or intangible assets with indefinite useful lives.

13. CREDIT FACILITY

The Corporation's credit facilities include an unsecured revolving demand credit facility of USD $100 million and a first lien revolving demand credit facility of $3 million, each of which can be used for general working capital purposes and other corporate purposes. The Corporation obtained these credit facilities on August 1, 2014 and they are priced at LIBOR plus 3.75% or ABR plus 2.75%, and mature on August 1, 2019. The applicable commitment fee on these revolving credit facilities is based on a leverage ratio of 3.75 to 1.00 and could range from 0.375% to 0.50%.

These credit facilities contain customary covenants, including, without limitation, maintenance covenants based on certain agreed-upon leverage ratios each of which the Corporation was in compliance with as of December 31, 2014.

The $3 million facility bears interest at the lender's prime rate plus between 1.25% and 2% depending on the Corporation's fixed charge coverage ratio. To secure the full repayment of advances, which as of December 31, 2014 equaled $ nil, the Corporation has provided the lender with a first lien security interest over all of the Corporation's personal or otherwise movable property.

14. OTHER PAYABLES

The Corporation's other payables mainly relate to the settlement with the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ) Southern District of New York, announced in July 2012. As part of the settlement agreement, PokerStars also acquired the assets of its primary competitor at the time, Full Tilt Poker, and committed to the full reimbursement of Full Tilt Poker customers inside and outside the United States. The funds required to settle the payment are included in current restricted cash (see note 6). The Frequent player points relates to loyalty schemes operated by the B2C business for its customers, which involves awarding customer loyalty points based on amounts wagered. The points can be used to make a wide variety of purchases in lieu of cash or can be exchanged for cash. Management has estimated the value of the liability using relevant historical information about the likelihood and magnitude of an outflow of resources. The Corporation maintains sufficient overhead in cash and investments to cover the estimated future frequent player point liability.

The 2013 Debentures mature and are repayable on January 31, 2016. Each warrant entitles the holder thereof to acquire one Common Share at a price per Common Share equal to $6.25 at any time until January 31, 2016.

The Corporation has determined the fair value of the debt component of the units. At the time of issuance, the proceeds were allocated between the debt and the equity components using the residual method.

On December 20, 2013, Cadillac Jack entered into an agreement for the refinancing of its credit facilities. Under this agreement, Cadillac Jack has access to term loans in an aggregate principal amount of up to USD $160 million (the "Credit Facilities"). The Credit Facilities replaced the existing USD $110 million non-convertible senior secured term loan secured by Cadillac Jack's assets that was made available to finance the acquisition of Cadillac Jack by Amaya as of November 5, 2012 (the "2012 Loan"). The Credit Facilities were used to fully repay the outstanding balance on the 2012 Loan, as well as related fees and expenses, and the remaining amounts are being used to fund the ongoing working capital and other general corporate purposes. On May 15, 2014, Cadillac Jack obtained an incremental USD $80 million term loan to the Credit Facilities through an amendment thereto for the purpose of financing working capital expenses and general corporate purposes of the Corporation. The new aggregate principal amount of USD$240 million bears interest at a per annum rate equal to LIBOR plus 8.5% with a 1% LIBOR floor (as amended, the "Senior Facility"). The Senior Facility will mature over a five-year term from the closing date and is secured by the stock of Cadillac Jack and the assets of Cadillac Jack and its subsidiaries. The Senior Facility contains customary covenants, including, without limitation, maintenance and incurrence covenants based on certain agreed-upon leverage and coverage ratios, each of which the Corporation was in compliance with as of December 31, 2014. (d) First and Second Lien Term Loans

On August 1, 2014 Amaya completed the Rational Group Acquisition, which was partly financed through the issuance of long term debt, allocated as follows:

First Lien Term Loans

The first lien term loans consist of a USD$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan priced at Libor plus 4.00% (the "USD First Lien Term Loan") and a €200 million seven-year first lien term loan priced at Euribor plus 4.25% (the "EUR First Lien Term Loan" and, together with the USD First Lien Term Loan, the "First Lien Term Loans"), in each case with a 1.00% Libor and Euribor floor.

The Corporation is required to allocate 50% of the excess cash flow of the Corporation to the principal repayment of the First Lien Term Loans. Excess cash flow is referred to as EBITDA of the Rational Group on a consolidated basis for such excess cash flow period (i.e., each fiscal year commencing with the fiscal year ending on December 31, 2015), minus, without duplication, debt service , capital expenditures, permitted business acquisitions and investments, taxes paid in cash , increases in working capital, cash expenditures in respect of swap agreements, any extraordinary, unusual or nonrecurring loss, income or gain on asset dispositions, and plus, without any duplication, decreases in working capital, capital expenditures funded with the proceeds of the issuance of debt or the issuance of equity, cash payments received in respect of swap agreements, any extraordinary, unusual or nonrecurring gain realized in cash and cash interest income to the extent deducted in the computation of EBITDA.

The percentage allocated to the principal repayment can fluctuate based on the following:

- If the total secured leverage ratio at the end of the applicable excess cash flow period is less than or equal to 4.75 to 1.00 but is greater than 4.00 to 1.00, the repayments will be 25% of the excess cash flow.
- If the total secured leverage ratio at the end of the applicable excess cash flow period is less than or equal to 4.00 to 1.00, the repayment will be 0% of the excess cash flow.

The agreement for the First Lien Term Loans restricts the Corporation from, among other things, incurring additional debt or granting additional liens on its assets and equity, distributing equity interests and distributing any assets to third parties.

During the year ended December 31, 2014, the Corporation incurred $46.24 million in interest of which $4.84 million relates to interest accretion in relation to the USD First Lien Term Loan.

Interest Rate Risk

The Corporation is exposed to fair value interest rate risk with respect to its senior facility, mezzanine facility and 2013 debentures and other long-term debt which bear a fixed rate of interest. The Corporation is exposed to cash flow interest rate risk on its refinanced senior secured term loan and first and second lien term loans which bears interest at variable rates. A one percentage point increase (decrease) in interest rates would have decreased (increased) net earnings before income taxes by approximately $17,089,000 for the year, with all other variables held constant. Management monitors movements in the interest rates by reviewing the Bank of Canada prime rate, Euribor and Libor on a quarterly basis.

Credit Risk

The Corporation, in the normal course of business, monitors the financial condition of its customers and reviews the credit history of each new customer. The Corporation establishes an allowance for doubtful accounts that corresponds to the credit risk of its specific customers, historical trends and economic circumstances. The Corporation is exposed to credit risk in the event of non-payment by certain customers for their accounts receivable.

Trade receivables include amounts that are past due at the end of the reporting period for which the Corporation has not recognised an allowance for doubtful debts because there has not been a significant change in credit quality and the amounts are still considered recoverable.

Age of receivables that are past due but not impaired:

	December 31, 2014 $000's	December 31, 2013 $000's
Past due less than 181 days	3,847	6,826
Past due more than 181 days	3,203	16,150

The allowance for doubtful accounts is $822,000 (2013 – 1,464,000) as at December 31, 2014.

Age of impaired trade receivables:

	December 31, 2014 $000's	December 31, 2013 $000's
Past due less than 181 days	563	250
Past due more than 181 days	4,431	781
Total past due	4,994	1,031

Liquidity Risk

Liquidity risk is the Corporation's ability to meet its financial obligations when they come due. The Corporation is exposed to liquidity risk with respect to its contractual obligations and financial liabilities. The Corporation manages liquidity risk by continuously monitoring forecast and actual cash flows and matching maturity profiles of financial assets and liabilities. The Corporation's objective is to maintain a balance between continuity of funding and flexibility through borrowing facilities available through the Corporation's bank and other lenders. The Corporation's policy is to ensure adequate funding is available from operations, established lending facilities and other sources as required.

The Corporation believes that future cash flows generated by operations and availability under its borrowing facility will be adequate to meet its financial obligations.

Customer deposit liabilities relate to player deposits which are held in segregated multiple bank accounts from those holding operational funds. These deposits are included in current assets in the consolidated statements of financial position under cash and investments (see note 16).

The following table provides information about the terms of the financial obligations and liabilities:

	On demand $000's	Less than 1 year $000's	2 to 5 years $000's	Greater than 5 years $000's

23. FAIR VALUE

The Corporation has determined that the carrying values of its short-term financial assets and liabilities approximate their fair value because of the relatively short periods to maturity of these instruments and low risk of credit.

The carrying amount of receivable under finance leases approximates their fair value since the interest rate approximates current market rates. On initial recognition the fair value of amounts receivable under finance leases and long-term debt was established using a discounted cash-flow model.

Certain of the Corporation's financial assets are measured at fair value at the end of each reporting period. The following table provides information about how the fair values of these financial assets are determined:

	As at December 31, 2014
	Fair value & Carrying value $000's	Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Funds- Available for sale	173,799	173,799	—	—
Bonds- Available for sale	122,528	122,528	—	—
Convertible debentures- Fair value through profit/loss	19,358	8,278	11,080	—

Equity in private companies—Available for sale	10,391	—	—	10,391
Total financial assets	410,426	388,955	11,080	10,391

The fair values of other financial assets and liabilities measured at carrying value on the statements of financial position are as follows:

	Fair value $000's	Level 1	Level 2	Level 3

Convertible debentures- Fair value through profit/loss	3,850	—	—	3,850
Equity in private companies—Available for sale	5,400	—	—	5,400
Total financial assets	9,250	—	—	9,250

The fair values of other financial assets and liabilities measured at carrying value on the statements of financial position are as follows:

	As at December 31, 2013
	Fair value $000's	Level 1	Level 2	Level 3
Credit Facilities and Senior Facility	168,474	—	168,474	—
2013 Debentures	30,030	30,030	—	—
Total financial assets and liabilities	198,504	30,030	168,474	—

Level 1 assets include those assets where fair value can easily be derived from observable, quoted prices in active markets. Level 2 assets include those assets where fair value is not available from normal market pricing sources. Level 3 assets include those assets for which there is little to no activity for the asset or liability. The values of the majority of Level 3 assets and liabilities were obtained from internal pricing models, multiples of earnings, external transactions or by discounting projected cash flows. Financial assets and liabilities utilizing Level 3 inputs include private equities and private debt. There were no transfers in or out of level 3 during the year.

24. CAPITAL MANAGEMENT

The Corporation's objective in managing capital is to ensure a sufficient liquidity position to market its products, to finance its sales and marketing activities, research and development activities, general and administrative expenses, working capital and overall capital expenditures, including those associated with property and equipment. The ability to fund these requirements in the future depends on the Corporation's ability to continue generating additional cash flow from its operations.

Since inception, the Corporation has financed its liquidity needs, primarily through bank indebtedness, borrowings, hybrid instruments and issuance of capital stock. The Corporation meets all of its current liquidity requirements from the cash flow generated from its current operations.

The Corporation defines capital as its total equity attributable to shareholders.

The Corporation's capital management objectives are to optimize capital structure with a view to both deleverage existing operations and minimize dilution by focusing improving profitability, repaying debt and launching opportunistic stock buy-back programs.

The Corporation believes that funds from operations, as well as existing and future financial resources should be sufficient to meet the Corporation's requirements beyond December 31, 2015.

On August 1 2014, an additional credit facility of USD $100 million five-year first lien revolving credit facility priced at Libor plus 4.00% was secured. The credit facility can be used for working capital and general corporate purposes.

As at December 31, 2014, the outstanding amount of the first lien revolving credit facility is $nil (December 31, 2013- $nil).

30. DISCONTINUED OPERATIONS

As the Corporation focuses on its B2C operations, on November 24, 2014, Amaya divested Ongame Network Ltd. ("Ongame"), its B2B poker and platform provider, to NYX Gaming Group Ltd. ("NYX Gaming Group"). Concurrently with the transaction, Amaya made a strategic investment in NYX Gaming Group via a subscription of a $9 million unsecured convertible debenture, which matures two years after the date of issuance and bears interest at 6.00% per annum, payable at maturity. Interest and principal are payable in kind in NYX Gaming Group common shares at Amaya's option.

The Corporation derecognized the net assets, resulting in a loss of $ 32,219,000 that was recognized in net loss from discontinued operations in the consolidated statement of earnings (loss). The Corporation has provided for the full minimum revenue guarantee of CAD $4.2 million payable within the next 12 months.

31. BUSINESS COMBINATIONS

Diamond Game

The acquisition of 100% of the shares of Diamond Game has been accounted for using the acquisition method and the results of operations are included in the consolidated statement of earnings (loss) from the date of acquisition, which was February 14, 2014.

The following table summarizes the estimated fair value of the identifiable assets and liabilities acquired at the date of acquisition:

	Fair value on acquisition $CAD 000'S
Property and equipment	6,442
Intangible assets	7,264
Goodwill (tax deductible)	18,166
Deferred income tax liability	(2,761)
Other	(522)
Total consideration	28,589
Cash consideration	22,061
Fair value of holdback on purchase price	6,528
	28,589

Of the CAD $28.59 million (USD$26.03 million) consideration paid by Amaya in connection with the acquisition of Diamond Game, there was a holdback of CAD $7.69 million (USD $7 million) which is still payable at December 31, 2014.

The main factors leading to the recognition of goodwill are the synergistic growth and revenues expected to be created from the strong strategic fit between Amaya and Diamond Game. Diamond Game presents a variety of opportunities to leverage each business' product and intellectual property suite across a broader combined platform with greater geographic presence and creates revenue synergies by expanding Amaya's penetration in the United States, accelerating Amaya's penetration in Lottery markets, and potentially extending Diamond Game's offering into new markets in Canada and Europe.

If the acquisition had occurred on January 1, 2014, Diamond Game would have contributed USD $18.52 million and USD ($1.04) million to consolidated revenues and net earnings (loss), respectively. Since the date of acquisition, Diamond Game has contributed USD $16.18 million and USD ($0.44) million to consolidated revenues and net earnings (loss), respectively.

Acquisition-related costs directly related to the Diamond Game acquisition were USD$1,145,834 and were expensed in net earnings during the year ended December 31, 2013 and in the period ended March 31, 2014.

Oldford Group Limited

The acquisition of 100% of the shares of Oldford Group Limited ("Oldford Group") has been accounted for using the acquisition method and the results of operations are included in the consolidated statements of earnings (loss) from the date of acquisition, which was August 1, 2014.

The following table summarizes the preliminary estimated fair value of the identifiable assets and liabilities acquired at the date of acquisition:

	Fair value on acquisition $CAD 000's
Cash	390,639
Accounts receivable	123,117
Prepaid expenses and deposits	38,599
Investments	373,692
Property and equipment	51,369
Accounts payables and accrued liabilities	(111,818)
Other payables	(105,982)
Provisions	(21,844)
Customer deposits	(663,594)
Intangible assets	2,213,606
Goodwill	3,055,410
Deferred income tax liability	(22,820)
Other	(2,759)
Total consideration	5,317,615
Fair value of deferred payment	391,000
	5,708,615

The main factors leading to the recognition of goodwill are the number of benefits to Amaya's shareholders the Corporation believes the acquisition will provide. These include the following:

- Acquisition of Leading Brands: The acquisition has resulted in a wholly-owned subsidiary of Amaya owning two global leading brands in online poker, PokerStars and Full-Tilt
- Leading Liquidity: PokerStars.com average cash game liquidity is approximately eight times larger than the next competitor, and PokerStars is a leader in almost every regulated market in which it operates.

- New Verticals: Introduction of online real money casino and/or online sportsbook in those markets where permitted, are new opportunities for cross selling to the existing poker player base and to acquire new customers.

If the acquisition had occurred on January 1, 2014, Oldford Group would have contributed CAD$1.26 billion and CAD$462 million to consolidated revenues and net earnings, respectively. Since the date of acquisition, Oldford Group has contributed CAD$547 million and CAD$230 million to consolidated revenues and net earnings, respectively.

Acquisition-related costs directly related to the Rational Group Acquisition were USD$17.81 million and were expensed in net earnings in the year ended December 31, 2014.

The Rational Group Acquisition includes a deferred payment of USD$400 million which shall be subject to adjustment, payable on February 1, 2017, based upon the regulatory status of online poker in Russia within 30 months of close. If Russia continues to operate under the status quo, the Corporation will owe USD$400 million. If Russia formally regulates online poker and the Corporation obtains a license in the newly regulated framework and there is evidence that the new tax rate would be “beneficial”, as defined in the merger agreement, then the Corporation will owe up to USD$550 million. If Russia deems online poker illegal, the Corporation will owe USD$100 million.

The current fair value of the deferred payment of USD$ 346 million (CAD$ 391 million) is recorded in Provisions (see note 15) and was calculated using a 6% discount rate, equivalent to the discount rate negotiated by the parties in case of early payment of the deferred payment.

On March 11, 2015, the Corporation commented on a tax dispute between a subsidiary of Rational Group and Italian tax authorities related to operations of such subsidiary, particularly under the PokerStars brand, in Italy prior to the Rational Group Acquisition. The Corporation was aware of the dispute prior to Rational Group Acquisition, but believes Rational Group has operated in compliance with the applicable local tax regulations and has paid €120 million in local taxes during the period subject to the dispute.

Although management is currently assessing the potential exposure, if any, the Corporation believes that any tax liability as part of this matter are indemnifiable by the former owners of the Oldford Group under the agreement governing the transactions, subject to certain conditions. Pursuant to this agreement, the sellers have agreed to indemnify the Corporation for pre-closing tax liabilities including amounts held in an escrow account plus an additional amount not held in escrow and reserved solely for tax claims.

The purchase price allocation does not reflect the impact on any contingencies arising from circumstances that were present on the date of acquisition on August 1, 2014. In the event that a measurable outcome is ascertainable as a result of these contingencies during the reference period spanning one year from the date of acquisition, the impact will be recorded as an adjustment to purchase price allocation reflecting both the contingent liability and the offsetting indemnification asset. Any impact that becomes both measurable and more likely than not after the reference period will not be reflected as an adjustment to the purchase price allocation.

PYR Software Ltd

The acquisition of 100% of the shares of PYR Software Ltd has been accounted for using the acquisition method and the results of operations are included in the consolidated statement of earnings (loss) from the date of acquisition, which is September 1, 2014.

The following table summarizes the estimated fair value of the identifiable assets and liabilities acquired at the date of acquisition:

	Fair value on acquisition $000's
Cash	13,552
Accounts receivable	922
Investment tax credits receivable	1,422
Accounts payable and accrued liabilities	(8,277)
Income tax payable	(3,300)
Other	697
Goodwill	8,144
Total cash consideration	13,160

PYR Software Ltd previously provided software development and support for the Oldford Group. Amaya acquired the company as it was the primary outsourced games studio and development center supporting the Oldford Group business.

If the acquisition had occurred on January 1, 2014, PYR Software Ltd would have contributed nil to consolidated revenues and CAD$(42.66) million net earnings, respectively. Since the date of acquisition, PYR Software Ltd. has contributed nil to consolidated revenues and CAD$(14.22) million net earnings, respectively.

Acquisition-related costs directly related to the PYR Software Ltd. acquisition was CAD$32,000 and was expensed in the consolidated statement of earnings (loss) in the year ended December 31, 2014.

33. NET EARNINGS PER SHARE

The following table sets forth the computation of basic and diluted earnings (loss) from continuing operations and earnings (loss) per common share for the years ended December 31, 2014 and 2013.

	For the years ended
	December 31, 2014	December 31, 2013
Numerator
Numerator for basic and diluted (loss) per common share – net earnings (loss) from continuing operations	$ 57,188,000	$ (4,765,000)
Numerator for basic and diluted (loss) per common share – net earnings (loss)	$ (7,529,000)	$(29,173,000)
Denominator
Denominator for basic earnings (loss) per common share – weighted average number of common shares	109,943,961	89,490,789
Effect of dilutive securities
Stock options	2,837,519	1,783,914
Warrants	5,255,720	2,011,863
Convertible preferred shares	19,769,648	—
Effect of dilutive securities	27,862,887	3,795,777
Dilutive potential common shares	137,806,848	93,286,566
Denominator for dilutive impact per common share – adjusted weighted number of shares	137,806,848	89,490,789
Basic earnings (loss) from continuing operations per common share	$ 0.52	$ (0.05)
Diluted earnings (loss) from continuing operations per common share	$ 0.41	$ (0.05)
Basic earnings (loss) per common share	$ (0.07)	$ (0.33)
Diluted earnings (loss) per common share	$ (0.07)	$ (0.33)

For the year ended December 31, 2013, the diluted loss per share was the same as the basic net loss per share since the dilutive effect of stock options and warrants was not included in the calculation; otherwise the effect would have been anti-dilutive. Accordingly, the diluted loss per share for the period was calculated using the basic weighted average number of common shares outstanding.

34. SALE OF WAGERLOGIC MALTA HOLDINGS LTD.

On February 11, 2014, the Corporation announced that pursuant to a Share Purchase Agreement dated November 27, 2013, one of its subsidiaries has completed the previously announced sale to Goldstar Acquisitionco Inc. of all of the issued and outstanding shares of WagerLogic Malta Holdings Ltd. for $70 million, less a closing working capital adjustment satisfied through cash consideration of $52.50 million and a vendor take-back in the form of a promissory note of $10 million, bearing interest at 6.0% per annum payable semi-annually in arrears starting in the second year following the closing date and due on the fourth anniversary of the closing date.

Subsidiaries of Amaya supply WagerLogic with services to the InterCasino Business pursuant to a services agreement.

The Share Purchase Agreement includes an earn out agreement pursuant to which the Corporation thereunder may receive additional cash consideration of up to US$20 million payable on the first and second anniversary date from closing based on the achievement of certain revenue targets, as well as a minimum revenue guarantee agreement pursuant to which the Corporation, in the first two years following the closing, may pay cash consideration of up to US$19 million annually if certain revenue targets are not achieved by the InterCasino Business. The Corporation has estimated a provision for the minimum revenue guarantee to be USD$36.27 million ($42.08 million CAD), of which (i) USD $20.61 million ($23.92 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 15); (ii) USD $5.63 million ($6.53 million CAD) was offset against the promissory note of $10 million CAD; (iii) USD $6.28 million ($7.29 million CAD) was paid, and, (iv) USD $ 3.75 million ($4.35 million CAD) was included in accounts payable. No earn out was received or receivable by the Corporation at December 31, 2014. The resulting gain on sale of Wagerlogic of $19.56 million was presented in net earnings from continuing operations.

35. SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

Normal Course Issuer Bid

On February 13, 2015, Amaya announced that the Toronto Stock Exchange (the "TSX") approved its notice of intention to make a normal course issuer bid ("2015 NCIB") to purchase for cancellation up to 6,644,737 common shares, representing approximately 5% of Amaya's issued and outstanding as of January 26, 2015. The Corporation may purchase the common shares at prevailing market prices and by means of open market transactions through the facilities of the TSX or by such other means as may be permitted by the TSX rules and policies. The Corporation will determine in its sole discretion from time to time the actual number of common shares that it will purchase and the timing of any such purchases. In accordance with the applicable TSX rules, daily purchases under the 2015 NCIB may not exceed 161,724 common shares, representing 25% of the average daily trading volume of the common shares for the six-month period ending on January 31, 2015, and the Corporation may make, once per calendar week, a block purchase of common shares not owned, directly or indirectly, by insiders of Amaya that exceeds the daily repurchase restriction. The 2015 NCIB commenced on February 18, 2015 and will remain in effect until the earlier of February 17, 2016 or the date on which the Corporation has purchased the maximum number of common shares permitted under the 2015 NCIB. As of March 30, 2015, the Corporation has not purchased any common shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB. Amaya is making the 2015 NCIB because it believes that, from time to time, the prevailing market price of its common shares may not reflect the underlying value of the Corporation, and that purchasing common shares for cancellation will increase the proportionate interest of, and be advantageous to, all remaining shareholders.

Cross Currency Swap

On March 16, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into cross currency swap agreements (the "Swap Agreements") that it anticipates will result in lower interest payments on existing debt and mitigate the impact of fluctuations in the Euro to USD exchange rate. The Swap Agreements allow for the creation of synthetic Euro-denominated debt with fixed Euro interest payments at an average rate of 4.6016% (a simple average of the different interest rates for the various Swap Agreements) to replace the USD interest payments bearing a minimum floating interest rate of 5.0% (USD 3 month LIBOR plus a 4.0% margin, with a LIBOR floor of 1.0%) related to the USD$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan secured by Amaya on August 1, 2014 to finance a portion of the Rational Group Acquisition. The interest and principal payments for the Swap Agreements, which mature in five years, will be made at a Euro to USD forex rate of 1.1102 on USD notional amounts of $1.74125 billion.

Sale of Cadillac Jack

On March 30, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into a definitive agreement to sell Cadillac Jack (the "CJ Sale") for approximately $476 million comprising cash consideration of $461 million, subject to adjustment, and a $15 million payment-in-kind note, bearing interest at 5.0% per annum and due on the eighth anniversary of the closing date. Subject to receipt of gaming regulatory and antitrust approvals and other customary closing conditions, Amaya anticipates closing the CJ Sale in 2015. Amaya anticipates using the net proceeds from the CJ Sale primarily for deleveraging, including the repayment of the Credit Facilities, Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility (each as defined below). There can be no assurance as to if and when the CJ Sale will occur.

1. NATURE OF BUSINESS

Amaya Inc. (“Amaya” or the “Corporation”), formerly Amaya Gaming Group Inc., is a leading provider of technology-based products and services in the global gaming and interactive entertainment industries. Amaya has two reportable segments, Business-to-Consumer (“B2C”) and Business-to-Business (“B2B”). For the period ended March 31, 2015, B2C consisted of Rational Group (as defined below), while B2B, after accounting for discontinued operations, consisted of Amaya’s B2B interactive gaming solutions.

Amaya’s primary business is its B2C operations, which it acquired through the acquisition of Oldford Group Limited (now known as Amaya Group Holdings (IOM) Limited) (“Oldford Group”), parent company of Rational Group Ltd. (“Rational Group”) on August 1, 2014 (the “Rational Group Acquisition”). Rational Group operates globally and conducts its principal activities from its headquarters in the Isle of Man. Rational Group owns and operates gaming and related businesses and brands including, among others, PokerStars, Full Tilt, the European Poker Tour, PokerStars Caribbean Adventure, Latin American Poker Tour and the Asia Pacific Poker Tour. 2. BASIS OF PRESENTATION AND SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

These interim condensed consolidated financial statements have been prepared using accounting policies consistent with International Financial Reporting Standards as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board (“IASB”, and International Financial Reporting Standards as issued by IASB, “IFRS”) and in accordance with International Accounting Standard (“IAS”) 34—Interim Financial Reporting as issued by IASB, and do not include all of the information required for full annual consolidated financial statements. The accounting policies and methods of computation applied in these interim condensed consolidated financial statements are consistent with those applied by the Corporation in its audited consolidated financial statements as at and for the year ended December 31, 2014 and related notes contained therein (the “2014 Financial Statements”), except for the newly adopted accounting policies described below that have no impact on the comparative period presented in these interim condensed consolidated financial statements and no impact on the 2014 Financial Statements. These interim condensed consolidated financial statements should be read in conjunction with the 2014 Financial Statements.

New Significant Accounting Policies

Derivative Financial Instruments

From time to time the Corporation uses derivative instruments for risk management purposes. The Corporation does not use derivative instruments for speculative trading purposes. All derivatives are recorded at fair value on the statements of financial position. The method of recognizing unrealized and realized fair value gains and losses depends on whether the derivatives are designated as hedging instruments. For derivatives not designated as hedging instruments, unrealized gains and losses are recorded in financial expenses on the condensed consolidated statements of earnings. For derivatives designated as hedging instruments, unrealized and realized gains and losses are recognized according to the nature of the hedged item.

Derivatives are valued using market transactions and other market evidence whenever possible, including market-based inputs to models, broker or dealer quotations or alternative pricing sources. To qualify for hedge accounting, the relationship between the hedged item and the hedging instrument must meet several strict conditions on documentation, probability of occurrence, hedge effectiveness and reliability of measurement. If these conditions are not met, then the relationship does not qualify for hedge accounting treatment and both the hedged item and the hedging instrument are reported independently, as if there was no hedging relationship.

The Corporation currently uses derivatives for cash flow hedges. The effective portion of the change in fair value of the hedging instrument is recorded in other comprehensive income, while the ineffective portion is recognized immediately in net earnings. Gains and losses on cash flow hedges that accumulate in other comprehensive income are transferred to net earnings in the same period the hedged item affects net earnings. Gains and losses on cash flow hedges are immediately reclassified from other comprehensive income to net earnings when it is probable that a forecasted transaction is no longer expected to occur.

Hedges of net investments in foreign operations are accounted for similarly to cash flow hedges. Any gain or loss on the hedging instrument relating to the effective portion of the hedge is recognized in the consolidated statements of comprehensive income. The gain or loss relating to the ineffective portion is recognized in the consolidated statements of earnings. Gains and losses accumulated in other comprehensive income are included in the condensed consolidated statements of earnings when the foreign operation is partially disposed of or sold.

IFRS 9, Financial Instruments

The IASB issued IFRS 9 relating to the classification and measurement of financial assets. IFRS 9 uses a single approach to determine whether a financial asset is measured at amortized cost or fair value, replacing the many different rules in IAS 39. The approach in IFRS 9 is based on how an entity manages its financial instruments (i.e., its business model) and the contractual cash flow characteristics of such financial assets.

IFRS 9 also includes a new hedge accounting model, together with corresponding disclosures about risk management activity for those applying hedge accounting.

An entity shall apply IFRS 9 retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1 2018, with early adoption permitted. The Corporation is currently evaluating the impact of applying this standard.

IFRS 15, Revenues from Contracts with Customers

The Financial Accounting Standards Board and IASB have issued converged standards on revenue recognition. This new IFRS 15 affects any entity using IFRS that either enters into contracts with customers to transfer goods or services or enters into contracts for the transfer of nonfinancial assets, in each case, unless those contracts are within the scope of other standards. This IFRS will supersede the revenue recognition requirements in IAS 18 and most industry-specific guidance.

The core principle of the guidance is that an entity should recognize revenue to depict the transfer of promised goods or services to customers in an amount that reflects the consideration to which the entity expects to be entitled in exchange for those goods or services.

On April 28, 2015, the IASB tentatively decided to postpone the initial January 1, 2017 effective date to January 1, 2018 with early adoption permitted. The Corporation is currently evaluating the impact of applying this standard.

5. CUSTOMER DEPOSITS

Customer deposit liabilities relate to customer deposits which are held in segregated multiple bank accounts from those holding operational funds. Both PokerStars and Full Tilt hold customer deposits, along with winnings and any bonuses, in trust accounts from which money may not be removed if it would result in a shortfall of such deposits. These deposits are included in current assets in the condensed consolidated statements of financial position under cash and investments, which includes short term, highly liquid available for sale investments.

Additionally, the Corporation has $101.91 million in frequent player points, which are included in “other payables” under current liabilities in the condensed consolidated statements of financial position. Frequent player points relates to loyalty programs operated by the B2C business for its customers, which involves awarding customer loyalty points based on, among other factors, amounts wagered. The points can be used to make a wide variety of purchases in lieu of cash or can be exchanged for cash. Management has estimated the value of the liability using relevant historical information about the likelihood and magnitude of an outflow of resources, i.e., payment of frequent play points to loyal customers. The Corporation maintains sufficient overhead in cash and investments to cover the estimated future frequent player point liability.

(a) First and Second Lien Term Loans

On August 1, 2014, Amaya completed the Rational Group Acquisition, which was partly financed through the issuance of long term-debt, allocated into first and second lien term loans. The first lien term loans consist of a USD$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan priced at LIBOR plus 4.00% (the “USD First Lien Term Loan”) and a €200 million seven-year first lien term loan priced at Euribor plus 4.25% (the “EUR First Lien Term Loan”), in each case with a 1.00% LIBOR and Euribor floor. The second lien term loan consists of a USD$800 million eight-year loan priced at LIBOR plus 7.00%, with a 1.00% LIBOR floor repayable on August 1, 2022 (the “USD Second Lien Term Loan”).

First Lien Term Loans

During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation incurred $29.9 million in interest on the USD First Lien Term Loan, of which $3.29 million relates to interest accretion and repaid $5.55 million in principal.

During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation incurred $3.05 million in interest of which $383,000 relates to interest accretion and repaid $681,000 in principal in relation to the EUR First Lien Term Loan.

On March 16, 2015, Amaya entered into cross currency swap agreements (the “Swap Agreements”), which allow for the creation of synthetic Euro-denominated debt with fixed Euro interest payments at an average rate of 4.6016% (a simple average of the different interest rates for the various Swap Agreements) to replace the USD interest payments bearing a minimum floating interest rate of 5.0% (USD three-month LIBOR plus a 4.0% margin, with a LIBOR floor of 1.0%) related to the USD First Lien Term Loan. The interest and principal payments for the Swap Agreements, which mature in five years, will be made at a Euro to USD exchange rate of 1.1102 on USD notional amounts of $1.74125 billion.

Second Lien Term Loan

On December 20, 2013, Cadillac Jack, Inc. (“Cadillac Jack”) entered into an agreement for the refinancing of its credit facilities. Under this agreement, Cadillac Jack has access to term loans in an aggregate principal amount of up to USD$160 million (the “Credit Facilities”). The Credit Facilities replaced the existing USD $110 million non-convertible senior secured term loan secured by Cadillac Jack’s assets that was made available to finance the acquisition of Cadillac Jack by Amaya as of November 5, 2012 (the “2012 Loan”). The Credit Facilities were used to fully repay the outstanding balance on the 2012 Loan, as well as related fees and expenses, and the remaining amounts are being used to fund the ongoing working capital and other general corporate purposes. On May 15, 2014, Cadillac Jack obtained an incremental USD$80 million term loan to the Credit Facilities through an amendment thereto for the purpose of financing working capital expenses and general corporate purposes of the Corporation. The new aggregate principal amount of USD$240 million bears interest at a per annum rate equal to LIBOR plus 8.5% with a 1% LIBOR floor (as amended, the “Senior Facility”). The Senior Facility matures over a five-year term from the closing date and is secured by the stock of Cadillac Jack and the assets of Cadillac Jack and its subsidiaries.

During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation reclassified the Senior Facility as liabilities held for sale. During the period, the Corporation incurred $7.13 million (March 31, 2014 - $3.64 million) in interest on the Senior Facility, of which $110,000 (March 31, 2014 - $110,000) relates to interest accretion and repaid $760,000 in principal.

(c) Mezzanine Facility

On May 15, 2014, Cadillac Jack obtained a mezzanine subordinated unsecured loan (the “Mezzanine Facility”) in the form of a subordinated term loan in the aggregate principal amount of USD$100 million, bearing interest at a per annum rate equal to 13%; provided, at the option of Cadillac Jack, interest accruing at a per annum rate of 7% may instead be paid in-kind in lieu of cash. The Mezzanine Facility matures over a six-year term from the closing date and is unsecured.

Each unit consisted of (i) $1,000 principal amount of unsecured non-convertible subordinated debentures (the “2013 Debentures”) and (ii) 48 non-transferable common share purchase warrants (the warrant indenture was subsequently amended to provide for the warrants to be transferable and traded on the TSX).

9. FAIR VALUE

The Corporation has determined that the carrying values of its short-term financial assets and liabilities approximate their fair value because of the relatively short periods to maturity of these instruments and low risk of credit.

The carrying amount of receivable under finance leases approximates their fair value because the interest rates approximate current market rates. On initial recognition the fair value of amounts receivable under finance leases was established using a discounted cash-flow model.

Certain of the Corporation's financial assets are measured at fair value at the end of each reporting period. The following table provides information about how the fair values of these financial assets are determined as at each of March 31, 2015 and December 31, 2014:

Fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. When measuring the fair value of an asset or a liability, the Corporation uses market observable data to the extent possible. If the fair value of an asset or a liability is not directly observable, it is estimated by the Corporation using valuation techniques that maximize the use of relevant observable inputs and minimize the use of unobservable inputs (e.g., by the use of the market comparable approach that reflects recent transaction prices for similar items, discounted cash flow analysis, or option pricing models refined to reflect the issuer's specific circumstances). Inputs used are consistent with the characteristics of the asset or liability that market participants would take into account.

For the Corporation's financial instruments which are recognized in the interim condensed consolidated statements of financial position at fair value, the fair value measurements are categorized based on the lowest level input that is significant to the fair value measurement in its entirety and the degree to which the inputs are observable. The significance levels are classified as follows in the fair value hierarchy:

- Level 1 – Quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities;
- Level 2 – Inputs other than quoted prices included in Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly; and
- Level 3 – Inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data.

Transfers between levels of the fair value hierarchy are recognized by the Corporation at the end of the reporting period during which the transfer occurred. There were no transfers in or out of Level 3 during the three-month period ended March 31, 2015.

12. ASSETS AND LIABILITIES CLASSIFIED AS HELD FOR SALE AND DISCONTINUED OPERATIONS

On November 24, 2014, Amaya divested its subsidiary Ongame Network Ltd. (“Ongame”), which provided B2B poker and platform solutions, to NYX Gaming Group Limited (TSXV: NYX) (“NYX Gaming Group”). In connection with this divestiture, Amaya and NYX Gaming Group entered into a strategic investment transaction pursuant to which NYX Gaming Group issued, and Amaya purchased, a $10.0 million unsecured convertible debenture on November 17, 2014 which matures two years after the date of issuance and bears interest at 6.00% per annum, payable at maturity. At the holder’s option, both interest and principal are payable in ordinary shares of NYX Gaming Group at any time prior to the maturity date of November 17, 2016. Amaya subsequently assigned an aggregate of $1 million of the unsecured convertible debenture to four individuals and the remaining $9 million to Rational Group.

On March, 26, 2015, Innova Gaming Group Inc. (“Innova”), which was a wholly owned subsidiary of Amaya, announced that it had filed and obtained a receipt for a preliminary prospectus with the securities regulatory authorities in each of the provinces and territories of Canada in connection with a proposed initial public offering and secondary offering of its common shares (the “Offering”). Innova was formed in connection with the Offering and holds all of the shares of Diamond Game Enterprises (“Diamond Game”), a former wholly owned subsidiary of Amaya. The Offering was subsequently closed on May 5, 2015 with Amaya receiving aggregate gross proceeds of approximately $34.1 million and maintaining ownership of approximately 40% of the issued and outstanding common shares of Innova. If the underwriters’ over-allotment option is exercised in full, Amaya’s retained interest will be reduced to approximately 31% of the issued and outstanding common shares of Innova. See note 19.

Further, on March 30, 2015, the Corporation entered into a definitive agreement to sell 100% of the issued and outstanding shares of Amaya Americas Corporation, the indirect parent company of Cadillac Jack, Inc. (“Cadillac Jack”), to AGS, LLC, an affiliate of funds managed by Apollo Global Management, LLC (NYSE: APO) for approximately $476 million comprising cash consideration of $461 million, subject to adjustment, and a $15 million payment-in-kind note, bearing interest at 5.0% per annum and due on the eighth anniversary of the closing date. Subject to receipt of gaming regulatory and antitrust approvals and other customary closing conditions, Amaya anticipates closing the sale of Cadillac Jack in 2015.

Each of the B2B businesses, Diamond Game (now a wholly owned subsidiary of Innova) and Cadillac Jack, are classified as discontinued operations and their assets and liabilities are classified as held for sale for the period ended March 31, 2015 (Ongame and its assets and liabilities were also so classified for the period ended December 31, 2014). 13. BUSINESS COMBINATIONS

Oldford Group Limited - Update

On March 11, 2015, the Corporation commented on a tax dispute between a subsidiary of Rational Group and Italian tax authorities related to operations of such subsidiary, particularly under the PokerStars brand, in Italy prior to the Rational Group Acquisition. The Corporation was aware of the dispute prior to Rational Group Acquisition, but believes Rational Group has operated in compliance with the applicable local tax regulations and has paid €120 million in local taxes during the period subject to the dispute.

Although management continues to assess the potential exposure, if any, the Corporation believes that any tax liability as part of this matter may be indemnifiable by the former owners of the Oldford Group under the agreement governing the transactions, subject to certain conditions. Pursuant to this agreement, the sellers have certain indemnification obligations to the Corporation, subject to certain conditions, with respect to certain pre-closing liabilities, including amounts held in an escrow account plus an additional amount not held in escrow and reserved solely for tax claims.

The purchase price allocation for the Rational Group Acquisition does not reflect the impact on any contingencies arising from circumstances that were present on the date of the Rational Group Acquisition on August 1, 2014. In the event that a measurable outcome is ascertainable as a result of these contingencies during the one-year reference period from the date of the Rational Group Acquisition, the impact will be recorded as an adjustment to purchase price allocation reflecting both the contingent liability and the offsetting indemnification asset. Any impact that becomes both measurable and probable after the reference period will not be reflected as an adjustment to the purchase price allocation.

16. SALE OF WAGERLOGIC MALTA HOLDINGS LTD.

On February 11, 2014, and pursuant to a Share Purchase Agreement dated November 27, 2013, one of the Corporation's subsidiaries completed the sale of all of the issued and outstanding shares of WagerLogic Malta Holdings Ltd. ("WagerLogic") to Goldstar Acquisitionco Inc. ("Goldstar") for $70 million, less a closing working capital adjustment satisfied through cash consideration of $52.5 million and a vendor take-back in the form of a promissory note of $10 million, bearing interest at 6.0% per annum payable semi-annually in arrears starting in the second year following the closing date and due on the fourth anniversary of the closing date. The share purchase agreement for this divestiture also provides for a bonus payment of US$10 million to be paid by Goldstar to Amaya if CryptoLogic Operations Limited ("Cryptologic Operations") achieves an annual net revenue target of at least US$30 million during the second year following the closing date (payable in 12 monthly installments during the third year following the closing date), and an additional bonus payment of US$10 million if CryptoLogic Operations achieves an annual net revenue target of at least US$40 million during the third year following the closing date (payable in 12 monthly installments during the fourth year following the closing date).

Amaya continues to license online casino games to Wagerlogic. Amaya and certain of its subsidiaries have entered into a revenue guarantee agreement under which they jointly and severally guarantee the financial obligations of such subsidiaries under the service agreements, including an obligation to pay CryptoLogic Operations, during the two years following the closing date of the divestiture, an amount equal to the shortfall between CryptoLogic Operation's quarterly net revenue and a pre-established quarterly net revenue target of US$4.75 million.

17. CHANGE IN FUNCTIONAL CURRENCY

On February 26, 2015, after a subsidiary of the Corporation entered into the Swap Agreements, the subsidiary's functional currency changed from the U.S. dollar to the Euro. As a result of the Swap Agreements, the subsidiary will be exposed to potentially significant fluctuations in the Euro as compared to other currencies. As a result of this and the fact that a portion of the subsidiary's operations are denominated in Euros, the primary economic environment of this subsidiary is the Euro.

This change in functional currency is accounted for prospectively from the date of the change by translating all items into the new functional currency using the exchange rate at the date of the change.

18. HEDGING

During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation entered into the Swap Agreements, which were designated as cash flow hedges, to exchange a notional principal of USD$1.74 billion debt into Euros to fix both future interest and principal payments in Euro. The Corporation expects the Swap Agreements to mitigate the impact of foreign currency gains or losses resulting from changes in the Euro to U.S. dollar exchange rate. The effective portion of the gains or losses from these derivatives accumulated in other comprehensive income is recorded in financial charges in the same period the interest expense on the USD First Lien Term Loan is recorded.

The fair value of the outstanding Swap Agreement as at March 31, 2015 is $42.6 million (€32.1 million). The ineffective portion of the hedge recognized in financial expenses for the three month period ending March 31, 2015 is $1.2 million (€868,000).

The Corporation has designated US$800 million of its USD Second Lien Term Loan and US$400 million of its contingent consideration (i.e., the deferred purchase price for its B2C business) as a foreign exchange hedge of its net investment in its foreign operations. Accordingly, the portion of the gains or losses arising from the translation of the U.S. dollar-denominated debt that is determined to be an effective hedge is recognized in other comprehensive income, counterbalancing a portion of the gains or losses arising from translation of the Corporation’s net investment in its foreign operations. Should a portion of the hedging relationship become ineffective, the ineffective portion would be recorded in the consolidated statements of earnings.

During the period ended March 31, 2015, an unrealized exchange loss on translation of $81.48 million has been recorded in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income related to the translation of the USD Second Lien Term Loan and such contingent consideration.

19. SUBSEQUENT EVENTS

On April 9, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into a share purchase agreement to sell its subsidiaries Amaya (Alberta) Inc. (formerly Chartwell Technology Inc.) (“Chartwell”) and CryptoLogic Ltd. (“CryptoLogic”) to NYX Gaming Group (the “Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale”) for approximately $150 million, subject to adjustment, financing and other customary closing conditions. In connection with the Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale, a subsidiary of Amaya and NYX Gaming Group anticipate entering into a supplier licensing agreement (the “Licensing Agreement”) for a term of six years, under which NYX Gaming Group is expected to provide certain casino gaming content to Amaya’s real-money casino offering which Amaya intends to integrate into the PokerStars and Full Tilt branded casino websites. Pursuant to the Licensing Agreement, a subsidiary of Amaya will pay NYX Gaming Group a minimum license commitment in the amount of $12 million per year for each of the first three years of the Licensing Agreement.

As announced by Amaya and Innova, the Offering, which included a treasury offering of common shares by Innova and a secondary offering of common shares of Innova by Amaya, closed on May 5, 2015 with Amaya receiving aggregate net proceeds of approximately $34.1 million and maintaining ownership of approximately 40% of the issued and outstanding common shares of Innova. If the underwriters’ over-allotment option is exercised in full, Amaya’s retained interest will be reduced to approximately 31% of the issued and outstanding common shares of Innova. Amaya formed Innova in connection with the Offering and Innova currently holds all of the shares of Diamond Game.

20. PRIOR PERIOD ADJUSTMENT

The Corporation corrected an error related to the comparative three-month period ended March 31, 2014 as a result of an unrealized gain on the investment in The Intertain Group Limited (TSX: IT) that was included in net earnings and should have been included in other comprehensive income. This investment was previously classified as a held-for-trading investment with fair value fluctuations recorded through net earnings whereas it should have been classified as an available-for-sale investment with fair value fluctuations recorded through other comprehensive income. This investment continues to be held by the Corporation as at March 31, 2015. This adjustment was made retrospectively and impacts the comparative period statement of changes in equity, statement of earnings, statement of comprehensive income and statement of cash flows included in these interim condensed consolidated financial statements. It was properly corrected and reflected in the annual audited financial statements of the Corporation as at and for the year ended December 31, 2014. It will also be corrected for the comparative periods of the June 30, 2015 and September 30, 2015 interim condensed consolidated financial statements.

The Corporation retrospectively corrected the error which decreased “income from investments” and “net earnings” by $680,000, and increased “other comprehensive income” by $680,000 for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014. This adjustment also decreased “basic earnings per common share” for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014 by $0.01. This adjustment did not impact the “diluted earnings per common share”.

The adjustment to the six-month period ended June 30, 2014 and nine-month period ended September 30, 2014 is a decrease to “net earnings” and increase to “other comprehensive income” of $3.93 million, and $9.54 million, respectively.

21. COMPARATIVE INFORMATION

The Corporation reclassified certain items in the interim condensed consolidated statements of cash flows within the cash flows from operating activities section for the comparative period to conform to the current year’s presentation. This reclassification had no impact on the total cash flows from operating activities.

Amaya is a leading provider of technology-based solutions, products and services in the global gaming and interactive entertainment industries. Through its two reportable segments, Business-to-Consumer ("B2C") and Business-to-Business ("B2B"), Amaya is focused on developing, operating and acquiring interactive technology-based assets with high-growth potential in existing and new markets and industries or verticals. Amaya's B2C business currently consists of the operations of Amaya Group Holdings (IOM) Limited (formerly known as Oldford Group Limited) and its subsidiaries (collectively, "Rational Group"), which, among other things, currently offer online and mobile real- and play-money poker and other gaming products, including casino and sports betting (also known as sportsbook), as well as certain live poker tours and events, branded poker rooms in popular casinos in major cities around the world and poker programming for television and online audiences. Amaya's B2B business currently consists of the operations of certain of its subsidiaries, which offer interactive and land-based gaming solutions. Amaya strives to not only improve and expand upon its current offerings, including its portfolio of what it believes to be high-growth interactive technology-based assets, but to pursue and capitalize on new global growth opportunities. Amaya seeks to take advantage of technology to provide gaming and interactive entertainment to large networks of customers.

Since the acquisition of the Rational Group on August 1, 2014 (the "Rational Group Acquisition"), Amaya's primary business has been its B2C segment, which currently generates the vast majority of Amaya's revenues and profits. Based in the Isle of Man and operating globally, Rational Group owns and operates gaming and related interactive entertainment businesses, which it offers under several owned brands, including, among others, PokerStars, Full Tilt, European Poker Tour, PokerStars Caribbean Adventure, Latin American Poker Tour and Asia Pacific Poker Tour. These brands collectively form the largest poker business in the world, comprising online poker games and tournaments, live poker competitions, branded poker rooms in popular casinos around the world and poker programming created for television and online audiences. In addition to expanding its existing real- and play-money poker businesses into new markets, Amaya has recently targeted growth into other online gaming verticals, notably casino and sportsbook, and intends to pursue opportunities in daily fantasy sports.

Rational Group's primary brands are PokerStars and Full Tilt, each of which provides a distinct online gaming platform. Currently, according to online poker tracking site Pokerscout.com, the PokerStars and Full Tilt sites collectively hold a majority of the global market share of real-money poker player liquidity, or the volume of people playing as measured by average daily seated ring game real money poker players, and are among the leaders in play-money poker player liquidity. Since its 2001 launch, PokerStars has become the world's largest real money online poker site based on, among other things, player liquidity, according to Pokerscout.com, and the Corporation believes that it has distinguished itself as one of the world's premier poker brands.

Amaya's B2B business includes the design, development, manufacturing, distribution, sale and service of technology-based gaming solutions for the regulated gaming industry worldwide, primarily to land-based and online gaming operators and governmental agencies and bodies, and ultimately indirectly to end-users and consumers. Amaya's B2B solutions are designed to provide end-users with popular, engaging and cutting-edge content across multiple formats and through a secure technology environment, all of which is intended to improve the profitability, productivity, security and brands of the operators. Since inception, Amaya has developed its portfolio of solutions through both internal development and strategic acquisitions, including Amaya (Alberta) Inc. (formerly Chartwell Technology Inc.) ("Chartwell"), acquired in July 2011, and CryptoLogic Ltd. ("CryptoLogic"), acquired in April 2012, Cadillac Jack Inc. ("Cadillac Jack"), acquired in November 2012, and Diamond Game Enterprises ("Diamond Game"), acquired in February 2014, all of which provide technology, content and services to a diversified base of customers in the regulated gaming industry. As of the date of this MD&A, and as previously announced with respect to certain subsidiaries, Amaya and its management ("Management") have initiated a strategic review process to explore the divestiture of these B2B assets and have begun to execute on the same. The fundamental objective of this review and the potential divestitures is to expedite the Corporation's overall business strategy and maximize shareholder value. See "Overview—Recent Highlights—B2B Asset Divestitures" below.

Recent Highlights

Set forth below is a general summary of certain recent corporate highlights, developments and announcements. For additional corporate developments and announcements during the reporting period, see the disclosure under the heading "General Development of the Business" in the 2014 Annual Information Form.

B2B Asset Divestitures

As previously announced, Amaya is exploring strategic opportunities to divest its B2B business and to use the proceeds to repay outstanding indebtedness, repurchase the Corporation's common shares ("Common Shares") pursuant to the 2015 NCIB (as defined below) or otherwise, or a combination of both. In furtherance of its B2B assets review and overall business strategy, the Corporation announced the following strategic transactions:

- the completed spin-off of Diamond Game through the initial public offering (the "Innova Offering") of common shares of Innova Gaming Group Inc. ("Innova") on May 5, 2015;
- the execution of a definitive agreement for the sale of Cadillac Jack (the "CJ Sale") to AGS, LLC, an affiliate of funds managed by Apollo Global Management, LLC (NYSE:APO) ("AGS"), on March 30, 2015;
- the execution of a definitive share purchase agreement to sell Chartwell and Cryptologic to NYX Gaming Group (the "Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale") on April 9, 2015; and
- the completed sale of Ongame Network Ltd ("Ongame") to NYX Gaming Group Limited (TSXV: NYX) ("NYX Gaming Group") in the fourth quarter of 2014 (the "Ongame Sale").

Innova Offering. On March 26, 2015, Amaya announced that its wholly owned subsidiary, Innova, had filed and obtained a receipt for a preliminary prospectus in respect of the Innova Offering, which included a treasury offering of common shares by Innova and a secondary offering of common shares of Innova by Amaya. The Innova Offering closed on May 5, 2015 with Amaya receiving aggregate net proceeds of approximately $34.1 million and maintaining ownership of approximately 40% of the issued and outstanding common shares of Innova. If the underwriters' over-allotment option is exercised in full, Amaya's retained interest will be reduced to approximately 31% of the issued and outstanding common shares of Innova. Amaya formed Innova in connection with the Innova Offering and Innova currently holds all of the shares of Diamond Game. Diamond Game is classified as discontinued operations and its assets and liabilities are classified as held for sale in the condensed consolidated financial statements for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015.

CJ Sale. On March 30, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into a definitive agreement to sell Cadillac

Jack to AGS for approximately USD $382 million comprising cash consideration of USD $370 million, subject to adjustment, and a USD $12 million payment-in-kind note, bearing interest at 5.0% per annum and due on the eighth anniversary of the closing date. Subject to receipt of gaming regulatory and antitrust approvals and other customary closing conditions, Amaya anticipates closing the CJ Sale in 2015. Amaya anticipates using the net proceeds from the CJ Sale primarily for deleveraging, including the repayment of the Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility (each as defined below). Cadillac Jack is classified as discontinued operations and its assets and liabilities are classified as held for sale in the condensed consolidated financial statements for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015.

Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale. On April 9, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into a share purchase agreement to sell Chartwell and Cryptologic to NYX Gaming Group for approximately $150 million, subject to adjustment. Subject to financing and other customary closing conditions, Amaya anticipates closing the Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale before the end of the third quarter of 2015. The Corporation also currently anticipates using the net proceeds from the Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale for deleveraging as well as repurchasing Common Shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB. In connection with the Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale, a subsidiary of Amaya and NYX Gaming Group anticipate entering into a supplier licensing agreement (the "Licensing Agreement") for a term of six years, under which NYX Gaming Group is expected to provide certain casino gaming content to Amaya's real-money casino offering which Amaya intends to integrate into the PokerStars and Full Tilt branded casino websites. Pursuant to the Licensing Agreement, a subsidiary of Amaya will pay NYX Gaming Group a minimum license commitment in the amount of $12 million per year for each of the first three years of the Licensing Agreement.

Ongame Sale. Pursuant to a sale and transfer agreement (the "Ongame Sale and Transfer Agreement"), Amaya sold Ongame to NYX Gaming (Gibraltar) Limited, a wholly-owned subsidiary of NYX Gaming Group, for a purchase price equal to the sum of (i) US$1.00 (paid at the closing), plus (ii) an amount equal to eight times Ongame's EBITDA for the year ending December 31, 2015, less any required working capital adjustments. The purchase price is only payable in 2016 upon determination of such amount based on Ongame's 2015 year-end EBITDA, as calculated in accordance with the Ongame Sale and Transfer Agreement. In connection with this divestiture, Amaya and NYX Gaming Group entered into a strategic investment transaction pursuant to which NYX Gaming Group issued, and Amaya purchased, a $10.0 million unsecured convertible debenture on November 17, 2014 which matures two years after the date of issuance and bears interest at 6.00% per annum, payable at maturity. At Amaya's option, both interest and principal are payable in ordinary shares of NYX Gaming Group at any time prior to the maturity date of November 17, 2016. Amaya subsequently assigned an aggregate of $1.0 million of the unsecured convertible debenture to four individuals and the remaining $9.0 million to Rational Group. Ongame is classified as discontinued operations and its assets and liabilities are classified as held for sale in the 2014 Annual Financial Statements.

Pending the completion of the divestiture of all B2B assets, Amaya intends to continue its strategy of maximizing long-term shareholder value and pursuing sustainable, profitable growth. There can be no assurance as to if and when the CJ Sale or Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale will occur or whether they will occur on the same or substantially similar terms as previously agreed upon.

UK Licenses

On March 20, 2015, Amaya announced that it received licenses from the UK Gambling Commission for PokerStars and Full Tilt to operate online poker and other gaming offerings within the United Kingdom. Since late 2014, the brands had been operating under temporary continuation licenses, and prior to that, they were white-listed under applicable Isle of Man gaming licenses.

Cross Currency Swap Agreements

On March 16, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into cross currency swap agreements (the "Swap Agreements") that it anticipates will result in lower interest payments on existing debt and mitigate the impact of fluctuations in the Euro to USD exchange rate. The Swap Agreements allow for the creation of synthetic Euro-denominated debt with fixed Euro interest payments at an average rate of 4.6016% (a simple average of the different interest rates for the various Swap Agreements) to replace the USD interest payments bearing a minimum floating interest rate of 5.0% (USD three-month LIBOR plus a 4.0% margin, with a LIBOR floor of 1.0%) related to the USD$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan secured by Amaya on August 1, 2014 to finance a portion of the Rational Group Acquisition. The interest and principal payments for the Swap Agreements, which mature in five years, will be made at a Euro to USD exchange rate of 1.1102 on USD notional amounts of $1.74 billion. For certain other hedging related activity, see below under “Liquidity and Capital Resources—Long-Term Debt—First and Second Lien Term Loans—USD Second Lien Term Loan”.

Italian Tax Matter

On March 11, 2015, Amaya commented on a tax dispute between a Rational Group subsidiary and Italian tax authorities related to the subsidiary’s Italian operations, primarily under the PokerStars brand, prior to the Rational Group Acquisition. Amaya was aware of the dispute prior to the Rational Group Acquisition and believes that Rational Group has consistently operated in compliance with applicable local tax regulations. During the disputed tax period, Rational Group paid €120 million in local taxes to the Italian tax authorities. The merger agreement related to the Rational Group Acquisition provides certain remedies to address tax and other liabilities that may arise post-closing but stem from Rational Group’s operations prior to the date of acquisition, including USD $315 million held in escrow for indemnifiable claims, including tax claims, and an additional USD $100 million that may be used to cover only tax claims.

On February 13, 2015, the Toronto Stock Exchange (the “TSX”) approved the Corporation’s notice of intention to make a normal course issuer bid (“2015 NCIB”) to purchase for cancellation up to 6,644,737 Common Shares, representing approximately 5% of Amaya’s issued and outstanding Common Shares as of January 26, 2015. The Corporation may purchase the Common Shares at prevailing market prices and by means of open market transactions through the facilities of the TSX or by such other means as may be permitted by the TSX rules and policies. The Corporation will determine in its sole discretion from time to time the actual number of Common Shares that it will purchase and the timing of any such purchases. In accordance with the applicable TSX rules, daily purchases under the 2015 NCIB may not exceed 161,724 Common Shares, representing 25% of the average daily trading volume of the Common Shares for the six-month period ended on January 31, 2015, and the Corporation may make, once per calendar week, a block purchase of Common Shares not owned, directly or indirectly, by insiders of Amaya that exceeds the daily repurchase restriction. Amaya intends to enter into, and seek TSX clearance of, an automatic share purchase plan (the “Automatic Purchase Plan”) with a broker to facilitate repurchases under the 2015 NCIB and, subject to the foregoing restrictions and the terms and conditions of the Automatic Purchase Plan, Amaya’s broker would be able to repurchase Common Shares under the Automatic Purchase Plan at any time, provided that the broker is not in possession of material, non-public information about Amaya, its subsidiaries or its business. The Automatic Purchase Plan would terminate upon the earlier of February 17, 2016 or the date on which the Corporation has purchased the maximum number of Common Shares permitted under the 2015 NCIB. Amaya is making the 2015 NCIB because it believes that, from time to time, the prevailing market price of its Common Shares may not reflect the underlying value of the Corporation, and that purchasing Common Shares for cancellation will increase the proportionate interest of, and be advantageous to, all remaining shareholders. As of May 14, 2015, the Corporation has not purchased any Common Shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB.

OUTLOOK

Since the Rational Group Acquisition in August 2014 and as a result thereof, Amaya has become the world’s largest publicly traded online gaming company, with its B2C segment, including the PokerStars and Full Tilt brands, being its primary business and source of revenue. With what it believes to be a premier, scalable platform that diversifies its products and services both geographically and across verticals, Amaya currently expects that the Rational Group Acquisition will help facilitate an increase in shareholder value and the delivery of sustainable, profitable long-term growth.

Currently, according to online poker tracking site Pokerscout.com, the PokerStars and Full Tilt sites collectively hold a majority of the global market share of real-money, ring game poker player liquidity, which is based on the average daily seated ring game real money poker players, and are among the leaders in play-money poker player liquidity. Since its 2001 launch, PokerStars has become the world’s largest real money online poker site based on, among other things, the number of players and player liquidity, according to Pokerscout.com, and the Corporation believes that it has distinguished itself as one of the world’s premier poker brands. In addition, Amaya is continuously developing its proprietary platforms and has invested significantly in its technology infrastructure since inception to ensure a positive experience for its customers, not only from a gameplay perspective with respect to its B2C business, but most importantly, with respect to security and integrity across business segments and verticals. To support Amaya’s strong reputation for security and integrity, Amaya employs what it believes to be industry-leading practices and systems with respect to various aspects of its technology infrastructure, including payment security, game integrity, customer fund protection, marketing and promotion, customer support, responsible gaming and VIP rewards and loyalty programs. Further, Amaya dedicates a major portion of its research and development investments to its B2C business, which seeks to provide broad market applications for products derived from its technology base.

As a regulated entity, we are required to maintain strong corporate governance standards and are required to, among other things, maintain effective internal controls over our financial reporting and disclosure controls and procedures, maintain systems for accurate record keeping, file periodic reports with gaming authorities and maintain strict compliance with various laws and regulations applicable to us. In addition, there are various other factors associated with gaming operations that could burden our business and operations, including, without limitation, compliance with multiple and sometimes conflicting regulatory requirements, jurisdictional limitations on contract enforcement, foreign currency risks, certain restrictions on gaming activities, potentially adverse tax risks and tax consequences, and changes in the political and economic stability, regulatory and taxation structures and the interpretation thereof in the jurisdictions in which the Corporation and its licensees operate. Any or all of such factors could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, operating results and financial condition. See also "Risk Factors and Uncertainties" below and in the 2014 Annual Information Form.

Amaya, through certain of its subsidiaries, is licensed or legally operates under third party licenses, as applicable, in various jurisdictions throughout the world, including the Isle of Man, Malta, Estonia, Spain, Greece, Denmark, Belgium, France, Italy, the United Kingdom and Bulgaria. Amaya seeks to ensure that it obtains all permits, authorizations, registrations and/or licenses necessary to manufacture, develop, distribute and offer its solutions, products and services, as applicable, in the jurisdictions in which it carries on business globally and where it is otherwise required to do so. In addition to expected organic growth in online and mobile poker in existing and new markets, however, Amaya believes that there are potentially significant opportunities for growth in new verticals. Specifically, Amaya believes that these new verticals initially include online and mobile casino and sportsbook, and such potential opportunities include the ability to leverage its brand recognition and capitalize on cross-selling these new verticals to its existing customer base, as well as to new customers. In addition to online and mobile casino and sportsbook, Amaya currently intends to explore other growth opportunities, including, without limitation, expanding upon its current social gaming offering and pursuing opportunities in daily fantasy sports. With respect to online gaming, Amaya intends to seek licensure in all jurisdictions in which licensure is available and strives to be among the first of the licensed operators in newly regulated jurisdictions, in each case to the extent it would be in furtherance of its business goals and strategy and in compliance with its policies and procedures with respect to the same. For example, see "Regulatory Environment" in the 2014 Annual Information Form.

Amaya also continues to focus on the creation of long-term shareholder value by building upon its existing strengths and expanding and strengthening its portfolio of products and services that the Corporation expects will deliver sustainable, profitable long-term growth. To do this, Amaya is undertaking a number of ongoing strategic initiatives, including: (i) strengthening and expanding its products and services and developing its intellectual property; (ii) expanding its geographical reach; and (iii) pursuing strategic acquisitions and divestitures. See also, "Overview—Recent Highlights". With respect to its B2B business, Amaya intends to divest such business and use the proceeds therefrom to repay outstanding indebtedness or repurchase the Corporation's Common Shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB or otherwise. There can be no assurance as to if and when this divestiture will occur or whether it will occur on the same or substantially similar terms as previously agreed upon. Pending the completion of the divestiture of its B2B business, Amaya intends to continue its strategy of maximizing long-term shareholder value and pursuing sustainable, profitable growth by, among other things, increasing its market share through facilitating the delivery of gaming content across physical and interactive media through its B2B business, strengthening and expanding its existing portfolio of developed and acquired technologies and expanding its geographical reach.

The following information and comments are intended to provide a review and analysis of the Corporation's operational results and financial position for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, as compared to the three-month period ended March 31, 2014, and with respect to financial condition, as compared to the end of the most recently completed fiscal year. This MD&A should be read in conjunction with the consolidated financial statements and related notes for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the 2014 Annual Financial Statements and the 2014 Annual MD&A. The accounting policies and methods of computation applied in the Corporation's interim condensed consolidated financial statements are consistent with those applied by the Corporation in 2014 Annual Financial Statements, except for the newly adopted accounting policies described below under "Summary of Significant Accounting Policies—New Significant Accounting Policies" that have had no impact on the comparative period presented in such interim condensed consolidated financial statements and no impact on the 2014 Financial Statements.

The Corporation's growth in revenues during the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, as compared to the three-month period ended March 31, 2014, was primarily a result of the revenues generated from the B2C operations, primarily through the PokerStars brand, which was acquired in August 2014 as a result of the Rational Group Acquisition. The Corporation's net earnings during the first quarter of 2015 were also primarily a result of the revenues generated from the B2C operations, particularly through the PokerStars brand, however such earnings were offset by a loss from Cadillac Jack and Diamond Game as they were classified as discontinued operations for the period in connection with the anticipated CJ Sale and the Innova Offering.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

The Corporation's asset base of approximately $7.8 billion was primarily attributable the Rational Group Acquisition. See also "Liquidity and Capital Resources" below.

The Corporation currently anticipates using the net proceeds from the CJ Sale primarily for deleveraging, including the repayment of the Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility. The Corporation also currently anticipates using the net proceeds from the Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale for deleveraging as well as repurchasing Common Shares pursuant to the 2015 NCIB or otherwise. However, there can be no assurance as to if and when the CJ Sale or Chartwell/Cryptologic sale will occur or whether they will occur on the same or substantially similar terms as previously agreed upon.

The Corporation evaluates revenue performance by both geographic area and revenue type. The following table sets out the proportion of revenue attributable to each of the legal gaming jurisdictions in which it sells its products, solutions and services for the three-month periods ended March 31, 2015 and 2014.

	For the three-month period ended March 31,
	2015 $000's	2014 $000's
Americas	31,776	4,744
Europe	285,278	8,098
Rest of world	23,079	–
Total	340,133	12,842

The revenue increase in all geographic areas for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, as compared to the three-month period ended March 31, 2014, was primarily attributable to the revenue generated by the B2C business, particularly the products and services offered under the PokerStars brand.

Although prior to the Rational Group Acquisition in August 2014 the vast majority of Amaya's revenues in 2014, including in the first quarter of 2014, were generated by its B2B land-based and interactive gaming solutions, following the Rational Group Acquisition, the vast majority of its revenues were, and the Corporation expects its revenues to continue to be, generated by its client interface, online and mobile gaming platforms under the B2C business segment. Following the Rational Group Acquisition, the B2C revenues were generated almost entirely through the provision of real-money poker offerings, followed by casino play-money and casino offerings. For a description of the Corporation's B2B assets strategic review, see "Overview—Recent Highlights—B2B Asset Divestitures". The Corporation believes its financial condition has remained substantially unchanged since December 31, 2014; however, the Corporation expects to significantly reduce its outstanding long-term debt as a result of the CJ Sale and the Chartwell/Cryptologic Sale, if and when they occur.

For a summary of certain trends and risks that could affect the Corporation's financial statements or condition in the future, see "Outlook" above and "Risk Factors and Uncertainties" below, respectively.

In addition, Diamond Game and Cadillac Jack were classified as discontinued operations for the period ended March 31, 2015. The following table illustrates the impact of these discontinued operations on the financial condition of the Corporation by presenting the assets and liabilities classified as held for sale in connection with the CJ Sale and the Innova Offering.

The foregoing financial data for each of the eight most recently completed quarters has been prepared in accordance with IFRS, and all such periods, other than the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, have been adjusted to the reflect the impact of discontinued operations (see note 12). The presentation currency during such periods was the Canadian dollar.

The increase in revenues during the quarters ended September 30, 2014, December 31, 2014 and March 31, 2015, as compared to the previous five quarters, was primarily attributable to the revenue generated by the B2C operations following the Rational Group Acquisition on August 1, 2014, and to the consolidation of results from the Corporation's overall business as of that date.

Our results of operations can fluctuate due to seasonal trends and other factors. Historically, given the geographies where we operate and the majority of our customers are located, and the related climate and weather in such geographies, among other things, revenues from our B2C operations have been generally higher in the first and fourth fiscal quarters than in the second and third fiscal quarters. As such, results for any quarter are not necessarily indicative of the results that may be achieved in another quarter or for the full fiscal year. There can be no assurance that the seasonal trends and other factors that have impacted our historical results will repeat in future periods as we cannot influence or forecast many of these factors. For other factors that may cause our results to fluctuate, see "Risk Factors and Uncertainties" below.

DISCUSSION OF OPERATIONS

Revenue

	For the three-month period ended
	March 31, 2015 $000's	March 31, 2014 $000's
B2C*	336,697	–
Software licensing	2,563	7,986
Product sales	349	4,493
Participation leases and arrangements	78	69
Other	446	294
Total	340,133	12,842

* The Corporation acquired the B2C business on August 1, 2014 pursuant to the Rational Group Acquisition. The B2C revenue is currently primarily generated through hosted poker.

Revenue for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015 was $340.13 million as compared to $12.84 million for the comparable prior year period, representing an increase of 2,549%. This increase was primarily attributable to consolidating B2C revenue, primarily generated by PokerStars, with B2B revenue.

Expenses

Selling

Sales and marketing expenses increased from $3.0 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014 to $59.0 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, representing an increase of 1,882%. The increase was primarily the result of advertising and marketing expenses incurred by the B2C business during the three month period ended March 31, 2015.

General and Administrative

General and administrative expenses increased from $12.8 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014 to $193.8 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, representing an increase of 1,418%. The increase was primarily the result of (i) a growing employee base due to the Rational Group Acquisition, (ii) gaming duty and processing costs incurred by the B2C business in connection with generating B2C revenues and (iii) increased amortization of purchase price allocated intangibles.

Financial

Financial expenses increased from $(700,000) for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014 to $65.8 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, representing an increase of 8,983%. This increase was primarily the result of interest incurred on the USD First Lien Term Loan, USD Second Lien Term Loan, Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility (each as defined below) during the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, as offset by unrealized gain on the re-valuation of the EUR First Lien Term Loan during the same period.

Acquisition Related Expenses

Acquisition related expenses increased from $2.6 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014 to $2.8 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, representing an increase of 8%. This increase was primarily the result of fees incurred during the three-month period ended March 31, 2015 in connection with CJ Sale and the Innova Offering as compared to underwriter fees and professional fees incurred in connection with the acquisition of Diamond Game during the three-month period ended March 31, 2014.

Current and Deferred Income Tax

Current income taxes increased from $1.0 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014 to $2.9 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015. This increase was primarily the result of the Rational Group Acquisition and the taxable revenues generated by the Corporation's B2C operations.

For the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation recognized deferred income tax recovery of $2.5 million as compared to recognized deferred income tax recovery of $0.9 million for the comparable prior year period. For the three month period ended March 31, 2014, the Corporation recognized deferred income tax recovery resulting primarily by differences between accounting and tax treatment of purchase price allocated intangibles.

Results from Discontinued Operations

Each of the B2B businesses, Diamond Game (now a wholly owned subsidiary of Innova) and Cadillac Jack, are classified as discontinued operations and their assets and liabilities are classified as held for sale and for the period ended March 31, 2015 (Ongame and its assets and liabilities were also so classified for the period ended December 31, 2014). The table below illustrates the impact of such discontinued operations on the Corporation's results of operations during such period as compared to the comparable prior-year period:

	For the periods ended
	March 31, 2015 $000's (except per share data)	March 31, 2014 $000's (except per share data)
Revenues	30,054	28,360
Expenses	(32,504)	(32,003)
Results from operating activities before income taxes	(2,450)	(3,643)
Income taxes	7,285	1,770
Net loss from discontinued operations	(9,735)	(5,413)
Basic earnings (loss) from discontinued operations per Common Share	(0.07)	(0.06)
Diluted earnings (loss) from discontinued operations per Common Share	(0.07)	(0.06)

LIQUIDITY AND CAPITAL RESOURCES

Generally, following the Rational Group Acquisition, the Corporation's working capital needs are minimal as the B2C business, the Corporation's primary business segment, requires consumers to deposit funds prior to playing or participating in any of the B2C product offerings. Based on the Corporation's current revenue and continued growth expectations, primarily from its B2C business and the funds available from the Corporation's existing USD$100 million five-year first lien revolving credit facility, Management believes that the Corporation will have the cash resources to satisfy current working capital needs, fund development activities and other capital expenditures for at least the next 12 months. For a description of the factors and risks that could affect the Corporation's ability to generate sufficient amounts of cash and cash equivalents, in the short- and long-terms, to maintain the Corporation's capacity, meet its planned growth or fund development activities, see "Risk Factors and Uncertainties" below.

Moreover, Management is of the opinion that investing is a key element necessary for the continued growth of the Corporation's customer base and the future development of new and innovative products and solutions. The state of capital markets, micro and macro-economic downturns and contractions of our operations may influence the Corporation's ability to secure the capital resources required to fund future projects and support growth.

The Corporation is exposed to liquidity risk with respect to its contractual obligations and financial liabilities. The Corporation manages liquidity risk by continuously monitoring forecast and actual cash flows and matching maturity profiles of financial assets and liabilities. The Corporation's objective is to maintain a balance between continuity of funding and flexibility through borrowing facilities available through the Corporation's banks and other lenders. The Corporation's policy is to seek to ensure adequate funding is available from operations, established lending facilities and other sources as required.

In addition to the descriptions of the Corporation's debt as set forth below under "Credit Facility" and "Long-Term Debt", see "General Development of the Business—Financings and Capital Markets Activities" in the 2014 Annual Information Form for further details.

The following is a summary of the Corporation's contractual obligations as of March 31, 2015:

This credit facility contains customary covenants, including, without limitation, maintenance covenants based on certain agreed-upon leverage ratios, each of which the Corporation was in compliance with as of March 31, 2015.

As at each of March 31, 2015 and December 31, 2014, the outstanding amounts of the USD $100 million revolving unsecured demand credit facility equaled USD$ nil.

On February 7, 2013, the Corporation closed a private placement of units, issuing and selling 30,000 units at a price of $1,000 per unit for aggregate gross proceeds of $30 million. Each unit consisted of (i) $1,000 principal amount of unsecured non-convertible subordinated debentures (the "2013 Debentures") and (ii) 48 non-transferable Common Share purchase warrants (the warrant indenture was subsequently amended to provide for the warrants to be transferable and traded on the TSX). The 2013 Debentures bear interest at a rate of 7.50% per annum payable semi-annually in arrears on January 31 and July 31 in each year and commenced on July 31, 2013. The 2013 Debentures mature and are repayable on January 31, 2016. Each warrant entitles the holder thereof to acquire one Common Share at a price per Common Share equal to $6.25 at any time until January 31, 2016. At the time of issuance, the proceeds were allocated between the debt and the equity components using the residual method.

During the three-months ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation incurred $980,000 in interest, of which $420,000 relates to interest accretion, as compared to $890,000 in interest during the three-months ended March 31, 2014, of which $370,000 relates to interest accretion. There have been no material movements in the debt and equity components of the private placement of units recognized during the three-month period ended March 31, 2015 as compared to the three-month period ended December 31, 2014.

The following table sets forth the repayment obligations under the debt component of the private placement of units during the next two fiscal years:

2016	30,000

Credit Facilities and Senior Facility

On December 20, 2013, Cadillac Jack entered into an agreement for the refinancing of its credit facilities. Under this agreement, Cadillac Jack has access to term loans in an aggregate principal amount of up to USD $160 million (the "Credit Facilities"). The Credit Facilities replaced the existing USD $110 million non-convertible senior secured term loan secured by Cadillac Jack's assets that was made available to finance the acquisition of Cadillac Jack by Amaya as of November 5, 2012 (the "2012 Loan"). The Credit Facilities were used to fully repay the outstanding balance on the 2012 Loan, as well as related fees and expenses, and the remaining amounts are being used to fund the ongoing working capital and other general corporate purposes. On May 15, 2014, Cadillac Jack obtained an incremental USD $80 million term loan to the Credit Facilities through an amendment thereto for the purpose of financing working capital expenses and general corporate purposes of the Corporation. The new aggregate principal amount of USD$240 million bears interest at a per annum rate equal to LIBOR plus 8.5% with a 1% LIBOR floor (as amended, the "Senior Facility"). The Senior Facility will mature over a five-year term from the closing date and is secured by the stock of Cadillac Jack and the assets of Cadillac Jack and its subsidiaries. The Senior Facility contains customary covenants, including, without limitation, maintenance and incurrence covenants based on certain agreed-upon leverage and coverage ratios, each of which the Corporation was in compliance with as of March 31, 2015. Amaya has provided an unsecured guarantee of the obligations under the Senior Facility in favor of the lenders.

During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation reclassified the Senior Facility as a liability held for sale. During the period, the Corporation incurred interest of $7.13 million, of which $110,000 relates to interest accretion, as compared to $3.64 million during the three-month period ended March 31, 2014, of which $110,000 relates to interest accretion.

The remaining principal repayments of the Senior Facility over the next five years amount to the following:

2015	3,040
2016	3,040
2017	3,040
2018	3,040
2019	288,531

Mezzanine Facility

On May 15, 2014, Cadillac Jack obtained a mezzanine subordinated unsecured loan (the "Mezzanine Facility") in the form of a subordinated term loan in the aggregate principal amount of USD$100 million, bearing interest at a per annum rate equal to 13%; provided, at the option of Cadillac Jack, interest accruing at a per annum rate of 7% may instead be paid in-kind in lieu of cash. The Mezzanine Facility will mature over a 6-year term from the closing date and is unsecured. Amaya has provided an unsecured guarantee of the obligations under the Mezzanine Facility in favor of the lenders. The Mezzanine Facility contains customary covenants, including, without limitation, maintenance and incurrence covenants based on certain agreed-upon leverage and coverage ratios, each of which the Corporation was in compliance with as of March 31, 2015. In connection with the Mezzanine Facility, the Corporation granted the lenders 4,000,000 Common Share purchase warrants, entitling the holders thereof to acquire one Common Share per warrant at a price per Common Share equal to $19.17 at any time up to a period ending ten years after the closing date.

During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation reclassified the Mezzanine Facility as liabilities held for sale. During the period, the Corporation incurred $4.58 million in interest on the Mezzanine Facility, of which $0.36 million relates to interest accretion and $2.27 million relates to paid in kind interest.

The remaining principal repayments under the Mezzanine Facility over the next five years amount to the following:

2016	–
2017	–
2019+	126,660

The Corporation currently anticipates using the net proceeds from the CJ Sale primarily for deleveraging, including the repayment of the Senior Facility and Mezzanine Facility. However, there can be no assurance as to if and when the CJ Sale will occur or whether it will occur on the same or substantially similar terms as previously agreed upon.

First and Second Lien Term Loans

On August 1, 2014, Amaya completed the Rational Group Acquisition, which was partly financed through the issuance of long term debt, allocated as follows:

First Lien Term Loans

The first lien term loans consist of a USD$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan priced at LIBOR plus 4.00% (the "USD First Lien Term Loan") and a €200 million seven-year first lien term loan priced at Euribor plus 4.25% (the "EUR First Lien Term Loan" and, together with the USD First Lien Term Loan, the "First Lien Term Loans"), in each case with a 1.00% LIBOR and Euribor floor.

The Corporation is required to allocate 50% of the excess cash flow of the Corporation to the principal repayment of the First Lien Term Loans. Excess cash flow is referred to as EBITDA of the Rational Group on a consolidated basis for such excess cash flow period (i.e., each fiscal year commencing with the fiscal year ending on December 31, 2015), minus, without duplication, debt service, capital expenditures, permitted business acquisitions and investments, taxes paid in cash , increases in working capital, cash expenditures in respect of swap agreements, any extraordinary, unusual or nonrecurring loss, income or gain on asset dispositions, and plus, without any duplication, decreases in working capital, capital expenditures funded with the proceeds of the issuance of debt or the issuance of equity, cash payments received in respect of swap agreements, any extraordinary, unusual or nonrecurring gain realized in cash and cash interest income to the extent deducted in the computation of EBITDA.

The percentage allocated to the principal repayment can fluctuate based on the following:

- If the total secured leverage ratio at the end of the applicable excess cash flow period is less than or equal to 4.75 to 1.00 but is greater than 4.00 to 1.00, the repayments will be 25% of the excess cash flow.
- If the total secured leverage ratio at the end of the applicable excess cash flow period is less than or equal to 4.00 to 1.00, the repayment will be 0% of the excess cash flow.

The agreement for the First Lien Term Loans restricts the Corporation from, among other things, incurring additional debt, making certain investments or granting additional liens on its assets and equity, distributing equity interests and distributing any assets to third parties.

On March 16, 2015, Amaya announced that it entered into the Swap Agreements, which allow for the creation of synthetic Euro-denominated debt with fixed Euro interest payments at an average rate of 4.6016% (a simple average of the different interest rates for the various Swap Agreements) to replace the USD interest payments bearing a minimum floating interest rate of 5.0% (USD three-month LIBOR plus a 4.0% margin, with a LIBOR floor of 1.0%) related to the USD First Lien Term Loan. The interest and principal payments for the Swap Agreements, which mature in five years, will be made at a Euro to USD exchange rate of 1.1102 on USD notional amounts of $1.74 billion.

During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation incurred $29.9 million in interest on the USD First Lien Term Loan, of which $3.29 million relates to interest accretion, and repaid $5.55 million in relation thereto.

The USD First Lien Term Loan remaining principal repayments over the next five years amount to the following:

2015	174,970
2016	198,084
2017	211,181
2018	224,841
2019+	1,399,353

During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation incurred $3.05 million in interest, of which $380,000 relates to interest accretion, and repaid $680,000 in relation thereto.

The EUR First Lien Term Loan remaining principal repayments over the next five years amount to the following:

2015	21,479
2016	24,316
2017	25,924
2018	27,601
2019+	171,779

USD Second Lien Term Loan

The second lien term loan consists of a USD$800 million eight-year loan priced at LIBOR plus 7.00%, with a 1.00% LIBOR floor repayable on August 1, 2022 (the "USD Second Lien Term Loan"). During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation incurred $21.5 million in interest on the USD Second Lien Term Loan of which $1.35 million relates to interest accretion.

The USD Second Lien Term Loan remaining principal repayments over the next five years amount to the following:

2016	–
2019+	1,014,641

For the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation also designated the entire principal amount of its USD Second Lien Term Loan and USD $400 million of the deferred purchase price for the Rational Group Acquisition as a foreign exchange hedge of its net investment in its foreign operations. As a result, during the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation recorded an unrealized exchange loss on translation of $81.48 million in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income related to the translation of the USD Second Lien Term Loan and such deferred purchase price.

CASH FLOWS BY ACTIVITY

The table below outlines a summary of cash inflows (outflows) by activity.

	For the three-month period ended
	March 31, 2015 $000's	March 31, 2014 $000's
Operating activities	79,328	568
Financing activities	(5,567)	(352)
Investing activities	(151,863)	24,577

Cash Provided by (Used In) Operations

The Corporation generated positive cash flows from operating activities for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015. This was primarily the result of B2C revenue generated by the B2C business. Cash generated by operating activities for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015 was $79.3 million as compared to $568,000 for the comparable prior year period.

Cash Provided by (Used In) Financing Activities

The cash used for financing activities for the three-month periods ended March 31, 2015 and 2014 was $5.6 million and $352,000, respectively. During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the primary expenditure affecting the cash used for financing activities was the repayment of debt. During the three-month period ended March 31, 2014, cash used in financing activities was primarily related to the repayment of long-term debt.

Cash Provided by (Used In) Investing Activities

The use of cash in investing activities for the three-month period ended March 31, 2015 was $151.9 million as compared to cash provided by investing activities of $24.6 million for the comparable prior year period. During the three-month period ended March 31, 2015, the Corporation's use of cash in investing activities primarily resulted from restricting cash for the Rational Group deferred payment in connection with the Rational Group Acquisition and further cash used to purchase available for sale investments. During the three-month period ended March 31, 2014, the Corporation's cash provided by investing activities was primarily the result of proceeds from the sale of WagerLogic Malta Holdings Limited ("WagerLogic", as partially offset by the acquisition of Diamond Game.

Cash Flows from (Used In) Discontinued Operations

Each of the B2B businesses, Diamond Game (now a wholly owned subsidiary of Innova) and Cadillac Jack, are classified as discontinued operations and their assets and liabilities are classified as held for sale and for the period ended March 31, 2015 (Ongame and its assets and liabilities were also so classified for the period ended December 31, 2014). The table below illustrates the impact of such discontinued operations on the Corporation's cash flows during such period as compared to the comparable prior-year period:

	For the three-month period ended
	March 31, 2015 $000's	March 31, 2014 $000's
Operating activities	6,378	924
Financing activities	(1,840)	(562)
Investing activities	(12,498)	(23,392)

SUMMARY OF SIGNIFICANT ACCOUNTING POLICIES

Other than as set forth below under "New Significant Accounting Policies", there have been no changes to the Corporation's significant accounting policies or critical accounting estimates or judgments from those described under "Summary of Significant Accounting Policies" in the 2014 Annual MD&A.

New Significant Accounting Policies

Derivative Financial Instruments

From time to time the Corporation uses derivative instruments for risk management purposes. The Corporation does not use derivative instruments for speculative trading purposes. All derivatives are recorded at fair value on the statements of financial position. The method of recognizing unrealized and realized fair value gains and losses depends on whether the derivatives are designated as hedging instruments. For derivatives not designated as hedging instruments, unrealized gains and losses are recorded in financial expenses on the condensed consolidated statements of earnings. Fore derivatives designated as hedging instruments, unrealized and realized gains and losses are recognized according to the nature of the hedged item.

Derivatives are valued using market transactions and other market evidence whenever possible, including market-based inputs to models, broker or dealer quotations or alternative pricing sources. To qualify for hedge accounting, the relationship between the hedged item and the hedging instrument must meet several strict conditions on documentation, probability of occurrence, hedge effectiveness and reliability of measurement. If these conditions are not met, then the relationship does not qualify for hedge accounting treatment and both the hedged item and the hedging instrument are reported independently, as if there was no hedging relationship.

The Corporation currently uses derivatives for cash flow hedges. The effective portion of the change in fair value of the hedging instrument is recorded in other comprehensive income, while the ineffective portion is recognized immediately in net earnings. Gains and losses on cash flow hedges that accumulate in other comprehensive income are transferred to net earnings in the same period the hedged item affects net earnings. Gains and losses on cash flow hedges are immediately reclassified from other comprehensive income to net earnings when it is probable that a forecasted transaction is no longer expected to occur.

Hedges of net investments in foreign operations are accounted for similarly to cash flow hedges. Any gain or loss on the hedging instrument relating to the effective portion of the hedge is recognized in the consolidated statements of comprehensive income. The gain or loss relating to the ineffective portion is recognized in the consolidated statements of earnings. Gains and losses accumulated in other comprehensive income are included in the consolidated statements of earnings when the foreign operation is partially disposed of or sold.

Changes in Accounting Policies Adopted

There have been no changes to the Corporation's accounting policies adopted from those described under "Recent Accounting Pronouncements—Changes in Accounting Policies Adopted" in the 2014 Annual MD&A.

New Accounting Pronouncements - Not Yet Effective

IFRS 9, Financial Instruments

The IASB issued IFRS 9 relating to the classification and measurement of financial assets. IFRS 9 uses a single approach to determine whether a financial asset is measured at amortized cost or fair value, replacing the many different rules in IAS 39. The approach in IFRS 9 is based on how an entity manages its financial instruments (i.e., its business model) and the contractual cash flow characteristics of such financial assets.

IFRS 9 also includes a new hedge accounting model, together with corresponding disclosures about risk management activity for those applying hedge accounting.

An entity shall apply IFRS 9 retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2018 with early adoption permitted. The Corporation is currently evaluating the impact of applying this standard.

IFRS 15, Revenues from Contracts with Customers

The Financial Accounting Standards Board and IASB have issued converged standards on revenue recognition. This new IFRS 15 affects any entity using IFRS that either enters into contracts with customers to transfer goods or services or enters into contracts for the transfer of nonfinancial assets, in each case, unless those contracts are within the scope of other standards. This IFRS will supersede the revenue recognition requirements in IAS 18 and most industry-specific guidance.

The core principle of the guidance is that an entity should recognize revenue to depict the transfer of promised goods or services to customers in an amount that reflects the consideration to which the entity expects to be entitled in exchange for those goods or services.

On April 28, 2015, the IASB has tentatively decided to postpone the initial January 1, 2017 effective date to January 1, 2018 with early adoption permitted. The Corporation is currently evaluating the impact of applying this standard.

OFF BALANCE SHEET ARRANGEMENTS

As of March 31, 2015, the Corporation had no off-balance sheet arrangements that have had, or are reasonably likely to have, a current or future effect on the financial performance or financial condition of the Corporation.

OUTSTANDING SHARE DATA

As at May 14, 2015, the Corporation had a total of 133,792,728 Common Shares issued and outstanding, 1,139,249 Preferred Shares issued and outstanding and exercisable for 48,892,770 Common Shares, 9,413,503 options issued under the Corporation's share option plan and exercisable for the same number of Common Shares, of which 2,521,282 were exercisable, and 15,570,435 Common Share purchase warrants issued and outstanding and exercisable for the same number of Common Shares.

DISCLOSURE CONTROLS AND PROCEDURES AND INTERNAL CONTROL OVER FINANCIAL REPORTING

National Instrument 52-109 ("NI 52-109"), entitled Certification of Disclosure in Issuers' Annual and Interim Filings, requires Amaya's certifying officers, namely, the Chief Executive Officer ("CEO") and the Chief Financial Officer ("CFO"), to establish and maintain disclosure controls and procedures ("DC&P") and internal control over financial reporting ("ICFR"), as those terms are defined in NI 52-109. In compliance with NI 52-109, the Corporation has filed certificates signed by the CEO and the CFO that, among other things, report on the design of each of DC&P and ICFR.

Changes to Internal Control over Financial Reporting

There has been no change in Amaya's ICFR that occurred during the period beginning on January 1, 2015 and ended on March 31, 2015 that has materially affected, or is reasonably likely to materially affect, Amaya's ICFR.

Limitation on Scope of Design

NI 52-109 allows an issuer to limit its design of DC&P and ICFR to exclude a business acquired not more than 365 days before the end of the period to which the certificate relates. Within 365 days from the financial quarter ended March 31, 2015, Amaya acquired the Rational Group, effective August 1, 2014. As allowed by NI 52-109, the CEO and CFO have limited the scope of their design of DC&P and ICFR to exclude controls, policies and procedures of this business.

RISK FACTORS AND UNCERTAINTIES

Certain factors may have a material adverse effect on our business, financial condition, and results of operations. Current and prospective investors should consider carefully the risks and uncertainties described below, in addition to other information contained in this MD&A, our condensed consolidated financial statements and related notes, the 2014 Annual Information Form and 2014 Annual Financial Statements. The risks and uncertainties described below are not the only ones we face. Additional risks and uncertainties that we are unaware of, or that we currently believe are not material, may also become important factors that could adversely affect our business. If any of the following risks actually occur, our business, financial condition, results of operations, and future prospects could be materially and adversely affected. In that event, the trading price of our securities could decline, and you could lose part or all of your investment.

The Corporation's current principal risks and uncertainties as identified by Management are summarized below, each of which could, among other things, have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, liquidity and results of operations:

- The Corporation's substantial indebtedness requires that it use a significant portion of its cash flow to make interest payments, which could adversely affect its ability to raise additional capital to fund its operations, limit its ability to react to changes in the economy or in the Corporation's industry and prevent it from making debt service payments. Amaya's secured credit facilities and provisions governing the Preferred Shares contain restrictions that limit its flexibility in operating its business. Amaya may not be able to generate sufficient cash flows to meet its debt service obligations.

- Amaya's outstanding credit facilities subject it to financial covenants which may limit its flexibility. Amaya is also exposed to the risk of increased interest rates.

- The gaming and interactive entertainment industries are intensely competitive. Amaya faces competition from a growing number of companies and, if Amaya is unable to compete effectively, its business could be negatively impacted.

- Amaya's online offerings are part of new and evolving industries, which presents significant uncertainty and business risks.

- Amaya's success in the competitive gaming and interactive entertainment industries depends in large part on its ability to develop and manage frequent introductions of innovative products.

- Amaya's dependency on customers' acceptance of its products, and the Corporation's inability to meet changing consumer preferences may negatively impact Amaya's business and results of operations.

- The Corporation's products are becoming more sophisticated, resulting in additional expenses and the increased potential for loss in the case of an unsuccessful product.

- Acquisitions involve risks that could negatively affect the Corporation's operating results, cash flows and liquidity.
- The Corporation could face considerable business and financial risks in investigating, completing and implementing acquisitions.
- Failure to attract, retain and motivate key employees may adversely affect the Corporation's ability to compete and the loss of the services of key personnel could have a material adverse effect on Amaya's business.
- The Corporation's insurance coverage may not be adequate to cover all possible losses it may suffer, and, in the future, its insurance costs may increase significantly or it may be unable to obtain the same level of insurance coverage.
- New products may be subject to complex and dynamic revenue recognition standards, which could materially affect the Corporation's financial results.
- The Corporation's business is vulnerable to changing economic conditions and to other factors that adversely affect the industries in which it operates.
- Litigation costs and the outcome of litigation could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business.
- The Corporation relies on its internal marketing and branding function, as well as its relationship with ambassadors, distributors, service providers and channel partners to promote its products and generate revenue, and the failure to maintain and develop these relationships could adversely affect the business and financial condition of the Corporation.
- The risks related to international operations, in particular in countries outside of the United States and Canada, could negatively affect the Corporation's results.
- The Corporation is subject to foreign exchange and currency risks that could adversely affect its operations, and the Corporation's ability to mitigate its foreign exchange risk through hedging transactions may be limited.
- The Corporation is subject to various domestic and international laws and regulations relating to, among other things, trade, export controls, and foreign corrupt practices, the violation of which could adversely affect its operations, reputation, business, prospects, operating results and financial condition.
- Privacy concerns could result in regulatory changes and impose additional costs and liabilities on the Corporation, limit its use of information, and adversely affect its business.
- The Corporation's results of operations could be affected by natural events in the locations in which it operates or where its customers or suppliers operate.
- The gaming industry is heavily regulated and failure by the Corporation to comply with applicable requirements could be disruptive to its business and could adversely affect its operations.
- The Corporation may not be able to capitalize on the expansion of online or other forms of interactive gaming or other trends and changes in the gaming industry, including due to laws and regulations governing these industries.
- The Corporation's ability to operate in its existing jurisdictions or expand in new jurisdictions could be adversely affected by new or changing laws or regulations, new interpretations of existing laws or regulations, and difficulties or delays in obtaining or maintaining required licenses or product approvals.
- Regulations that may be adopted with respect to the Internet and electronic commerce may decrease the growth in the use of the Internet and lead to the decrease in the demand for Amaya's products and services.

- Amaya's shareholders are subject to extensive governmental regulation and if a shareholder is found unsuitable by a gaming authority, that shareholder would not be able to beneficially own the Corporation's Common Shares directly or indirectly.

- Amaya's intellectual property may be insufficient to properly safeguard its technology and brands.

- The Corporation may be subject to claims of intellectual property infringement or invalidity and adverse outcomes of litigation could unfavorably affect its operating results.

- Compromises of the Corporation's systems or unauthorized access to confidential information or Amaya's customers' personal information could materially harm Amaya's reputation and business.

- Service interruptions of Internet service providers could impair the Corporation's ability to carry on its business.

- There is a risk that the Corporation's network systems will be unable to meet the growing demand for its online products.

- Systems, network or telecommunications failures or cyber-attacks may disrupt the Corporation's business and have an adverse effect on Amaya's results of operations.

- Amaya's products and operations may experience losses due to technical problems or fraudulent activities.

- The Corporation's Common Shares rank junior to the Preferred Shares with respect to amounts payable in the event of a liquidation.

- Certain provisions of the Preferred Shares could delay or prevent an otherwise beneficial takeover attempt of Amaya and, therefore, the ability of holders to exercise their rights associated with a potential fundamental change.

- The Corporation's advance notice bylaws may prevent attempts by its shareholders to replace or remove its current management.

- Future sales or the possibility of future sales of a substantial amount of the Corporation's Common Shares may depress the price of the Corporation's Common Shares.

- The price and trading volume of the Common Shares may fluctuate significantly.

- The Corporation's Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, GSO and BlackRock, each individually and collectively, own a significant amount of the Corporation's voting shares and may be able to exert influence over matters requiring shareholder approval.

All historical information relating to Rational Group prior to the Rational Group Acquisition presented in, or due to lack of information omitted from, the Corporation's documents filed on SEDAR, including the Corporation's Management Information Circular, dated June 30, 2014, for the annual and special meeting of shareholders of the Corporation held on July 30, 2014 and the Corporation's Business Acquisition Report filed on October 15, 2014, including all financial information of Rational Group, has been provided in exclusive reliance on the information made available by Rational Group and their respective representatives. Although the Corporation has no reason to doubt the accuracy or completeness of Rational Group's information provided therein, any inaccuracy or omission in such information contained could result in unanticipated liabilities or expenses, increase the cost of integrating Amaya and Rational Group or adversely affect the operational plans of the combined entities and its results of operations and financial condition.

A detailed description of the risks and uncertainties affecting Amaya and its business as set forth above, as well as additional risks and uncertainties, can be found in the 2014 Annual Information Form. Shareholders and prospective investors are urged to read and consider such risk factors.

The Deed also provides for a deferred payment of US$400 million, which shall be subject to adjustment based upon the occurrence of certain events, payable to the Sellers within thirty (30) months of the Closing Date. There is no interest on the deferred payment.

The Upfront Purchase Price and fees and expenses relating to the Acquisition that were paid by closing of the Acquisition were financed through a combination of cash on hand, new debt, a private placement of subscription receipts, a private placement of common shares and a private placement of non-voting convertible preferred shares, allocated as follows: (i) US$1.05 billion of convertible preferred shares, (ii) C$640 million of subscription receipts at C$20 per subscription receipt which were automatically converted into common shares on a one-to-one basis upon closing of the Acquisition, (iii) US$55 million of common shares subscribed at C$20 per common share, (iv) senior secured credit facilities in the aggregate principal amount of approximately US$2.92 billion, and (v) cash on hand in the amount of US$213 million.

2.4 Effect on Financial Position

Upon closing of the Acquisition, Oldford Group's CEO, founders and shareholders and certain other principals resigned from all positions with Oldford Group. However, the other primary executive officers including the CFO and COO and other members of the management team were retained to continue leading the business. No other material changes occurred within the corporate structure, management or personnel of Oldford Group as there was minimal overlap between the Corporation's business-to-business operations and Oldford Group's business-to-consumer operations.

The Acquisition is expected to generate revenue synergies since part of the Corporation's previously existing business is the licensing of online casino gaming content to third party "business to consumer" (B2C) gaming operators. Following announcement of the Acquisition, the Corporation has integrated its library of casino games into the PokerStars and Full Tilt online casino offerings, which is expected to generate increased revenues at a relatively low marginal cost.

The Acquisition also provides opportunities for geographic growth as Oldford Group generated no revenue in the United States. As jurisdictions within the United States become regulated, the Corporation, which has numerous licenses in the United States, anticipates its ownership will have the potential to accelerate the entry of PokerStars and Full Tilt into these newly regulated markets.

The acquired business has historically required a relatively low amount of capital expenditure and working capital and Oldford Group's base in the Isle of Man results in a low corporate tax rate, which should not be affected by the acquisition structure. The Corporation expects that the balance sheet will continue to deleverage over the 18 to 30 months following the Closing Date due to the cash generation profile of the combined company, paired with projected growth.

For additional details of the effect of the Acquisition on the Corporation's financial position and results of operations, see the financial statements referred to under "Item 3 – Financial Statements" of this business acquisition report.

2.5 Prior Valuations

2.6 Parties to Transaction

PokerStars launched its first real money play application on a mobile platform in January 2012. This was in line with our strategy to make poker available on any platform and has proven to be an excellent acquisition tool. Using PokerStars ambassador Rafael Nadal in mobile marketing campalgns allowed us to further promote this product PokerStars signed former Brazilian football star Ronaldo as a brand ambassador this year, joining tennis superstar Nadal as a promoter of poker In a continued effort to Introduce poker to new audiences and to Increase consumer creditability and confidence In online poker.

PokerStars officially launched its fast-fold ring game format called ‘Zoom Poker’ In May 2012 which has become a massive hit, with more than a quarter of all cash game hands on the Internet being played in Zoom. Full Tilt launched a similar yet different product called ‘Rush Poker’ which is a popular innovation, offering players the fastest, slickest action in online poker, and is available in both tournament and ring game formats.

PokerStars maintains its position as the market leader by continuing to improve its products and by Introducing new Innovative features. The company lunched a new play money offering known as ‘Freemlum’, in October 2013. This allows our play money customers to purchase money chip bundles for real cash and facilitates the acceleration and enhancement of their gaming experience through the occasional purchase of these chips. The sale of play money chips has the potential to become a significant revenue stream for the Group.

The Facebook client was launched in beta phase in August 2013 which allows our play money customers to play for free, share achievements with friends and enjoy the greatest selection of play money poker games available on Facebook.

Full Tilt Poker celebrated its first year anniversary (launched in November 2012) with the brand becoming established resulting in an increase in Group market share. The Group looks forward to Introducing new poker game variants in the near future which will help to differentiate the brand and attract more players.

June this year marked a huge milestone for PokerStars when we dealt our 100 billionth hand of online poker. In addition, PokerStars received the prestigious Online Poker Operator of the Year award for the second consecutive year at the International Gaming Awards and the Best Mobile Poker Operator award at the mGaming Awards.

The Group continues to show steady growth in revenue year on year. The $157.0M, 16.1% (2012; $111.4M, 12.9%) Increase in revenue was partly achieved by a 14.7% (2012; 3.2%) increase in the number of unique players who played on the Group’s websites, coupled by a 8.4% (2012; 1.7%) Increase in Active Player Days. Much of this growth in activity was attributable to the re-branding of the Full Tilt brand and a full year of activity in 2013.

Expenses increased by $46.1M, 7.0% (2012; $23.5M, 3.5% decrease) mainly as a result of the inclusion of Full Tilt Poker for a full year. The Group continued to Invest in all offices with overall headcount growing by 10.5% (2012; 20.1%), which was mainly attributed to the incorporation and expansion of Full Tilt Poker. These Increases in costs were however offset by controlling the Group’s marketing spend.

Profit from operations increased $110.9M, 34.7% (2012; $135.0M, 73.2%), primarily driven by the release of historic dormant account balances and revenues from the sale of play money chips, a reduction in distribution and administration costs as a percentage of gaming revenues and a full year of activity on the Full Tilt brand in 2013 compared to two months in 2012. In addition, Full Tilt brand performance has significantly Improved year on year due to operating losses in 2012, attributable to pre-launch expenses and the write-off of historic bad debts.

Risks & uncertainties facing the business

The Group operates in the online environment in which the regulatory environment is rapidly evolving. The Group seeks legal advice from leading practitioners in Jurisdictions in which it has a physical presence or from which a substantial part of its revenue is drawn and acts in accordance with such advice.

Goals and objectives

1 General

Oldford Group Limited (the "Company") is a limited company which continued in the isle of Man (previously a British Virgin Islands company until 26 November 2013). The Company's registered office is at Douglas Bay Complex, Kind Edward Road, Onchan, Isle of Man. These consolidated financial statements comprise the Company and its principle subsidiaries (collectively the "Group"). The list of subsidiaries can be found in note 19. The Group is primarily involved as a provider of online poker.

2 Basis of preparation

The financial statements for both the Group and the Company have been prepared in accordance with applicable international Financial Reporting Standards (IFRSs), IFRS Interpretations Committee (IFRIC), interpretations and with those parts of the Companies Act 2006 applicable to companies reporting under IFRSs.

The consolidated financial statements have been prepared under the historical cost basis except for certain financial instruments that are measured at fair values at the end of the each reporting period, as explained in the significant accounting polices below.

3 Functional and presentation currency

The individual financial statements of each Group entity are presented in the currency of the primary economic environment in which the entity operates (the "functional currency"). The consolidated financial statements are presented in United States Dollars, which is the Group's functional and presentation currency.

All amounts have been rounded to the nearest thousand, unless otherwise indicated.

4 Use of judgements and estimates

The preparation of the consolidated financial statements necessitates the use of estimates, assumptions and Judgements that affect the application of the Group's accounting policies and the reported amounts of assets, liabilities, income and expenses. Although the estimates are based on management's knowledge and best Judgement information and financial data, the actual outcome may differ from these estimates. The estimates and underlying assumptions are reviewed on an on-going basis.

In the process of applying the Group's accounting policies, management has made Judgements, assumptions and estimates of information and financial data that have the most significant effect on the amounts recognised in the consolidated financial statements in the following notes:

- Note 7—dormant accounts: regarding player accounts remaining inactive after the positive balances in dormant accounts have been recognised as revenue;
- Notes 15 and 17—depreciation and amortisation: regarding the assessment of and changes in useful lives and residual values;
- Notes 16 and 19—impairment test: regarding the key assumptions underlying recoverable amounts;
- Notes 19 and 32—consolidation: whether the Group has control over an investee with non-controlling interests;
- Notes 19, 20 and 35—fair value measurements: regarding the measurement of fair values for both financial and non-financial assets and liabilities; and
- Notes 19 and 20—available-for-sale investments: regarding classification of financial assets as available-for-sale and the current/non-current split of these financial assets.
- Note 29—short-term provisions: regarding the measurement of provisions including the key assumptions about the likelihood and magnitude of an outflow of resources.

5 Application of new and revised IFRSs

New and revised IFRSs affecting amounts reported and/or disclosed in the financial statements

In the current year, the Group has applied the following new and revised IFRSs that are mandatorily effective for accounting period that begins on or after 1 January 2013:

(a) Amendments to IFRS 7 Disclosures—Offsetting Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities

The amendments to IFRS 7 require entities to disclose Information about rights of offset and related arrangements (such as collateral posting requirements) for financial instruments under an enforceable master netting agreement or similar arrangement.

As the Group does not have any significant offsetting arrangements in place, the application of the amendments has had no material impact on the disclosures or on the amounts recognised in the consolidated financial statements.

(b) New and revised Standards on consolidation, joint arrangements, associates and disclosures

In May 2011, a package of five standards on consolidation, joint arrangements, associates and disclosures was issued comprising IFRS 10 Consolidated Financial Statements, IFRS 11 Joint Arrangements, IFRS 12 Disclosure of Interest in Other Entities, IAS 27 (revised 2011) Separate Financial Statements and IAS 28 (revised 2011) Investment in Associates and Joint Ventures. Subsequent to the issue of these standards, amendments to IFRS 10, IFRS 11 and IFRS 12 were issued to clarify certain transitional guidance on the first-time application of the standards.

The impact of the application of these standards is set out below:

Impact of the application of IFRS 10

IFRS 10 changes the definition of control such that an investor has control over an investee when a) it has power over the investee, b) it is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with the investee and c) has the ability to use its power to affect its returns. All three of these criteria must be met for an investor to have control over an investee. Previously, control was defined as the power to govern the financial and operating policies of an entity so as to obtain benefits from its activities.

In accordance with the transitional provisions of IFRS 10, the Group reassessed the control conclusion for its investees at 1 January 2013 and concluded that there are no changes to control the Group has over its investee. All subsidiaries which were previously consolidated will be continued to be treated as a subsidiary and consolidated with Group results.

Impact of the application of IFRS 11

IFRS 11 deals with how a joint arrangement of which two or more parties have joint control should be classified and accounted for. Under IFRS 11, there are only two type of joint arrangements – joint operations and joint ventures. The classification of joint arrangements under IFRS 11 is determined based on the rights and obligations of parties to the joint arrangements by considering the structure, the legal form of the arrangements, the contractual terms agreed by the parties to the arrangement, and when relevant, other facts and circumstances. Previously IAS 31 contemplated three type of arrangements – jointly controlled entitles, jointly controlled operations and Jointly controlled assets. The classification of joint arrangements under IAS 31 was primarily determined based on the legal form of the arrangement.

In accordance with the transitional provisions of IFRS 11, the Group has reassessed the arrangements it has with third parties and concluded that there are no joint arrangements in place. This is consistent with the Group's assessment in prior year.

Impact of the application of IFRS 12

IFRS 12 is a new disclosure standard and is applicable to entitles that have Interests in subsidiaries, joint arrangements, associates and/or unconsolidated structure entities.

As a result of IFRS 12, the Group has mainly expanded its disclosures about its Interests in subsidiaries (see notes 19 and 32).

Impact of the application of IAS 27 (revised 2011)

IAS 27 (revised 2011) now only deals with the requirements for separate financial statements. Previously IAS 27 also dealt with the requirements for consolidated financial statements which are now dealt with in IFRS 10. The standard requires that when an entity prepares separate financial statements, Investments In subsidiaries, associates, and jointly controlled entitles are accounted for either at cost, or in accordance with IFRS 9 Financial Instruments.

There is no impact to the Company as a result of application of IAS 27 (revised 2011) as Its accounting policies in relation to subsidiaries remain unchanged and are being accounted for at cost.

Impact of the application of IAS 28 (revised 2011)

IAS 28 (revised 2011) supersedes IAS 28 Investment in Associates and prescribes the accounting for investments in associates and sets out the requirements for the application of the equity method when accounting for Investments in associates and joint ventures.

5 Application of new and revised IFRSs (continued)

The Group does not have any investments in associates and has also established that there are no joint arrangements in place. As a result the application of IAS 28 (revised 2011) has no impact on the Group.

(c) IFRS 13 Fair Value Measurements

IFRS 13 establishes a single framework for measuring fair value and making disclosures about fair value measurements when such measurements are required or permitted by other IFRSs. It unifies the definition of fair value as the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. It replaces and expands the disclosure requirements about fair value measurements in other IFRSs, including IFRS 7.

As a result of IFRS 13, the Group has included additional disclosures in this regard (see notes 19 and 35). In accordance with the transitional provisions of IFRS 13, the Group has applied the new fair value measurement guidance prospectively and has not provided any comparative Information for new disclosures. Notwithstanding the above, the change had no significant impact on the measurements of the Group's assets and liabilities.

(d) Amendment to IAS 1 Presentation of Items of Other Comprehensive Income

As a result of the amendments to IAS 1, the Group has modified the presentation of Items of OCI in its statement of profit or loss and OCI, to present separately Items that would be reclassified to profit or loss from those that would never be. Comparative Information has been re-presented accordingly.

(e) Amendment to IAS 19 Employee Benefits (revised 2011)

IAS 19 (revised 2011) changes the accounting for defined benefit plans and termination benefits.

The Group does not have any defined benefit plans and significant termination benefits. As a result the application of IAS 19 (revised 2011) has no Impact on the Group.

New and revised IFRSs in Issue but not yet effective

At the date of authorisation of these financial statements, there were a number of standards and interpretations that have not been applied in these financial statements, which were in issue but not yet effective. In future periods the following are expected to have an impact on the financial statements:

IFRS 9 — Financial Instruments (effective for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2015).

Amendments to IFRS 10, IFRS 12 and IAS 27—Investment Entities (effective for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2014).

Amendments to IAS 32—Offsetting Financial Asses and Financial Liabilities (effective for accounting periods beginning on or after 1 January 2014).

6 Significant accounting policies

The Group has applied following principal accounting policies in the preparation of the consolidated financial statements:

Basis of consolidation

Subsidiaries

The consolidated financial statements incorporate the financial statements of the Company and entitles controlled by the Company (Its subsidiaries). Control is achieved when the Company a) has power over the investee; b) is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with the investee; and c) has the ability to use its power to affect its returns. The Company reassesses whether or not it controls an investee if facts and circumstances indicate that there are changes to one or more of the three elements of controls listed above.

Subsidiaries are consolidated from the date of acquisition (i.e. the date on which control of the subsidiary effectively commences) to the date of disposal (i.e. the date on which control over the subsidiary effectively ceases). Specifically, Income and expenses of a subsidiary acquired or disposed during the year are included in the consolidated statement of profit or loss and other comprehensive income from the date the Group gains control until the date when the Group ceases to control the subsidiary.

Where necessary, adjustments are made to the financial statements of subsidiaries to bring their accounting policies into line with the Group's accounting policies.

All Intragroup assets and liabilities, equity, income, expenses and cash flows relating to transactions between members of the Group are eliminated in full on consolidation.

Business combinations and related goodwill

The Group accounts for business combinations using the acquisition method when control is transferred to the Group. The consideration transferred in the acquisition is generally measured at fair value, as are the identifiable net assets acquired. Acquisition related costs are generally recognised in profit or loss as Incurred.

Any contingent consideration payable is measured at fair value at the acquisition date. If the contingent consideration is classified as equity, then it is not remeasured and settlement is accounted for within equity. Otherwise, subsequent changes in the fair value of the contingent consideration are recognised in profit or loss.

The excess of the consideration transferred over the fair value of the net identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities acquired is capitalised as goodwill. Any gain on a bargain purchase is recognised in profit or loss immediately. Goodwill is not amortised but tested for impairment at least annually and upon the occurrence of an indication of impairment. The impairment testing process is described in the appropriate section of these policies.

On disposal of a subsidiary, associate or jointly controlled entity, the attributable amount of goodwill is included in the determination of the profit or loss on disposal.

Non-controlling Interests ("NCI")

NCI are measured at their proportionate share of the acquiree's Identifiable net assets from acquisition date.

Changes in the Group's ownership interest in existing subsidiaries

Changes in the Group's ownership interests in subsidiaries that do not result in the Group losing control over the subsidiaries are accounted for as equity transactions. The carrying amounts of the Group's interests and NCI are adjusted to reflect the changes in their relative interests in the subsidiaries. Any difference between the amount by which the NCI are adjusted and the fair value of the consideration paid or received is recognised directly in equity and attributed to owners of the Company.

When the Group loses control over a subsidiary, it derecognises the assets and liabilities of the subsidiary, and any related NCI and other components of equity, Any resulting gain or loss is recognised in profit or loss and is calculated as the difference between (I) the aggregate of the fair value of the consideration received and the fair value of any retained interest and (II) the previous carrying amount of the assets (including goodwill), and liabilities of the subsidiary and any NCI. Any interest retained in the former subsidiary is measured at fair value when control is lost.

Foreign currency

Foreign currency transactions

In preparing the financial statements of the individual group entitles, transactions in currencies other than the entity's functional currency (foreign currencies) are translated at the spot foreign exchange rate at the date of the transaction.

At the end of each reporting period, monetary Items denominated in foreign currencies are retranslated at the rates prevailing at that date. Exchange differences arising on the retranslation of monetary assets and liabilities are recognised Immediately in the profit or loss.

Non-monetary Items carried at fair value that are denominated in foreign currencies are retranslated at the rates prevailing at the date when the fair value was determined. Non-monetary items that are measured in terms of historical cost in a foreign currency are not retranslated.

Foreign operations

The results and financial position of all the group entities (none of which has the currency of a hyperinflationary economy) that have a functional currency different from the presentation currency are translated into the presentation currency as follows:

(i) assets and liabilities for each statement of financial position presented are translated at the closing rate at the date of that statement;

(ii) Income and expenses for each income statement are translated at spot exchange rates (unless this spot is not a reasonable approximation of the cumulative effect of the rates prevailing on the transaction dates, in which case income and expenses are translated at the rate on the dates of the transactions); and

(iii) all resulting exchange differences are recognised in statement of comprehensive income and accumulated in the translation reserve, except to the extent that the translation difference is allocated to NCI.

When a foreign operation is disposed of in its entirety or partially such that control is lost, the cumulative amount in the translation reserve related to that foreign operation is reclassified to profit or loss as part of the gain or loss on disposal. If the Group disposes of part of its interest in a subsidiary but retains control, then the relevant proportion of the cumulative amount is reattributed to NCI.

Revenue recognition

Revenue is measured at the fair value of the consideration derived. Revenue is only recognised when it is probable that the economic benefits will flow to the Group and the amount of revenue can be measured reliably.

Internet gaming and tournament fees

Revenue from internet gaming is recognised in the accounting periods in which the gaming transactions occur. Revenue is recognised with reference to the underlying arrangements and agreements with the players.

Player deposit fees and conversion margins

Revenue from customer cross currency deposits and withdrawals is recognised when the transaction is complete. Revenue is recognised with reference to the underlying arrangements and agreements with the players.

Interest and Investment Income

Interest Income is accrued on a time basis, with reference to the principal amount and the applicable effective Interest rate. Dividend Income is recognised in profit or loss on the date that the Group’s right to receive payment is established.

Rental Income

Refer to accounting policy notes on leased assets below.

Employee benefits

Short-term employee benefits

Short-term employee benefits (which also include payroll costs) are expensed as the related service is provided. A liability is recognised for the amount expected to be paid if the Group has a present legal or constructive obligation to pay this amount as a result of past service provided by the employee and the obligation can be estimated reliably.

Defined contribution plan

Obligations for contributions to defined contribution plans are expensed as the related service is provided. Prepaid contributions are recognised as an asset to the extent that a cash refund or a reduction in future payments is available.

Share-based payment transactions

The Group has applied the requirements of IFRS 2 Share-based payments. The Group issues equity settled share-based payments to certain employees.

Equity settled share based payments are measured at fair value at the date of the grant. Fair value is measured by use of a suitable pricing model. The grant-date fair value of equity settled share-based payment granted to employees is generally recognised as an expense, with a corresponding increase in equity, over the vesting period of the awards factoring in any vesting conditions.

Dividends payable

Dividends are recognised when they become legally payable. In the case of interim dividends to equity shareholders, this is when declared by the directors and paid to the shareholders. In the case of final dividends, this is when approved by the shareholders at the Annual General Meeting.

Income tax

Income tax expense comprises current and deferred tax. It is recognised in profit or loss except to the extent that it relates to a business combination, or items recognised directly in equity or other comprehensive income.

Current tax

Current tax is the expected tax payable or receivable on the taxable income or loss for the year and any adjustment to tax payable or receivable in respect of previous years. It is measured using tax rates that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the year end date.

Deferred tax

Deferred tax is the tax expected to be payable or recoverable on temporary differences between the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities in the financial statements and the corresponding tax bases used in the computations of taxable profits.

Deferred tax assets are recognised for unused tax losses, unused tax credits and deductible temporary differences to the extent that it is probable that future taxable profits will be available against which they can be used. Deferred tax assets are reviewed at each year end date and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable profits will be available to allow all or part of the asset to be recovered.

Deferred tax liabilities are recognised for taxable temporary differences arising on investments in subsidiaries, except where the Group is able to control the reversal of the temporary difference and it is probable that the temporary difference will not reverse in the foreseeable future.

Deferred tax is measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply in the period when the liability is settled or the asset is realised, using tax rates enacted or substantively enacted at the year end date.

Property, plant and equipment

Recognition and measurement

Items of property, plant and equipment are measured at cost less accumulated depreciation and any accumulated impairment losses.

If significant parts of an Item of property, plant and equipment have different useful lives, then they are accounted for as separate items (major components) of property, plant and equipment.

Any gain or loss on disposal of an item of property, plant and equipment is recognised in profit or loss at the date of disposal.

Subsequent expenditure

Subsequent expenditure is capitalised only if it is probable that the future economic benefits associated with the expenditure will flow to the Group.

Depreciation

Depreciation is calculated to write off the cost, less estimated residual values, of property, plant and equipment (except land), using the straight-line method over their expected useful lives. Land is not depreciated.

It is calculated at the following rates:

Freehold Property	4% per annum
IT Equipment, Servers and Software	33% per annum
Office Furniture and Equipment	20% per annum
Office Alterations	20% per annum
Motor Vehicles	20% per annum
Event and Poker Room	20% per annum

Depreciation methods, useful lives and residual values are reviewed at each reporting date and adjusted as appropriate.

Intangible assets

Recognition and measurement

Intangible assets with finite useful lives that are acquired separately from a business are carried at cost less accumulated amortisation and any accumulated Impairment losses.

Intangible assets acquired as part of a business combination are capitalised separately from goodwill if the fair value can be measured reliably on initial recognition (which is regarded as its cost). Subsequent to initial recognition, intangible assets acquired in a business combination are reported at cost less accumulated amortisation and accumulated impairment losses, on the same basis as intangible assets that are acquired separately.

Any gain or loss on disposal of an intangible asset is recognised in profit or loss at the date of disposal.

Subsequent expenditure

Subsequent expenditure is capitalised only when it increases the future economic benefits embodied in the specific assets to which it relates.

Amortisation

Amortisation is calculated to write off the cost or valuation, less estimated residual values, of intangible assets, using the straight-line method over their estimated useful lives.

It is calculated at the following rates:

Customer lists	50% per annum
Domain names	50% per annum

Amortisation methods, useful lives and residual values are reviewed at each reporting date and adjusted as appropriate.

Impairment of tangible and Intangible assets

At each year end date, the Group reviews the carrying amounts of its assets to determine whether there is any indication that those assets have suffered an impairment loss. If any such indication exists, the recoverable amount of the asset is estimated in order to determine the extent of the impairment loss (if any). Where the asset does not generate cash flows that are independent from other assets, the Group estimates the recoverable amount of the cash-generating unit to which the asset belongs. An impairment loss is recognised immediately in profit or loss for the amount by which the asset’s carrying amount exceeds its recoverable amount.

Leased assets

All of the Group leasing arrangements are considered to be operating leases.

The Group as lessee

Rentals payable are charged to profit or loss on a straight line basis over the term of the relevant lease. Benefits received and receivable as an incentive to enter into an operating lease are also spread on a straight line basis over the lease term.

The Group as lessor

Rental income is credited to profit or loss on a straight line basis over the term of the relevant lease. Lease incentives granted are recognised as an integral part of the total rental income on a straight line basis over the lease term.

Investments in subsidiaries

Investments in subsidiaries are stated at cost less any identified impairment losses at the end of each reporting period.

Investments in unquoted equity investments

Investments in unquoted equity investments are stated at cost (or fair value) less any identified impairment losses at the end of each reporting period.

Inventories

Inventories are stated at the lower of cost and net realisable value. Net realisable value represents the estimated selling price for inventories less costs necessary to make the sale.

Trade and other receivables

Trade and other receivables are stated at their amortised cost less impairment losses and doubtful accounts.

Short-term deposits

Short-term deposits comprise deposits held at call with banks with maturities of more than three months.

Cash and cash equivalents

Cash and cash equivalents comprises cash in hand, deposits held on call with banks, other short-term highly liquid investments that are readily convertible to known amounts of cash. They include unrestricted short-term bank deposits originally purchased with maturities of three months or less.

Trade and other payables

Trade and other payables are not interest bearing and are stated at their nominal value.

Client liabilities

Client liabilities are amounts deposited by players and are stated at their nominal value.

Provisions

Provisions are recognised when the Group has present obligation (legal or constructive) as a result of a past event, it is probable that the Group will be required to settle the obligation, and a reliable estimate can be made of the amount of obligation. The amount recognised as a provision is the best estimate of the consideration required to settle the present obligation at the end of the reporting period, taking into account the risks and uncertainties surrounding the obligation.

Where time value is long term and material, the amount of the related provision is calculated by discounting the expected future cash flows at a pre-tax rate that reflects market assessments of the time value of money and, any risks specific to the liability.

Financial Instruments

Recognition, derecognition and offsetting

Financial assets and financial liabilities are recognised when the Group becomes a party to the contractual provisions of the Instrument.

The Group derecognises financial assets when the contractual rights to the cash flows from the asset expire, or it transfers the rights to receive the contractual cash flows in a transaction in which substantially all of the risks and rewards of ownership and does not retain control over the transferred asset. The Group derecognises a financial liability when its contractual obligations are discharged or cancelled, or expire.

Financial assets and financial liabilities are offset and the net amount presented in the statement of financial position when, and only when, the Group has a legal right to offset the amounts and intends either to settle them on a net basis or to realise the asset and settle the liability simultaneously.

Measurement

Financial assets are classified into the following specified categories: financial assets at fair value through profit or loss, held-to-maturity investments, loans and receivables and available-for-sale financial assets. Financial liabilities are classified as either financial liabilities at fair value through profit or loss or other financial liabilities. The classification depends on the nature and purpose of the financial assets and financial liabilities and is determined at the time of initial recognition.

Financial assets at fair value through profit or loss

A financial asset is classified as at fair value through profit or loss if it is classified as held-for-trading or is designated as such on initial recognition. Directly attributable transaction costs are recognised in profit or loss as incurred. Financial assets at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value and changes therein, are recognised in profit or loss.

Held-to-maturity investments

Held-to-maturity investments are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments and fixed maturity dates that the Group has the positive intent and ability to hold to maturity. These assets are initially recognised at fair value plus any directly attributable transaction costs. Subsequent to initial recognition, they are measured at amortised cost using the effective interest method less any impairment.

Loans and receivables

Loans and receivables are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments that are not quoted in an active market. These assets are initially recognised at fair value plus any directly attributable transaction costs. Subsequent to initial recognition, they are measured at amortised cost using the effective interest method less any impairment.

Available-for-sale ("APS") financial assets

AFS financial assets are non-derivatives that are either designated as AFS or are not classified as (a) loans and receivables, (b) held-to-maturity investments or (c) financial assets at fair value through profit or loss. These assets are initially recognised at fair value plus any directly attributable transaction costs. Subsequent to initial recognition, they are measured at fair value and changes therein, other than impairment losses are recognised in other comprehensive income and accumulated in the fair value reserve. When these assets are derecognised, the gain or loss accumulated in equity is reclassified to profit or loss.

AFS equity investments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market and whose fair value cannot be reliably measured are measured at cost less any identified impairment losses at the end of each reporting period.

Financial liabilities at fair value through profit or loss

A financial liability is classified as at fair value through profit or loss if it is classified as held-for-trading or is designated as such on initial recognition. Directly attributable transaction costs are recognised in profit or loss as incurred. Financial liabilities at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value and changes therein, are recognised in profit or loss.

Other financial liabilities

Other financial liabilities are non-derivative financial liabilities initially recognised at fair values less any directly attributable transaction costs. Subsequent to initial recognition, these liabilities are measured at amortised cost using the effective interest method.

Impairment of non-derivative financial assets

Non-derivative financial assets not classified as fair value through profit or loss, including an interest in an equity-accounted investee, are assessed at each reporting date to determine whether there is objective evidence of impairment.

Financial assets measured at amortised cost

For financial assets measured at amortised cost, the Group considers evidence of impairment for these assets at both an individual asset and a collective level. All individually significant assets are individually assessed for impairment. Those found not to be impaired are then collectively assessed for impairment by grouping together assets with similar risk characteristics. In assessing collective impairment, the Group uses historical information on the timing of recovering and the amount of loss incurred, and makes an adjustment if current economic and credit conditions are such that the actual losses are likely to be greater or lesser than suggested by historical trends.

An impairment loss is calculated as the difference between the asset's carrying amount and the present value of estimated future cash flows, discounted at the financial asset's original effective interest rate. Losses are recognised in profit or loss and reflected in an allowance account. When the Group considers that there are no realistic prospects of recovery of the asset, the relevant amounts are written off.

Available-for-sale financial assets

Impairment losses on available-for-sale financial assets are recognised by reclassifying the losses accumulated in the fair value reserve to profit or loss. The amount reclassified is the difference between the acquisition cost (net of any principal repayment and amortisation) and the current fair value, less any Impairment loss previously recognised in profit or loss.

7 Dormant accounts

The Group Introduced a dormant account (i.e. player account which has been inactive for a period of twelve months consecutively) policy during the year after obtaining approval from the Regulators. Positive balances in dormant accounts recognised as revenue totalled $42,053k during the year. Although this is a change in accounting policy, it was not considered to be so significant that a prior year adjustment was required, had the policy been applied retrospectively, the amounts recognised in revenue in earlier years would have totalled $22,426k.

The goodwill at year end primarily relates to a poker room licence held by one of the Group's subsidiary companies. In accordance with IAS 36 and the Group's stated accounting policy, an annual impairment review was carried out by comparing the carrying amount of goodwill against the recoverable amount. The recoverable amount was based on fair value less cost of disposal of the poker room licence (as this was considered to be significantly higher than value in use), The fair value was estimated with reference to current replacement cost i.e. costs that would be incurred in obtaining this licence from the relevant authority. The carrying amount was adjusted at year end accordingly.

The carrying amount of these financial assets represents the maximum credit exposure.

Trade and other receivables

The Group and Company's credit risk relating to trade and other receivables is primarily attributable to receivables from payment service providers and from customers, who chargeback deposits made, after playing on the Group's website.

The Group and Company closely monitors the credit quality, financial health and operational economic environment of the payment service providers, where possible, to ensure that it is only dealing with creditworthy counterparties as a means of mitigating the risk of financial loss from defaults. This information is supplied by independent rating agencies where available and, if not available, the Group uses other publicly available financial information and its own trading history to rate its major payment service providers.

The risk arising from customers consist of a large number of customers spread across diverse industries and geographical areas i.e. limited concentration risk. The Group and Company aim to maintain the level of its available-for-sale investments, short-term deposits and cash and cash equivalents at an amount in excess of expected cash outflows on financial liabilities. The Group also forecasts cash flows by matching the maturity profiles of financial assets and liabilities.

The following are the remaining contractual maturities of financial liabilities at the reporting date. The amounts presented are undiscounted.

The Group and Company's financial risk arising from exchange rate fluctuations is mainly attributed to:

- Mismatch between balance sheet liabilities to customers which is predominantly denominated in US Dollars (USD) and the net receipts from customers which are settled in the currency of the customer's choice, of which Euros (EUR) and Sterling (GBP) are significant.

Fair value measurements

This note provides information about how the Group determines fair values of various financial assets and financial liabilities and how it manages the risks arising due to changes to market price (or fair values) of financial assets and financial liabilities.

35 Financial risk management (continued)

In accordance with IFRS 13 Fair Value Measurements when measuring the fair value of an asset or a liability, the Group and Company uses market observable data as far as practically possible. Fair values are categorised into different levels in a fair value hierarchy based on the Inputs in the valuation techniques as follows:

- Level 1: quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities
- Level 2: inputs other than quoted prices included in level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly (i.e. as a prices) or indirectly (i.e. derived form prices)
- Level 3: inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data (unobservable inputs).

Fair value of the Group's financial assets and financial liabilities that are measured at fair value on a recurring basis

The Group's unquoted equity investments are categorised as available-for-sale financial assets and as a result are measured at fair value (both at initial recognition and subsequent measurement). The fair value of these unquoted equity investments, hierarchy level, valuation techniques and inputs used can be noted as follows:

Fair value disclosures:
Fair value at 31 December 2013:	$9,461k (2012: $8,641k)
Fair value hierarchy:	Level 3;
Valuation technique used:	Given the unique nature of the investees' business, there are no readily available market data as these types of investments are generally structured through private companies and confidential. As a result the Group has adopted income approach for valuing these investments, taking into account current and expected income from the investees over long-term.
Significant unobservable inputs:	Long-term revenue growth rates and pre-tax operating margins taking into account management's experience and knowledge of market conditions of the specific industries.
Relationship of unobservable inputs to fair value:	The higher the revenue growth rates and pre-tax operating margins, the higher the fair value and vice versa.

The Group has classified certain financial assets as avallable-for-sale investments (see note 20) and as a result are measured at fair value (both at initial recognition and subsequent measurement). The fair value of these available-for-sale investments, hierarchy level, valuation techniques and inputs used can be noted as follows:

Fair value at 31 December 2013:	$211,946k (2012: Nil)
Fair value hierarchy:	Level 1;
Valuation technique used:	Quoted prices in an active market.
Significant unobservable inputs:	N/A
Relationship of unobservable inputs to fair value:	N/A

The fair value movements of unquoted equity investments from 2012 to 2013 were insignificant. As a result separate reconciliation of Level 3 fair values has not been presented.

Fair value of the Group and Company's financial assets and financial liabilities that are not measured at fair value on a recurring basis (but fair value disclosures are required)

The fair value of the Group and Company's financial assets and financial liabilities that are not measured at fair value on a recurring basis reasonably approximate the carrying amounts currently disclosed on the respective notes in these consolidated financial statements. As a result no further fair value disclosures were considered necessary by the Group or Company.

There were no transfers between Level 1 and 2 during the year.

MANAGEMENT INFORMATION CIRCULAR

INTRODUCTION

This management information circular (this "Information Circular") is provided in connection with the solicitation of proxies for use at the annual and special meeting (the "Meeting") of shareholders (the "Shareholders") of Amaya Inc. (the "Corporation" or "Amaya") to be held on June 22, 2015, at the time and place and for the purposes stated in the accompanying notice of meeting (the "Notice of Meeting") and any adjournment thereof. Unless otherwise indicated, the information contained in this Information Circular is given as of May 14, 2015.

NOTICE TO AMAYA SHAREHOLDERS IN THE UNITED STATES

Amaya is a corporation existing under the laws of Québec, Canada. The solicitation of proxies and the transactions contemplated herein involve securities of a Canadian issuer and are being effected in accordance with provincial and Canadian corporate and securities laws. Shareholders should be aware that requirements under such provincial and Canadian laws differ from requirements under United States corporate and securities laws relating to United States corporations. The proxy rules under the United States Securities Exchange Act of 1934, as amended, are not applicable to the Corporation or this solicitation and therefore this solicitation is not being effected in accordance with such corporate and securities laws.

NON-IFRS MEASURES

Certain terms used or incorporated by reference in this Information Circular, such as EBITDA, are not measures defined under International Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRS"), do not have standardized meanings prescribed by IFRS and should not be compared to or construed as alternatives to profit/loss, cash flow from operating activities or other measures of financial performance calculated in accordance with IFRS. EBITDA and other non-IFRS measures, as computed by Amaya, may not be comparable to similar measures as reported by other reporting issuers in similar or different industries.

EBITDA as used by the Corporation means earnings before interest and financing costs (net of interest income), income taxes, depreciation and amortization, stock-based compensation, restructuring and other non-recurring costs, and non-controlling interests.

CURRENCY

References to "dollars", "CDN$" and "$" refer to Canadian dollars, "US$" refer to United States dollars and references to "£" refer to British pound sterling. All currency amounts referred to in this Information Circular are expressed in Canadian dollars, unless stated otherwise.

FORWARD-LOOKING STATEMENTS

This Information Circular contains certain information that may constitute forward-looking information within the meaning of applicable securities laws, which Amaya refers to in this Information Circular as forward-looking statements. These statements reflect Amaya's current expectations related to future events or its future results, performance, achievements, business prospects or opportunities and products and services development, and future trends affecting the Corporation. All such statements other than statements of historical fact are forward-looking statements. Forward-looking statements are often, but not always, identified by the use of words such as "seek", "anticipate", "plan", "continue", "estimate", "expect, "may", "will", "project", "predict", "potential", "targeting", "intend", "could", "might", "would", "should", "believe", "objective", "ongoing" or the negative of these words or other variations or synonyms of these words or comparable terminology and similar expressions.

Forward-looking statements reflect current estimates, beliefs and assumptions, which are based on Amaya's perception of historical trends, current conditions and expected future developments, as well as other factors management believes are appropriate in the circumstances. Amaya's estimates, beliefs and assumptions are inherently subject to significant business, economic, competitive and other uncertainties and contingencies regarding future events and as such, are subject to change. Amaya can give no assurance that such estimates, beliefs and assumptions will prove to be correct.

Many factors could cause our actual results, level of activity, performance or achievements or future events or developments to differ materially from those expressed or implied by the forward-looking statements, including, without limitation, the following factors, which are discussed in greater detail under the "Risk Factors and Uncertainties" section in Amaya's annual information form for the year ended December 31, 2014 (the "2014 AIF") and in Amaya's Management's Discussion and Analysis for the period ended March 31, 2015 (the "Q1 2015 MD&A"): the heavily regulated industry in which the Corporation carries on its business; online gaming generally; current and future legislation with respect to online gaming; potential changes to the gaming regulatory scheme; legal and regulatory requirements; significant barriers to entry; competition; impact of inability to complete future acquisitions or to integrate businesses successfully; ability to develop and enhance existing solutions; risks of foreign operations generally; protection of proprietary technology and intellectual property rights; lengthy and variable sales cycle; ability to recruit and retain management and other qualified personnel; defects in the Corporation's solutions, products or services; losses due to fraudulent activities; impact of currency fluctuations; management of growth; contract awards; service interruptions of Internet service providers; ability of Internet infrastructure to meet applicable demand; systems, networks or telecommunications failures or cyber-attacks; regulations that may be adopted with respect to the Internet and electronic commerce; refinancing risks; customer and operator preferences and changes in the economy; changes in ownership of customers or consolidation within the gaming industry; litigation costs and outcomes; expansion into new gaming markets; relationships with distributors; and natural events.

There can be no assurance that forward-looking statements will prove to be accurate, as actual results and future events could differ materially from those expressly or impliedly expected or estimated in such statements. Shareholders and investors should not place undue reliance on forward-looking statements as the plans, intentions or expectations upon which they are based might not occur. Although the Corporation cautions that the foregoing list of significant risk factors, as well as those risk factors presented under the heading "Risk Factors and Uncertainties" and elsewhere in the 2014 AIF and the Q1 2015 MD&A, are not exhaustive, Shareholders and investors should carefully consider them and the uncertainties they represent and the risks they entail. The forward-looking statements contained in this Information Circular are expressly qualified by this cautionary statement. Unless otherwise indicated by the Corporation, forward-looking statements in this Information Circular describe Amaya's expectations as of May 14, 2015 and, accordingly, are subject to change after such date. The Corporation does not undertake to update or revise any forward-looking statements, except in accordance with applicable securities laws.

VOTING INFORMATION AND GENERAL PROXY MATTERS

Solicitation of Proxies

The enclosed proxy is being solicited by the management of the Corporation and the expenses of this solicitation will be borne by the Corporation. The solicitation will be conducted primarily by mail but proxies may also be solicited personally by officers, employees or agents of the Corporation, without additional compensation. The Corporation shall directly deliver proxy documents to registered owners and non-registered owners of common shares of the Corporation ("Common Shares") which are non-objecting beneficial owners through the Corporation's registrar and transfer agent, Computershare Investor Services Inc. ("Computershare"), and the Corporation shall bear the cost of such delivery. The Corporation will also reimburse brokers and other persons holding Common Shares on their behalf or on behalf of nominees for reasonable costs incurred in sending the proxy documents to non-registered owners who are objecting beneficial owners.

Voting Process

The voting process is different depending on whether you are a registered or non-registered owner of Common Shares and, if you are a non-registered owner of Common Shares, whether you are a non-objecting beneficial owner or objecting beneficial owner.

If you have Common Shares registered in your own name, you are a registered owner. If you do not hold Common Shares in your own name, you are a non-registered owner. If your Common Shares are listed in an account statement provided to you by a broker, then it is likely that those Common Shares will not be registered in your name, but under the broker's name or under the name of an agent of the broker such as CDS Clearing and Depository Services Inc., the nominee for many Canadian brokerage firms, or its nominee.

There are two kinds of non-registered owners: (i) objecting beneficial owners, i.e., those who object to their name being made known to the issuers of shares which they own, and (ii) non-objecting beneficial owners, i.e., those who do not object to their name being made known to the issuers of the shares which they own. Non-objecting beneficial owners will receive a voting instruction form from the Corporation's registrar and transfer agent, Computershare. This is to be completed and returned to Computershare in the envelope provided.

Securities regulation requires brokers or agents to seek voting instructions from objecting beneficial owners in advance of the Meeting. Objecting beneficial owners should be aware that brokers or agents can only vote Common Shares if instructed to do so by the objecting beneficial owner. Your broker or agent (or their agent, Broadridge Financial Solutions, Inc.) will have provided you with a voting instruction form or form of proxy for the purpose of obtaining your voting instructions. Every broker has its own mailing procedures and provides instructions for voting. You must follow those instructions carefully to ensure your Common Shares are voted at the Meeting.

If you are an objecting beneficial owner receiving a voting instruction form or proxy from a broker or agent, you cannot use that proxy to vote in person at the Meeting. To vote your Common Shares at the Meeting, the voting instruction form or proxy must be returned to the broker or agent well in advance of the Meeting, as instructed by the broker or agent. If you wish to attend and vote your Common Shares in person at the Meeting, follow the instructions for doing so provided by your broker or agent.

Record Date

The record date for determining those Shareholders entitled to receive notice and to vote at the Meeting is the close of business on April 29, 2015 (the "Record Date"). Only registered and non-registered owners of Common Shares as of the close of business on the Record Date are entitled to receive notice of and to vote at the Meeting. No person becoming a registered or non-registered owner after the Record Date shall be entitled to receive notice of the Meeting, nor can any registered or non-registered owner vote Common Shares they acquire after the Record Date at the Meeting. The failure of any Shareholder to receive notice of the Meeting does not deprive the Shareholder of the right to vote at the Meeting. As of the Record Date there were 133,740,731 Common Shares issued and outstanding.

Appointment of Proxyholders

The persons named as proxyholders in the enclosed form of proxy or voting instruction form, David Baazov or Daniel Sebag, are directors and officers of the Corporation. You are entitled to appoint a person, who need not be a Shareholder, other than the persons designated in the enclosed form of proxy, to represent you at the Meeting. If you are a registered or non-objecting beneficial owner, such right may be exercised by inserting in the blank space provided in the form of proxy or voting instruction form the name of the person to be designated or by completing another form of proxy or voting instruction form and, in either case, depositing the form of proxy or voting instruction form with the registrar and transfer agent of the Corporation, Computershare located at 100 University Street, 8th Floor, Toronto, Ontario, M5J 2Y1, at any time before the proxy deadline, being 2:00 p.m. (Eastern Time) on June 18, 2015 or, in the event the Meeting is adjourned or postponed, then not less than 48 hours (excluding Saturdays, Sundays and holidays) before the adjourned meeting is reconvened or the postponed meeting is convened. Objecting beneficial owners should follow the instructions provided by their broker or agent and must return the form of proxy or voting instruction form as directed by their broker or agent sufficiently in advance of the proxy deadline to enable their broker or agent to act on it before the proxy deadline. The Corporation reserves the right to accept late proxies and to waive the proxy deadline with or without notice, but is under no obligation to accept or reject any particular late proxy.

Revocation of Proxies

You may revoke your proxy by providing new voting instructions in a new proxy or voting instruction form with a later date. Any new voting instructions, however, will only take effect if received prior to the proxy deadline.

Registered and non-objecting beneficial owners may also revoke their proxy without providing new voting instructions by giving a notice in writing signed by such owner, or by his or her attorney authorized in writing to the registrar and transfer agent of the Corporation, Computershare, located at 100 University Avenue, 8th Floor, Toronto, Ontario, M5J 2Y1, no later than the close of business on the last business day preceding the day of the Meeting or any adjournment thereof, or to the Chairman of the Meeting on the day of the Meeting or any adjournment thereof or in any other manner permitted by law; provided that if the registered or non-objecting beneficial owner is not an individual, the notice in writing must be signed by a duly authorized officer of such owner. Registered owners may attend the Meeting and vote in person and, if they do so, any voting instructions previously given by them for such Common Shares will be revoked. Objecting beneficial owners must contact their broker or agent in order to revoke their voting instructions and/or provide new voting instructions.

Exercise of Voting Rights by Proxies

The persons named as proxies will vote or withhold from voting the Common Shares in respect of which they are appointed or vote for or against any particular question, in accordance with the instructions of the Shareholder appointing them. In the absence of such instructions, such Common Shares will be voted in favour of all the matters identified in the attached Notice of Meeting. The enclosed form of proxy confers discretionary authority upon the persons named therein to vote as they see fit with respect to amendments or variations to matters identified in the Notice of Meeting and to other matters which may properly come before the Meeting or any adjournment or postponement thereof, whether or not the amendment or variation or other matter that comes before the Meeting is or is not routine or is contested. As at the date of this Information Circular, the management of the Corporation knows of no such amendment, variation or other matter expected to come before the Meeting other than the matters referred to in the Notice of Meeting.

Except with respect to the election of directors, to be approved resolutions submitted to a vote of the Shareholders at the Meeting must be passed by a majority of the votes cast by the holders of Common Shares present at the Meeting in person or represented by proxy, with the resolution approving amendments to the current stock option plan of the Corporation (as amended from time to time, the "Stock Option Plan") to extend the expiry date of certain options thereunder having to be approved by a majority of the votes on a disinterested shareholder basis.

Voting in Person at the Meeting

Registered owners may attend and vote in person at the Meeting. Non-objecting beneficial owners wishing to attend and vote in person at the Meeting should insert their name in the space provided in the voting instruction form and deposit it with Computershare, at any time before the proxy deadline. Objecting beneficial owners wishing to attend and vote in person at the Meeting should follow the instructions provided by their broker or agent. If you are a Canadian resident objecting beneficial owner, you need only insert your name in the space provided for the proxyholder appointment in the voting instruction form or proxy form, and return it as instructed by your broker or agent and you should not complete the voting section of the proxy form or voting information form, as you will vote in person at the Meeting. If you are an objecting beneficial owner resident in the United States, you will likely be instructed to mark the appropriate box on the other side of the voting instruction form to request a legal proxy to be issued and mailed to you by your broker or agent, and you will need to send the voting instruction form to your broker or agent, receive the legal proxy from your broker or agent and deposit the legal proxy with Computershare prior to the deadline.

Interest of Certain Persons in Matters to Be Acted Upon

No person who has been a director or an executive officer of the Corporation nor any proposed nominee for election as a director of the Corporation at any time since the beginning of its last completed financial year, or any associate or affiliate of any such director, officer or proposed nominee, has any material interest, direct or indirect, by way of beneficial ownership of securities or otherwise, in any matter to be acted upon at the Meeting, except as set forth in this Information Circular.

Voting Securities and Principal Holders Thereof

As at April 29, 2015, 133,740,731 Common Shares are issued and outstanding, being the only class of shares of the Corporation entitled to be voted at the Meeting. To the knowledge of the board of directors of the Corporation (the "Board") and management of the Corporation, as at April 29, 2015, no person owned or exercised control or direction over more than 10% of the issued and outstanding Common Shares, except for the Corporation's Chief Executive Officer, David Baazov, who held 24,463,599, representing approximately 18.3% of all of the issued and outstanding Common Shares as of that date.

BUSINESS OF THE MEETING

The Meeting will be constituted as an annual and special meeting. The audited consolidated financial statements of the Corporation for the year ended December 31, 2014 and the auditor's report thereon will be presented to the Shareholders at the Meeting, but no vote thereon or with respect thereto is required or proposed to be taken. Shareholders will be asked to consider and vote on:

A. the election of the directors of the Corporation who will serve until the next annual meeting of Shareholders or until their successors are appointed;

B. the appointment of the auditor of the Corporation who will serve until the end of the next annual meeting of Shareholders or until its successor is appointed, and authorizing the Board to fix its remuneration;

C. considering and, if deemed advisable, approving an ordinary resolution, the full text of which is reproduced in Schedule "B" (the "Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan") ratifying the adoption of a new equity incentive plan of the Corporation (the "New Equity Incentive Plan") in the form set out at Schedule "D" to this Information Circular and amending the terms of the Stock Option Plan to limit the number of shares issuable thereunder to the number of options currently outstanding thereunder;

D. considering and, if deemed advisable, approving an ordinary resolution of disinterested shareholders, the full text of which is reproduced in Schedule "E" (the "Ordinary Resolution to Amend the Stock Option Plan") to the Information Circular, approving amendments to the Stock Option Plan to extend the expiry date of certain options granted thereunder; and

E. to transact such other business as may properly come before the Meeting or any adjournment or postponement thereof.

A. Presentation of the Financial Statements

As indicated above, the audited consolidated financial statements of the Corporation for the year ended December 31, 2014 and the auditor's report thereon will be presented to the Shareholders at the Meeting, but no vote with respect thereto is required or proposed to be taken.

B. Election of Directors

The articles of the Corporation (the "Articles") provide that the Board shall consist of not less than three and not more than fifteen directors. The number of directors currently in office is six. Each director of the Corporation elected will hold office until the next annual meeting of the Shareholders or until the election of his successor, unless he resigns or his office otherwise becomes vacant.

Majority Voting

The Corporation has adopted a majority voting policy pursuant to which any nominee for a director position who has more votes cast by ballot at a meeting of shareholders of the Corporation at which directors are to be elected (or, if no ballot is conducted, votes represented by proxies validly deposited prior to that meeting) "withheld" from his or her election than are cast in favour of his or her election at that meeting must, immediately following that meeting, tender his or her resignation to the Board for consideration. Directors other than those who received more votes withheld than were voted in favour of their election shall consider, and within 90 days determine, whether or not to accept the resignation. The resignation shall be accepted absent exceptional circumstances and is effective when accepted by the Board. A press release disclosing the directors' determination shall be issued promptly following such determination, and if the resignation is not accepted will include the reasons for doing so. Majority voting would not, however, apply in the event a director's election is contested.

Nominees

Management of the Corporation proposes to nominate the persons whose names are set forth below to act as directors of the Corporation. Except where authority to vote on the election of directors is withheld, the persons named in the accompanying form of proxy intend to vote IN FAVOUR of the election of each of the six nominees whose names are hereinafter set forth. If prior to the Meeting, any of the nominees shall for any reason become unable or unwilling to serve as a director, it is intended that the discretionary power granted by the form of proxy shall be used to vote for any other person or persons identified by the Board to serve as directors, unless the Shareholder has specified in the form of proxy that his, her or its Common Shares are to be withheld from voting on the election of directors. The Board and management of the Corporation have no reason to believe that any of such nominees will be unable or unwilling to serve, for any reason, if elected to office.

The following table and the notes thereto state the names of all persons proposed to be nominated for election as directors, all other positions and offices with the Corporation now held by them, their principal occupations or employment, their periods of service as directors of the Corporation and the number of Common Shares beneficially owned or over which control or direction is exercised by each of them, in each case as at April 29, 2015. Each director will hold office until the next annual meeting of Shareholders or until his successor is duly elected, unless prior thereto the director resigns or the director's office becomes vacant.

D. Approval of New Equity Incentive Plan and Stock Option Plan Amendment

Background

In 2010, in connection with the initial public offering of the Corporation, the Board adopted the Stock Option Plan as part of the incentive compensation program of the Corporation. The Stock Option Plan is designed to promote the long-term interests of the Corporation and its Shareholders by fostering a proprietary interest in the Corporation among the directors, executives and key employees of the Corporation, and attracting and retaining qualified executives and key employees. At the last annual and special meeting of Shareholders, held on July 30, 2014, the Shareholders passed a resolution approving certain amendments to the Stock Option Plan, including, among other things, changing the Stock Option Plan from a fixed plan to a "10% rolling" plan with respect to the number of Common Shares reserved for issuance thereunder. See "Statement of Executive Compensation – Incentive Plan Awards – Equity-Based Incentive Plans for a summary description of the Stock Option Plan.

Since the initial adoption of the Stock Option Plan in 2010, options issued pursuant to the Stock Option Plan ("Options") have been exercised to acquire 2,789,161 Common Shares. As at May 13, 2015, Options to acquire 9,413,503 Common Shares have been granted and are outstanding under the Stock Option Plan, representing approximately 7% of the Corporation's total issued and outstanding Common Shares.

On May 14, 2015, upon a recommendation of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, the Board passed a resolution to adopt the New Equity Incentive Plan, subject to, and effective upon, Shareholder approval. The New Equity Incentive Plan will provide flexibility to the Corporation to grant, in addition to stock options, other forms of equity-based incentive awards to attract, retain and motivate qualified directors, employees and consultants of the Corporation and its subsidiaries. Provided that the New Equity Incentive Plan is approved by the Shareholders at the Meeting, all future grants of equity-based awards will be made pursuant to, or as otherwise permitted by, the New Equity Incentive Plan, and the Stock Option Plan will be amended such that no further Options will be granted thereunder as of the date of the Meeting. The Stock Option Plan will remain in effect only in respect of outstanding Options.

The purpose of the New Equity Incentive Plan is to, among other things: (i) provide the Corporation with a mechanism to attract, retain and motivate qualified directors, officers, employees and consultants of the Corporation, including its subsidiaries, (ii) reward directors, officers, employees and consultants that have been granted awards under the New Equity Incentive Plan for their contributions toward the long term goals and success of the Corporation, and (iii) enable and encourage such directors, officers, employees and consultants to acquire shares of the Corporation as long term investments and proprietary interests in the Corporation.

At the Meeting, Shareholders will be asked to consider and, if deemed advisable, pass the Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan, the form of which is attached as Schedule "B" to this Information Circular, approving the New Equity Incentive Plan in the form set out at Schedule "D", the summary terms of which are described below under "Business of the Meeting – Approval of New Equity Incentive Plan and Stock Option Plan Amendment – Key Terms of the New Equity Incentive Plan", and approving the Stock Option Plan amendment to limit the number of shares issuable thereunder to the number of Options currently outstanding.

As such, the Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan will be placed before the Shareholders. This approval of the New Equity Incentive Plan will be effective for three years from the date of the Meeting, at which time unallocated options or awards under the New Equity Incentive Plan must then be resubmitted for approval by the Shareholders. Options previously granted under the Stock Option Plan will continue to be unaffected by the approval or disapproval of the Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan, as such Options will remain governed by the Stock Option Plan.

The Board considers the approval of the New Equity Incentive Plan and Stock Option Plan amendment to be in the best interests of the Corporation and its Shareholders and accordingly, the Board unanimously recommends that Shareholders vote IN FAVOUR of the Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan. The Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan must be approved by a majority of the votes cast on the matter at the Meeting in order to be adopted.

If you appoint David Baazov or Daniel Sebag as your proxyholder, your Common Shares will be voted in accordance with your instructions in the form of proxy or voting instruction form or, if no such instructions are given, such proxyholders will vote IN FAVOUR of the Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan.

Key Terms of the New Equity Incentive Plan

Below is a summary of the key terms of the New Equity Incentive Plan, which is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text of the New Equity Incentive Plan, attached hereto as Schedule "D".

Common Shares Subject to the New Equity Incentive Plan

Subject to the adjustment provisions provided for in the New Equity Incentive Plan, including any stock exchange, the total number of Common Shares reserved for issuance pursuant to awards granted under the New Equity Incentive Plan and the Stock Option Plan shall not exceed 10% of the issued and outstanding Common Shares from time to time. To the extent any awards under the New Equity Incentive Plan or the Stock Option Plan are cancelled for any reason prior to exercise in full or are surrendered to the Corporation, except surrenders relating to the payment of the purchase price of any such award or the satisfaction of the tax withholding obligations relating to any such award, the Common Shares subject to such awards (or portion(s) thereof) shall be added back to the number of shares reserved for issuance under the New Equity Incentive Plan. The number of Common Shares issuable to insiders under the New Equity Incentive Plan and all other security-based compensation arrangements cannot exceed 10% of the issued and outstanding Common Shares at any time. The number of Common Shares issued to insiders within any one year period and all other security-based compensation arrangements, including, but not limited to, the New Equity Incentive Plan, cannot exceed 10% of the issued and outstanding Common Shares. Furthermore, the aggregate number of Common Shares issuable to eligible persons who are directors but not otherwise employees of the Corporation, including its subsidiaries, under all of the Corporation's security based compensation arrangements shall not exceed 1% of the issued and outstanding Common Shares, and within any one financial year of the Corporation, the aggregate fair value on the date of grant of all awards granted to any director under all of the Corporation's security based compensation arrangements shall not exceed $100,000; provided that such limits shall not apply to deferred share units granted to a director in lieu of any cash retainer or meeting fees and provided further that deferred share units shall not be included in determining the aggregate fair value on the date of grant of deferred share units granted within any one financial year.

Administration of the New Equity Incentive Plan

The plan administrator of the New Equity Incentive Plan (the "Plan Administrator") will be determined by the Board, and will initially be the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, but may in the future be administered by the Board itself or delegated to such other committee as may be established by the Board from time to time. The Plan Administrator will determine which employees, directors, officers or consultants are eligible to receive awards under the New Equity Incentive Plan. In addition, the Plan Administrator will interpret the New Equity Incentive Plan and may adopt administrative rules, regulations, procedures and guidelines governing the New Equity Incentive Plan or any awards granted under the New Equity Incentive Plan as it deems to be appropriate.

Types of Awards

The following types of awards may be made under the New Equity Incentive Plan: stock options, restricted share units, performance share units, deferred share units, restricted shares or other share-based awards. All of the awards described below are subject to the conditions, limitations, restrictions, exercise price, vesting and forfeiture provisions determined by the Plan Administrator, in its sole discretion, subject to such limitations provided in the New Equity Incentive Plan, and will generally be evidenced by an award agreement. In addition, subject to the limitations provided in the New Equity Incentive Plan and in accordance with applicable law, the Plan Administrator may accelerate or defer the vesting or payment of awards, cancel or modify outstanding awards, and waive any condition imposed with respect to awards or Common Shares issued pursuant to awards.

Stock Options

A stock option is a right to purchase Common Shares upon the payment of a specified exercise price as determined by the Plan Administrator at the time the stock option is granted. Subject to certain adjustments and whether the Common Shares are then trading on any stock exchange, the exercise price shall not be less than the highest closing price of the Common Shares on any stock exchange on which the Common Shares are then listed on the date of grant (the "Market Price"). Subject to the discretion of the Plan Administrator, stock options granted under the New Equity Incentive Plan will vest in four equal amounts on a yearly basis over the four years following the grant date. Subject to any accelerated termination as set forth in the New Equity Incentive Plan, each stock option expires on the date that is the earlier of ten years from the date of grant or such earlier date as may be set out in the participant's award agreement.

Unless otherwise specified by the Plan Administrator at the time of granting a stock option, the exercise notice of such option must be accompanied by payment in full of the purchase price for the Common Shares underlying the options to be purchased. The exercise price must be fully paid by certified cheque, bank draft or money order payable to the Corporation or by such other means as might be specified from time to time by the Plan Administrator, which may include (i) through an arrangement with a broker approved by the Corporation (or through an arrangement directly with the Corporation) whereby payment of the exercise price is accomplished with the proceeds of the sale of Common Shares deliverable upon the exercise of the stock option, (ii) through any cashless exercise process as may be approved by the Plan Administrator, or (iii) such other consideration and method of payment for the issuance of Common Shares to the extent permitted by applicable securities laws, or any combination of the foregoing methods of payment. No Common Shares will be issued or transferred upon the exercise of stock options in accordance with the terms of the grant until full payment therefor has been received by the Corporation.

Restricted Share Units

A restricted share unit is a unit equivalent in value to a Common Share credited by means of a bookkeeping entry in the books of the Corporation which entitles the holder to receive Common Shares after a specified vesting period determined by the Plan Administrator, in its sole discretion. Upon settlement, holders will receive one fully paid and non-assessable Common Share in respect of each vested restricted share unit.

Performance Share Units

A performance share unit is a unit equivalent in value to a Common Share credited by means of a bookkeeping entry in the books of the Corporation which entitles the holder to receive Common Shares based on the achievement of performance goals established by the Plan Administrator over a period of time. The performance goals may be based upon the achievement of corporate, divisional or individual goals, and may be applied relative to performance of an index or comparator group, in each case as determined by the Plan Administrator. The Plan Administrator may modify the performance goals as necessary to align them with the corporate objectives of the Corporation. The performance goals may include a threshold level of performance below which no payment will be made (or no vesting will occur), levels of performance at which specified payments will be made (or specified vesting will occur), and a maximum level of performance above which no additional payment will be made (or at which full vesting will occur). Upon settlement, holders will receive fully paid and non-assessable Common Shares in proportion to the number of vested performance share units held and the level of performance achieved.

Restricted Shares

A restricted share is a fully paid and non-assessable Common Share that is subject to restrictions on transfer and a risk of forfeiture for a period of time, and which shall be held by the Corporation or its designee in escrow until such time as the restricted period lapses. The Plan Administrator shall have the authority to determine at the time of grant, in its sole discretion, the duration of the restricted period and other restrictions applicable to the restricted Common Shares. Except for the restrictions applicable to the restricted Common Shares, during the restricted period, the holder shall have all the rights and privileges of a holder of Common Shares as to the restricted Common Shares, including the right to vote.

Deferred Share Units

A deferred share unit is a unit equivalent in value to a Common Share credited by means of a bookkeeping entry in the books of our company which entitles the holder to receive Common Shares on a future date, generally upon termination of service to our company. Upon settlement, holders will receive one fully paid and non-assessable Common Share in respect of each vested deferred share unit.

Other Share-Based Awards

The Plan Administrator may, subject to the provisions of the New Equity Incentive Plan and applicable law, grant other share-based awards to any director, officer, employee or consultant, other than those described above. Such awards are to be denominated or payable in, valued in whole or in part by reference to, or otherwise based on or related to, Common Shares (including securities convertible into Common Shares).

Dividend Equivalents

Restricted share units, performance share units, deferred share units and, if so determined by the Plan Administrator in its discretion, other Common Share-based awards, shall be credited with dividend equivalents in the form of additional restricted share units, performance share units, deferred share units and other share-based awards, as applicable. Dividend equivalents shall vest in proportion to the awards to which they relate. Such dividend equivalents shall be computed by dividing: (i) the amount obtained by multiplying the amount of the dividend declared and paid per Common Share by the number of restricted share units, performance share units and deferred share units, as applicable, held by the participant on the record date for the payment of such dividend, by (ii) the Market Price at the close of the first business day immediately following the dividend record date, with fractions computed to three decimal places.

Black-out Periods

If an award expires during, or within five business days after, a trading black-out period imposed by the Corporation to restrict trades in its securities, then, notwithstanding any other provision of the New Equity Incentive Plan, unless the delayed expiration would result in tax penalties, the award shall expire ten business days after the trading black-out period is lifted by the Corporation.

Terminations

All awards granted under the New Equity Incentive Plan will expire on the date set out in the applicable award agreement, subject to early expiry in certain circumstances, provided that in no circumstances will the duration of an award granted under the New Equity Incentive Plan exceed 10 years from its date of grant.

Termination of Employment or Services

The following table describes the impact of certain events that may, unless otherwise specified by the Plan Administrator at the grant date, lead to the early expiry of awards granted under the New Equity Incentive Plan:

Event	Provisions

Change in Control

Except as provided in an employment or written agreement, if an employee is terminated within 12 months following a change in control, all awards vest and options may be exercised until the earlier of (i) 90 days after termination and (ii) the expiry date of the option. However, the New Equity Incentive Plan provides that in connection with a change in control, the Plan Administrator may (i) cause awards to be converted or exchanged into or for rights or other securities in any entity participating in or resulting from the change in control, (ii) cause any unvested or unearned awards to become fully vested or earned or free of restriction upon or immediately prior to the occurrence of such change in control, or (iii) replace the awards with other rights. Subject to certain exceptions, a change in control means (i) any transaction pursuant to which a person or group acquires more than 50% of the outstanding Common Shares, (ii) the sale of all or substantially all of the assets or the dissolution of the Corporation, (iii) the acquisition of the Corporation via consolidation, merger, exchange of securities, purchase of assets, amalgamation, statutory arrangement or otherwise, (iv) individuals who comprise the Board at the last annual meeting of Shareholders (the "Incumbent Board") cease to constitute at least a majority of the Board, unless the election, or nomination for election by the Shareholders, of any new director was approved by a vote of at least a majority of the Incumbent Board, in which case such new director shall be considered as a member of the Incumbent Board, or (v) such event the Board determines as being a change in control.

Non-Transferability of Awards

Subject to certain exceptions provided under the New Equity Incentive Plan (including the assignment of awards to certain Permitted Assigns (as defined under National Instrument 45-106 Prospectus and Registration Exemptions, as amended from time to time)), and unless otherwise provided by the Plan Administrator, no assignment or transfer of awards granted under the New Equity Incentive Plan, whether voluntary, involuntary, by operation of law or otherwise, is permitted.

Amendments to the New Equity Incentive Plan

The Plan Administrator may also from time to time, without notice and without approval of the holders of voting shares, amend, modify, change, suspend or terminate the New Equity Incentive Plan or any awards granted pursuant thereto as it, in its discretion, determinates appropriate, provided that (i) no such amendment, modification, change, suspension or termination of the New Equity Incentive Plan or any award granted pursuant thereto may materially impair any rights of a holder or materially increase any obligations of a holder under the New Equity Incentive Plan without the consent of such holder, unless the Plan Administrator determines such adjustment is required or desirable in order to comply with any applicable securities laws or stock exchange requirements, and (ii) any amendment that would cause an award held by a Foreign Taxpayer (as such term is defined in the New Equity Incentive Plan) to be subject to the additional tax penalty under Section 409A(1)(b)(i)(II) of the United States Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as amended, shall be null and void ab initio.

Notwithstanding the above, none of the following amendments shall be made to the New Equity Incentive Plan without the approval of the Shareholders:

(a) increasing the percentage of Common Shares reserved for issuance under the New Equity Incentive Plan, except pursuant to the provisions in the New Equity Incentive Plan which permit the Plan Administrator to make equitable adjustments in the event of transactions affecting the Corporation or its capital;

(b) increasing or removing the 10% limits on Common Shares issuable or issued to insiders;

(c) reducing the exercise price of an award except pursuant to the provisions in the New Equity Incentive Plan which permit the Plan Administrator to make equitable adjustments in the event of transactions affecting the Corporation or its capital;

(d) extending the term of an award beyond the original expiry date (except in connection with a black-out period as described above);

(e) permitting an award to be exercisable beyond 10 years from the date of grant (except in connection with a black-out period as described above);

(f) increasing or removing the limits on the participation of non-employee directors;

(g) permitting awards to be transferred to a person other than a Permitted Assign or for normal estate settlement purposes; or

(h) deleting or otherwise limiting the amendments which require approval of the Shareholders.

Except for the items listed above, amendments to the New Equity Incentive Plan will not require Shareholder approval. Such amendments include: (i) amending the general vesting provisions or restricted period of an award, (ii) amending the provisions for early termination of awards in connection with a termination of employment or service, (iii) adding covenants of the Corporation for the protection of the participants, (iv) amendments that are desirable as a result of changes in law in any jurisdiction where a participant resides, and (v) curing or correcting any ambiguity or defect or inconsistent provision or clerical omission or mistake or manifest error.

E. Approval of Stock Option Plan Amendment

All outstanding Options granted pursuant to the terms of the Stock Option Plan have five-year terms to expiry. Since the initial adoption of the Stock Option Plan in 2010, however, it has been the Corporation’s practice and policy to impose routine and special black-out periods on certain employees and directors during which such individuals are prohibited from trading in securities of the Corporation, which, until a recent revision to the Corporation’s Disclosure, Confidentiality and Trading Policy, included the exercise of Options (as opposed to only the sale of the underlying Common Shares). Given the Corporation's business plan, particularly its growth through strategic acquisitions, the Corporation has in recent years imposed numerous special black-out periods. When coupled with routine quarterly black-out periods and other trading restrictions to which its employees and directors may otherwise be subject from time to time, there have been, and continue to be, extensive periods during which such individuals have experienced difficulties, delays or an inability to realize the full or any partial benefit of their respective Options. In acknowledgement of these practical difficulties, and with a desire to maintain an ongoing incentive to its employees and directors, on May 14, 2015, the Board approved an amendment to the Stock Option Plan, conditional upon acceptance by the TSX and approval by Shareholders, to extend the expiry date of all outstanding Options for twenty-four (24) months from their original expiry dates. This extension would be automatic for Canadian Taxpayers, but Foreign Taxpayers (as such terms are defined in the amendment to the Stock Option Plan) must elect to have such extension apply to any or all of their Options by giving written notice to the Corporation of such election prior to the expiry of their Options. In the case of Foreign Taxpayers, the extension would be subject to Board approval.

The following table provides summary information on the impact of such extension on outstanding Options held by directors and officers of the Corporation and its subsidiaries, and other eligible participants under the Stock Option Plan, as at May 13, 2015, in each case assuming the automatic extension for Canadian Taxpayers and the election by all Foreign Taxpayers to have the extension apply to all of their Options.

If the proposed amendment to the Stock Option Plan to provide for a two-year extension of expiry periods is not approved, Options previously granted under the Stock Option Plan will continue to be subject to their respective original expiry terms and the Board will consider alternatives to the proposed amendment.

The Board considers the approval of the amendment to the Stock Option Plan to provide for a two-year extension of expiry dates of outstanding Options to be in the best interests of the Corporation and its Shareholders and accordingly, the Board unanimously recommends that Shareholders vote IN FAVOUR of the Ordinary Resolution to Amend the Stock Option Plan. As required by the TSX, to be effective, the Ordinary Resolution to Amend the Stock Option Plan must be approved by a majority of the disinterested shareholders. For this purpose, votes cast with respect to Common Shares beneficially owned by insiders of the Corporation and their respective associates who hold Options (the "Insider Participants") will be excluded. To the knowledge of the Corporation, as at May 13, 2015, there were 24,863,599 Common Shares beneficially owned by Insider Participants, in respect of which votes will not be counted for the purposes of the Ordinary Resolution to Amend the Stock Option Plan.

If you appoint David Baazov or Daniel Sebag as your proxyholder, your Common Shares will be voted in accordance with your instructions in the form of proxy or voting instruction form or, if no such instructions are given, such proxyholders will vote IN FAVOUR of the Ordinary Resolution to Amend the Stock Option Plan.

STATEMENT OF EXECUTIVE COMPENSATION

Compensation Discussion and Analysis

General

The responsibility for determining the principles for compensation of executives and other key employees of the Corporation rests with the Board. The Board has established the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, which takes the principal role in establishing the Corporation's executive compensation plans and policies. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee assists the Board in discharging the Board's oversight responsibilities relating to the compensation and retention of key senior management employees at a fair and competitive compensation, including in establishing appropriate performance incentives. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee has not to date formally engaged any outside agents to assist in establishing policies or performing any kind of benchmarking or market analysis. Benchmarking or market analysis was conducted internally to ensure that executive compensation is competitive with those found in such benchmarking or analysis. To ensure that the benchmarking includes the most appropriate companies, the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee considers comparable companies, including, but not limited to, companies of a similar size that compete with the Corporation for executives of similar talents and experience.

In 2012, the Corporation used three peer group companies for compensation benchmarking: Multimedia Games Inc., Ainsworth Game Technology Limited and Sportingbet PLC, which trade on the NASDAQ, Australian Securities Exchange and London Stock Exchange respectively. For 2013, the Board reduced total compensation for the Chief Executive Officer and other Named Executive Officers (as defined under "Statement of Executive Compensation – Summary Compensation Table") and a study was therefore not conducted. In 2014, the base salaries of the Chief Executive Officer, the Chief Financial Officer and of the Executive Vice-President, Corporate Development and General Counsel were increased following the completion of the Rational Group Acquisition, based on the results of compensation benchmarking which included the following companies: 888 Holdings PLC, Ladbrokes Betting & Gaming Ltd., William Hill PLC, Expedia, Inc., NCR Corporation and Bally Technologies, Inc.

The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee currently consists of Mr. Harlan Goodson, General Wesley K. Clark and Mr. Divyesh Gadhia, all of whom are independent directors (as determined based on the standards set forth under "Statement of Corporate Governance Practices – Board"). The members of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee are experienced in leadership and in dealing with compensation matters by virtue of having previously held senior executive or similar positions requiring direct involvement in establishing compensation philosophies and policies.

The Corporation has adopted a policy restricting its Named Executive Officers (as defined under "Statement of Executive Compensation – Summary Compensation Table"), directors and employees from purchasing financial instruments that are designed to hedge or offset a decrease in market value of equity securities. To the best of management's knowledge, none of the Named Executive Officers or directors have purchased such financial instruments.

Duties and Responsibilities of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee

In addition to the corporate governance and nominations duties of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, the committee is responsible for, among other things, assisting the Board in discharging its oversight responsibilities relating to the compensation and retention of key senior management employees with the skills and expertise needed to enable the Corporation to achieve its goals and strategies at a fair and competitive compensation, including appropriate performance incentives. These responsibilities include, without limitation; (i) reviewing, assessing and recommending to the Board compensation payable to the Chief Executive Officer and other members of senior management; (ii) reviewing and overseeing the administration of compensation and incentives policies, plans and programs; and (iii) reviewing executive and director compensation disclosure to be made in the Corporation's management information circulars.

Basis of Executive Compensation

Currently, compensation is based upon an individual's performance, level of expertise, responsibilities and length of service to the Corporation, with Options issued pursuant to the Stock Option Plan as an incentive for performance and cash bonuses awarded for contributions to achievement of certain milestones by Amaya and its subsidiaries. At the Meeting, Shareholders will be asked to consider and, if deemed appropriate, approve the New Equity Incentive Plan which would replace, in respect of future grants, the Stock Option Plan. The New Equity Incentive Plan was approved by the Board upon recommendation of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, with the objective of providing the Corporation with the flexibility to grant, in addition to stock options, other forms of equity-based incentive awards such as restricted share units, performance share units, deferred share units and other Common Share-based awards as the Board may determine from time to time to eligible participants.

Equity-based compensation allows compensation of participants while providing greater incentives for participants to further develop and promote the success of the Corporation, as well as aligning the interests of participants with those of Shareholders, generally through ownership of Common Shares or equity-based awards. The New Equity Incentive Plan will be used to provide equity-based awards in consideration of the level of responsibility of the executive as well as their impact and contribution to the longer-term operating performance of Amaya. See "Statement of Executive Compensation – Compensation Discussion and Analysis – Equity-Based Awards" and "Statement of Executive Compensation – Incentive Plan Awards – Equity-Based Incentive Plans".

Structure of Executive Compensation

The Corporation's executive compensation program has three principal components: base salary, incentive bonuses and equity-based awards.

Base salaries for all employees of the Corporation are established for each position and negotiated with members of executive and senior management, and based on several factors, including industry knowledge, qualifications and previous experience. Both individual and corporate performances are taken into account.

Incentive bonuses, in the form of cash payments, are designed to add a variable component of compensation based on corporate and individual performances for executives and certain employees.

Equity-based awards, under the Stock Option Plan, consist only of Options. The New Equity Incentive Plan, if approved by the Shareholders at the Meeting, will provide for other types of equity-based awards such as restricted share units, performance share units, deferred share units and other Common Share-based awards as the Board may determine, the key terms of which are summarized under "Business of the Meeting – Approval of New Equity Incentive Plan and Stock Option Plan Amendment – Key Terms of the New Equity Incentive Plan – Types of Awards".

Executive compensation is reviewed by the Board annually. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee assesses and makes recommendations to the Board with regard to the competitiveness and appropriateness of the compensation packages of the Chief Executive Officer and other executives of the Corporation as well as such other employees of the Corporation or any of its subsidiaries as may be identified to the Committee by the Board.

Corporate objectives considered for the adjustment of executive compensation have been based on achieving certain financial metrics, such as EBITDA targets of the consolidated operations of the Corporation, as well as such other criteria as the Board or the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee may from time to time determine. Personal performance measures have included individual and overall contributions to the business, determined at the discretion of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee.

Base Salary

Base salaries were determined following an assessment of each executive's experience, past performance, level of responsibility and importance of the position to the Corporation, individual performance and performance of the Corporation relative to the industry. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee may recommend the Board to make adjustments to salary levels, if warranted, after an evaluation of factors, including, but not limited to, performance of the executive and of the Corporation, current salary and competitiveness of compensation relative to that paid to individuals holding equivalent positions at comparable companies.

The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee annually reviews and revises the position description of the Chief Executive Officer and recommends annual performance goals and criteria for the Chief Executive Officer, evaluates the performance of the Chief Executive Officer against such position description and applicable performance goals and criteria and sets the Chief Executive Officer's level of compensation based on this evaluation.

The Chief Executive Officer may recommend base salary adjustments to the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee for senior executives other than himself. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee recommends to the Board the base salary adjustment for the Chief Executive Officer and other senior executives taking into consideration past performance and also the long-term goals of the Corporation.

Incentive Bonus

The objective of the annual performance bonus is to reward the executives for reaching strategic objectives and short-term goals. It is designed to encourage the attainment of superior results according to financial objectives approved annually by the Board. Target bonuses are typically expressed as a percentage of base salary and are payable if and when the appropriate goals are met, and in some cases, with set minimum amounts.

The key purpose of incentive bonuses are to (i) align and reward individual contributions to Amaya's objectives to ensure execution of key elements of Amaya's business plan, (ii) promote collaboration and teamwork while recognizing individual contributions and accomplishments, and (iii) complement other forms of compensation to remain competitive in Amaya's industry and with other industries.

The strategic objectives and incentive bonuses for each Named Executive Officer are approved by the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee and may not be identical for any given period.

Risks Associated with the Corporation's Compensation Policies and Practices

Executive compensation consists of both fixed and variable components. The fixed (or salary) component of compensation is designed to provide a steady income so that executives do not feel pressured to focus exclusively on short term gains, or annual stock price performance which may be to the detriment of long term appreciation and other business metrics. The variable or equity-based awards component of compensation is designed to reward both individual performance and overall corporate performance, as well as promoting alignment of interests between the executives and the Corporation. The Corporation believes that the variable component of compensation is sufficient to motivate executives to achieve short and long term corporate objectives while the fixed element is also sufficient to discourage executives from taking unnecessary or excessive risks in doing so.

Equity-Based Awards

Equity-based compensation allows the Corporation, among other things, to promote the interests of the Corporation and its subsidiaries by (i) providing certain executives and employees of the Corporation with greater incentives to further develop and promote the success of the Corporation and thus create value for its Shareholders, (ii) further aligning the interests of the executives and employees of the Corporation with those of its Shareholders generally through ownership of Common Shares or right to receive Common Shares, and (iii) assisting the Corporation in attracting, retaining and motivating its executives and employees. More specifically, incentive stock options are granted to participants whose skill, performance and loyalty towards the Corporation are vital to its success, image, reputation and activities.

The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee reviews and recommends to the Board compensation policies and processes and any new incentive compensation and equity compensation plans of the Corporation or changes to any such plans, and is responsible for the administration of all incentive and equity compensation plans of the Corporation, subject to applicable policies adopted by the Board. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee also reviews and approves any performance measures respecting incentive compensation payable to executives and key employees, and makes recommendations to the Board on any performance measures regarding incentive compensation payable to the Chief Executive Officer. Previous grants of incentive stock options may be taken into account by the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee when considering new grants.

Until the date of this Information Circular and until such time as the New Equity Incentive Plan is approved, the Corporation's grants of equity-based awards to applicable participants and employees were made pursuant to the Stock Option Plan.

As at May 13, 2015, Options to acquire 9,413,503 Common Shares have been granted and are outstanding under the Stock Option Plan and, based on the number of Common Shares issued and outstanding as at the same date, there are 3,965,769 Options unallocated and available for grant under the Stock Option Plan. See "Statement of Executive Compensation – Incentive Plan Awards – Outstanding Share-based Awards and Option-based Awards".

At the Meeting, Shareholders will be asked to consider, and if deemed advisable, to pass (i) the Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan (see "Business of the Meeting – Approval of New Equity Incentive Plan and Stock Option Plan Amendment – Key Terms of the New Equity Incentive Plan"), and (ii) the Ordinary Resolution to Amend the Stock Option Plan (see "Business of the Meeting – Approval of Stock Option Plan Amendment"). If such resolutions are approved, the Corporation will have additional flexibility with respect to equity-based awards and the Stock Option Plan, as amended, will then remain in effect only in respect of outstanding Options, and no further Options will be granted under the Stock Option Plan.

Performance Graph

The Common Shares of the Corporation commenced trading on the TSXV on July 21, 2010 and, effective October 1, 2013, the Corporation graduated from the TSXV to the TSX. The following graph compares the total cumulative return on $100 invested on July 21, 2010 in Common Shares with the total cumulative return on the S&P/TSX Composite Total Return Index, for the period from July 21, 2010 through December 31, 2014.

The trend shown in the performance graph above represents a strong cumulative total shareholder return on an absolute basis and relative to the performance of the index used for comparison. Compensation for the Amaya employees is not tied to the return on Common Shares. Rather, compensation is based upon an individual's performance, level of expertise, responsibilities and length of service to the Corporation, with equity-based awards granted as an incentive for performance and cash bonuses awarded for contributions to achievement of certain milestones by Amaya and its subsidiaries. Corporate objectives considered for the adjustment of executive compensation have been based on achieving certain financial targets, such as EBITDA targets of the consolidated operations of the Corporation, as well as such other criteria as the Board or the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee may from time to time determine. Personal performance measures include individual and overall contributions to the business.

Notes:

(1) The fair value of each granted Option was determined using the Black-Scholes option pricing model, according to IFRS 2 of the Handbook of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants. The Corporation believes that this method produces a meaningful and reasonable estimate of fair value. The key assumptions used in the Black-Scholes option pricing model for calculating the value of the Options granted are as follows: risk free rate of 1.07 – 2.15% per annum, expected life of 3.25 – 3.75 years, a volatility of 52 – 60% and no dividend yield.

(2) Effective September 8, 2014, Mr. Baazov's base salary increased from $375,000 to $1,000,000.

(3) Effective September 8, 2014, Mr. Sebag's base salary increased from $375,000 to $600,000.

(4) Mr. Franic and Mr. Goldstein are paid in United States dollars, therefore each element of their compensation was converted to Canadian dollars using an average exchange rate for the year ended December 31, 2014 of 1.1046.

(5) Effective January 1, 2015, Mr. Goldstein's base salary increased from US$350,000 to US$600,000.

(6) Cadillac Jack, Inc. ("Cadillac Jack") became a subsidiary of Amaya in November 2012. On March 30, 2015, the Corporation announced that it entered into a definitive agreement to sell Cadillac Jack (the "CJ Sale") for approximately US$382 million comprising cash consideration of US$370 million, subject to adjustment, and a US$12 million payment-in-kind note, bearing interest at 5.0% per annum and due on the eighth anniversary of the closing date. Subject to receipt of gaming regulatory and antitrust approvals and other customary closing conditions, the Corporation anticipates closing the CJ Sale in 2015.

(7) These amounts were paid by Cadillac Jack to match certain amounts previously contributed by Mr. Franic under the CJ 401(k) Plan (as defined under "Pension Plan Benefits").

(8) This amount represents the aggregate of $613,718 paid as a retention bonus; and $886,385 paid in consideration for non-compete provisions, each paid by Cadillac Jack subsequent to its acquisition by Amaya.

(9) Rational Group Ltd. ("Rational Group") became an indirect subsidiary of Amaya in August 2014, upon completion of the acquisition by a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Corporation of Oldford Group Limited (now known as Amaya Group Holdings (IOM) Limited), parent company of Rational Group, the owner and operator of the PokerStars and Full Tilt brands (the "Rational Group Acquisition"), on August 1, 2014.

(10) Mr. Ashkenazi is paid in British pounds sterling, therefore each element of his compensation was converted to Canadian dollars using an average exchange rate for the year ended December 31, 2014 of 1.819.

(11) In April 2015, Mr. Ashkenazi left Rational Group and became the Senior Vice President, Strategy for Amaya.

(12) Mr. Ashkenazi's base salary for the 2014 fiscal year pursuant to his employment agreement with Rational Group was £394,875. He was entitled to an annual incentive bonus of £276,413 and to other compensation in the aggregate amount of £90,953.

(13) This grant of Options was approved by the TSX in connection with the Rational Group Acquisition. The exercise price of such Options is equal to a price per share that is lower than the fair market value of the Common Shares at the date of grant.

Any bonus payment is within the sole discretion of the Board and is based upon a review of Mr. Franic's performance, Cadillac Jack's performance, and is linked to EBITDA targets of Cadillac Jack, as well as such other criteria as the Board may from time to time decide. Mr. Franic is also entitled to participate in the Stock Option Plan and is entitled to additional Option grants for as long as he remains actively employed by Cadillac Jack (and excluding any notice period). Such Options shall have an exercise price determined in accordance with the Stock Option Plan. Mr. Franic's employment agreement contains non-competition and non-solicitation provisions which survive two years following termination of employment, and confidentiality obligations which survive termination of the employment agreement.

Employment Agreement of Mr. Rafael Ashkenazi, Chief Operating Officer, Rational Group

Pursuant to the terms of his employment agreement, Mr. Rafael Ashkenazi is employed as Rational Group's Chief Operating Officer for a term of two years, automatically renewing for subsequent one year terms, unless terminated by either Mr. Ashkanezi or Rational Group upon a six month prior notice, or unless sooner terminated in accordance with the terms of his employment agreement. Pursuant to his employment agreement, Mr. Ashkenazi received, upon completion of the Rational Group Acquisition, 225,000 Options at an exercise price of $20, subject to the terms and conditions set forth in the Stock Option Plan and Mr. Ashkenazi's Option grant agreement. Mr. Ashkenazi is also entitled to participate in the Stock Option Plan or any other incentive plan as Rational Group may adopt, and is entitled to additional grants of equity-based securities on an annual basis as determined by the compensation committee of Rational Group, the whole in accordance with the Stock Option Plan or any other incentive plan pursuant to which such grants are made. Although Mr. Ashkenazi is eligible to participate in Rational Group's pension scheme, he has elected not to do so, and receives an "investment allowance" equal to an aggregate amount of 7% of his annual base salary, payable monthly, in lieu thereof pursuant to applicable law and subject to applicable taxes. The employment agreement of Mr. Ashkenazi contains standard non-competition and non-solicitation provisions which respectively survive six months and one year following termination of employment, and standard confidentiality obligations which survive indefinitely. In April 2015, Mr. Ashkenazi left Rational Group and became the Senior Vice President, Strategy at Amaya.

Termination and Change of Control Benefits

In addition to standard termination provisions, including upon death or disability, the terms of the employment agreement of each of the Chief Executive Officer, the Chief Financial Officer and the Executive Vice-President, Corporate Development and General Counsel of the Corporation stipulate that their respective employment may be terminated at any time for cause, upon a decision of the Board made at a duly called meeting to which the concerned executive was invited. Each employment agreement also provides that such executive may terminate his employment with the Corporation after providing the Corporation with 30-days' prior written notice. If the Corporation terminates the employment of Mr. Baazov, Mr. Sebag or Mr. Goldstein without cause (as such term is defined in their respective employment agreements), or if any of Mr. Baazov, Mr. Sebag or Mr. Goldstein terminates his employment with the Corporation for good reason (as such term is defined in their respective employment agreements), such executive will be entitled to receive (i) an amount equal to three (3) times his annual base salary, plus the higher of (A) the bonus to which he was eligible for any of the three (3) preceding fiscal years, or (B) the actual bonus paid to him for any of the three (3) preceding fiscal years, and (ii) 100% of the then-unvested equity awards held by such executive will immediately vest (provided that if an outstanding equity award is to vest based on the achievement of performance criteria, then such equity award will vest as to 100% of the amount of the equity award assuming the relevant performance criteria had been achieved at the highest applicable target levels for the relevant performance period(s)) (collectively, the "Termination Benefits").

The terms of the employment agreement of Mr. Franic, the Chief Operations Officer of Cadillac Jack, stipulate that his employment may be terminated at any time for cause (as such term is defined in his employment agreement), and that he may himself terminate his employment with the Corporation provided he gives thirty (30) days prior notice. If the Corporation terminates the employment of Mr. Franic without cause, or if Mr. Franic terminates his employment with the Corporation for good reason (as such term is defined in his employment agreement), Mr. Franic will be entitled to receive an amount equal to one and one half (1.5) times his annual base salary for the immediately preceding fiscal year.

The terms of the employment agreement of Mr. Ashkenazi in his capacity as former Chief Operations Officer of Rational Group, provide that after the expiration of the initial two year term, his employment may be terminated by Rational Group upon a six month prior notice, provided that Rational Group can also terminate Mr. Ashkenazi's employment at any time by paying to Mr. Ashkenazi an amount equal to one half (0.5) times his annual base salary in lieu of any required notice period, plus any accrued benefits and the pro rata portion of any bonus to which Mr. Ashkenazi was entitled for the preceding year. Rational Group can also terminate Mr. Ashkenazi's employment in connection with the occurrence of, or pursuant to, certain cause-related events set out in his employment agreement.

If the employment of Mr. Baazov, Mr. Sebag or Mr. Goldstein is terminated in connection with a change of control of the Corporation, such executive will be entitled to receive the same Termination Benefits provided if terminated without cause. If the employment of Mr. Franic is terminated in connection with a change of control of Cadillac Jack, (i) his Options that are scheduled to vest on November 30, 2015, to the extent unvested, shall vest and become immediately exercisable, and (ii) his Options that are scheduled to vest on November 30, 2016, to the extent unvested, shall vest and become exercisable on November 30, 2015. Mr. Ashkenazi's employment agreement is silent with respect to the effect of termination in connection with a change of control. A "change of control", for the purpose of such employment agreements, generally means the occurrence of (a) an amalgamation, arrangement, merger, takeover bid, consolidation or other transaction as a result of which the Corporation is not the surviving or continuing corporation or entity (subject to certain exceptions, including transactions with wholly-owned subsidiaries, and transactions in which there is no substantial change in the Shareholders and the outstanding Options are assumed or replaced by the successor or continuing corporation); (b) a dissolution or liquidation of the Corporation; (c) the sale of all or substantially all of the assets of the Corporation; (d) a business combination (going private transaction); or (e) any other transaction or series of related transactions which does not result in the Shareholders immediately prior to such transaction or series of related transactions holding 50% or more of the voting power of the surviving or continuing entity following such transaction or series of related transactions.

If the employment of any of the Named Executive Officers is terminated without cause, his right to exercise any vested stock Options granted under the Stock Option Plan ends on the 90th day following the date when they ceased being in active services or employment with the Corporation. If their employment is terminated with cause, any Options granted under the Stock Option Plan will be deemed to have been cancelled immediately on the date in which they are required to stop reporting to work. For the treatment of equity-based awards granted under the New Equity Incentive Plan in similar circumstances, if such plan is approved by the Shareholders at the Meeting, see "Business of the Meeting – Approval of New Equity Incentive Plan and Stock Option Plan Amendment".

The following table sets out the amounts that would have been payable to the Named Executive Officers as of December 31, 2014 had their employment been terminated by the Corporation for reasons other than for cause (or, in the case of Mr. Ashkenazi, for reasons other than those cause-related events set out in his employment agreement).

Note:

(1) These amounts are calculated based on the difference between the closing price of Common Shares on the TSX on the respective vesting dates during the year ended December 31, 2014 and the exercise price of the respective Options as if such options had been exercised on such vesting dates.

Equity-Based Incentive Plans

At the Meeting, Shareholders will be asked to approve (i) the Ordinary Resolution to Approve the New Equity Incentive Plan and Amend the Stock Option Plan (see "Business of the Meeting – Approval of New Equity Incentive Plan and Stock Option Plan Amendment – Key Terms of the New Equity Incentive Plan"), and (ii) the Ordinary Resolution to Amend the Stock Option Plan (see "Business of the Meeting – Approval of Stock Option Plan Amendment"). If such resolutions are approved, future grants of equity-based awards by the Corporation will from then on be made pursuant to the New Equity Incentive Plan only, and the Stock Option Plan, as amended, will remain in effect exclusively in respect of outstanding Options granted thereunder.

The Stock Option Plan

Pursuant to the Stock Option Plan, the Board may, from time to time, in its discretion, and in accordance with the requirements of the TSX, grant non-transferable Options to purchase Common Shares. The Stock Option Plan is a "10% rolling" stock option plan pursuant to which unallocated Options thereunder must be re-approved by Shareholders by ordinary resolution every three years. Set forth below is a summary of certain key terms of the Stock Option Plan.

Eligibility

All directors, officers, employees and consultants of the Corporation or any of its subsidiaries are eligible to receive Options under the Stock Option Plan. The aggregate number of Common Shares issued to insiders of the Corporation within any one year period, or issuable to insiders of the Corporation at any time, under all security-based compensation arrangements of the Corporation, may not exceed 10% of the total number of issued and outstanding Common Shares of the Corporation at such time. The number of Common Shares that are, at any time, issuable within any 12-month period under the Stock Option Plan on the exercise of Options or pursuant to other security-based compensation arrangements of the Corporation, (i) to any one participant shall not exceed 5% of the then issued and outstanding Common Shares of the Corporation, (ii) to any consultant shall not exceed 2% of the then issued and outstanding Common Shares of the Corporation, and (iii) to any employee conducting investor relations activities shall not exceed an aggregate of 2% of the then issued and outstanding Common Shares of the Corporation to all employees conducting investor relations activities.

Term, Vesting and Exercise Price of Options

Options granted under the Stock Option Plan may have a term of up to five years. The exercise price of the Options is fixed at the date of grant and is based on the closing price of the Common Shares on the TSX on the day prior to the date of grant. Generally, and unless otherwise determined by the Board in its discretion, Options vest in equal annual amounts on each of the first, second, third and fourth anniversaries of the date of grant.

Termination of Options

If an optionee ceases to be in active employment or service with the Corporation or one of its subsidiaries (for any reason other than death, disability or termination for cause), the rights of such optionee to exercise any vested Options granted to him or her under the Stock Option Plan shall cease on the ninetieth (90th) day following the date when such optionee ceased to be in active employment or service with the Corporation or any of its subsidiaries, provided that, within such ninety (90) day period, the optionee may only exercise such Options to the extent that he or she was entitled to exercise them on the day immediately preceding the date he or she ceased to be in active employment or service with the Corporation or one of its subsidiaries.

If an optionee is terminated for cause, such optionee's right to exercise any Options granted to him or her under the Stock Option Plan shall be deemed to have ceased and the Options shall be deemed to have been cancelled on the day immediately preceding the earlier of the date on which the Corporation gives the participant notice of his termination or the date on which the Corporation requires the participant to stop reporting to work.

Upon the death of an optionee, all unvested Options shall vest immediately provided that such optionee was in active employment or service with the Corporation or under disability at the time of such death. Any Options granted to such optionee under the Stock Option Plan will be exercisable for a period of up to one year following death. In the event of the disability of an optionee, any Options granted to such optionee under the Stock Option Plan will continue to vest and all vested Options will be exercisable in accordance with the terms of such Options.

Upon the occurrence of a "change of control" event (as defined in the Stock Option Plan), at the option of the Corporation, any or all outstanding Options may be assumed by the successor or continuing entity (if any), or the successor or continuing entity may provide substantially similar consideration to optionees as was provided to Shareholders at the time of the occurrence of the "change of control". In the event that the successor or continuing entity refuses to assume or substitute any outstanding Options, the Corporation will so notify the optionees in writing and the optionees will have ten (10) business days following the date of such notice was given to exercise the vested Options as at the date of such notice, failing which such vested Options will be deemed to expire. Notwithstanding the foregoing, (i) in the case of a takeover bid, the optionees may elect to exercise all or any of the Options (whether vested or not at the time) for the purposes of tendering such Common Shares under such formal bid, and (ii) in the case of a business combination (going private transaction), the Corporation may terminate, subject to the completion of such business combination, all of the then outstanding Options by giving at least ten (10) days prior written notice of such termination to each of the optionees and paying to each of the optionees at the time of the completion of the business combination an amount equal to the fair market value of the Options.

Amendment and Termination of the Stock Option Plan

Subject to applicable law, the Board may at any time suspend or terminate the Stock Option Plan, provided that no such termination may cause prejudice to any Options granted prior to the termination of the Stock Option Plan. The Board may at any time and from time to time amend the Stock Option Plan to, among other things, (i) amend the eligibility criteria and the limits for participating in the Stock Option Plan; (ii) amend the conditions for granting and exercising Options; (iii) make additions, amendments or deletions to the Stock Option Plan in order to comply with the legislation governing the Stock Option Plan or the requirements of a regulatory body or stock exchange; (iv) correct or rectify any ambiguity, incorrect stipulation or omission in the text of the Stock Option Plan; (v) make any amendments in respect of the administration of the Stock Option Plan; (vi) amend the vesting provisions of the Stock Option Plan or any Option; (vii) amend the content of a grant agreement; (viii) amend the conditions governing the cancellation of Options; (ix) amend the conditions for the adjustment of Options; (x) amend the provisions governing the tax treatment of Options granted; or, (xi) amend the provisions regarding the legislation applicable to the Stock Option Plan.

Notwithstanding the foregoing, shareholder approval is required for the following amendments to the Stock Option Plan: (i) amendments to increase the maximum number of Common Shares issuable pursuant to the exercise of Options; (ii) any reduction in the exercise price or a cancellation of Options; (iii) an extension to the term of an Option;

(iv) an amendment allowing introduction or re-introduction of non-employee directors on a discretionary basis; and (v) amendments that would permit any optionee to transfer or assign their Options other than for ordinary estate settlement purposes.

The New Equity Incentive Plan

For a summary of the key terms of the New Equity Incentive Plan, see "Business of the Meeting – Approval of New Equity Incentive Plan and Stock Option Plan Amendment – Key Terms of the New Equity Incentive Plan". A copy of the New Equity Incentive Plan is appended to this Information Circular as Schedule "D".

Pension Plan Benefits

The Corporation had no deferred compensation plans or pension plans, defined contribution or otherwise, in place at any time during the year ended December 31, 2014. However, Mr. Franic participates in the Cadillac Jack 401(k) plan, effective January 1, 2002, as amended on July 1, 2014 (the "CJ 401(k) Plan"), pursuant to which he, along with other eligible employees of Cadillac Jack, is entitled to certain benefits. Although Mr. Ashkenazi is eligible to participate in Rational Group's pension scheme, he has elected not to do so, and receives an "investment allowance" equal to an aggregate amount of 7% of his annual base salary, payable monthly, in lieu thereof pursuant to applicable law and subject to applicable taxes.

The CJ 401(k) Plan was adopted by Cadillac Jack to provide certain employees with the opportunity to save for retirement on a tax-advantaged basis. All employees of Cadillac Jack, other than (i) union employees whose employment is governed by a collective bargaining agreement under which retirement benefits were the subject of good faith bargaining, (ii) certain non-resident employees who have no earned income from sources within the United States, and (iii) leased employees, are eligible to participate in the CJ 401(k) Plan. Eligible participants in the CJ 401(k) Plan may elect to contribute a portion of their compensation (generally defined as a participant's total compensation that is subject to income tax and paid to such participant by Cadillac Jack during a relevant year) to the CJ 401(k) Plan, and Cadillac Jack may also make contributions to the CJ 401(k) Plan on behalf of eligible participants, subject to certain limits imposed by applicable law. The following types of contributions may be made under the CJ 401(k) Plan: (i) employee salary deferrals, whereby an eligible participant may elect to reduce his or her compensation by a specific percentage or dollar amount and have that amount contributed to the CJ 401(k) Plan on a pre-tax basis as a salary deferral, (ii) employee rollover contributions, whereby an eligible participant may be permitted, at the discretion of Cadillac Jack, to deposit into the CJ 401(k) Plan distributions received by such participant from other retirement plans and certain individual retirement accounts on a "rollover" basis, which may result in tax savings for such participant, and (iii) employer matching contributions, whereby Cadillac Jack may make discretionary matching contributions equal to a uniform percentage of an eligible participant's salary deferrals, which percentage is determined by Cadillac Jack annually. The aggregate amount of contributions that may be made to a participant's account during the 2014 fiscal year could not exceed the lesser of $52,000 or 100% of such participant's annual compensation (provided that the recognized annual compensation in respect of a participant for the purpose of the CJ 401(k) plan is capped, by law, at $260,000 for the 2014 fiscal year). Employer matching contributions are subject to a vesting schedule which is based on participants' years of services with Cadillac Jack.

In case of termination of a participant's employment with Cadillac Jack for reasons other than death, disability or retirement at normal retirement age (being 65 years old in the case of the CJ 401(k) Plan), such participant will be entitled to receive only the vested portion of its account balance in the CJ 401(k) Plan. Upon termination of a participant's employment with Cadillac Jack on or after normal retirement age, or in the event of termination due to disability, all amounts in such terminated participant's account in the CJ 401(k) Plan will become fully vested and will be distributed to the participant as of the date of termination. If a participant remains employed after having attained the normal retirement age, he or she can often defer the receipt of benefits until his or her actual termination of employment, but generally not later than age 70 ½. In the event of death of a participant while such participant was still employed by Cadillac Jack, the aggregate of such participant's account balance in the CJ 401(k) Plan will be distributed to such participant's beneficiary (as determined in accordance with the CJ 401(k) Plan) as a death benefit. All distributions from the CJ 401(k) Plan are made in a single lump-sum payment to the participant (or, in the event of a distribution upon death, to the participant's beneficiary), provided that participants may, subject to certain conditions, delay the distribution of their vested account balance.

Participants in the CJ 401(k) Plan are not entitled to assign their interest, including any vested interest, in their CJ 401(k) Plan account. Cadillac Jack has the right to terminate the CJ 401(k) Plan at any time, in which case no further contributions will be made to the CJ 401(k) Plan and all amounts credited to participants' accounts will become 100% vested and will be distributed to participants as soon as practicable.

The following table presents certain statutory information regarding the benefits received by Mr. Franic pursuant to the CJ 401(k) Plan for the year ended December 31, 2014:

Note:

(1) The fair value of each granted Option was determined using the Black-Scholes option pricing model, according to IFRS 2 of the Handbook of the Canadian Institute of Chartered Accountants. The Corporation believes that this method produces a meaningful and reasonable estimate of fair value. The key assumptions used in the Black-Scholes option pricing model for calculating the value of the Options granted are as follows: risk free rate of 1.07 - 2.15% per annum, expected life of 3.25 - 3.75 years, a volatility of 52 - 60% and no dividend yield.

Narrative Discussion

From January 1, 2014 until September 8, 2014, the annual retainers for the non-management directors remained unchanged at $45,000, with the Chairman of the Audit Committee receiving an annual retainer of $52,500. In addition, for the same time period, each non-management director was entitled to a fee of $1,250 for each meeting of the Board or each committee which they attended in person and $625 for meetings of the Board or committee which they attended telephonically. As of September 8, 2014, however, the Corporation increased the annual retainers for all non-management directors to $75,000 and no additional fees were paid to the directors for attendance at meetings, whether in person or telephonically. Additional fees may, however, be paid to the directors of the Corporation in connection with certain specific projects or mandates, namely in connection with assisting the Corporation, in their capacity as directors, with gaming regulatory and certain other corporate compliance matters. For example, Mr. Goodson, in his capacity as a director, also serves on the compliance committee of the Corporation, a committee charged with overseeing all aspects of compliance with gaming regulatory and certain other corporate compliance matters (the "Compliance Committee"), as well as one of the Corporation's wholly-owned subsidiary's compliance committee. All directors are entitled to be reimbursed for reasonable travel expenses incurred with respect to their attendance at meetings of the Board. Furthermore, each director is eligible to receive Options under the Stock Option Plan.

During the year ended December 31, 2014, the Corporation granted each of Messrs. Clark, Gadhia and Goodson Options to purchase up to 6,000 Common Shares and granted Dr. Zidenberg Options to purchase up to 16,000 Common Shares. The aggregate cash compensation paid to the directors of the Corporation for services rendered in their capacities as directors during the financial year ended December 31, 2014, was $213,701.

The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee recommends director compensation levels to the Board, including compensation to be paid to the Chair of the Board and those acting as committee chairs, and shall set compensation levels that adequately reflect the applicable responsibilities being assumed.

The premium paid by the Corporation in the financial year ended December 31, 2014, in respect of the directors and officers of the Corporation as a group was $1,440,000. No part of the premium was paid by any director or officer. The deductible in respect of any claim ranges from $0 to $1,000,000 depending on the nature of the claim.

Moreover, the Corporation has entered into indemnification agreements with its directors and officers for liabilities and costs in respect of any action or suit against them in connection with the execution of their duties, subject to customary limitations prescribed by applicable law.

The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee is responsible for assessing the directors and officers insurance policy of the Corporation and making recommendations to the Board for its renewal or amendment or the replacement of the insurer.

INDEBTEDNESS OF DIRECTORS AND OFFICERS

As of May 14, 2015, no executive officer, director, proposed nominee for election as a director or employee, former or present, of the Corporation was indebted to the Corporation including in respect of indebtedness to others where the indebtedness is the subject of a guarantee, support agreement, letter of credit or other similar arrangement provided by the Corporation.

MANAGEMENT CONTRACTS

Management functions of the Corporation and its subsidiaries are not, to any degree, performed by a person or persons other than the directors or executive officers of the Corporation or its subsidiaries.

INTEREST OF INFORMED PERSONS IN MATERIAL TRANSACTIONS

To the Corporation's knowledge, no material transaction involving the Corporation or any of its subsidiaries has been entered into since the beginning of the Corporation's most recently completed financial year, or are proposed to be entered into, in which any director or executive officer of the Corporation, or any person who beneficially owns, or controls or directs, directly or indirectly, more than 10% of the Common Shares or any director or executive officer of such persons or of any subsidiary of the Corporation or any proposed director of the Corporation and each of their associates or affiliates has had or expects to have a direct or indirect material interest.

STATEMENT OF CORPORATE GOVERNANCE PRACTICES

The Board is of the view that maintaining effective corporate governance practices is an important factor which contributes to the general success of the Corporation. The Board has adopted specific policies regarding corporate governance, including without limitation a mandate for the Board (the "Board Mandate"), and charters for each of its committees, position descriptions for the roles of Chief Executive Officer, Chair of the Board and Lead Director, a code of business conduct, corporate governance guidelines, and a whistleblower policy. A copy of the Board Mandate is also appended as Schedule "C". Copies of the Board Mandate, the charters for the Board committees as adopted and amended from time to time, the position descriptions for the roles of Chief Executive Officer, Chair of the Board and Lead Director and the corporate governance guidelines, as these are adopted and amended from time to time, as well as such other policies that may be adopted by the Corporation from time to time, may be, in each case as required by applicable law or as the Corporation otherwise determines, available on the Corporation's website at www.amaya.com, and the disclosure provided under this section of this Information Circular pertaining to these matters, is qualified in its entirety by reference to the full text thereof.

Board

Pursuant to the Board Mandate, the Board is to be constituted at all times of a majority of individuals who meet or exceed the independence requirements of the NASDAQ Stock Market LLC (the "NASDAQ Rules") and who are "independent" within the meaning of National Instrument 58-101 – Disclosure of Corporate Governance Practices ("NI 58-101"). The Board considers all relevant facts and circumstances in making a determination of independence for each director and, as appropriate, imposes independence requirements more stringent than those provided for by NASDAQ Rules and/or NI 58-101 to the extent required by Canadian or U.S. securities laws, including rules and policies promulgated by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and the TSX. Generally, pursuant to such requirements, a director is considered "independent" of the issuer if he or she has no direct or indirect relationship with the issuer which could, in the view of the issuer's board of directors, be reasonably expected to interfere with the exercise of the director's independent judgment, provided that if certain relationships specified in such requirements are in effect the individual is deemed to be not independent. Currently, the Board is comprised of six directors, namely Messrs. Baazov, Sebag, Gadhia, Clark and Goodson and Dr. Zidenberg, of whom four, namely Messrs. Gadhia, Clark and Goodson and Dr. Zidenberg, have been affirmatively determined by the Board to be independent for the purposes of the NASDAQ Rules and NI 58-101. Messrs. Baazov and Sebag are not considered independent as each of them is an executive officer of the Corporation.

The Board is of the opinion that its current size is adequate and facilitates the efficiency of its deliberations, while ensuring a diversity of opinion and experience. The Corporation believes that each and every proposed director is eager to fulfil his obligations and assume his responsibilities in the best interests of the Corporation and the Shareholders. The independent directors of the Board shall regularly meet independently of management, including after Board meetings on an as-needed basis during the year.

Mr. Baazov is the Chairman of the Board and chairs meetings of the Board. Mr. Baazov is a member of the Corporation's management and, therefore, is not independent. The Board believes that Mr. Baazov's role as Chief Executive Officer and a significant Shareholder and his guidance of its successful development since assuming the role of Chief Executive Officer makes him uniquely suited to fulfill his role as Chairman of the Corporation.

To provide independent leadership for the independent directors, the Board has appointed Mr. Gadhia, an independent director, as Lead Director. In addition to the appointment of a Lead Director, the Board also provides leadership for its independent directors by formal Board meetings, encouraging independent directors to bring forth agenda items, and providing independent directors with access to senior management, outside advisors, and unfettered access to information regarding the Corporation's activities. The relatively small size of the Board facilitates this process. In addition, as of June 30, 2014, the Corporation's then existing compensation committee became the current Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, which is currently composed of all independent directors.

Directorships

Listed in the table below are the current directors of the Corporation who serve on the boards of directors of other reporting issuers (or the equivalent, including public companies of the United States):

Aubrey Zidenberg	• Director	• Innova Gaming Group Inc.

Position Descriptions

The Corporation has adopted formal position descriptions for the Chair of the Board, the Chief Executive Officer and the Lead Director.

Chair of the Board

The primary responsibility of the Chair of the Board is to provide leadership to the Board to enhance Board effectiveness, including supervising management of the Corporation and overseeing the relationships between the Board, Shareholders and other stakeholders of the Corporation.

In general, the Chair fulfills his or her responsibility by, among other things: (i) overseeing the Board's discharge of its duties and the delegation of responsibilities to all Board committees; (ii) organizing and presenting the agenda for Board meetings; (iii) assisting in reviewing and monitoring the long term business plan, strategies and policies of the Corporation and the achievement of their objectives; (iv) presiding over meetings of the Board; and (v) facilitating appropriate communication with management, senior officers and shareholders.

Chief Executive Officer

The primary responsibility of the Chief Executive Officer is to lead the Corporation by providing a strategic direction for the growth and profitable operation of the Corporation.

The Chief Executive Officer will be expected, in fulfilling his or her primary responsibilities, to: (i) oversee the appropriate management of day-to-day business affairs of the Corporation; (ii) develop and implement the Corporation's business plan and strategies; (iii) keep the Board informed in a timely and candid manner of the progress of the Corporation towards the achievement of its established goals and of all material deviations from such goals or objectives; and (iv) take steps to build an effective management team.

Lead Director

The primary responsibility of the Lead Director, who must be an independent director, is to facilitate the functioning of the Board and to facilitate its exercise of independent judgment in fulfilling its responsibilities when the Chair of the Board is not an independent director. The Lead Director's other responsibilities include: (i) acting as a liaison between the Chair of the Board and the independent directors, including serving as an independent contact for directors on matters deemed to be inappropriate to be discussed initially with the Chair of the Board or in other situations where the Chair of the Board is not available, (ii) communicating the views of the independent directors, Shareholders and other stakeholders of the Corporation to the Board Chair and senior management, and (iii) presiding over in camera independent director meeting.

Orientation and Continuing Education

The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee is currently responsible for the oversight of the orientation of new directors to familiarize them with the Corporation's business and operations, including the Corporation's reporting structure, strategic plans, significant financial, accounting and risk issues and compliance programs and policies, management and the external auditors, as well as ongoing educational opportunities for all directors.

The Board believes that it is important to orient new directors to the operations of the Corporation's business and their role as a director and committee member, if applicable. To this end, management provides new members with, among other things, past Board materials and other private and public documents concerning the Corporation (including, but not limited to, the code of business conduct, whistleblower policy, confidentiality, disclosure and trading policy, the Board mandate and committee charters, corporate governance guidelines and position descriptions for the Chief Executive Officer, Chairman of the Board and Lead Director), provides for tours at Amaya's expense at its facilities, and meetings with senior executives. Management also provides new directors with access to all of the Corporation's background documents and records, including by-laws, corporate policies, organization structure and prior board and committee minutes. In addition, management makes a presentation to new directors regarding the nature and operations of our business.

To facilitate ongoing education, the directors are encouraged to communicate with management and the auditors, to keep themselves current with industry trends and developments and changes in legislation with the Corporation's assistance, to attend industry seminars and to observe the Corporation's operations first-hand. Although the Board oversees ongoing educational opportunities, no formal continuing education program currently exists for our directors; however, we encourage our directors to attend, enrol or participate in courses and/or seminars dealing with financial literacy, corporate governance and related matters and have agreed to pay the cost of such courses and seminars. Each of our directors also has the responsibility for ensuring that he or she maintains the skill and knowledge necessary to meet his or her obligations as a director. Individual directors are encouraged to identify their continuing education needs through a variety of means, including discussions with management and at Board and committee meetings. In addition, independent directors Mr. Goodson, Mr. Gadhia and Dr. Zidenberg have extensive experience in the gaming industry. Mr. Goodson is also a member of the Corporation's Compliance Committee, as is Ben Soave, an advisor to Amaya's Board and former Chief Superintendent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police.

The Corporation's management ensures that the Board has timely access to the information it needs to carry out its duties. Directors receive a comprehensive package of information prior to each Board and Committee meeting.

Ethical Business Conduct

The Corporation has adopted a written code of business conduct (the "Code") for the Corporation's directors, officers and employees. The Code constitutes written standards that are designed to deter wrongdoing and promote, among other things: (i) honest and ethical conduct, including the handling of actual or apparent conflicts of interest between personal and professional relationships; (ii) avoidance of conflicts of interest, including disclosure to a director or officer of the Corporation of any material transaction or relationship that reasonably could be expected to give rise to a conflict of interest; (iii) safeguarding of the Corporation's confidential information and integrity and protection of business information; (iv) maintenance of a healthy and safe work environment that is free of discrimination and harassment; (v) protection of employee privacy and personal information; (vi) dealing responsibly with persons outside the Corporation, including compliance with anti-corruption laws and lobbying legislation; (vii) compliance with other applicable governmental laws, rules and regulations; (viii) the prompt reporting to a director or officer (or if appropriate, to the Autorité des marchés financiers) of violations of the Code; and (ix) accountability and responsibility by all directors, officers and employees for adherence to the Code.

The Corporation monitors compliance with the Code and recommends disclosures as and when appropriate and required in accordance therewith. In addition, the Corporation reviews the Code with a view of complying with all applicable rules and regulations, receiving regular reports from management with respect to compliance with the Code, and satisfying itself that management has established a system to disclose the Code (and any amendments thereto) to the extent required. The Code is filed on SEDAR at www.sedar.com under the Corporation's profile.

A director is required to disclose to the other directors information regarding any transaction or agreement in respect of which such director has a material interest and to abstain from voting on any matter in respect of such transaction or agreement. The director shall excuse himself or herself from the portion of any meeting at which such transaction of agreement is discussed. The Board does not monitor compliance with the Code but it regularly assesses compliance by its queries to management at Board meetings.

In addition to the Code, Amaya has adopted an Anti-Bribery and Anti-Corruption Policy for all employees, directors and officers of the Corporation. On January 24, 2014, Amaya hired Marlon D. Goldstein as its new Executive Vice-President, Corporate Development and General Counsel. Mr. Goldstein's duties include overseeing the Corporation's legal team. Subsequent to Mr. Goldstein's hiring, the Corporation created a Compliance Committee charged with overseeing all aspects of compliance with gaming regulatory and other corporate compliance matters.

The Board monitors compliance with the Code by reserving the right to audit compliance with the Code and through the Corporation's existing "whistleblower" policy, which provides a procedure for the submission of information by persons relating to possible violations of the Code.

Nomination of Directors and Succession

The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, which is composed entirely of independent directors (as determined based on the standards set forth under "Statement of Corporate Governance Practices – Board"), is responsible for, among other things, identifying, recruiting and recommending to the Board qualified nominees for election as directors of the Corporation, reviewing the size of the Board from time to time and reviewing on an annual basis the competencies, skills and personal qualities of each existing director, and those competencies, skills and personal qualities that are required of directors in order to add value to the Corporation in light of the opportunities and risks facing the Corporation, the Corporation's proposed strategy, the independence of the Board and the Corporation's other corporate governance guidelines and policies.

In considering potential nominees for election as directors, the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee considers a number of factors, including those set out above, together with the independence, background, employment and qualifications of potential nominees and the alignment of such potential nominees' competencies, skills and personal qualities with the Corporation's needs. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee recommends to the Board a proposed list of nominees for election as directors by the Shareholders in connection with each meeting of Shareholders at which directors are to be elected.

The Corporation's corporate governance guidelines provide that no person shall be appointed or elected as a director after reaching 75 years of age. However, the Board has decided not to adopt term limits for the directors, believing that such a policy would have the effect of forcing directors off the Board who have developed, over a period of service, increased insight of the Corporation and, therefore can be expected to provide an increasing contribution to the Board. The Board recognizes the value of some turnover in Board membership and the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee is mandated annually to consider and recommend changes the composition of the Board.

The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee also has responsibility for reviewing, with the Chair of the Board and the Chief Executive Officer, the succession plans relating to the position of Chief Executive Officer and generally with respect to other senior positions, and to make recommendations to the Board with respect to the selection of individuals to occupy these positions, including reviewing plans in respect of an unexpected incapacitation of the Chief Executive Officer.

Board Mandate

The Board is responsible for the stewardship of the business and affairs of the Corporation, including, without limitation, the appointment of management, strategic planning, monitoring of financial performance, financial reporting and risk management.

The Board is responsible for, among other things: (i) approving the appointment of the Chief Executive Officer and all other senior management, and approving their compensation; (ii) satisfying itself as to the integrity of the management team and that they create a culture of integrity throughout the Corporation; (iii) approving its composition and size, selection of the Chair of the Board, candidates nominated for election to the Board, committee and committee chair appointments, committee charters and director compensation; and (iv) reviewing, questioning and approving the mission of the Corporation and its strategy, objectives and goals. In addition, the Board is responsible for: (i) monitoring of the Corporation's performance and progress towards its strategic and operational goals; (ii) overseeing the identification and management of the Corporation's principal business risks; (iii) approving and monitoring compliance with significant policies and procedures by which the Corporation operates; (iv) overseeing communications with Shareholders, employees, financial analysts, governments, regulatory authorities, media and Canadian and international communities; and (v) overseeing the accurate, timely and complete disclosure of all financial and other information or developments that have a significant and material impact on the Corporation.

Compensation

In addition to the items listed above under "Statement of Corporate Governance Practices – Nomination of Directors" the Board, after reviewing recommendations of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, is responsible for approving executive and director compensation, including with respect to: (i) compensation of the Corporation's Chief Executive Officer and other members of senior management, and (ii) compensation disclosure in the annual report on executive compensation for inclusion in the Corporation's management information circular. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee has authority to retain independent compensation advisors and considers the independence of its external compensation advisors.

Refer to section "Statement of Executive Compensation – Compensation Discussion and Analysis – General" for additional details regarding the role and activities of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee.

Other Board Committees

The Board has two committees: the Audit Committee and the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee. The Board has established these committees to assist it in fulfilling its mandate and to satisfy various regulatory obligations. The Board oversees the establishment and operation of all of its committees and the appointment, compensation and conduct of their members. In addition to these regular committees, the Board may appoint ad hoc committees periodically to address certain issues. Refer to section "Audit Committee Information" for a description of the function of the Audit Committee.

Assessments

The Board receives recommendations from the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, but retains responsibility for examining its size and composition on an annual basis. In addition, the Board has established a process for assessing, on an annual basis, the performance and effectiveness of the Board as a whole and each of its committees. This process is overseen by the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee and takes into consideration: (i) the solicitation and receipt of comments from directors; (ii) the Board Mandate; (iii) the charter of each of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee and the Audit Committee (the "Audit Committee Charter"); and (iv) the performance of each individual director. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee considers the performance of directors in determining whether to recommend that they be nominated for re-election. These assessments are currently done on an informal basis through discussion at committee and Board meetings due to the size of the Board and its committees.

As Chief Executive Officer of Amaya, Mr. Baazov is responsible for devising and implementing the general business strategies of the Corporation and reporting progress to the Board. As Chair, Mr. Baazov is responsible for preparing the agenda of the Board meetings and presiding over the meetings. The Chairpersons of the Board's Audit and Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committees are responsible for leadership of their respective committees, including preparing the agenda, presiding over the meetings, making committee assignments and reporting to the Board.

Diversity

The Corporation values and welcomes a diversity of views and perspectives on the Board. The Corporation believes in diversity and values the benefits diversity can bring to the Board, including diversity of personal characteristics such as age, gender, character, geographic residence, business experience (including financial skills and literacy), functional expertise, demonstrated leadership, stakeholder expectations and culture. The composition of the Board is intended to reflect a diverse mix of skills, experience, knowledge and backgrounds, including an appropriate number of women directors.

However, the Corporation has not otherwise adopted a written policy for identifying and nominating women directors and does not have targets regarding the number or percentage of women on the Board. The Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee recruits and considers candidates for director having regard for the background, employment and qualifications of possible candidates and the alignment of such candidate's talents, competencies, skills and personal qualities with the Corporation's needs and does not believe it is appropriate to fix targets that would prioritize a candidate on the basis of gender or other personal characteristics. The Committee does not specifically consider the level of representation of women on the Board in identifying and nominating candidates for election or re-election to the Board as its focus is on the recruitment of candidates with the competencies, skills and personal qualities to add the highest value to the Board, rather than on the gender or other personal characteristics of particular candidates.

The Corporation is focused on finding executive talent to grow and expand its business. As such, it focuses on recruiting and retaining executive talent needed to develop and implement the Corporation's strategy, objectives and goals without regard for the gender of potential candidates for executive officer positions. For this same reason, the Corporation has not adopted a target regarding women in executive officer positions. Currently, none of the Board members or executive officers of the Corporation are women.

AUDIT COMMITTEE INFORMATION

Purpose

The Audit Committee is established to fulfil applicable public company obligations respecting audit committees and to assist the Board in discharging its oversight responsibilities with respect to financial reporting to ensure the transparency and integrity of the Corporation's published financial information. The Audit Committee's responsibilities include overseeing: (i) the integrity of the Corporation's financial statements and financial reporting process, including the audit process and the Corporation's internal controls over financial reporting, disclosure controls and procedures and compliance with other related legal and regulatory requirements; (ii) the qualifications, independence, retention, compensation and work of the Corporation's external auditors; (iii) the work of the Corporation's financial management and internal auditors; (iv) enterprise risk management, privacy and data security; and (e) the auditing, accounting and financial reporting process generally. The Audit Committee has the right, for the purposes of performing its duties, to maintain direct communication with the Corporation's external auditor and the Board, to inspect all books and records of the Corporation and its subsidiaries, to seek any information it requires from any employee of the Corporation and its subsidiaries, and to retain independent outside counsel or other advisors.

The Audit Committee is required to be comprised of a minimum of three directors, each of whom must be "independent" and "financially literate" (or words of similar import or meaning) and otherwise qualified within the meaning of applicable securities law and the rules of any applicable stock exchange. At least one member of the Audit Committee will also qualify as an "audit committee financial expert", as defined by the applicable rules of the United States Securities and Exchange Commission. The Audit Committee meets regularly and as often as it deems necessary to perform the duties and discharge its responsibilities in a timely manner, but is required to meet at least four times a year.

Audit Committee Charter

The current Audit Committee Charter was adopted on April 22, 2015. SCHEDULE "C" BOARD MANDATE

AMAYA INC.

MANDATE FOR THE BOARD OF DIRECTORS

GENERAL

The board of directors (the "Board") of Amaya Inc. (the "Company") is elected by the shareholders and is responsible for the stewardship of the business and affairs of the Company. The Board seeks to discharge such responsibility by reviewing, discussing and approving the Company's strategic planning and organizational structure and supervising management, all with a view to preserving and enhancing the business of the Company and its underlying value.

Although directors may be elected by the shareholders to bring special expertise or a point of view to Board deliberations, they are not chosen to represent a particular constituency. The best interests of the Company must be paramount at all times.

INDEPENDENCE

The Board shall be constituted at all times of a majority of "independent directors" who either meet or exceed the independence requirements of the NASDAQ Stock Market LLC ("NASDAQ") and who are "independent" within the meaning of National Instrument 58-101 – Disclosure of Corporate Governance Practices ("NI 58-101"). The Board will consider all relevant facts and circumstances in making a determination of independence for each director and, as appropriate, impose independence requirements more stringent than those provided for by NASDAQ and/or NI 58-101 to the extent required by Canadian or U.S. securities laws, including rules and policies promulgated by the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and the Toronto Stock Exchange. Each independent director who experiences a change in circumstances that could affect such director's independence should deliver a notice of such change to the Company's General Counsel.

RESPONSIBILITIES

The Board discharges its responsibility for overseeing the management of the Company's business by delegating to the Company's senior officers the responsibility for the day-to-day management of the Company. The Board discharges its responsibilities both directly and through its committees, the Audit Committee and the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee. In addition to these regular committees, the Board may appoint ad hoc committees periodically to address certain issues.

The Board's primary roles are overseeing corporate performance and providing quality, depth and continuity of management to meet the Company's strategic objectives. Other principal duties include, but are not limited to, the following categories:

Appointment of Management

The Board is responsible for approving the appointment of the Chief Executive Officer and all other senior management, and approving their compensation, following a review of the recommendations of the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee.

In approving the appointment of the Chief Executive Officer and all other senior management, the Board will, to the extent feasible, satisfy itself as to the integrity of these individuals and that they create a culture of integrity throughout the Company.

The Board from time to time delegates to senior management the authority to enter into certain types of transactions, including financial transactions, subject to specified limits. Investments and other expenditures above the specified limits, and material transactions outside the ordinary course of business, are reviewed by and are subject to the prior approval of the Board.

The Board oversees that succession planning programs are in place, including programs to train and develop management.

Board Organization

The Board will receive recommendations from the Corporate Governance, Nominating and Compensation Committee, but retains responsibility for managing its own affairs by giving its approval for its composition and size, the selection of the Chair of the Board, candidates nominated for election to the Board, committee and committee chair appointments, committee charters and director compensation.

The Board may delegate to Board committees matters it is responsible for, including, without limitation, the approval of compensation of the Board and management, the conduct of performance evaluations and oversight of internal controls systems, but the Board must retain its oversight function and ultimate responsibility for these matters and all other delegated responsibilities.

Strategic Planning

The Board has oversight responsibility to participate directly, and through its committees, in reviewing, questioning and approving the mission of the Company and its strategy, objectives and goals.

The Board is responsible for reviewing, providing input to, and approving the business, financial and strategic plans by which it is proposed that the Company may reach its objectives and goals.

Monitoring of Performance and Certain Financial Matters

The Board is responsible for enhancing congruence between shareholder expectations, Company plans and management performance.

The Board is responsible for adopting processes for monitoring the Company's performance and progress toward its strategic and operational goals, and to revise and alter its direction to management in light of changing circumstances affecting the Company.

The Board is responsible for reviewing and approving the audited financial statements, interim financial statements and the notes and Management's Discussion and Analysis accompanying such financial statements.

The Board is responsible for reviewing and approving material transactions outside the ordinary course of business and those matters which the Board is required to approve under the Company's governing statute, including, without limitation, the payment of dividends, purchase and redemptions of securities, acquisitions and dispositions of material capital assets and material capital expenditures.

Risk Management

The Board is responsible for overseeing the identification of the principal risks of the Company's business and ensuring the implementation of appropriate systems to effectively monitor and manage such risks with a view to the long-term viability of the Company and achieving a proper balance between the risks incurred and the potential return to the Company's shareholders.

Policies and Procedures

The Board is responsible for

(a) approving and monitoring compliance with all significant policies and procedures by which the Company operates; and

(b) approving policies and procedures designed to ensure that the Company operates at all times within applicable laws and regulations.

The Board shall enforce its policy respecting confidential treatment of the Company's proprietary information and the confidentiality of Board deliberations.

Communications and Reporting

The Board has approved and will revise from time to time as circumstances warrant a communications plan to address communications with shareholders, employees, financial analysts, governments and regulatory authorities, the media and the Canadian and international communities.

The Board is responsible for:

(a) overseeing the accurate reporting of the financial performance of the Company to shareholders, other security holders and regulators on a timely and regular basis;

(b) taking steps to enhance the timely, accurate and complete disclosure of any other developments that have a significant and material impact on the Company;

(c) reporting annually to shareholders on its stewardship for the preceding year; and

(d) overseeing the Company's implementation of systems which accommodate feedback from shareholders.

This Plan is also intended to replace the Prior Plan (as defined below) as of the Effective Date and with respect to future grants and awards following such date.

ARTICLE 2
INTERPRETATION

(c) in the event neither (a) nor (b) apply, then "cause" as such term is defined by applicable law or, if not so defined, such term shall refer to circumstances where an employer can terminate an individual's employment without notice or pay in lieu thereof;

"Change in Control" means the occurrence of any one or more of the following events:

(a) any transaction at any time and by whatever means pursuant to which any Person or any group of two or more Persons acting jointly or in concert (other than the Corporation or a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Corporation) hereafter acquires the direct or indirect "beneficial ownership" (as defined in the Securities Act (Ontario)) of, or acquires the right to exercise control or direction over, securities of the Corporation representing more than 50% of the then issued and outstanding voting securities of the Corporation,

(d) the occurrence of a transaction requiring approval of the Corporation's shareholders whereby the Corporation is acquired through consolidation, merger, exchange of securities, purchase of assets, amalgamation, statutory arrangement or otherwise by any other Person (other than a short form amalgamation or exchange of securities with a wholly-owned subsidiary of the Corporation);

(e) individuals who comprise the Board as of the last annual meeting of shareholders of the Corporation (the "Incumbent Board") for any reason cease to constitute at least a majority of the members of the Board, unless the election, or nomination for election by the Corporation's shareholders, of any new director was approved by a vote of at least a majority of the Incumbent Board, and in that case such new director shall be considered as a member of the Incumbent Board; or

(f) the Board determines that a Change in Control shall be deemed to have occurred in such circumstances as the Board shall determine; provided that, notwithstanding clause (a), (b), (c) and (d) above, a Change in Control shall be deemed not to have occurred if immediately following the transaction set forth in clause (a), (b), (c) or (d) above: (A) the holders of securities of the Corporation that immediately prior to the consummation of such transaction represented more than 50% of the combined voting power of the then outstanding securities eligible to vote for the election of directors of the Corporation hold (x) securities of the entity resulting from such transaction (the "Surviving Entity") that represent more than 50% of the combined voting power of the then outstanding securities eligible to vote for the election of directors or trustees ("voting power") of the Surviving Entity, or (y) if applicable, securities of the entity that directly or indirectly has beneficial ownership of 100% of the securities eligible to elect directors or trustees of the Surviving Entity (the "Parent Entity") that represent more than 50% of the combined voting power of the then outstanding securities eligible to vote for the election of directors or trustees of the Parent Entity, and (B) no Person or group of two or more Persons, acting jointly or in concert, is the beneficial owner, directly or indirectly, of more than 50% of the voting power of the Parent Entity (or, if there is no Parent Entity, the Surviving Entity) (any such transaction which satisfies all of the criteria specified in clauses (A) and (B) above being referred to as a "Non-Qualifying Transaction" and, following the Non-Qualifying Transaction, references in this definition of "Change in Control" to the "Corporation" shall mean and refer to the Parent Entity (or, if there is no Parent Entity, the Surviving Entity) and, if such entity is a company or a trust, references to the "Board" shall mean and refer to the board of directors or trustees, as applicable, of such entity).

Notwithstanding the foregoing, for purposes of any Award that constitutes "deferred compensation" (within the meaning of Section 409A of the Code), the payment of which would be accelerated upon a Change in Control, a transaction will not be deemed a Change in Control for Awards granted to any Participant who is a U.S. Taxpayer unless the transaction qualifies as "a change in control event" within the meaning of Section 409A of the Code.

Further and for the avoidance of doubt, a transaction will not constitute a Change in Control if: (x) its sole purpose is to change the state or jurisdiction of the Corporation's incorporation, or (y) its sole purpose is to create a holding company that will be owned in substantially the same proportions by the persons who held the Corporation's securities immediately before such transaction;

3.2 Delegation to Committee

(i) The initial Plan Administrator shall be the Board.

(ii) To the extent permitted by applicable law, the Board may, from time to time, delegate to a committee of the Board (the "Committee") all or any of the powers conferred on the Plan Administrator pursuant to this Plan, including the power to sub-delegate to any specified officer(s) of the Corporation or its Subsidiaries all or any of the powers delegated by the Board. In such event, the Committee or any sub-delegate will exercise the powers delegated to it in the manner and on the terms authorized by the delegating party. Any decision made or action taken by the Committee or sub-delegate arising out of or in connection with the administration or interpretation of this Plan in this context is final and conclusive and binding on the Corporation and all Affiliates of the Corporation, all Participants and all other Persons.

3.3 Determinations Binding

Any decision made or action taken by the Board, the Committee or any officers or employees to whom authority has been delegated pursuant to Subsection 3.2 arising out of or in connection with the administration or interpretation of this Plan is final, conclusive and binding on the Corporation, the affected Participant(s), their legal and personal representatives and all other Persons.

3.4 Eligibility

All Employees, Consultants and Directors are eligible to participate in the Plan, subject to Subsections 11.1(c) and 11.2(g). Eligibility to participate does not confer upon any Employee, Consultant or Director any right to receive any grant of an Award pursuant to the Plan. The extent to which any Employee, Consultant or Director is entitled to receive a grant of an Award pursuant to the Plan will be determined in the sole and absolute discretion of the Plan Administrator.

3.5 Board Requirements

Any Award granted under this Plan shall be subject to the requirement that, if at any time the Corporation shall determine that the listing, registration or qualification of the Shares issuable pursuant to such Award upon any securities exchange or under any Securities Laws of any jurisdiction, or the consent or approval of the Exchange and any securities commissions or similar securities regulatory bodies having jurisdiction over the Corporation is necessary as a condition of, or in connection with, the grant or exercise of such Award or the issuance or purchase of Shares thereunder, such Award may not be accepted or exercised in whole or in part unless such listing, registration, qualification, consent or approval shall have been effected or obtained on conditions acceptable to the Board. Nothing herein shall be deemed to require the Corporation to apply for or to obtain such listing, registration, qualification, consent or approval. Participants shall, to the extent applicable, cooperate with the Corporation in complying with such legislation, rules, regulations and policies.

3.6 Total Shares Subject to Awards

(a) Subject to adjustment as provided for in Article 12 and any subsequent amendment to the Plan, the aggregate number of Shares reserved for issuance pursuant to Awards granted under the Plan and the Prior Plan shall not exceed 10% of the Shares issued and outstanding from time to time.

(b) To the extent any (i) Awards (or portion(s) thereof) under the Plan or (ii) awards (or portion(s) thereof) under the Prior Plan terminate or are cancelled for any reason prior to exercise in full, or are surrendered to the Corporation by the Participant, except surrenders relating to the payment of the purchase price of any such award or the satisfaction of the tax withholding obligations related to any such award, the Shares subject to such awards (or portion(s) thereof) shall be added back to the number of Shares reserved for issuance under this Plan and will again become available for issuance pursuant to the exercise of Awards granted under this Plan.

(c) Any Shares issued by the Corporation through the assumption or substitution of outstanding stock options or other equity-based awards from an acquired company shall not reduce the number of Shares available for issuance pursuant to the exercise of Awards granted under this Plan.

3.7 Limits on Grants of Awards

Notwithstanding anything in this Plan:

(a) the aggregate number of Shares:

(i) issuable to Insiders at any time, under all of the Corporation’s Security Based Compensation Arrangements, shall not exceed ten (10%) percent of the issued and outstanding Shares; and

(ii) issued to Insiders within any one year period, under all of the Corporation’s Security Based Compensation Arrangements, shall not exceed ten (10%) percent of the issued and outstanding Shares, provided that the acquisition of Shares by the Corporation for cancellation shall not constitute non-compliance with this Section 3.7 for any Awards outstanding prior to such purchase of Shares for cancellation.

(b) the aggregate number of Shares issuable to Directors, at any time, under all of the Corporation's Security Based Compensation Arrangements shall not exceed one (1%) percent of the issued and outstanding Shares and within any one financial year of the Corporation the aggregate fair value on the Date of Grant of all Awards granted to any Director under all of the Corporation's Security Based Compensation Arrangements shall not exceed $100,000; provided that such limits shall not apply to DSUs granted to the Director in lieu of any cash retainer or meeting fees and such DSUs shall not be included in determining the limits where the aggregate accounting fair value on the Date of Grant of such DSUs is equal to the amount of the cash retainer or meeting fees in respect of which such DSUs were granted.

3.8 Award Agreements

Each Award under this Plan will be evidenced by an Award Agreement. Each Award Agreement will be subject to the applicable provisions of this Plan and will contain such provisions as are required by this Plan and any other provisions that the Plan Administrator may direct. Any one officer of the Corporation is authorized and empowered to execute and deliver, for and on behalf of the Corporation, an Award Agreement to each Participant granted an Award pursuant to this Plan.

3.9 Permitted Assigns

Awards may be transferred by Employees, Directors and Consultants to a Permitted Assign of an Employee, Director or Consultant as applicable, or as may otherwise be approved by the Plan Administrator. In any such case, the provisions of Article 11 shall apply to the Award as if the Award was held by the Employee, Director or Consultant rather than such person's Permitted Assign.

In the event of the death of the Permitted Assign, the Award shall be automatically transferred to the Employee, Director or Consultant who effected the transfer of the Award to the deceased Permitted Assign. If any Participant has transferred Awards to a corporation pursuant to this Section 3.9, such Awards will terminate and be of no further force or effect if at any time the transferor should cease to own all of the issued shares of such corporation.

3.10 Non-transferability of Awards

Except as permitted under Section 3.9 or as otherwise permitted by the Plan Administrator, no assignment or transfer of Awards, whether voluntary, involuntary, by operation of law or otherwise, vests any interest or right in such Awards whatsoever in any assignee or transferee and immediately upon any assignment or transfer, or any attempt to make the same, such Awards will terminate and be of no further force or effect.

OPTIONS

4.1 Grant of Options

The Plan Administrator may, from time to time, subject to the provisions of this Plan and such other terms and conditions as the Plan Administrator may prescribe, grant Options to any Participant. The terms and conditions of each Option grant shall be evidenced by an Award Agreement.

4.2 Exercise Price

The Plan Administrator will establish the Exercise Price at the time each Option is granted, which Exercise Price must in all cases be not less than the Market Price on the Date of Grant.

4.3 Term of Options

Subject to any accelerated termination as set forth in this Plan, each Option expires on its Expiry Date.

4.4 Vesting and Exercisability

(a) Unless otherwise specified by the Plan Administrator at the time of granting an Option and except as otherwise provided in this Plan, each Option will vest and be exercisable as follows subject to the Participant continuing to be an Employee, Consultant, or Director, as applicable, or as otherwise agreed to by the Board:

Total Number of Option Shares that may be Purchased	Vesting Date
25%	From the first anniversary of the Date of Grant.
25%	From the second anniversary of the Date of Grant.
25%	From the third anniversary of the Date of Grant.
25%	From the fourth anniversary of the Date of Grant.

(b) Once an instalment becomes vested, it shall remain vested and shall be exercisable until expiration or termination of the Option, unless otherwise specified by the Plan Administrator, or as may be otherwise set forth in any written employment agreement, or other written agreement between the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate and the Participant. Each Option or instalment may be exercised at any time or from time to time, in whole or in part, for up to the total number of Option Shares with respect to which it is then exercisable. The Plan Administrator has the right to accelerate the date upon which any instalment of any Option becomes exercisable.

(c) Subject to the provisions of this Plan and any Award Agreement, Options shall be exercised by means of a fully completed Exercise Notice delivered to the Corporation.

(d) The Plan Administrator may provide at the time of granting an Option that the exercise of that Option is subject to restrictions, in addition to those specified in Section 4.4, such as performance-based vesting conditions.

4.5 Payment of Exercise Price

Unless otherwise specified by the Plan Administrator at the time of granting an Option, the Exercise Notice must be accompanied by payment in full of the purchase price for the Option Shares to be purchased. The Exercise Price must be fully paid by certified cheque, bank draft or money order payable to the Corporation or by such other means as might be specified from time to time by the Plan Administrator, which may include (i) through an arrangement with a broker approved by the Corporation (or through an arrangement directly with the Corporation) whereby payment of the exercise price is accomplished with the proceeds of the sale of Shares deliverable upon the exercise of the Option, (ii) through any cashless exercise process as may be approved by the Plan Administrator, or (iii) such other consideration and method of payment for the issuance of Shares to the extent permitted by the Securities Laws, or any combination of the foregoing methods of payment.

No Shares will be issued or transferred until full payment therefor has been received by the Corporation.

ARTICLE 5
RESTRICTED SHARE UNITS

5.1 Grant of RSUs

The Plan Administrator may, from time to time, subject to the provisions of this Plan and such other terms and conditions as the Plan Administrator may prescribe, grant RSUs to any Participant. The terms and conditions of each RSU grant shall be evidenced by an Award Agreement.

5.2 Vesting of RSUs

The Plan Administrator shall have the authority to determine at the time of grant, in its sole discretion, the duration of the vesting period and other vesting terms applicable to the grant of RSUs.

5.3 Delivery of Shares

Unless otherwise specified in the Award Agreement, as soon as practicable following the expiry of the applicable vesting period, or at such later date as may be determined by the Plan Administrator in its sole discretion at the time of grant, the Corporation shall issue fully paid and non-assessable Shares pursuant to the RSUs to the Participant or as the Participant may direct.

ARTICLE 6
PERFORMANCE SHARE UNITS

6.1 Grant of PSUs

The Plan Administrator may, from time to time, subject to the provisions of this Plan and such other terms and conditions as the Plan Administrator may prescribe, grant PSUs to any Participant. The terms and conditions of each PSU grant shall be evidenced by an Award Agreement. Each PSU will consist of a right to receive a Share upon the achievement of such Performance Goals during such performance periods as the Plan Administrator will establish.

6.2 Terms of PSUs

The Performance Goals to be achieved during any performance period, the length of any performance period, the amount of any PSU granted, the termination of a Participant's employment and the amount of any payment or transfer to be made pursuant to any PSU will be determined by the Plan Administrator and by the other terms and conditions of any PSU, all as set forth in the applicable Award Agreement.

6.3 Performance Goals

The Plan Administrator will issue Performance Goals prior to the Date of Grant to which such Performance Goals pertain. The Performance Goals may be based upon the achievement of corporate, divisional or individual goals, and may be applied relative to performance relative to an index or comparator group, or on any other basis determined by the Plan Administrator. The Plan Administrator may modify the Performance Goals as necessary to align them with the Corporation's corporate objectives. The Performance Goals may include a threshold level of performance below which no payment will be made (or no vesting will occur), levels of performance at which specified payments will be made (or specified vesting will occur), and a maximum level of performance above which no additional payment will be made (or at which full vesting will occur).

6.4 Delivery of Shares

Unless otherwise specified in the Award Agreement, as soon as practicable following the expiry of the applicable vesting period, or at such later date as may be determined by the Plan Administrator in its sole discretion at the time of grant, the Corporation shall issue fully paid and non-assessable Shares pursuant to the PSUs to the Participant or as the Participant may direct.

ARTICLE 7
RESTRICTED SHARES

7.1 Grant of Restricted Shares

The Plan Administrator may, from time to time, subject to the provisions of this Plan and such other terms and conditions as the Plan Administrator may prescribe, grant Restricted Shares to any Participant, which shall be held by the Corporation or its designee in escrow until such time as the Restricted Period lapses. The terms and conditions of each Restricted Shares grant shall be evidenced by an Award Agreement.

Subject to the restrictions set forth in Section 7.2, except as otherwise set forth in the applicable Award Agreement, the Participant shall generally have the rights and privileges of a shareholder as to such Restricted Shares, including the right to vote such Restricted Shares. Unless otherwise set forth in a Participant's Award Agreement, cash dividends and stock dividends, if any, with respect to the Restricted Shares shall be withheld by the Corporation for the Participant's account, and shall be subject to forfeiture until released, in each case, to be released at the same time and in the same proportion as the lapse of restrictions on the Restricted Shares to which such dividends relate. Except as otherwise determined by the Plan Administrator, no interest will accrue or be paid on the amount of any dividends withheld.

7.2 Restrictions on Transfer

In addition to any other restrictions set forth in a Participant's Award Agreement, until such time that the Restricted Period for the Restricted Shares has lapsed pursuant to the terms of the Award Agreement, which Restricted Period the Plan Administrator may in its sole discretion accelerate at any time, the Participant shall not be permitted to sell, transfer, pledge, or otherwise encumber the Restricted Shares. Notwithstanding anything contained herein to the contrary, the Plan Administrator shall have the authority to remove any or all of the restrictions on the Restricted Shares whenever it may determine that, by reason of changes in applicable laws or other changes in circumstances arising after the date of the Restricted Shares Award, such action is appropriate.

7.3 Effect of Termination of Employment or Services

Except as may otherwise be provided in the applicable Award Agreement or by the Plan Administrator, in the event of a Participant's termination of employment or services with the Corporation and all Affiliates of the Corporation for any reason prior to the time that the Restricted Period for the Participant's Restricted Shares has lapsed, as soon as practicable following such termination of employment or services, the Corporation shall repurchase from the Participant, and the Participant shall sell, all of such Participant's Restricted Shares for which the Restricted Period has not lapsed at a purchase price equal to the cash amount, if any, paid by the Participant for the Restricted Shares, or if no cash amount was paid by the Participant for the Restricted Shares, such Restricted Shares shall be forfeited by the Participant to the Corporation for no consideration as of the date of such termination of employment or services.

ARTICLE 8
DEFERRED SHARE UNITS

8.1 Grant of Deferred Share Units

The Plan Administrator may, from time to time, subject to the provisions of this Plan and such other terms and conditions as the Plan Administrator may prescribe, grant DSUs to any Participant.

All DSUs received by a Participant shall be credited to an account maintained for the Participant on the books of the Corporation, as of the Date of Grant. The terms and conditions of each DSU grant shall be evidenced by an Award Agreement.

8.2 Settlement of DSUs

DSUs shall be settled on the date established in the Award Agreement (the "Settlement Date"); provided, however that in no event shall a DSU Award be settled prior to the date of the applicable Participant's separation from service. If the Award Agreement does not establish a date for the settlement of the DSUs, then the Settlement Date shall be the date of separation from service, subject to the delay that may be required under Section 13.6 below. On the Settlement Date for any DSU:

(a) the Participant shall deliver a cheque payable to the Corporation (or payment by such other method as may be acceptable to the Corporation) representing payment of any amounts required by the Corporation to be withheld in connection with such settlement as contemplated by Section 10.3; and

(b) the Corporation shall issue fully paid and non-assessable Shares pursuant to the DSUs to the Participant or as the Participant may direct.

ARTICLE 9
OTHER SHARE-BASED AWARDS

9.1 Grant of Other Share-Based Awards

The Plan Administrator may, from time to time, subject to the provisions of this Plan and such other terms and conditions as the Plan Administrator may prescribe, grant Other Share-Based Awards to any Participant. The terms and conditions of each Other Share-Based Award grant shall be evidenced by an Award Agreement. Each Other Share-Based Award shall consist of a right (1) which is other than an Award or right described in Article 4, 5, 6, 7 or 8 above and (2) which is denominated or payable in, valued in whole or in part by reference to, or otherwise based on or related to, Shares (including, without limitation, securities convertible into Shares) as are deemed by the Plan Administrator to be consistent with the purposes of the Plan; provided, however, that such right will comply with applicable law. Subject to the terms of the Plan and any applicable Award Agreement, the Plan Administrator will determine the terms and conditions of Other Share-Based Awards. Shares or other securities delivered pursuant to a purchase right granted under this Section 9.1 will be purchased for such consideration, which may be paid by such method or methods and in such form or forms, including, without limitation, cash, Shares, other securities, other Awards, other property, or any combination thereof, as the Plan Administrator shall determine.

ARTICLE 10
ADDITIONAL AWARD TERMS

10.1 Dividend Equivalents

(a) Unless otherwise determined by the Plan Administrator and set forth in the particular Award Agreement, RSUs, PSUs and DSUs shall be credited with dividend equivalents in the form of additional RSUs, PSUs and DSUs, respectively, as of each dividend payment date in respect of which normal cash dividends are paid on Shares. Such dividend equivalents shall be computed by dividing: (a) the amount obtained by multiplying the amount of the dividend declared and paid per Share by the number of RSUs, PSUs and DSUs, as applicable, held by the Participant on the record date for the payment of such dividend, by (b) the Market Price at the close of the first business day immediately following the dividend record date, with fractions computed to three decimal places. Dividend equivalents credited to a Participant's accounts shall vest in proportion to the RSUs, PSUs and DSUs to which they relate.

(b) The Plan Administrator may in its discretion include in an Award Agreement applicable to an Other Share-Based Award a dividend equivalent right entitling the Participant to receive amounts equal to the normal cash dividends that would be paid, during the time such Award is outstanding and unexercised, on the Shares covered by such Award if such Shares were then outstanding and may decide whether such payments shall be made in cash, in Shares or in another form, whether they shall be conditioned upon the vesting of the Award to which they relate, the time or times at which they shall be made, and such other terms and conditions as the Plan Administrator shall deem appropriate.

(c) The foregoing does not obligate the Corporation to declare or pay dividends on Shares and nothing in this Plan shall be interpreted as creating such an obligation.

10.2 Black-out Period

If an Award expires during, or within five business days after, a routine or special trading black-out period imposed by the Corporation to restrict trades in the Corporation's securities, then, notwithstanding any other provision of this Plan, unless the delayed expiration would result in tax penalties, the Award shall expire ten business days after the trading black-out period is lifted by the Corporation.

10.3 Withholding Taxes

The granting or vesting or lapse of the Restricted Period of each Award under this Plan is subject to the condition that if at any time the Plan Administrator determines, in its discretion, that the satisfaction of withholding tax or other withholding liabilities is necessary or desirable in respect of such grant, vesting or lapse of the Restricted Period, such action is not effective unless such withholding has been effected to the satisfaction of the Plan Administrator. In such circumstances, the Plan Administrator may require that a Participant pay to the Corporation the minimum amount as the Corporation or an Affiliate of the Corporation is obliged to remit to the relevant taxing authority in respect of the granting or vesting or lapse of the Restricted Period of the Award. Any such additional payment is due no later than the date on which such amount with respect to the Award is required to be remitted to the relevant tax authority by the Corporation or an Affiliate of the Corporation, as the case may be. Alternatively, and subject to any requirements or limitations under applicable law, the Corporation may (a) withhold such amount from any remuneration or other amount payable by the Corporation or any Designated Affiliate to the Participant, (b) require the sale of a number of Shares issued upon exercise, vesting, or settlement of such Award and the remittance to the Corporation of the net proceeds from such sale sufficient to satisfy such amount or (c) enter into any other suitable arrangements for the receipt of such amount.

10.4 Recoupment

Notwithstanding any other terms of this Plan, Awards may be subject to potential cancellation, recoupment, rescission, payback or other action in accordance with the terms of any clawback, recoupment or similar policy adopted by the Corporation or an Affiliate of the Corporation and in effect at the Date of Grant of the Award, or as otherwise required by law or the rules of the Exchange. The Committee may at any time waive the application of this Section 10.4 to any Participant or category of Participants.

ARTICLE 11
TERMINATION OF EMPLOYMENT OR SERVICES

11.1 Death or Disability

Unless otherwise determined by the Plan Administrator and set forth in an Award Agreement, if a Participant dies or becomes Disabled while an Employee, Director or Consultant:

(a) a portion of the next instalment of any Awards due to vest (or for which the Restricted Period is due to lapse) shall immediately vest (or cease to be restricted) such portion to equal to the number of Awards next due to vest (or cease to be restricted) multiplied by a fraction the numerator of which is the number of days elapsed since the date of vesting (or lapse of Restricted Period) of the last instalment of the Awards (or if none have vested or have ceased to be restricted, the Date of Grant) to the date of Disability or death and the denominator of which is the number of days between the date of vesting (or lapse of Restricted Period) of the last instalment of the Awards (or if none have vested or have ceased to be restricted, the Date of Grant) and the date of vesting (or lapse of Restricted Period) of the next instalment of the Awards; and

(b) subject to Subsections 11.1(a) and 11.1(c), any Awards held by the Participant that are not yet vested (or for which the Restricted Period has not lapsed) at the date of Disability or death shall be forfeited to the Corporation 30 days after the date of Disability or death; and

(c) such Participant’s eligibility to receive further grants of Awards under the Plan ceases as of the date of Disability or death.

11.2 Termination of Employment or Services

Subject to Section 11.3, unless otherwise specified by the Plan Administrator at the time of granting an Award:

(a) where, in the case of an Employee, an Individual Participant’s employment is terminated by the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate without Cause (whether such termination occurs with or without any or adequate reasonable notice, or with or without any or adequate compensation in lieu of such reasonable notice), then each Option held by the Individual Participant that has vested as of the Termination Date continues to be exercisable by the Individual Participant until the earlier of: (i) its Expiry Date; and (ii) the date that is 90 days after the Termination Date. Any Option or other Award held by the Individual Participant that has not vested (or for which the Restricted Period has not lapsed) as of the Termination Date is immediately forfeited and cancelled as of the Termination Date;

(b) where, in the case of an Employee, an Individual Participant’s employment terminates by reason of voluntary resignation by the Individual Participant, then each Option held by the Individual Participant that has vested as of the Termination Date continues to be exercisable by the Individual Participant until the earlier of: (i) its Expiry Date; and (ii) the date that is 90 days after the Termination Date. Any Option or other Award held by the Individual Participant that has not vested (or for which the Restricted Period has not lapsed) as of the Termination Date is immediately forfeited and cancelled as of the Termination Date;

(c) where, in the case of an Employee, an Individual Participant's employment terminates by reason of termination by the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate for Cause, then any Option or other Award held by the Individual Participant, whether or not it has vested (or the Restricted Period has lapsed) as of the Termination Date, is immediately forfeited and cancelled as of the Termination Date;

(d) where, in the case of a Consultant, a Participant's consulting agreement or arrangement terminates by reason of termination by the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate for any reason whatsoever other than (i) for breach of the consulting agreement or arrangement (whether or not such termination is effected in compliance with any termination provisions contained in the Participant's consulting agreement or arrangement) or (ii) due to the death or Disability of the Individual Participant, then each Option held by the Participant that has vested as of the Termination Date continues to be exercisable by the Participant until the earlier of: (i) its Expiry Date; and (ii) the date that is 90 days after the Termination Date. Any Option or other Award held by the Participant that has not vested (or for which the Restricted Period has not lapsed) as of the Termination Date is immediately forfeited and cancelled as of the Termination Date;

(e) where, in the case of a Consultant, a Participant's consulting agreement or arrangement terminates by reason of: (i) termination by the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate for breach of the consulting agreement or arrangement (whether or not such termination is effected in compliance with any termination provisions contained in Participant's consulting agreement or arrangement); or (ii) voluntary termination by the Participant (whether or not such termination is effected in compliance with any termination provisions contained in the Participant's consulting agreement or arrangement), then any Option or other Award held by the Participant, whether or not such Option has vested (or the Restricted Period has lapsed) as of the Termination Date, is immediately forfeited and cancelled as of the Termination Date;

(f) where, in the case of a Director, an Individual Participant ceases to hold office other than due to the Individual Participant's death or Disability, then any Option held by the Individual Participant that has vested as of the Termination Date continue to be exercisable by the Individual Participant until the earlier of: (i) its Expiry Date; and (ii) the date that is 90 days after the Termination Date; except that this Section 11.2(f) will not apply if a Director is also a Consultant and such Individual Participant's consulting agreement is not terminated or immediately following cessation becomes an Employee or Consultant. Any Option or other Award held by the Individual Participant that has not vested (or for which the Restricted Period has not lapsed) as of the Termination Date is immediately forfeited and cancelled as of the Termination Date; except for a Director who is also a Consultant and such Individual Participant's consulting agreement is not terminated;

(g) a Participant's eligibility to receive further grants of Awards under this Plan ceases as of the date that the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate, as the case may be, provides the Participant with written notification that the Participant's employment or consulting agreement or arrangement, as the case may be, is terminated in the circumstances contemplated by this Section 11.2, notwithstanding that such date may be prior to the Termination Date; and

(h) notwithstanding Subsections 11.2(a) and 11.2(d), unless the Plan Administrator, in its discretion, otherwise determines, at any time and from time to time, Awards are not affected by a change of employment or consulting arrangement or directorship within or among the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate for so long as the Individual Participant continues to be an Employee of the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate or engaged as a Consultant to the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate.

11.3 Discretion to Permit Acceleration

Notwithstanding the provisions of Sections 11.1 and 11.2, the Plan Administrator may, in its discretion, at any time prior to, or following the events contemplated in such Sections, or in an employment agreement or other written agreement between the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate and the Participant, permit the acceleration of vesting (or lapse of Restricted Period) of any or all Awards, all in the manner and on the terms as may be authorized by the Plan Administrator.

11.4 Participants' Entitlement

Except as otherwise provided in this Plan, Awards previously granted under this Plan are not affected by any change in the relationship between, or ownership of, the Corporation and an Affiliate of the Corporation. For greater certainty, all grants of Awards remain outstanding and are not affected by reason only that, at any time, an Affiliate of the Corporation ceases to be an Affiliate of the Corporation.

ARTICLE 12
EVENTS AFFECTING THE CORPORATION

12.1 General

The existence of any Awards does not affect in any way the right or power of the Corporation or its shareholders to make, authorize or determine any adjustment, recapitalization, reorganization or any other change in the Corporation's capital structure or its business, or any amalgamation, combination, arrangement, merger or consolidation involving the Corporation, to create or issue any bonds, debentures, Shares or other securities of the Corporation or to determine the rights and conditions attaching thereto, to effect the dissolution or liquidation of the Corporation or any sale or transfer of all or any part of its assets or business, or to effect any other corporate act or proceeding, whether of a similar character or otherwise, whether or not any such action referred to in this Article 12 would have an adverse effect on this Plan or on any Award granted hereunder.

12.2 Change in Control

Except as may be set forth in an employment agreement, or other written agreement between the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate and the Participant:

(a) Notwithstanding anything else in this Plan or any Award Agreement, the Plan Administrator may, without the consent of any Participant, take such steps as it deems necessary or desirable, including to cause (i) the conversion or exchange of any outstanding Awards into or for, rights or other securities of substantially equivalent value (or greater value), as determined by the Plan Administrator in its discretion, in any entity participating in or resulting from a Change in Control; (ii) outstanding Awards to vest and become exercisable, realizable, or payable, or restrictions applicable to an Award to lapse, in whole or in part prior to or upon consummation of such merger or Change in Control, and, to the extent the Plan Administrator determines, terminate upon or immediately prior to the effectiveness of such merger or Change in Control; (iii) the termination of an Award in exchange for an amount of cash and/or property, if any, equal to the amount that would have been attained upon the exercise of such Award or realization of the Participant's rights as of the date of the occurrence of the transaction (and, for the avoidance of doubt, if as of the date of the occurrence of the transaction the Plan Administrator determines in good faith that no amount would have been attained upon the exercise of such Award or realization of the Participant's rights, then such Award may be terminated by the Corporation without payment); (iv) the replacement of such Award with other rights or property selected by the Board of Directors in its sole discretion; or (v) any combination of the foregoing. In taking any of the actions permitted under this subparagraph (a), the Plan Administrator will not be required to treat all Awards similarly in the transaction.

(b) Notwithstanding Section 12.1, and unless otherwise determined by the Plan Administrator, if, as a result of a Change in Control, the Shares will cease trading on an Exchange, then the Corporation may terminate all of the Options granted under this Plan at the time of and subject to the completion of the Change in Control transaction by paying to each holder at or within a reasonable period of time following completion of such Change in Control transaction an amount for each Option equal to the fair market value of the Option held by such Participant as determined by the Plan Administrator, acting reasonably.

(c) Notwithstanding Section 11.2, and except as otherwise provided in an employment agreement, or other written agreement between the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate and Employee, if within 12 months following the completion of a transaction resulting in a Change in Control, an Employee's employment is terminated by the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate without cause, without any action by the Plan Administrator, the vesting (or Restricted Period) of all Awards held by such Employee shall immediately accelerate, and all Options shall be exercisable notwithstanding Section 4.4 until the earlier of: (i) the Expiry Date of such Award; and (ii) the date that is 90 days after the Termination Date.

12.3 Reorganization of Corporation's Capital

Should the Corporation effect a subdivision or consolidation of Shares or any similar capital reorganization or a payment of a stock dividend (other than a stock dividend that is in lieu of a cash dividend), or should any other change be made in the capitalization of the Corporation that does not constitute a Change in Control and that would warrant the amendment or replacement of any existing Awards in order to adjust the number of Shares that may be acquired on the vesting of outstanding Awards and/or the terms of any Award in order to preserve proportionately the rights and obligations of the Participants holding such Awards, the Plan Administrator will, subject to the prior approval of the Exchange, authorize such steps to be taken as it may consider to be equitable and appropriate to that end.

12.4 Other Events Affecting the Corporation

In the event of an amalgamation, combination, arrangement, merger or other transaction or reorganization involving the Corporation and occurring by exchange of Shares, by sale or lease of assets or otherwise, that does not constitute a Change in Control and that warrants the amendment or replacement of any existing Awards in order to adjust the number of Shares that may be acquired on the vesting of outstanding Awards and/or the terms of any Award in order to preserve proportionately the rights and obligations of the Participants holding such Awards, the Plan Administrator will, subject to the prior approval of the TSX (if then listed on the TSX), authorize such steps to be taken as it may consider to be equitable and appropriate to that end.

12.5 Immediate Acceleration of Awards

Where the Plan Administrator determines that the steps provided in Sections 12.3 and 12.4 would not preserve proportionately the rights, value and obligations of the Participants holding such Awards in the circumstances or otherwise determines that it is appropriate, the Plan Administrator may, but is not required, to permit the immediate vesting of any unvested Awards and immediate lapse of any Restricted Period.

12.6 Issue by Corporation of Additional Shares

Except as expressly provided in this Article 12, neither the issue by the Corporation of shares of any class or securities convertible into or exchangeable for shares of any class, nor the conversion or exchange of such shares or securities, affects, and no adjustment by reason thereof is to be made with respect to the number of Shares that may be acquired as a result of a grant of Awards.

12.7 Fractions

No fractional Shares will be issued pursuant to an Award. Accordingly, if, as a result of any adjustment under this Article 12 or a dividend equivalent, a Participant would become entitled to a fractional Share, the Participant has the right to acquire only the adjusted number of full Shares and no payment or other adjustment will be made with respect to the fractional Shares, which shall be disregarded.

ARTICLE 13
U.S. TAXPAYERS

13.1 Provisions for U.S. Taxpayers

Awards granted under this Plan to U.S. Taxpayers may be non-qualified stock options or incentive stock options qualifying under Section 422 of the Code ("ISOs"). Each Award shall be designated in the Award Agreement as either an ISO or a non-qualified stock option.

13.2 ISOs

Subject to any limitations in Section 3.6, the aggregate number of Shares reserved for issuance as an ISO shall not exceed 10,000,000 Shares, and the terms and conditions of any ISOs granted to a U.S. Taxpayer on the Date of Grant hereunder, including the eligible recipients of ISOs, shall be subject to the provisions of Section 422 of the Code, and the terms, conditions, limitations and administrative procedures established by the Plan Administrator from time to time in accordance with this Plan. At the discretion of the Plan Administrator, ISOs may be granted to any employee of the Corporation, its parent or any subsidiary of the Corporation, as such terms are defined in Sections 424(e) and (f) of the Code.

13.3 ISO Grants to 10% Shareholders

Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in this Plan, if an ISO is granted to a person who owns shares representing more than ten percent (10%) of the voting power of all classes of shares of the Corporation or of a subsidiary or parent, as such terms are defined in Section 424(e) and (f) of the Code, on the Date of Grant, the term of the Option shall not exceed five years from the time of grant of such Option and the Exercise Price shall be at least 110 percent (110%) of the Market Price of the Shares subject to the Option.

13.4 $100,000 Per Year Limitation for ISOs

To the extent the aggregate Market Price as at the Date of Grant of the Shares for which ISOs are exercisable for the first time by any person during any calendar year (under all plans of the Corporation) exceeds $100,000, such excess ISOs shall be treated as non-qualified stock options.

13.5 Disqualifying Dispositions

Each person awarded an ISO under this Plan shall notify the Corporation in writing immediately after the date he or she makes a disposition of any Shares acquired pursuant to the exercise of such ISO. The Corporation may, if determined by the Plan Administrator and in accordance with procedures established by it, retain possession of any Shares acquired pursuant to the exercise of an ISO as agent for the applicable person until the end of the period described in the preceding sentence, subject to complying with any instructions from such person as to the sale of such Share.

13.6 Section 409A of the Code

This Plan will be construed and interpreted to be exempt from, or where not so exempt, to comply with Section 409A of the Code to the extent required to preserve the intended tax consequences of this Plan. To the extent that an Award or payment, or the settlement or deferral thereof, is subject to Section 409A of the Code, the Award will be granted, paid, settled or deferred in a manner that will meet the requirements of Section 409A of the Code, such that the grant, payment, settlement or deferral will not be subject to the additional tax or interest applicable under Section 409A of the Code. The Corporation reserves the right to amend this Plan to the extent it reasonably determines is necessary in order to preserve the intended tax consequences of this Plan in light of Section 409A of the Code and any regulations or guidance under that section. In no event will the Corporation be responsible if Awards under this Plan result in adverse tax consequences to a U.S. Taxpayer under Section 409A of the Code. Notwithstanding any provisions of the Plan to the contrary, in the case of any “specified employee” within the meaning of Section 409A of the Code who is a U.S. Taxpayer, distributions of non-qualified deferred compensation under Section 409A of the Code made in connection with a “separation from service” within the meaning set forth in Section 409A of the Code may not be made prior to the date which is 6 months after the date of separation from service (or, if earlier, the date of death of the U.S. Taxpayer). Any amounts subject to a delay in payment pursuant to the preceding sentence shall be paid as soon practicable following such 6-month anniversary of such separation from service.

13.7 Requirement of Notification of Election Under Section 83(b) of the Code

If a Participant, in connection with the acquisition of Restricted Shares under the Plan, is permitted under the terms of the Award Agreement to make the election permitted under Section 83(b) of the Code (i.e., an election to include in gross income in the year of transfer the amounts specified in Section 83(b) of the Code notwithstanding the continuing transfer restrictions) and the Participant makes such an election, the Participant shall notify the Corporation of such election within ten (10) days of filing notice of the election with the Internal Revenue Service, in addition to any filing and notification required pursuant to regulations issued under Section 83(b) of the Code.

ARTICLE 14
AMENDMENT, SUSPENSION OR TERMINATION OF THE PLAN

14.1 Amendment, Suspension, or Termination of the Plan

The Plan Administrator may from time to time, without notice and without approval of the holders of voting shares of the Corporation, amend, modify, change, suspend or terminate the Plan or any Awards granted pursuant to the Plan as it, in its discretion determines appropriate, provided, however, that:

(a) no such amendment, modification, change, suspension or termination of the Plan or any Awards granted hereunder may materially impair any rights of a Participant or materially increase any obligations of a Participant under the Plan without the consent of the Participant, unless the Plan Administrator determines such adjustment is required or desirable in order to comply with any applicable Securities Laws or Exchange requirements; and

(b) any amendment that would cause an Award held by a U.S. Taxpayer be subject to the additional tax penalty under Section 409A(1)(b)(i)(II) of the Code shall be null and void ab initio.

14.2 Shareholder Approval

Notwithstanding Section 14.1, approval of the holders of the voting shares of the Corporation shall be required for any amendment, modification or change that:

(a) increases the percentage of Shares reserved for issuance under the Plan, except pursuant to the provisions in the Plan which permit the Plan Administrator to make equitable adjustments in the event of transactions affecting the Corporation or its capital;

(b) increases or removes the 10% limits on Shares issuable or issued to insiders as set forth in Subsection 3.7(a);

(c) reduces the exercise price of an Award (for this purpose, a cancellation or termination of an Award of a Participant prior to its Expiry Date for the purpose of reissuing an Award to the same Participant with a lower exercise price shall be treated as an amendment to reduce the exercise price of an Award) except pursuant to the provisions in the Plan which permit the Plan Administrator to make equitable adjustments in the event of transactions affecting the Corporation or its capital;

(d) extends the term of an Award beyond the original Expiry Date (except where an Expiry Date would have fallen within a blackout period applicable to the Participant or within 5 business days following the expiry of such a blackout period);

(e) permits an Award to be exercisable beyond 10 years from its Date of Grant (except where an Expiry Date would have fallen within a blackout period of the Corporation);

(f) increases or removes the limits on the participation of Directors;

(g) permits Awards to be transferred to a Person other than a Permitted Assign or for normal estate settlement purposes; or

(h) deletes or reduces the range of amendments which require approval of the holders of voting shares of the Corporation under this Section 14.2.

14.3 Permitted Amendments

Without limiting the generality of Section 14.1, but subject to Section 14.2, the Plan Administrator may, without shareholder approval, at any time or from time to time, amend the Plan for the purposes of:

(a) making any amendments to the general vesting provisions or Restricted Period of each Award;

(b) making any amendments to the provisions set out in Article 11;

(c) making any amendments to add covenants of the Corporation for the protection of Participants, as the case may be, provided that the Plan Administrator shall be of the good faith opinion that such additions will not be prejudicial to the rights or interests of the Participants, as the case may be;

(d) making any amendments not inconsistent with the Plan as may be necessary or desirable with respect to matters or questions which, in the good faith opinion of the Plan Administrator, having in mind the best interests of the Participants and Directors, it may be expedient to make, including amendments that are desirable as a result of changes in law in any jurisdiction where a Participant resides, provided that the Plan Administrator shall be of the opinion that such amendments and modifications will not be prejudicial to the interests of the Participants and Directors; or

(e) making such changes or corrections which, on the advice of counsel to the Corporation, are required for the purpose of curing or correcting any ambiguity or defect or inconsistent provision or clerical omission or mistake or manifest error, provided that the Plan Administrator shall be of the opinion that such changes or corrections will not be prejudicial to the rights and interests of the Participants.

MISCELLANEOUS

15.1 Legal Requirement

The Corporation is not obligated to grant any Awards, issue any Shares or other securities, make any payments or take any other action if, in the opinion of the Plan Administrator, in its sole discretion, such action would constitute a violation by a Participant, Director or the Corporation of any provision of any applicable statutory or regulatory enactment of any government or government agency or the requirements of any Exchange upon which the Shares may then be listed.

15.2 No Other Benefit

No amount will be paid to, or in respect of, a Participant under the Plan to compensate for a downward fluctuation in the price of a Share, nor will any other form of benefit be conferred upon, or in respect of, a Participant for such purpose.

15.3 Rights of Participant

No Participant has any claim or right to be granted an Award and the granting of any Award is not to be construed as giving a Participant a right to remain as an employee, consultant or director of the Corporation or an Affiliate of the Corporation. No Participant has any rights as a shareholder of the Corporation in respect of Shares issuable pursuant to any Award until the allotment and issuance to such Participant, or as such Participant may direct, of certificates representing such Shares.

15.4 Corporate Action

Nothing contained in this Plan or in an Award shall be construed so as to prevent the Corporation from taking corporate action which is deemed by the Corporation to be appropriate or in its best interest, whether or not such action would have an adverse effect on this Plan or any Award.

15.5 Conflict

In the event of any conflict between the provisions of this Plan and an Award Agreement, the provisions of this Plan shall govern. In the event of any conflict between or among the provisions of this Plan, an Award Agreement and (i) an employment agreement or other written agreement between the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate and a Participant which has been approved by the Chief Executive Officer of the Corporation (or where the Participant is the Chief Executive Officer, approved by a Director), the provisions of the employment agreement or other written agreement shall govern and (ii) any other employment agreement or other written agreement between the Corporation or a Designated Affiliate and a Participant, the provisions of this Plan shall govern.

15.6 Participant Information

Each Participant shall provide the Corporation with all information (including personal information) required by the Corporation in order to administer to the Plan. Each Participant acknowledges that information required by the Corporation in order to administer the Plan may be disclosed to any custodian appointed in respect of the Plan and other third parties, and may be disclosed to such persons (including persons located in jurisdictions other than the Participant's jurisdiction of residence), in connection with the administration of the Plan. Each Participant consents to such disclosure and authorizes the Corporation to make such disclosure on the Participant's behalf.

15.7 Participation in the Plan

The participation of any Participant in the Plan is entirely voluntary and not obligatory and shall not be interpreted as conferring upon such Participant any rights or privileges other than those rights and privileges expressly provided in the Plan. In particular, participation in the Plan does not constitute a condition of employment or engagement nor a commitment on the part of the Corporation to ensure the continued employment or engagement of such Participant. The Plan does not provide any guarantee against any loss which may result from fluctuations in the market value of the Shares. The Corporation does not assume responsibility for the income or other tax consequences for the Participants and Directors and they are advised to consult with their own tax advisors.

15.8 International Participants

With respect to Participants who reside or work outside Canada and the United States, the Plan Administrator may, in its sole discretion, amend, or otherwise modify, without shareholder approval, the terms of the Plan or Awards with respect to such Participants in order to conform such terms with the provisions of local law, and the Plan Administrator may, where appropriate, establish one or more sub-plans to reflect such amended or otherwise modified provisions.

15.9 Successors and Assigns

The Plan shall be binding on all successors and assigns of the Corporation and its Designated Affiliates.

15.10 General Restrictions and Assignment

Except as required by law, the rights of a Participant under the Plan are not capable of being assigned, transferred, alienated, sold, encumbered, pledged, mortgaged or charged and are not capable of being subject to attachment or legal process for the payment of any debts or obligations of the Participant unless otherwise approved by the Plan Administrator.

15.11 Severability

The invalidity or unenforceability of any provision of the Plan shall not affect the validity or enforceability of any other provision and any invalid or unenforceable provision shall be severed from the Plan.

15.12 Notices

All written notices to be given by the Participant to the Corporation shall be delivered personally, e-mail or mail, postage prepaid, addressed as follows:

All notices to the Participant will be addressed to the principal address of the Participant on file with the Corporation. Either the Corporation or the Participant may designate a different address by written notice to the other. Such notices are deemed to be received, if delivered personally or by e-mail, on the date of delivery, and if sent by mail, on the fifth business day following the date of mailing. Any notice given by either the Participant or the Corporation is not binding on the recipient thereof until received.

15.13 Effective Date

This Plan becomes effective on a date to be determined by the Plan Administrator, subject to the approval of the shareholders of the Corporation.

15.14 Governing Law

This Plan and all matters to which reference is made herein shall be governed by and interpreted in accordance with the laws of the Province of Québec and the federal laws of Canada applicable therein.

15.15 Submission to Jurisdiction

The Corporation and each Participant irrevocably submits to the exclusive jurisdiction of the courts of competent jurisdiction in the Province of Québec in respect of any action or proceeding relating in any way to the Plan, including with respect to the grant of Awards and any issuance of Shares made in accordance with the Plan.

2. Private Placement

On July 13, 2013, the Corporation completed a private placement of 6.4 million common shares at a price of $6.25 per common share for total gross proceeds of $40 million. The private placement was conducted through a syndicate of underwriters. The net proceeds from the private placement will be used for general corporate purposes and working capital to assist in the implementation of the Corporation’s growth strategy and the expansion of its international activities. The common shares issued under the private placement were subject to a statutory resale restriction until November 12, 2013. The total transaction costs of the offering, including underwriter’s compensation, amounted to $2,514,756.

3. Summary of significant accounting policies

BASIS OF PRESENTATION

These consolidated financial statements, including comparatives, have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards (“IFRS”) as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board (“IASB”) and interpretations of the International Financial Reporting Standards Interpretations Committee (“IFRIC”).

These consolidated financial statements were prepared on a going concern basis, under the historical cost convention, except for the revaluation of certain financial instruments.

PRINCIPLES OF CONSOLIDATION

A subsidiary is an entity controlled by the Corporation, i.e. the Corporation is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with the entity and has the ability to affect those returns through its current ability to direct the entity's relevant activities (power over the investee).

The existence and effect of substantive potential voting rights that the Corporation has the practical ability to exercise (i.e. substantive rights) are considered when assessing whether the Corporation controls another entity.

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries. A wholly owned subsidiary is an entity over which the Corporation has control, where control is defined as the power to govern financial and operating policies. On consolidation, all significant inter-entity transactions and balances have been eliminated. As at March 31, 2014, the consolidated financial statements included 55 wholly owned subsidiaries.

Upon loss of control of a subsidiary, the Corporation's profit or loss is calculated as the difference between (i) the fair value of the consideration received and of any investment retained in the former subsidiary and (ii) the previous carrying amount of the assets (including any goodwill) and liabilities of the subsidiary and any non-controlling interests.

ASSOCIATES

Associates are entities over which the Corporation has the power to participate in the financial and operating policy decisions of the entity, but which is not control or joint control. Associates are accounted for using the equity method of accounting.

Under the equity method, the investment is initially recognised at cost and adjusted thereafter for the post-acquisition change in the investor's share of comprehensive income of the associate. On acquisition of the investment, any difference between the cost of the investment and the investor's share of the net fair value of the associate's identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities is accounted for in accordance with IFRS 3 Business Combinations. The goodwill (net of any accumulated impairment loss) relating to an investment in an associate is included within the carrying amount of that investment.

The Corporation's share of its associates' post-acquisition profits or losses is recognised in the statement of profit or loss, and its share of post-acquisition movements in other comprehensive income is recognised in other comprehensive income. The cumulative post-acquisition movements are adjusted against the carrying amount of the investment. Distributions received from an investee reduce the carrying amount of the investment.

If the Corporation's share of losses of an associate equals or exceeds its interest in the associate, the Corporation does not provide for additional losses, unless it has incurred obligations or made payments on behalf of the associate. Profits / losses on Corporation transactions with associates are eliminated to the extent of the Corporation's interest in the relevant associate.

NON-CURRENT ASSETS HELD FOR SALE

Non-current assets that are expected to be recovered primarily through sale rather than through continuing use are classified as held for sale. Immediately before classification as held for sale, the assets are re-measured at net book value less impairment loss. Assets held for sale are measured at the lower of their carrying amounts or their fair value less costs to sell and are no longer depreciated. Impairment losses on initial classification as held for sale and subsequent gains or losses on re-measurement are recognized in profit or loss. Gains are not recognized in excess of any cumulative impairment loss.

REVENUE RECOGNITION

Revenue is recognized when all the following criteria are met:

- the Corporation has transferred to the buyer the significant risks and rewards;

- the amount of revenue can be reliably measured;
- it is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transaction will flow to the Corporation; and
- the costs incurred or to be incurred in respect of the transaction can be reliably measured.

Multiple-element revenue arrangements

Certain contracts of the Corporation include license fees, training, installation, consulting, maintenance, product support services and periodic upgrades.

Where such agreements exist, the amount of revenue allocated to each element is based upon the relative fair values of the various elements. The fair values of each element are determined based on current market price of each of the elements when sold separately. Revenue is only recognized when, in Management's judgment, the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred or when the obligation has been fulfilled.

In addition to the aforementioned general policies, the following are the specific revenue recognition policies for each major category of revenue:

Product Sales

Revenue from product sales is generally recognized when the product is shipped to the customer and when there are no unfulfilled Corporation obligations that affect the customer's final acceptance of the arrangement. Any cost of warranties and remaining obligations that are inconsequential or perfunctory are accrued when the corresponding revenue is recognized.

Participation arrangements

In contracts that stipulate profit sharing arrangements, revenues are earned based on revenue splits established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. Revenues are recognized when performance has been achieved and collectability is reasonably assured.

Software Licensing

Typically, license fees, including fees from master license agreements, most of which are contingent upon licensee's customer usage, are calculated as a percentage of each licensee's level of activity. The percentage is as established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. The Corporation only reports its revenues (as opposed to licensee's total revenues and deducting licensee's percentage as a cost). The license fees are recognized on an accrual basis as earned.

Hosted Casino

Revenues from Hosted Casino are recognized as the services are performed, on a daily basis, at the time of the gambling transactions.

Lease revenues

In the course of its normal business the Corporation enters into lease agreements for its gaming equipment.

Assets subject to finance leases are initially recognized at an amount equal to the net investment in the lease, which is the fair value of the asset, or, if lower, the present value of the minimum lease payments. Revenue is recognized on the basis of policy for product sales. Finance income is subsequently recognized over the term of the applicable leases based on the effective interest rate method. Finance income is grouped with the revenues, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Assets under operating leases are included in property and equipment. Lease income from operating leases is recognized on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease and is included in revenues, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

TRANSLATION OF FOREIGN OPERATIONS AND FOREIGN CURRENCY TRANSACTIONS

Functional and presentation currency

IAS 21 (“Effects of Changes in Foreign Currency Rates”) requires entities to consider primary and secondary indicators when determining the functional currency. Primary indicators are closely linked to the primary economic environment in which the entity operates and are given more weight. Secondary indicators provide supporting evidence to determine an entity’s functional currency. Once the functional currency of an entity is determined, it should be used consistently, unless significant changes in economic facts, events and conditions indicate that the functional currency has changed.

A change in functional currency is accounted for prospectively from the date of change by translating all items into the new functional currency using the exchange rate at the date of change.

Based on an analysis of the primary and secondary indicators, the functional currency of each of the group’s entities have been determined. These consolidated financial statements are presented in Canadian dollars, which in the opinion of Management is the most appropriate presentation currency in view of its operations in the global marketplace, user needs and a comparison with its major competitors.

Transactions and balances

Foreign currency transactions are translated into the functional currency using the exchange rates prevailing at the dates of the transactions or valuation where items are re-measured. Foreign exchange gains and losses resulting from the settlement of such transactions and from the translation at year-end exchange rates of monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are recognized in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Group companies

Each foreign operation determines its own functional currency and items included in the financial statements of each foreign operation are measured using that functional currency.

The results and financial position of all the group entities that have a functional currency different from the presentation currency are translated into the presentation currency as follows:

(i) assets and liabilities for each balance sheet presented are translated at the closing rate at the date of that balance sheet;

(ii) income and expenses for each statement of comprehensive income (loss) are translated at average exchange rates (unless this average is not a reasonable approximation of the cumulative effect of the rates prevailing on the transaction dates, in which case income and expenses are translated at the rate on the dates of the transactions); and

(iii) all resulting exchange differences are recognized in other comprehensive income (loss).

The following functional currencies are referred to herein below:

Currency Symbol	Currency Description
CAD	Canadian Dollar
USD	United States Dollar
EUR	European Euro
GBP	Pound Sterling
MXN	Mexican Peso
SEK	Swedish Krona

BUSINESS COMBINATION

Business combinations are accounted for using the acquisition method. Under this method, the identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed, including contingent liabilities, are recognized, regardless of whether they have been previously recognized in the acquiree's financial statements prior to the acquisition. On initial recognition, the assets and liabilities of the acquired subsidiary are included in the consolidated statement of financial position at their fair values. Goodwill is recorded when the identifiable intangible assets have been determined. Goodwill is the excess of the fair value of the consideration transferred over the fair value of the Corporation's share in the acquiree's net identifiable assets on the date of acquisition. Any excess of the identifiable net assets over the consideration transferred is recognized in income immediately.

The consideration transferred by the Corporation to acquire control of a subsidiary is calculated as the sum of the acquisition-date fair values of the assets transferred, liabilities incurred and equity interests issued by the Corporation, including the fair value of all the assets and liabilities resulting from a contingent consideration arrangement. Acquisition related costs are expensed as incurred.

OPERATING SEGMENTS

The Corporation's operating segment is organized around the markets it serves and is reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting provided to the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, the Corporation's chief operating decision-maker. An operating segment is a component of the Corporation that engages in business activities from which it may earn revenues and incur expenses, including revenues and expenses relating to transactions with other components of the Corporation. Currently the Corporation has only one operating segment, Diversified Gaming Solutions.

Segmental information is reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting to the chief operating decision-makers. On the basis that the Group's activities are operated largely through a common infrastructure and support function the business segment information is not reported below the revenue level. Similarly no measure of segment assets is given due to the highly integrated nature of the Group's operations.

FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

Financial assets

Financial assets are initially recognized at fair value and are classified either as "fair value through profit and loss"; "available-for-sale"; "held-to-maturity"; or "loans and receivables". The classification depends on the purpose for which the financial instruments were acquired and their characteristics. Except in very limited circumstances, the classification is not changed subsequent to initial recognition.

Fair Value through Profit or Loss

Financial assets at fair value through profit or loss are financial assets held-for-trading. A financial asset is classified in this category if acquired principally for the purpose of selling in the short-term or if so designated by Management. Financial assets classified at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value, with the realized and unrealized changes in fair value recognized each reporting period on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). No financial assets are classified as fair value through profit or loss.

Available-for-sale

Available-for-sale assets are non-derivative financial assets that are either designated in this category or not classified in any of the other categories. They are included in other non-current financial assets unless Management intends to dispose of the investment within twelve months of the consolidated statements of financial position date. Financial assets classified as available-for-sale are carried at fair value with the changes in fair value recorded in other comprehensive income (loss), except for investments in equity instruments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market which are measured at cost. Interest on available-for-sale assets is calculated using the effective interest rate method and is recognized in the net loss. When a decline in fair value is determined to be other-than-temporary, the cumulative loss included in accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) is removed and recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Gains and losses realized on disposal of available-for-sale securities are recognized in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Held-to-maturity and loans and receivables

Held-to-maturity financial assets are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments and fixed maturity that an entity has the intention and ability to hold to maturity. Loans and receivables are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments that are not quoted in an active market. They are included in current assets, except for those with maturities greater than twelve months after the consolidated statements of financial position date, which are classified as non-current assets. Financial instruments classified as held-to-maturity and loans and receivables are initially recorded at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. No financial assets are held-to-maturity. Cash and cash equivalents, restricted cash, receivable under finance lease, accounts receivable are classified as loans and receivables.

Impairment

At the end of each reporting period, the Corporation assesses whether a financial asset or a group of financial assets, other than those classified as fair value through profit and loss, is impaired. If there is objective evidence that impairment exists, the loss is recognized in the consolidated statements of comprehensive income (loss). The impairment loss is measured as the difference between the acquisition cost and the current fair value, less any impairment loss on that financial asset previously recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Financial Liabilities

Financial liabilities are classified as either “financial liabilities at fair value through profit or loss”, or “other financial liabilities”. Financial liabilities are initially measured at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest rate method for liabilities that are not hedged and fair value for liabilities that are hedged. All financial liabilities are classified as other liabilities.

Transaction costs

Transaction costs that are directly attributable to the acquisition or issuance of financial assets and financial liabilities (other than financial assets and financial liabilities that are classified as “Through Profit or Loss”) are added to or deducted from the fair value of the financial instrument on initial recognition. These costs are expensed to “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) over the term of the related financial asset or financial liability using the effective interest method. When a debt facility is retired by the Corporation, any remaining balance of related debt transaction costs is expensed to “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) in the period that the debt facility is retired. Transactions costs related to financial instruments at fair value through profit or loss are expensed when incurred.

Compound Financial Instruments

The Corporation’s compound financial instruments comprise of its non-convertible subordinated debentures that entitle the holder to receive a unit composed of one non-convertible debenture and 48 warrants. As a result the instrument is composed of one liability component and one equity component for the warrants. The liability component of the non-convertible debentures is recognized initially at the fair value of a similar liability that does not have an equity conversion option. The Corporation has determined the fair value of the liability component. Then, the proceeds were allocated between the liability and the equity components using the residual method. Any directly attributable transaction costs are allocated to the liability and the warrants in proportion to their initial carrying amounts.

Subsequent to initial recognition, the liability component of the convertible debentures is measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. The warrants are not re-measured subsequent to initial recognition.

Embedded derivatives

Derivatives may be embedded in other financial and non-financial instruments (the “host instrument”). Embedded derivatives are treated as separate derivatives when their economic characteristics and risks are not closely related to those of the host instrument, the terms of the embedded derivative are the same as those of a stand-alone derivative, and the combined contract is not held-for-trading or designated at fair value. These embedded derivatives are measured at fair value with subsequent changes recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). The Corporation has no embedded derivatives.

Determination of fair value

Fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. When measuring the fair value of an asset or a liability, the Corporation uses market observable data to the extent possible. If the fair value of an asset or a liability is not directly observable, it is estimated by the Corporation (working closely with external qualified valuers) using valuation techniques that maximize the use of relevant observable inputs and minimize the use of unobservable inputs (e.g. by use of the market comparable approach that reflects recent transaction prices for similar items, discounted cash flow analysis, or option pricing models refined to reflect the issuer’s specific circumstances). Inputs used are consistent with the characteristics of the asset / liability that market participants would take into account.

For the Corporation’s financial instruments which are recognized in the statement of financial position at fair value, the inputs used in measuring fair values are classified in the following levels in the fair value hierarchy:

Level 1 – Quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities;

Level 2 – Inputs other than quoted prices included in Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly; and

Level 3 – Inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data.

Transfers between levels of the fair value hierarchy are recognised by the Corporation at the end of the reporting period during which the change occurred.

Comprehensive income (loss)

Comprehensive income (loss) is composed of the Corporation's net earnings (loss) and other comprehensive income (loss). Other comprehensive income (loss) includes unrealized effect of foreign currency translation of foreign operations net of income taxes. The components of comprehensive income (loss) are presented in the consolidated statements of changes in equity.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT INVESTMENT TAX CREDITS

The Corporation claims research and development investment tax credits as a result of incurring scientific research and experimental development expenditures. Research and development investment tax credits are recognized when the related expenditures are incurred, and there is reasonable assurance of their realization. Investment tax credits are accounted for by the cost reduction method, whereby the amounts of tax credits are applied as a reduction of the cost of the deferred development costs.

INVENTORY VALUATION

Inventories are priced at the lower of cost or net realizable value. Cost is determined on a weighted average basis. The cost of inventories comprises all costs of purchase and other costs incurred in bringing the inventory to its present location and condition. Raw materials and purchased finished goods are valued at purchase cost. Net realizable value represents the estimated selling price for inventory less all estimated costs necessary to make the sale.

PREPAID EXPENSES AND DEPOSITS

Prepaid expenses and deposits consist of amounts paid in advance or deposits made for which the Corporation will receive goods or services within the next normal operating cycle.

PROPERTY AND EQUIPMENT

Property and equipment which have a finite life are recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation and impairment losses. Depreciation is expensed from the month the corresponding assets are available for use over the estimated useful lives at the following rates, which are intended to reduce the carrying value to the estimated residual value:

Revenue-producing assets	Declining balance	20%
Machinery and equipment	Declining balance	20%
Furniture and fixtures	Declining balance	20%
Computer equipment	Declining balance	20%

INTANGIBLE ASSETS

Software	Declining balance	20%
Licenses	Straight-line	Over the term of licenses
Placement fee	Straight-line	Over the term of lease

ACQUISITION-RELATED INTANGIBLES

Software Technology	Straight-line	5 years
Customer Relationships	Straight-line	15 years

The depreciation method, useful life and residual values are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment, whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount may not be recoverable.

Upon retirement or disposal, the cost of the asset disposed of and the related accumulated amortization are removed from the accounts and any gain or loss is reflected in earnings. Expenditures for repairs and maintenance are expensed as incurred.

GOODWILL

Goodwill represents the excess of the purchase price over the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired in a business acquisition. After initial recognition, goodwill is measured at cost less any accumulated impairment losses.

Goodwill is reviewed for impairment at least annually or more frequently if circumstances such as significant declines in expected sales, earnings or cash flows indicate that it is more likely than not that the asset might be impaired.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

Research and development costs are expensed except in cases where development costs meet certain identifiable criteria for deferral. Development costs, which have probable future economic benefit, can be clearly defined and measured, and are incurred for the development of new products or technologies, are capitalized. These development costs net of related research and development investment tax credits are not amortized until the products or technologies are commercialized, at which time, they are amortized over the estimated life of the commercial production.

The amortization method and the life of the commercial production are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment.

IMPAIRMENT OF NON-CURRENT ASSETS

At the end of each reporting period, the carrying amounts of property and equipment and intangible assets with finite useful lives are assessed to determine if there is any evidence that an asset is impaired. If there is such evidence, the recoverable amount of the asset is estimated. The recoverable amount of intangible assets with indefinite useful lives or those are not ready for use is estimated on the same date each year.

The recoverable amount of an asset or a cash generating unit is the higher of value-in-use and fair value less costs to sell.

Assets that cannot be tested individually for the impairment test are grouped into the smallest group of assets that generates cash inflows through continued use that are largely independent of the cash inflows from other assets or groups of assets (“cash-generating unit” or “CGU”). For the impairment test of goodwill, goodwill has been allocated to one group of CGUs, so that the level at which the impairment is tested represents the lowest level at which Management monitors goodwill for internal Management purposes, in accordance with operating segment. Goodwill acquired in a business combination is allocated to the group of CGUs that is expected to benefit from synergies of the related business combination.

The Corporation’s corporate assets do not generate separate cash flows. If there is evidence that a corporate asset is impaired, the recoverable amount is determined for the CGU to which the corporate asset belongs. Impairments are recorded when the carrying amount of an asset or its CGU is higher than its recoverable amount. Impairment charges are recognized in income or loss.

Impairment losses recognized for a CGU (or group of CGU) first reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to that CGU and then reduce the carrying amounts of the other assets of the CGU (or group of CGU) pro rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the CGU (or group of CGU).

An impairment loss recognized for goodwill may not be reversed. On each reporting date, the Corporation assesses if there is an indication that impairment losses recognized in previous periods for other assets have decreased or no longer exist. An impairment loss is reversed if there has been a change in the estimates used to determine the recoverable amount. The increased carrying amount of an asset attributable to a reversal of an impairment loss shall not exceed the carrying amount that would have been determined (net of amortization or depreciation) had no impairment loss been recognized.

TAXATION

Income tax expense represents the sum of current and deferred taxes. Current and deferred taxes are recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss), except to the extent it relates to items recognized in other comprehensive income (loss) or directly in equity.

Current tax

The tax currently payable is based on taxable income for the year. Taxable income differs from earnings as reported in the consolidated statements of comprehensive income (loss) because of items of income or expense that are taxable or deductible in other years and items that are never taxable or deductible. The Corporation's liability for current tax is calculated using tax rates that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the reporting period.

Deferred tax

Deferred tax is recognized on temporary differences between the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities in the financial statements and the corresponding tax bases used in the computation of taxable income. Deferred tax liabilities are generally recognized for all taxable temporary differences. Deferred tax assets are recognized for all deductible temporary differences to the extent that it is probable that taxable income will be available against which those deductible temporary differences can be utilized. Such deferred tax assets and liabilities are not recognized if the temporary difference arises from goodwill or from the initial recognition (other than in a business combination) of other assets and liabilities in a transaction that affects neither the taxable income nor the accounting earnings.

Deferred tax liabilities are recognized for taxable temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries and associates, except where the Corporation is able to control the reversal of the temporary difference and it is probable that the temporary difference will not reverse in the foreseeable future. Deferred tax assets arising from deductible temporary differences associated with such investments and interests are only recognized to the extent that it is probable that there will be sufficient taxable income against which to utilize the benefits of the temporary differences and they are expected to reverse in the foreseeable future.

The carrying amount of deferred tax assets is reviewed at the end of each reporting period and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable income will be available to allow all or part of the asset to be recovered.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply in the period in which the liability is settled or the asset is realized, based on tax rates and tax laws that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the reporting period. The measurement of deferred tax liabilities and assets reflects the tax consequences that would follow from the manner in which the Corporation expects, at the end of the reporting period, to recover or settle the carrying amount of its assets and liabilities.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are offset when there is a legally enforceable right to set off current tax assets against current tax liabilities and when they relate to income taxes levied by the same taxation authority and the Corporation intends to settle its current tax assets and liabilities on a net basis.

STOCK-BASED COMPENSATION

The Corporation has one share option plan and accounts for grants under this plan in accordance with the fair value-based method of accounting for stock-based compensation. Compensation expense for equity settled stock options awarded to employees under the plan is measured at the fair value at the grant date using the Black-Scholes valuation model and is recognized using the graded vesting method over the vesting period of the options granted. Compensation expense recognized is adjusted to reflect the number of options that has been estimated by Management for which conditions attaching to service will be fulfilled as of the grant date until the vesting date so that the ultimately recognize expense corresponds to the options that have actually vested. The compensation expense credit is attributed to contributed surplus when the expense is recognized in income or loss. When options are exercised or shares are purchased, any consideration received from employees as well as the related compensation cost recorded as contributed surplus are credited to share capital.

Non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the goods and services received, except where that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the fair value cannot be measured reliably, non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the equity instrument granted, measured at the date the entity obtains the goods or the counterparty renders the service. The Corporation subsequently measures non-employee equity-settled share-based payments at each vesting period and settlement date, with any changes in fair value recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Stock-based compensation expense is recognized over the contract life of the options or the option settlement date, whichever is earlier.

EARNINGS PER SHARE

Basic earnings per common share are computed by dividing the earnings for the period by the weighted average number of common shares outstanding during the period. Diluted earnings per share are computed using the treasury stock method by dividing the earnings for the period applicable to common shares by the sum of the weighted average number of common shares outstanding and all additional common shares that would have been outstanding if potentially dilutive common shares had been issued.

Dilutive earnings per share comprise of employee share-based compensation and broker warrants.

LEASES

The determination of whether an arrangement is or contains a lease is based on the substance of the arrangement and requires an assessment of whether the arrangement conveys a right to use the asset. When substantially all risks and rewards of ownership are transferred from the lessor to the lessee, lease transactions are accounted for as finance leases. All other leases are accounted for as operating leases.

Corporation is the lessee

Leases of assets classified as finance leases are presented in the consolidated statements of financial position according to their nature. The interest element of the lease payment is recognized over the term of the lease based on the effective interest rate method and is included in financial expense, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Payments made under operating leases are recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease.

PROVISIONS

Provisions represent liabilities to the Corporation for which the amount or timing is uncertain. Provisions are recognized when the Corporation has a present legal or constructive obligation as a result of past events, it is probable that an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation, and the amount can be reliably estimated. Provisions are measured at the present value of the expected expenditures required to settle the obligation using a discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the obligation. The increase in provisions due to the passage of time is recognized in “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Provisions are not recognized for future operating losses.

Provision for jackpot

Several of the Corporation’s licensees participate in progressive jackpot games. Each time a progressive jackpot game is played, a portion of the amount wagered by the player is contributed to the jackpot for that specific game or group of games. Once a jackpot is won, the progressive jackpot is reset with a predetermined base amount. The Corporation maintains a provision for the reset for each jackpot and the progressive element added as the jackpot game is played. The provision for jackpots at the reporting date is included in provisions (see note 19). The provision is sufficient to cover the full amount of any required payout.

Contingent consideration

The acquisition of Ongame includes contingent consideration of up to €10 million which will become payable by Amaya if there is regulated online gaming in the United States within five years of completion of the acquisition. The Corporation has estimated the contingent consideration to be approximately €4 million ($6.09 million CAD), of which (i) €0.67 million ($1.02 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) €0.66 million ($1.01 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities; and (iii) €2.67 million ($4.06 million CAD) was paid.

Provision for minimum revenue guarantee

The sale of WagerLogic Ltd. includes a minimum revenue guarantee agreement pursuant to which the vendor, in the first two years following the closing, may pay cash consideration if certain revenue targets are not achieved by the InterCasino Business. The Corporation has estimated a provision for the minimum revenue guarantee to be approximately USD$10.00 million ($11.05 million CAD), of which (i) USD$7.65 million ($8.46 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) (ii) USD $2.35 million ($2.59 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities.

ROYALTIES

The Corporation licenses various royalty rights from several owners of intellectual property rights. These rights are used to produce games for use in Hosted Casino and Branded Games. Generally, the arrangements require material prepayments of minimum guaranteed amounts which have been recorded as prepayments in the consolidated statements of financial position. These prepaid amounts are amortized over the life of the arrangement as gross revenue is generated or on a straight- line basis if the underlying games are expected to have an effective royalty rate greater than the agreed amount. The amortization of these amounts is recorded as royalty expense.

The Corporation regularly reviews its estimates of future revenues under its license arrangements.

CRITICAL ACCOUNTING ESTIMATES AND JUDGMENTS

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with IFRS requires Management to make estimates and assumptions that can have a significant effect on the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period.

Estimates and judgments are significant when:

- the outcome is highly uncertain at the time the estimates are made; or
- different estimates or judgments could reasonably have been used that would have had a material impact on the consolidated financial statements.

The consolidated financial statements include estimates based on currently available information and Management's judgment as to the outcome of future conditions and circumstances. Management uses historical experience, general economic conditions and trends, as well as assumptions regarding probable future outcomes as the basis for determining estimates.

Estimates and their underlying assumptions are reviewed on a regular basis and the effects of any changes are recognized immediately. Changes in the status of certain facts or circumstances could result in material changes to the estimates used in the preparation of the financial statements and actual results could differ from the estimates and assumptions.

The following areas require Management's most critical estimates and judgments.

ESTIMATES

Goodwill

The recoverable amount of the operating segment, representing the group of CGUs to which goodwill is allocated, is based on the higher of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. The recoverable amount was calculated as at March 31, 2014, based on fair value less costs to sell. The fair value less cost to sell is the amount for which the CGU could be exchanged between knowledgeable willing parties in an arm's length transaction, less cost to sell. Management undertakes an assessment of relevant market data, which is the market capitalization of the Corporation and in addition uses a discounted cash flow model. Estimated future cash flows for the first five years were based on the budget and strategic plans. A growth rate of 2.5% was applied to the last year of the strategic plan to derive estimated cash flows beyond the initial five-year period. The post- tax discount rate is also a key estimate in the discounted cash flow model and is based on a representative weighted average cost of capital. The pre-tax discount rate used to calculate the recoverable amount as at March 31, 2014, was 12.00%. As at March 31, 2014, there was no need for impairment.

Impairment of other long-lived assets

The determination of other long-lived asset impairment requires significant estimates and assumptions to determine the recoverable amount of an asset and/or CGU, wherein the recoverable amount is the higher of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. The value in use method involves estimating the net present value of future cash flows derived from the use of the asset and/or CGU, discounted at an appropriate rate.

The key assumptions utilized in the determination of future cash flows represent Management's best estimate of the range of economic conditions relating to the CGU, and are based on historical experience, economic trends, and communications with other key stakeholders of the Corporation. These key assumptions include the revenue growth rate, EBITDA[1] margin as a percentage of revenues, capital expenditures as a percentage of revenues, and the inflation growth rate. Significant changes in the key assumptions utilized in the determination of future cash flows could result in an impairment charge or reversal of an impairment loss. As at March 31, 2014 and March 31, 2013, there was no need for an impairment charge.

Stock-based compensation and warrants

The Corporation estimates the expense related to stock-based compensation and the value of warrants using the Black-Scholes valuation model. The model takes into account Management's best estimate of the exercise price of the stock option/warrant, an estimate of the expected life of the option/warrant, the current price of the underlying stock, an estimate of the stock's/warrant's volatility, an estimate of future dividends on the underlying stock/warrant, the risk-free rate of return expected for an instrument with a term equal to the expected life of the option/warrant, and the expected forfeiture rate of stock options granted (see note 24).

Inventory write-down

Periodical reviews of the inventory are performed for excess inventory, obsolescence and declines in net realizable value below cost and allowances are recorded against the inventory balance for any such declines. The Corporation writes down the value of ending inventory for obsolete and unmarketable inventory equal to the difference between the cost of inventory and the net realizable value. These reviews require Management to estimate future demand for products and evaluate market conditions. Possible changes in these estimates could result in a write-down of inventory. If actual market conditions are less favourable than those projected, additional inventory write-downs may be required.

Research and development investment tax credits

Management has made a number of estimates and assumptions in determining the expenditures eligible for the research and development investment tax credit claim. Tax credits are available based on eligible research and development expenses consisting of direct expenditures and including a reasonable allocation of overhead expenses. It is possible that the allowed amount of the research and development investment tax credit claim could be materially different from the recorded amount upon assessment by the Canada Revenue Agency, the Minister of Revenue of Quebec and Alberta Finance.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are due to temporary differences between the carrying amount for accounting purposes and the tax basis of certain assets and liabilities, as well as undeducted tax losses. Estimation is required for the timing of the reversal of these temporary differences and the tax rate applied. The carrying amounts of assets and liabilities are based on amounts recorded in the financial statements and are subject to the accounting estimates inherent in those balances. The tax basis of assets and liabilities and the amount of undeducted tax losses are based on the applicable income tax legislation, regulations and interpretations. The timing of the reversal of the temporary differences and the timing of deduction of tax losses are based on estimations of the Corporation's future financial results.

The Corporation recognizes an income tax expense in each of the jurisdictions in which it operates. However, actual amounts of income tax expense only become final upon filing and acceptance of the tax return by the relevant authorities, which occur subsequent to the issuance of the financial statements. Additionally, estimation of income taxes includes evaluating the recoverability of deferred tax assets based on an assessment of the ability to use the underlying future tax deductions before they expire against future taxable income.

1 EBITDA as defined by the Corporation means earnings before interest and financing costs (net of interest income), income taxes, depreciation and amortization, stock-based compensation, restructuring and other non-recurring costs, and non-controlling interests. EBITDA is a non-IFRS measure.

The assessment is based upon enacted or substantively enacted tax laws and estimates of future taxable income. To the extent estimates differ from the actual amounts determined when preparing the final tax returns, earnings would be affected in a subsequent period. As at March 31, 2014 a valuation allowance of $4,829,460 (2013 – $4,067,955) was recorded.

Changes in the expected operating results, enacted tax rates, legislation or regulations, and the Corporation's interpretations of income tax legislation, will result in adjustments to the expectations of future timing difference reversals, and may require material deferred tax adjustments. To the extent that forecasts differ from actual results, adjustments are recognized in subsequent periods.

Contingent consideration

The acquisition of Ongame includes contingent consideration of up to €10 million which will become payable by Amaya if there is regulated online gaming in the United States within five years of completion of the acquisition. The Corporation has estimated the contingent consideration to be approximately €4 million ($6.09 million CAD), of which (i) €0.67 million ($1.02 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) €0.66 million ($1.01 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities; and (iii) €2.67 million ($4.06 million CAD) was paid.

Provision for minimum revenue guarantee

The sale of WagerLogic Ltd. includes a minimum revenue guarantee agreement pursuant to which the vendor, in the first two years following the closing, may pay cash consideration if certain revenue targets are not achieved by the InterCasino Business. The Corporation has estimated a provision for the minimum revenue guarantee to be approximately USD$10.00 million ($11.05 million CAD), of which (i) USD$7.65 million ($8.46 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) (ii) USD $2.35 million ($2.59 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities.

JUDGMENTS

Finance leases

Judgement is required in the initial classification of leases as either operating leases or finance leases and, in respect of finance leases, determining the appropriate discount rate implicit in the lease to discount minimum lease payments. The useful life of the leased property is determined by Management at the inception of the lease. The useful life is based on historical experience with similar products as well as anticipation of future events, which may impact their useful economic life, such as changes in technology. The estimated fair values established at lease inception is periodically reviewed to determine if values are realizable, which depends on the credit risk of the lessee, market conditions and other subjective and qualitative factors.

Deferred Development Costs

Amounts capitalized include the total cost of any external products or services and labour costs directly attributable to development. Management's judgement is involved in determining the appropriate internal costs to capital i.e. The useful life represents Management's view of the expected period over which the Corporation will receive benefits from the software based on historical experience with similar products as well as anticipation of future events, which may impact their useful economic life, such as changes in technology.

Estimated useful lives of long-lived assets

Judgment is used to estimate each component of an asset's useful life and is based on an analysis of all pertinent factors including, but not limited to, the expected use of the asset and in the case of an intangible asset, contractual provisions that enable renewal or extension of the asset's legal or contractual life without substantial cost, and renewal history. If the estimated useful lives were incorrect, this could result in an increase or decrease in the annual amortization expense, and future impairment charges.

4. Change In Accounting Policies

Interests in Other Entities

The Corporation have adopted the following five standards applying to interests in other entities as at January 1, 2013:

IFRS 10, Consolidated Financial Statements;

IFRS 11, Joint Arrangements;

IFRS 12, Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities;

IAS 27, Separate Financial Statements (as amended in 2011); and

IAS 28, Investments in Associates and Joint Ventures (as amended in 2011).

IFRS 10 builds on existing principles by identifying the concept of control as the determining factor in whether an entity should be included within the consolidated financial statements of the parent company. The standard provides additional guidance to assist in the determination of control where this is difficult to assess.

IFRS 11 is intended to provide for a more realistic reflection of joint arrangements by focusing on the contractual rights and obligations of the arrangement, rather than its legal form. The standard addresses inconsistencies in the reporting of joint arrangements by establishing principles that are applicable to the accounting for all joint arrangements.

IFRS 12 is a new standard on disclosure requirements for all forms of interests in other entities, including joint arrangements, associates, special purpose vehicles, and other off-balance-sheet vehicles.

The IASB also issued Consolidated Financial Statements, Joint Arrangements and Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities: Transition Guidance (Amendments to IFRS 10, IFRS 11 and IFRS 12). The amendments clarify the transition guidance in IFRS 10, Consolidated Financial Statements and also provide additional transition relief in IFRS 10, IFRS 11, Joint Arrangements and IFRS 12, Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities.

IAS 27, as amended in 2011, contains accounting and disclosure requirements for investments in subsidiaries, joint ventures, and associates when an entity prepares separate financial statements. The standard requires an entity preparing separate financial statements to account for those investments at cost or in accordance with IFRS 9, Financial Instruments.

IAS 28, as amended in 2011, prescribes the accounting for investments in associates and sets out the requirements for the application of the equity method when accounting for investments in associates and joint ventures.

The adoption of these new IFRS pronouncements had no material impact on the measurement of the consolidated financial statements. However, application of IFRS 12 has resulted in more extensive disclosures in the consolidated financial statements.

IFRS 13, Fair Value Measurement

The Corporation adopted IFRS 13, Fair Value Measurement (“IFRS 13”) with prospective application from January 1, 2013. IFRS 13 defines fair value, sets out a single IFRS framework for measuring fair value and outlines disclosure requirements for fair value measurements.

IFRS 13 defined fair value as the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. Fair value is a market-based measurement, not an entity- specific measurement, so assumptions that market participants would use should be applied in measuring fair value.

The adoption of IFRS 13 did not have an effect on our Consolidated financial statements for the current period. The disclosure requirements of IFRS 13 are incorporated in the consolidated financial statements. This includes disclosures about fair values of financial assets and liabilities measured on a recurring basis and non-financial financial assets and liabilities measured on a non-recurring basis. Disclosures about assumptions used in calculating the fair value of assets classified as held for sale are included in the consolidated financial statements (note 11).

IAS 1, Presentation of Financial Statements

The Corporation adopted the amendments to IAS 1, Presentation of Financial Statements ("IAS 1") on January 1, 2013, with retrospective application. The amendments to IAS 1 require companies preparing financial statements under IFRS to group items within other comprehensive income that may be reclassified to profit and loss and those that will not be reclassified. Since there are is only one other comprehensive income item within our statement of comprehensive income (loss), there is no net impact on the presentation of our statement of comprehensive income (loss).

5. Recent Accounting Pronouncements

OFFSETTING FINANCIAL ASSETS AND FINANCIAL LIABILITIES (AMENDMENTS TO IAS 32)

Effective for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014, on a retrospective basis. Early application is permitted. If an entity applies this amendment earlier than required, it shall disclose that fact and shall also make the disclosures required by Disclosures–Offsetting Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities (Amendments to IFRS 7) issued in December 2011.

The Corporation has not yet assessed the impact of the adoption of this standard on its consolidated financial statements.

RECOVERABLE AMOUNT DISCLOSURES FOR NON-FINANCIAL ASSETS: AMENDMENTS TO IAS 36

The IASB has published Recoverable Amount Disclosures for Non-Financial Assets (Amendments to IAS 36). These narrow-scope amendments to IAS 36, Impairment of Assets, address the disclosure of information about the recoverable amount of impaired assets if that amount is based on fair value less costs of disposal.

The amendments are to be applied retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014. Earlier application is permitted for periods when the entity has already applied IFRS 13.

IFRS 9, FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

The IASB issued the chapters of IFRS 9 relating to the classification and measurement of financial assets. IFRS 9 uses a single approach to determine whether a financial asset is measured at amortized cost or fair value, replacing the many different rules in IAS 39. The approach in IFRS 9 is based on how an entity manages its financial instruments (its business model) and the contractual cash flow characteristics of the financial assets.

The IASB also issued additions to IFRS 9 to address the problem of volatility in profit or loss arising from an issuer choosing to measure its own debt at fair value (i.e., the "own credit" problem). With the new requirements, an entity choosing to measure a liability at fair value will present the portion of the change in its fair value due to change in the entity's own credit risk in the other comprehensive income section of the income statement (no longer recognized in profit or loss). Entities are allowed to apply this change before applying any of the other requirements in IFRS 9.

The IASB also published a new hedge accounting model, together with corresponding disclosures about risk management activity for those applying hedge accounting. The new model represents a substantial overhaul of hedge accounting that will enable entities to better reflect their risk management activities in their financial statements. The most significant improvements apply to those that hedge non-financial risk. As a result of these changes, users of the financial statements will be provided with better information about risk management and about the effect of hedge accounting on the financial statements.

Because the impairment phase of the IFRS 9 project has not yet been completed, the IASB decided to temporarily remove the mandatory effective date of IFRS 9 while continuing to make it available for earlier application. The hedge accounting chapter of IFRS 9 will not however be available for earlier application by those entities reporting under Canadian GAAP until the necessary due process, translation and publication processes have been completed by the AcSB.

On April 30, 2010, the first tranche amounting to $1.5 million was disbursed. The Corporation did not draw on the second $1.5 million tranche and has waived its rights to draw on the second tranche. The subordinated debt is repayable in equal monthly instalments over a five-year period. The loan bears interest at the annual rate of 14% plus an additional interest representing 1% of yearly gross sales of the Corporation for the first $25 million of sales and an additional 0.20% for sales over $25 million. In the event that only the first drawing is disbursed by the lender, the calculation of the additional interest shall be adjusted to 0.5% of the first $25 million of the Corporation’s gross sales for a given year, and to 0.1% of the Corporation’s gross sales exceeding $25 million for a given year. Any amount, principal or interest, which is not paid when due will bear interest at the annual rate of 25% until it is paid in full.

Under the terms of the subordinated debt agreement with the lender, the Corporation is required, amongst other conditions, to maintain at all times certain ratios. As at March 31, 2014, the Corporation was not in breach of the terms of the subordinated debt agreement.

The subordinated debt is convertible into voting and participating shares of the Corporation upon an event of default by the Corporation under the terms of the related loan agreement, at the discretion of the lender. In the event the lender exercises the conversion privilege as a result of an event of default, the conversion is based on the greater of (i) the book value of the common shares of the Corporation on the basis of the most recent audited consolidated financial statements or, at the lender's sole discretion, the most recent unaudited consolidated quarterly financial statements of the Corporation, provided that such book value shall not be less than one cent per share, and (ii) the minimum price authorized by the applicable policies of the TSX if the Corporation is listed on such Exchange. The fair value of the long-term debt was established using information for comparative debt instruments and the Corporation concluded that there was no significant equity component.

During the three month period ended March 31, 2014, the Corporation incurred $7,767 (2013 – $23,301) in interest.

Each unit consisted of (i) $1,000 principal amount of unsecured non-convertible subordinated debentures; and (ii) 48 non-transferable common share purchase warrants (the warrant indenture was subsequently amended to provide for the warrants to be transferable and traded on the TSX). The debentures bear interest at a rate of 7.50% per annum payable semi-annually in arrears on January 31 and July 31 in each year commencing July 31, 2013. Each warrant entitles the holders thereof to acquire one common share of the Corporation at a price per common share equal to $6.25 at any time up to a period ending January 31, 2016.

26. Financial instruments

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RISK

The Corporation is mainly exposed to foreign currency fluctuations on its accounts receivable, receivable under finance lease, cash, restricted cash, customer deposits, income tax receivable, income tax payable, and accounts payable and accrued liabilities. As at March 31, 2014, the Corporation's significant foreign exchange currency exposure on these financial instruments by currency was as follows:

EUR	361,090
GBP	74,296
MXN	414,831
SEK	(336,843)

The Corporation does not hedge these exposures. This exposure is monitored by the Corporation's reporting system and is reviewed by Management on a monthly basis.

INTEREST RATE RISK

The Corporation is exposed to fair value interest rate risk with respect to its subordinated debt, other long-term debt and convertible debentures which bear a fixed rate of interest. The Corporation is exposed to cash flow interest rate risk on its bank indebtedness and senior secured term loan, which bears interest at variable rates. A one percentage point increase (decrease) in interest rates would have decreased (increased) pre-tax earnings by approximately $2,069,000 in the period, with all other variables held constant. Management monitors movements in the interest rates by reviewing the Bank of Canada prime rate and LIBOR on a quarterly basis.

CREDIT RISK

The Corporation, in the normal course of business, monitors the financial condition of its customers and reviews the credit history of each new customer. The Corporation establishes an allowance for doubtful accounts that corresponds to the credit risk of its specific customers, historical trends and economic circumstances. The Corporation is exposed to credit risk in the event of non-payment by certain customers for their accounts receivable. The Corporation has focused on reducing customer concentration and growing its base of Tier 1 operators.

Details of the Corporation's accounts receivable were as follows:

	March 31, 2014 $	December 31, 2013 $
Not past due	33,472,988	31,464,575

Outstanding, end of period	48,849,150	47,460,201

The Corporation's maximum exposure to credit risk is equal to the carrying value of accounts receivable as set out on the statement of financial position.

LIQUIDITY RISK

Liquidity risk is the Corporation's ability to meet its financial obligations when they come due. The Corporation is exposed to liquidity risk with respect to its contractual obligations and financial liabilities. The Corporation manages liquidity risk by continuously monitoring forecast and actual cash flows and matching maturity profiles of financial assets and liabilities. The Corporation's objective is to maintain a balance between continuity of funding and flexibility through borrowing facilities available through the Corporation's bank and other lenders. The Corporation's policy is to ensure adequate funding is available from operations, established lending facilities and other sources as required.

The Corporation believes that future cash flows generated by operations and availability under its borrowing facility will be adequate to meet its financial obligations.

27. Fair value

The Corporation has determined that the carrying values of its short-term financial assets and liabilities approximate their fair value because of the relatively short periods to maturity of these instruments.

The carrying amount of receivable under finance leases approximates their fair value since the interest rate approximates current market rates. On initial recognition the fair value of amounts receivable under finance leases and long-term debt was established using a discounted cash-flow model.

The carrying amounts of long-term debts approximate their fair value since the interest rates on these instruments either approximate the current market rates offered to the Corporation or the interest rates in these instruments change with market interest rates. On initial recognition the fair value of long-term debt was established based on current interest rates, market values and pricing of financial instruments with comparable terms.

As of March 31, 2014, the Corporation has no financial instruments measured at fair value.

28. Capital Management

The Corporation's objective in managing capital is to ensure a sufficient liquidity position to market its products, to finance its sales and marketing activities, research and development activities, general and administrative expenses, working capital and overall capital expenditures, including those associated with property and equipment. The ability to fund these requirements in the future depends on the Corporation's ability to access additional capital and generate additional cash flow from its operations.

Since inception, the Corporation has financed its liquidity needs, primarily through bank indebtedness, borrowings, hybrid instruments such as special warrants and issuance of capital stock. When possible, the Corporation tries to optimize its liquidity needs by non-dilutive sources, including loans payable and promissory notes.

The Corporation defines capital as its total shareholders' equity. To date, the Corporation's policy is to maintain a minimum level of debt, although debt will be considered as part of financing initiatives in the future.

The Corporation's credit facility includes a revolving demand credit facility of $3 million. As at March 31, 2014, $nil (December 31, 2013 – $nil) has been used to finance the Corporation's daily operations.

The capital management objectives listed above have not changed since the previous fiscal year.

The Corporation believes that funds from operations, as well as existing and future financial resources should be sufficient to meet the Corporation's requirements until March 31, 2015.

34. Business Combination

DIAMOND GAME

The acquisition of Diamond Game has been accounted for using the acquisition method and the results of operations are included in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) from the date of acquisition, which is February 14, 2014.

The following table summarizes the estimated fair value of the identifiable assets and liabilities acquired at the date of acquisition:

	Fair value on acquisition $
Cash and cash equivalents	39,546
Inventory	1,192,150
Trade and other receivables	1,718,606

Cash consideration	24,950,798
Total consideration	24,950,798

Of the USD$24.95 million consideration paid by Amaya in connection with the acquisition of Diamond Game, there was a holdback of USD $7 million.

The main factors leading to the recognition of goodwill are the synergistic growth and revenues expected to be created from the strong strategic fit between Amaya and Diamond Game. Diamond Game presents a variety of opportunities to leverage each business' product and intellectual property suite across a broader combined platform with greater geographic presence and creates revenue synergies by expanding Amaya's penetration in the United States, accelerating Amaya's penetration in Lottery markets, and potentially extending Diamond Game's offering into new markets in Canada and Europe.

If the acquisition had occurred on January 1, 2014, Diamond Game would have contributed USD$4.97 million and USD$0.35 million to consolidated revenues and net income respectively. Since the date of acquisition, Diamond Game has contributed USD$2.54 million and USD$0.29 million to consolidated revenues and net income respectively.

Acquisition-related costs directly related to the Diamond Game acquisition was USD$2,034,189, and was expensed in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) during the year ended December 31, 2013 and in the period ended March 31, 2014.

The following table sets forth the computation of basic and diluted loss per common share from continuing operations for the three month period ended March 31, 2014 and 2013.

	For the three month period ended
	March 31, 2014 $	March 31, 2013 $

Warrants	7,521,997	703,939
Convertible debentures	—	(406,389)
Dilutive potential common shares	104,208,012	86,772,308
Denominator for diluted (loss) per common share – adjusted weighted number of shares	94,136,709	84,782,705

Diluted earnings (loss) per common share	0.38	(0.09)

For the three month period ended March 31, 2013, the diluted loss per share was the same as the basic net loss per share since the dilutive effect of stock options, warrants and other convertible instruments was not included in the calculation; otherwise the effect would have been anti-dilutive. Accordingly, the diluted loss per share for the period was calculated using the basic weighted average number of common shares outstanding.

On February 11, 2014, the Corporation announced that pursuant to a share purchase agreement dated November 27, 2013, one of its subsidiaries has completed the previously announced sale to Goldstar Acquisitionco Inc. of all of the issued and outstanding shares of WagerLogic Malta Holdings Ltd. for $70 million, less a closing working capital adjustment satisfied through cash consideration of $52.5 million and a vendor take-back in the form of a promissory note of $10 million, bearing interest at 6.0% per annum payable semi-annually in arrears starting in the second year following the closing date and due on the fourth anniversary of the closing date. The purchase price is subject to customary post-closing adjustments.

Subsidiaries of Amaya will continue to supply WagerLogic with software, services and content to power the InterCasino Business pursuant to a services agreement.

Overview

Founded in 2004, Amaya Gaming Group Inc. ("Amaya" or the "Corporation") is engaged in the design, development, manufacturing, distribution, sale and service of technology-based gaming solutions for the regulated gaming industry worldwide. Amaya's objective is to become a leading provider of technology-based gaming solutions while maintaining a steadfast commitment to the highest levels of integrity and responsibility.

Amaya provides products, services and systems to land-based and online gaming operators, government bodies and the hospitality industry. Amaya's solutions are designed to provide end users with popular, engaging and cutting-edge content across multiple formats and through a secure technology environment, and thereby improve the profitability, productivity, security and brand of the operator.

The Corporation offers a true ecosystem of physical, virtual and mobile gaming solutions to capitalize on the convergence of physical and interactive gaming (e.g. casino and gov't/lottery operators expanding into iGaming). The Corporation believes such convergence can help operators achieve a higher yield per customer by enabling them to acquire a customer through one medium (physical or interactive) and then leverage its existing brand, marketing and loyalty programs, and a common wallet to cross sell its other offerings.

Amaya has developed its portfolio of solutions through both internal development and strategic acquisitions. Throughout its history, Amaya has continually strived to improve its offering of solutions and services to address both the markets it serves as well as new domestic and international opportunities.

Products and Services

Amaya has one reportable segment, Diversified Gaming Solutions, which in the first quarter ended March 31, 2014 consisted primarily of the following categories of solutions and services: interactive gaming solutions, land-based gaming solutions, and lottery solutions.

Interactive Gaming Solutions

i. An online casino solution including Amaya's Casino Gaming System ("CGS"), a remote gaming server that provides gaming operators access to Amaya's library of hundreds of online casino games from Amaya and multiple best-of-breed third party content developers, available through a seamless integration of Amaya's CGS with the operator's software platform. Amaya's games offering includes online and mobile slot, video poker and table games including branded content and top games from several other leading games suppliers in the industry, available to operators through a single integration of the CGS to their platform. Amaya's CGS also includes a powerful back office solution including reporting functionality, configuration capability, and bonus offering provision capability, as well as customer service and risk support. Amaya's interactive gaming offering was expanded by its acquisitions of online casino pioneers Chartwell Technology Inc. ("Chartwell"), a leading developer and provider of an online casino gaming platform and online casino gaming titles, in July, 2011; and, CryptoLogic Ltd. ("CryptoLogic"), a developer and provider of an extensive library of online casino games as well as online casino software and services, in April, 2012.

ii. Related services including technology, customer service and risk support, as well as promotional and marketing services for affiliate management, product and games operation and management, website development, player retention, search engine optimization, business intelligence/analytics, and customer relationship management.

iii. Amaya's Ongame poker software and network solutions. Amaya acquired this poker platform through its acquisition of Ongame Networks Ltd. ("Ongame") in November, 2012. Ongame offers a complete business-to-business online poker solution for gaming operators that allows them to offer poker under their own brand and through their own custom designed web portals while participating in a poker network of players from Ongame's gaming operator licensees.

iv. The Amaya Game Office player management software platform ("AGO"), which was launched in 2013 following Amaya's integration of Ongame. The AGO platform provides gaming operators with support for multiple custom-built web portals/brands on all devices with the ability to offer all interactive gaming verticals including online casino, poker, sportsbook (betting) and bingo. It allows for the seamless integration of content for these verticals from Amaya and third-party providers. It also incorporates best of breed third party customer relationship management, business intelligence, and marketing tools which are tightly integrated to provide marketers with the ability to run seamless end-to-end automated campaigns and promotions. All customer and game data are available through a central repository data warehouse. Related services include end-user technical support, software maintenance and hosting services, software security and backup services, payment and anti-fraud services.

v. Amaya's all-in-one Mosino hospitality platform, targeting hospitality industry participants as well as gaming operators. Depending on the environment, the Mosino software platform can provide: digital concierge services that manage all guest requests/communication on a single platform as well as revenue producing services such as Internet/Wi-Fi access for all guest devices anywhere on the resort, video-on-demand service with continuously updated content, and online casino including peer-to-peer or house-banked games, through networked or stand-alone play. All aspects of Mosino can be managed from a single system, with management, reporting and attendant portals that can be used by the customer's employees, with systems updates, maintenance, training and support available to the operator. Mosino acts as a private cloud in the operator's facility. Any web enabled device, including TVs, laptops, tablets and mobile phones, can interact with the entire Mosino system, with no app download required.

Land-based Gaming Solutions

Amaya's land-based gaming solutions consist primarily of games and game systems, and related services and support, for the Mexican gaming market and Class II and Class III gaming markets in the United States of America ("U.S."), including Tribal casinos, commercial casinos, charitable gaming establishments/bingo halls, the video lottery terminal (VLT) market and racetracks. They include:

i. Through its subsidiary Cadillac Jack Inc. ("Cadillac Jack"), acquired in November, 2012, Amaya designs, manufactures and markets a dynamic portfolio of electronic games and systems for the regulated global gaming industry, offering a variety of high performing, feature-rich products designed for premium player experiences, with a variety of game themes, bonus options and math models; progressive product lines including wide area, local area and multi-level progressives which offer players rewarding jackpots across a variety of cabinet styles and games; and slot management services and systems, including tools to monitor and balance the mix of gaming machines on a casino floor. It develops content and technologies specific to the needs of each of the markets it serves, notably the Class II and Class III Tribal and Commercial gaming markets in the U.S. and the Mexican gaming market. Cadillac Jack's gaming machines feature proprietary games from a library of more than 100 game titles, with new titles developed on a continuous basis, that are available in multiple cabinet configurations.

ii. Through its subsidiary Diamond Game Enterprises ("Diamond Game"), acquired subsequent to year end in February, 2014, Amaya develops products for the VLT, Class II bingo, and Class III commercial casino and racetrack markets. Diamond Game's library of over 60 games contains entertaining features such as the patented WINometer, multi-denomination progressives, random bonusing, and popular licensed music, with games available in multiple cabinet configurations.

Lottery Solutions

Amaya's Lottery Solutions are designed to permit gaming jurisdictions to exploit additional sources of revenue. They consist primarily of the following:

i. Instant Ticket Vending Machines

Diamond Game's primary lottery product is the LT-3 instant ticket vending machine (ITVM). The LT-3 is an electronic ticket dispenser that dispenses pre-printed instant scratch or break open/pull-tab tickets on each play but also with video animation of the game result to enhance entertainment and bring excitement to the player experience. Diamond Game's full library of game themes is available for all LT-3 cabinet types, and the game result can be displayed using various video animation options including pull tab display, scratch display, popping symbols or spinning reels. The LT-3 is designed for 'stay and play' use, creating longer play sessions and higher sales volumes, to assist lotteries with expanding their existing retailer base into less traditional venues, such as bars, taverns, bingo halls, veteran's halls, and social clubs. Through Diamond Game, Amaya holds multiple patents related to the unique devices. The ITVMs can be linked across locations to a robust central system that provides accounting records. Through Diamond Game, Amaya can provide a turnkey solution including the machines, tickets, central system, and service.

ii. Mobile Lottery

Amaya's mobile based lottery solution is a software platform that operates lotteries via mobile and cellular devices, allowing participants to play popular lottery games using mobile and cellular technology. Mobile technology simplifies deployment and reduces logistical costs for the lottery/gaming operator as it doesn't require a network of ticket distributors and retail outlets, while ensuring higher levels of assurance over customer identification, thereby promoting lottery integrity.

Acquisitions

The Corporation announced in early 2011 that in order to further strengthen its market position and facilitate its anticipated growth, it intended to selectively assess acquisition opportunities based on the target company's jurisdictional status, the degree of synergy between the target company's technologies and Amaya's core technologies, and the extent to which the target company had a customer base that was complementary to Amaya's. Since that time, Amaya has completed multiple strategic acquisitions that have significantly expanded its diversified gaming solutions, delivering channel capability and expanded market reach. The increased scope and scale of Amaya's gaming solutions subsequent to the acquisitions have also resulted in the Corporation shifting its focus from emerging markets to significantly larger markets, notably the U.S. and Europe, where its acquired companies have established operations and customer relationships.

On July 14, 2011, Amaya completed the acquisition of all of the outstanding shares of Chartwell. Since November of 1999, Chartwell had been focused primarily on the development, marketing and licensing of its gaming software and was certified or licensed to offer a range of services in all of the leading regulated online gaming markets. Chartwell was a leading provider of games, gaming systems and gaming platform for the regulated online casino gaming industry. Its games library included more than 100 proprietary and third-party licensed online casino titles including branded content, slots, table games and a live dealer product, which it licensed to online casino operators along with its Chartwell Games Platform, which included rapid games deployment architecture and a powerful back office solution.

On April 3, 2012, Amaya announced that following its acquisition of 80.79% of the issued share capital of CryptoLogic, it took control of the board of CryptoLogic. It subsequently completed the purchase of the remaining outstanding share capital of CryptoLogic. A pioneer in online casino, CryptoLogic was founded in 1995 and was a leading developer and supplier of Internet gaming software. With more than 300 games, CryptoLogic had one of the most comprehensive casino suites on the Internet, with award-winning games featuring branded content including some of the world's most famous action and entertainment characters. CryptoLogic provided software licensing, e-cash management and customer support services for its Internet gambling software to an international client base including many top Internet gaming brands.

On November 1, 2012, Amaya announced that it had completed the purchase of Ongame from bwin.party digital entertainment plc. Ongame is a provider of poker software and network solutions.

On November 5, 2012, Amaya announced that it had completed the purchase of Cadillac Jack, an acquisition previously announced on September 25, 2012.

On February 14, 2014, Amaya announced that it had closed its acquisition of Diamond Game, a private and arms-length company.

These lending entities are advised by FB Income Advisor, LLC and FSIC II Advisor, LLC, respectively, and sub-advised by an affiliate of GSO Capital Partners LP, Blackstone's credit business. The credit facilities provide for (1) an incremental US$80 million term loan to Cadillac Jack's existing US$160 million senior term loan, with the new aggregate principal amount of US$240 million bearing interest at a per annum rate equal to LIBOR plus 8.50% with a 1% LIBOR floor (the "Senior Facility"); and (2) mezzanine debt in the form of a subordinated term loan in the aggregate principal amount of US$100 million, bearing interest at a per annum rate equal to 13%; provided, at the option

The Senior Facility is secured by the assets of Cadillac Jack and its subsidiaries. The Mezzanine Facility is unsecured. Amaya has provided an unsecured guarantee of the obligations under the New Facilities of Cadillac Jack in favour of the lenders. The New Facilities contain customary covenants, including, without limitation, maintenance and incurrence covenants based on certain agreed-upon leverage and coverage ratios. Amaya has agreed to grant the lenders, in relation to the Mezzanine Facility, with 4 million common share purchase warrants, entitling the holders thereof to acquire one common share of Amaya at a price per common share equal to CAD $15 at any time up to a period ending 10 years after the closing date. The grant of the share purchase warrants is subject to the final approval of the Toronto Stock Exchange

On February 11, 2014, Amaya announced that pursuant to a share purchase agreement dated November 27, 2013, one of its subsidiaries had completed the previously announced sale to Goldstar Acquisitionco Inc. The Purchase Price is subject to customary post-closing adjustments. WagerLogic, through a subsidiary, is an online casino operator through its "Inter" brand consisting of InterCasino™, InterPoker™ and InterBingo™, amongst other online names (the "InterCasino Business"). The InterCasino business was acquired by Amaya through its acquisition of CryptoLogic. Subsidiaries of Amaya (the "Service Providers") will continue to supply WagerLogic with software, services and content to power the InterCasino Business pursuant to services agreements. The Share Purchase Agreement provides for a bonus payment of USD $10 million if CryptoLogic Operations Limited ("CryptoLogic Operations"), the wholly-owned operating subsidiary of WagerLogic, achieves a net revenue target of USD $30 million during the second year following closing (payable in 12 monthly instalments during the third year following closing), and a bonus payment of USD $10 million if CryptoLogic Operations achieves a net revenue target of USD $40 million during the third year following closing (payable in 12 monthly instalments during the fourth year following closing). Amaya and its Service Providers have entered into a revenue guarantee agreement (the "WagerLogic Revenue Guarantee"), under which they jointly and severally guarantee the financial obligations of the Service Providers under the service agreements, including an obligation to pay CryptoLogic Operations, during the next two years, an amount equal to the shortfall between CryptoLogic Operation's quarterly net revenue and a pre-established quarterly net revenue target of USD $4.75 million. On March 7, 2014, Amaya announced that it had acquired in aggregate beneficial ownership and control of 1.9 million common shares of WagerLogic's parent company The Intertain Group Ltd. On February 19, 2014, Amaya announced that its subsidiary Diamond Game Enterprises ("Diamond Game") had been awarded a 5-year contract with the Maryland Lottery and Gaming Control Agency (the "Lottery"), with the Lottery holding a five year renewal option, to provide Veterans' Organizations (VOs) in the state with Instant Ticket Lottery Machines (ITLM) and related services. The Contract allows for the placement of up to five ITLMs at each qualified VO meeting hall in Maryland. The Lottery estimates there are currently 150 qualified organizations that may apply for the ITLMs. Diamond Game anticipates deployment of ITLMs to commence by the end of 2014 throughout the state. Under the Contract, Diamond Game will receive a firm-fixed percentage of the ITLM proceeds. The Contract amount is estimated by the Lottery at up to USD$57 million over the original five year term and an additional amount of up to USD$60 million for the renewal option based upon its projected number of ITLMs placed at VO meeting halls and the projected win for those ITLMs.

On April 1, 2014, Amaya announced that one of its subsidiaries has entered into a licensing agreement with Fertitta Acquisitions Co, LLC, d/b/a Ultimate Gaming ("Ultimate Gaming"), a majority-owned subsidiary of Station Casinos LLC, to provide online casino gaming content to Ultimate Gaming in New Jersey, subject to all applicable jurisdictional licensing requirements and regulatory approvals. Under the Agreement, the online gaming website ucasino.com, operated by Ultimate Gaming for its licensed gaming partner Trump Taj Mahal Associates, LLC, in New Jersey, will offer a wide selection of Amaya's proprietary games that are available on its Casino Gaming System ("CGS") platform. The Agreement allows for the potential integration of other gaming websites operated by Ultimate Gaming to CGS in the future.

On April 16, 2014, Amaya announced that its subsidiary Cadillac Jack has entered into multiple agreements to ship approximately 1,100 gaming machines to existing and new customers in the United States, with installation of the machines anticipated to occur in the second quarter of 2014. The shipments are primarily comprised of outright sales of gaming machines, but also include the upgrading of some existing revenue share generating gaming machines. The majority of units shipped will be Class II machines, but will also include some sales of Class III machines to customers based in Oklahoma and California. Amaya also announced that Cadillac Jack had received a license to provide its land-based solutions to Class III gaming operations in Wisconsin.

On May 2, 2014, Amaya announced that its subsidiary Cadillac Jack had received approval from New Jersey's Division of Gaming Enforcement to utilize its Genesis DV1 slot machine platform and associated hardware and software, including top performing game titles Fire Wolf, Siberian Siren, and Legend of White Buffalo, in the state. Cadillac Jack has applied to the DGE for transactional waivers to begin supplying machines to Atlantic City casinos. Subject to receiving the transactional waivers, Cadillac Jack anticipates initial deployment of its gaming machines will begin immediately, with multiple Atlantic City casinos engaged to trial them.

Outlook

Amaya's corporate strategy consists of extending its market footprint by facilitating the delivery of gaming content across physical and interactive media. Amaya's strategy is reinforced by its existing portfolio of developed and acquired technologies. Amaya continues to focus on the creation of long-term shareholder value and further develop its core strength as a gaming technology provider.

Amaya markets its solutions to gaming operators licensed in regulated gaming jurisdictions, as well as governments and hospitality industry operators. The Corporation's most significant markets are presently in North America, Europe and Latin America & the Caribbean. Amaya aims to increase its penetration within these markets.

Amaya intends to target expansion of its interactive gaming solutions, including into newly regulated markets, notably in the U.S. The U.S. Department of Justice recently issued an opinion on its stance on online gaming, to the effect that only sports betting is subject to the Federal Wire Act of 1961 and all other forms of online gambling is permitted. As a result, three states, New Jersey, Delaware and Nevada, have subsequently regulated online gaming. Amaya's acquisitions, and subsequent integration and product development efforts, have provided it with the scope and scale to participate in the nascent real money online gaming market in the U.S. Amaya received transactional waivers from the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement in 2013 to supply technology for real money online gaming websites operated by licensed permit holders in New Jersey. In late November 2013, real money online gaming went live in New Jersey, the third and thus far largest U.S. state to have approved it, following Nevada and Delaware. Amaya has thus far announced agreements to supply five of the seven current permit holders licensed to operate real money online gaming websites within the state of New Jersey. The Corporation intends to offer its interactive gaming solutions to other online gaming operators, and will look to do so in other states as well as a regulatory framework is implemented in them.

Specific to land-based solutions, Amaya, notably through its subsidiary Cadillac Jack, has a strong position in the provision of gaming machines to the Class II Tribal and Mexican gaming markets. It is also expanding its presence in the much larger Class III tribal and commercial gaming markets. To do so, it is actively seeking to obtain new Class III and commercial gaming licenses in the U.S. and other regulated gaming markets to expand the addressable market to whom it can provide its gaming solutions. It focuses on marketing its solutions to licensed gaming operators that are expanding or opening new operations, seeking to upgrade their existing solutions and business intelligence, or aiming to reduce reliance on their existing suppliers of gaming machines.

Finally, with the acquisition of Diamond Game completed, Amaya intends to market its lottery solutions to governments and lottery operators looking to generate new sources of revenue by modernizing traditional lottery products with enhanced entertainment and delivery systems. Currently, Amaya's lottery solutions, notably its ITVMs, are placed in four North American jurisdictions through the relevant lottery authority. Amaya intends to market its lottery solutions to lottery operators in other jurisdictions.

Data compiled by gambling industry consultants H2 Gambling Capital, released as at February 27, 2014, projects total global gambling market gross win to increase to approximately €392 billion (10.5% from interactive gaming) in 2018 from an estimated €316 billion in 2013 (8.2% from interactive gaming), with gambling divided into the product verticals of Betting, Casino, Lotteries, Gaming Machines and Bingo/Other Gaming and Interactive Gaming divided into the product verticals of Betting, Casino, Poker, State Lotteries, Bingo, and Skill/Other Gaming/Commercial Lotteries. Management believes that Amaya is well positioned to grow by leveraging its cutting-edge technology, its regulatory status and potentially through strategic acquisitions to gain market share within the industry.

Other long-term debt is comprised of a long-term debt in the amount of USD$750,000 bearing interest at 6.0% per annum, repayable in equal semi-annual instalments over a two-year term.

During the three month period ended March 31, 2014, the Corporation incurred $6,312 (2013 – $10,855) in interest.

	March 31, 2014 $	December 31, 2013 $
Loan bearing interest at 6% per annum repayable in equal semi-annual instalments over a two year term	216,663	410,797
Current maturity	(216,663)	(410,797)

Cash Flows by Activity

The table below outlines a summary of cash inflows and outflows by activity.

Cash Inflows and (Outflows) by Activity:

	For the three month period ended March 31, 2014 $	March 31, 2013 $
Operating activities	1,252,189	7,481,455
Financing activities	(352,238)	23,789,439
Investing activities	23,892,954	(8,389,907)

CASH PROVIDED BY (USED IN) OPERATIONS

The Corporation generated positive cash flows from operating activities for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014. This is primarily attributable to collections of accounts receivable and reduced investment in technical compliance and platform enhancements geared to the US online gaming market. Cash provided from (used for) operating activities for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014 was $1.25 million as compared to $7.48 million for the three-month period ended March 31, 2013. The decrease in cash flow from operating activities in the first quarter of 2014 relative to the first quarter of 2013 was driven by a lower amount of accounts receivable collections.

CASH PROVIDED BY (USED IN) FINANCING ACTIVITIES

The cash provided from (used in) financing activities for the three-month period ended March 31, 2014 and March 31, 2013 was $(0.35) million and $23.79 million respectively. During the three-month period ended March 31, 2014, use of cash from financing activities was primarily related to repayment of long-term debt. During the three-month period ended March 31, 2013, cash from financing activities was primarily derived from proceeds of approximately $28.54 million related to issuance of debt partially offset by a share buyback of 660,800 shares.

CASH PROVIDED BY (USED IN) INVESTING ACTIVITIES

Cash provided by (used in) investing activities for the three month period ended March 31, 2014 was $23.89 million as compared to $(8.39) million for the three month period ended March 31, 2013. The increase in the three month period ended March 31, 2014 is primarily due to proceeds from the WagerLogic Sale of $52.5 million partially offset primarily by the Diamond Game Acquisition for USD$18 million.

Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

BASIS OF PRESENTATION

These consolidated financial statements, including comparatives, have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRS") as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board ("IASB") and interpretations of the International Financial Reporting Standards Interpretations Committee ("IFRIC").

These consolidated financial statements were prepared on a going concern basis, under the historical cost convention, except for the revaluation of certain financial instruments.

PRINCIPLES OF CONSOLIDATION

A subsidiary is an entity controlled by the Corporation, i.e. the Corporation is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with the entity and has the ability to affect those returns through its current ability to direct the entity's relevant activities (power over the investee).

The existence and effect of substantive potential voting rights that the Corporation has the practical ability to exercise (i.e. substantive rights) are considered when assessing whether the Corporation controls another entity.

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries. A wholly owned subsidiary is an entity over which the Corporation has control, where control is defined as the power to govern financial and operating policies. On consolidation, all significant inter-entity transactions and balances have been eliminated. As at March 31, 2014, the consolidated financial statements included 55 wholly owned subsidiaries.

Upon loss of control of a subsidiary, the Corporation's profit or loss is calculated as the difference between (i) the fair value of the consideration received and of any investment retained in the former subsidiary and (ii) the previous carrying amount of the assets (including any goodwill) and liabilities of the subsidiary and any non-controlling interests.

ASSOCIATES

Associates are entities over which the Corporation has the power to participate in the financial and operating policy decisions of the entity, but which is not control or joint control. Associates are accounted for using the equity method of accounting.

Under the equity method, the investment is initially recognised at cost and adjusted thereafter for the post-acquisition change in the investor's share of comprehensive income of the associate. On acquisition of the investment, any difference between the cost of the investment and the investor's share of the net fair value of the associate's identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities is accounted for in accordance with IFRS 3 Business Combinations. The goodwill (net of any accumulated impairment loss) relating to an investment in an associate is included within the carrying amount of that investment.

The Corporation's share of its associates' post-acquisition profits or losses is recognised in the statement of profit or loss, and its share of post-acquisition movements in other comprehensive income is recognised in other comprehensive income. The cumulative post-acquisition movements are adjusted against the carrying amount of the investment. Distributions received from an investee reduce the carrying amount of the investment.

If the Corporation's share of losses of an associate equals or exceeds its interest in the associate, the Corporation does not provide for additional losses, unless it has incurred obligations or made payments on behalf of the associate. Profits / losses on Corporation transactions with associates are eliminated to the extent of the Corporation's interest in the relevant associate.

NON-CURRENT ASSETS HELD FOR SALE

Non-current assets that are expected to be recovered primarily through sale rather than through continuing use are classified as held for sale. Immediately before classification as held for sale, the assets are re-measured at net book value less impairment loss. Assets held for sale are measured at the lower of their carrying amounts or their fair value less costs to sell and are no longer depreciated. Impairment losses on initial classification as held for sale and subsequent gains or losses on re-measurement are recognized in profit or loss. Gains are not recognized in excess of any cumulative impairment loss.

REVENUE RECOGNITION

Revenue is recognized when all the following criteria are met:

- the Corporation has transferred to the buyer the significant risks and rewards;
- the amount of revenue can be reliably measured;
- it is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transaction will flow to the Corporation; and
- the costs incurred or to be incurred in respect of the transaction can be reliably measured.

Multiple-element revenue arrangements

Certain contracts of the Corporation include license fees, training, installation, consulting, maintenance, product support services and periodic upgrades.

Where such agreements exist, the amount of revenue allocated to each element is based upon the relative fair values of the various elements. The fair values of each element are determined based on current market price of each of the elements when sold separately. Revenue is only recognized when, in Management's judgment, the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred or when the obligation has been fulfilled.

In addition to the aforementioned general policies, the following are the specific revenue recognition policies for each major category of revenue:

Product Sales

Revenue from product sales is generally recognized when the product is shipped to the customer and when there are no unfulfilled Corporation obligations that affect the customer's final acceptance of the arrangement. Any cost of warranties and remaining obligations that are inconsequential or perfunctory are accrued when the corresponding revenue is recognized.

Participation arrangements

In contracts that stipulate profit sharing arrangements, revenues are earned based on revenue splits established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. Revenues are recognized when performance has been achieved and collectability is reasonably assured.

Software Licensing

Typically, license fees, including fees from master license agreements, most of which are contingent upon licensee's customer usage, are calculated as a percentage of each licensee's level of activity. The percentage is as established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. The Corporation only reports its revenues (as opposed to licensee's total revenues and deducting licensee's percentage as a cost). The license fees are recognized on an accrual basis as earned.

Hosted Casino

Revenues from Hosted Casino are recognized as the services are performed, on a daily basis, at the time of the gambling transactions.

Lease revenues

In the course of its normal business the Corporation enters into lease agreements for its gaming equipment.

Assets subject to finance leases are initially recognized at an amount equal to the net investment in the lease, which is the fair value of the asset, or, if lower, the present value of the minimum lease payments. Revenue is recognized on the basis of policy for product sales. Finance income is subsequently recognized over the term of the applicable leases based on the effective interest rate method. Finance income is grouped with the revenues, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Assets under operating leases are included in property and equipment. Lease income from operating leases is recognized on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease and is included in revenues, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

TRANSLATION OF FOREIGN OPERATIONS AND FOREIGN CURRENCY TRANSACTIONS

Functional and presentation currency

IAS 21 (''Effects of Changes in Foreign Currency Rates'') requires entities to consider primary and secondary indicators when determining the functional currency. Primary indicators are closely linked to the primary economic environment in which the entity operates and are given more weight. Secondary indicators provide supporting evidence to determine an entity's functional currency. Once the functional currency of an entity is determined, it should be used consistently, unless significant changes in economic facts, events and conditions indicate that the functional currency has changed.

A change in functional currency is accounted for prospectively from the date of change by translating all items into the new functional currency using the exchange rate at the date of change.

Based on an analysis of the primary and secondary indicators, the functional currency of each of the group's entities have been determined. These consolidated financial statements are presented in Canadian dollars, which in the opinion of Management is the most appropriate presentation currency in view of its operations in the global marketplace, user needs and a comparison with its major competitors.

Transactions and balances

Foreign currency transactions are translated into the functional currency using the exchange rates prevailing at the dates of the transactions or valuation where items are re-measured. Foreign exchange gains and losses resulting from the settlement of such transactions and from the translation at year-end exchange rates of monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are recognized in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Group companies

Each foreign operation determines its own functional currency and items included in the financial statements of each foreign operation are measured using that functional currency.

The results and financial position of all the group entities that have a functional currency different from the presentation currency are translated into the presentation currency as follows:

(i) assets and liabilities for each balance sheet presented are translated at the closing rate at the date of that balance sheet;

(ii) income and expenses for each statement of comprehensive income (loss) are translated at average exchange rates (unless this average is not a reasonable approximation of the cumulative effect of the rates prevailing on the transaction dates, in which case income and expenses are translated at the rate on the dates of the transactions); and

(iii) all resulting exchange differences are recognized in other comprehensive income (loss).

The following functional currencies are referred to herein below:

Currency Symbol	Currency Description
CAD	Canadian Dollar
USD	United States Dollar
EUR	European Euro
GBP	Pound Sterling
MXN	Mexican Peso
SEK	Swedish Krona

BUSINESS COMBINATION

Business combinations are accounted for using the acquisition method. Under this method, the identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed, including contingent liabilities, are recognized, regardless of whether they have been previously recognized in the acquiree's financial statements prior to the acquisition. On initial recognition, the assets and liabilities of the acquired subsidiary are included in the consolidated statement of financial position at their fair values. Goodwill is recorded when the identifiable intangible assets have been determined. Goodwill is the excess of the fair value of the consideration transferred over the fair value of the Corporation's share in the acquiree's net identifiable assets on the date of acquisition. Any excess of the identifiable net assets over the consideration transferred is recognized in income immediately.

The consideration transferred by the Corporation to acquire control of a subsidiary is calculated as the sum of the acquisition-date fair values of the assets transferred, liabilities incurred and equity interests issued by the Corporation, including the fair value of all the assets and liabilities resulting from a contingent consideration arrangement. Acquisition related costs are expensed as incurred.

OPERATING SEGMENTS

The Corporation's operating segment is organized around the markets it serves and is reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting provided to the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, the Corporation's chief operating decision- maker. An operating segment is a component of the Corporation that engages in business activities from which it may earn revenues and incur expenses, including revenues and expenses relating to transactions with other components of the Corporation. Currently the Corporation has only one operating segment, Diversified Gaming Solutions.

Segmental information is reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting to the chief operating decision-makers. On the basis that the Group's activities are operated largely through a common infrastructure and support function the business segment information is not reported below the revenue level. Similarly no measure of segment assets is given due to the highly integrated nature of the Group's operations.

FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

Financial assets

Financial assets are initially recognized at fair value and are classified either as “fair value through profit and loss”; “available-for-sale”; “held-to-maturity”; or “loans and receivables”. The classification depends on the purpose for which the financial instruments were acquired and their characteristics. Except in very limited circumstances, the classification is not changed subsequent to initial recognition.

Fair Value through Profit or Loss

Financial assets at fair value through profit or loss are financial assets held-for-trading. A financial asset is classified in this category if acquired principally for the purpose of selling in the short-term or if so designated by Management. Financial assets classified at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value, with the realized and unrealized changes in fair value recognized each reporting period on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). No financial assets are classified as fair value through profit or loss.

Available-for-sale

Available-for-sale assets are non-derivative financial assets that are either designated in this category or not classified in any of the other categories. They are included in other non-current financial assets unless Management intends to dispose of the investment within twelve months of the consolidated statements of financial position date. Financial assets classified as available-for-sale are carried at fair value with the changes in fair value recorded in other comprehensive income (loss), except for investments in equity instruments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market which are measured at cost. Interest on available-for-sale assets is calculated using the effective interest rate method and is recognized in the net loss. When a decline in fair value is determined to be other-than-temporary, the cumulative loss included in accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) is removed and recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Gains and losses realized on disposal of available-for-sale securities are recognized in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Held-to-maturity and loans and receivables

Held-to-maturity financial assets are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments and fixed maturity that an entity has the intention and ability to hold to maturity. Loans and receivables are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments that are not quoted in an active market. They are included in current assets, except for those with maturities greater than twelve months after the consolidated statements of financial position date, which are classified as non-current assets. Financial instruments classified as held-to-maturity and loans and receivables are initially recorded at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. No financial assets are held-to- maturity. Cash and cash equivalents, restricted cash, receivable under finance lease, accounts receivable are classified as loans and receivables.

Impairment

At the end of each reporting period, the Corporation assesses whether a financial asset or a group of financial assets, other than those classified as fair value through profit and loss, is impaired. If there is objective evidence that impairment exists, the loss is recognized in the consolidated statements of comprehensive income (loss). The impairment loss is measured as the difference between the acquisition cost and the current fair value, less any impairment loss on that financial asset previously recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Financial Liabilities

Financial liabilities are classified as either “financial liabilities at fair value through profit or loss”, or “other financial liabilities”. Financial liabilities are initially measured at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest rate method for liabilities that are not hedged and fair value for liabilities that are hedged. All financial liabilities are classified as other liabilities.

Transaction costs

Transaction costs that are directly attributable to the acquisition or issuance of financial assets and financial liabilities (other than financial assets and financial liabilities that are classified as “Through Profit or Loss”) are added to or deducted from the fair value of the financial instrument on initial recognition. These costs are expensed to “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) over the term of the related financial asset or financial liability using the effective interest method. When a debt facility is retired by the Corporation, any remaining balance of related debt transaction costs is expensed to “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) in the period that the debt facility is retired. Transactions costs related to financial instruments at fair value through profit or loss are expensed when incurred.

Compound Financial Instruments

The Corporation’s compound financial instruments comprise of its non-convertible subordinated debentures that entitle the holder to receive a unit composed of one non-convertible debenture and 48 warrants. As a result the instrument is composed of one liability component and one equity component for the warrants. The liability component of the non-convertible debentures is recognized initially at the fair value of a similar liability that does not have an equity conversion option. The Corporation has determined the fair value of the liability component. Then, the proceeds were allocated between the liability and the equity components using the residual method. Any directly attributable transaction costs are allocated to the liability and the warrants in proportion to their initial carrying amounts.

Subsequent to initial recognition, the liability component of the convertible debentures is measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. The warrants are not re-measured subsequent to initial recognition.

Embedded derivatives

Derivatives may be embedded in other financial and non-financial instruments (the “host instrument”). Embedded derivatives are treated as separate derivatives when their economic characteristics and risks are not closely related to those of the host instrument, the terms of the embedded derivative are the same as those of a stand-alone derivative, and the combined contract is not held-for-trading or designated at fair value. These embedded derivatives are measured at fair value with subsequent changes recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). The Corporation has no embedded derivatives.

Determination of fair value

Fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. When measuring the fair value of an asset or a liability, the Corporation uses market observable data to the extent possible. If the fair value of an asset or a liability is not directly observable, it is estimated by the Corporation (working closely with external qualified valuers) using valuation techniques that maximize the use of relevant observable inputs and minimize the use of unobservable inputs (e.g. by use of the market comparable approach that reflects recent transaction prices for similar items, discounted cash flow analysis, or option pricing models refined to reflect the issuer’s specific circumstances). Inputs used are consistent with the characteristics of the asset / liability that market participants would take into account.

For the Corporation's financial instruments which are recognized in the statement of financial position at fair value, the inputs used in measuring fair values are classified in the following levels in the fair value hierarchy:

Level 1 – Quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities;

Level 2 – Inputs other than quoted prices included in Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly; and

Level 3 – Inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data.

Transfers between levels of the fair value hierarchy are recognised by the Corporation at the end of the reporting period during which the change occurred.

Comprehensive income (loss)

Comprehensive income (loss) is composed of the Corporation's net earnings (loss) and other comprehensive income (loss). Other comprehensive income (loss) includes unrealized effect of foreign currency translation of foreign operations net of income taxes. The components of comprehensive income (loss) are presented in the consolidated statements of changes in equity.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT INVESTMENT TAX CREDITS

The Corporation claims research and development investment tax credits as a result of incurring scientific research and experimental development expenditures. Research and development investment tax credits are recognized when the related expenditures are incurred, and there is reasonable assurance of their realization. Investment tax credits are accounted for by the cost reduction method, whereby the amounts of tax credits are applied as a reduction of the cost of the deferred development costs.

INVENTORY VALUATION

Inventories are priced at the lower of cost or net realizable value. Cost is determined on a weighted average basis. The cost of inventories comprises all costs of purchase and other costs incurred in bringing the inventory to its present location and condition. Raw materials and purchased finished goods are valued at purchase cost. Net realizable value represents the estimated selling price for inventory less all estimated costs necessary to make the sale.

PREPAID EXPENSES AND DEPOSITS

Prepaid expenses and deposits consist of amounts paid in advance or deposits made for which the Corporation will receive goods or services within the next normal operating cycle.

PROPERTY AND EQUIPMENT

Property and equipment which have a finite life are recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation and impairment losses. Depreciation is expensed from the month the corresponding assets are available for use over the estimated useful lives at the following rates, which are intended to reduce the carrying value to the estimated residual value:

Revenue-producing assets	Declining balance	20%
Machinery and equipment	Declining balance	20%
Furniture and fixtures	Declining balance	20%
Computer equipment	Declining balance	20%

INTANGIBLE ASSETS

Software	Declining balance	20%
Licenses	Straight-line	Over the term of licenses
Placement fee	Straight-line	Over the term of lease

ACQUISITION-RELATED INTANGIBLES

Software Technology	Straight-line	5 years
Customer Relationships	Straight-line	15 years

The depreciation method, useful life and residual values are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment, whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount may not be recoverable.

Upon retirement or disposal, the cost of the asset disposed of and the related accumulated amortization are removed from the accounts and any gain or loss is reflected in earnings. Expenditures for repairs and maintenance are expensed as incurred.

GOODWILL

Goodwill represents the excess of the purchase price over the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired in a business acquisition. After initial recognition, goodwill is measured at cost less any accumulated impairment losses.

Goodwill is reviewed for impairment at least annually or more frequently if circumstances such as significant declines in expected sales, earnings or cash flows indicate that it is more likely than not that the asset might be impaired.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

Research and development costs are expensed except in cases where development costs meet certain identifiable criteria for deferral. Development costs, which have probable future economic benefit, can be clearly defined and measured, and are incurred for the development of new products or technologies, are capitalized. These development costs net of related research and development investment tax credits are not amortized until the products or technologies are commercialized, at which time, they are amortized over the estimated life of the commercial production.

The amortization method and the life of the commercial production are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment.

IMPAIRMENT OF NON-CURRENT ASSETS

At the end of each reporting period, the carrying amounts of property and equipment and intangible assets with finite useful lives are assessed to determine if there is any evidence that an asset is impaired. If there is such evidence, the recoverable amount of the asset is estimated. The recoverable amount of intangible assets with indefinite useful lives or those are not ready for use is estimated on the same date each year.

The recoverable amount of an asset or a cash generating unit is the higher of value-in-use and fair value less costs to sell.

Assets that cannot be tested individually for the impairment test are grouped into the smallest group of assets that generates cash inflows through continued use that are largely independent of the cash inflows from other assets or groups of assets (“cash-generating unit” or “CGU”). For the impairment test of goodwill, goodwill has been allocated to one group of CGUs, so that the level at which the impairment is tested represents the lowest level at which Management monitors goodwill for internal Management purposes, in accordance with operating segment. Goodwill acquired in a business combination is allocated to the group of CGUs that is expected to benefit from synergies of the related business combination.

The Corporation's corporate assets do not generate separate cash flows. If there is evidence that a corporate asset is impaired, the recoverable amount is determined for the CGU to which the corporate asset belongs. Impairments are recorded when the carrying amount of an asset or its CGU is higher than its recoverable amount. Impairment charges are recognized in income or loss.

Impairment losses recognized for a CGU (or group of CGU) first reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to that CGU and then reduce the carrying amounts of the other assets of the CGU (or group of CGU) pro rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the CGU (or group of CGU).

An impairment loss recognized for goodwill may not be reversed. On each reporting date, the Corporation assesses if there is an indication that impairment losses recognized in previous periods for other assets have decreased or no longer exist. An impairment loss is reversed if there has been a change in the estimates used to determine the recoverable amount. The increased carrying amount of an asset attributable to a reversal of an impairment loss shall not exceed the carrying amount that would have been determined (net of amortization or depreciation) had no impairment loss been recognized.

TAXATION

Income tax expense represents the sum of current and deferred taxes. Current and deferred taxes are recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss), except to the extent it relates to items recognized in other comprehensive income (loss) or directly in equity.

Current tax

The tax currently payable is based on taxable income for the year. Taxable income differs from earnings as reported in the consolidated statements of comprehensive income (loss) because of items of income or expense that are taxable or deductible in other years and items that are never taxable or deductible. The Corporation's liability for current tax is calculated using tax rates that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the reporting period.

Deferred tax

Deferred tax is recognized on temporary differences between the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities in the financial statements and the corresponding tax bases used in the computation of taxable income. Deferred tax liabilities are generally recognized for all taxable temporary differences. Deferred tax assets are recognized for all deductible temporary differences to the extent that it is probable that taxable income will be available against which those deductible temporary differences can be utilized. Such deferred tax assets and liabilities are not recognized if the temporary difference arises from goodwill or from the initial recognition (other than in a business combination) of other assets and liabilities in a transaction that affects neither the taxable income nor the accounting earnings.

Deferred tax liabilities are recognized for taxable temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries and associates, except where the Corporation is able to control the reversal of the temporary difference and it is probable that the temporary difference will not reverse in the foreseeable future. Deferred tax assets arising from deductible temporary differences associated with such investments and interests are only recognized to the extent that it is probable that there will be sufficient taxable income against which to utilize the benefits of the temporary differences and they are expected to reverse in the foreseeable future.

The carrying amount of deferred tax assets is reviewed at the end of each reporting period and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable income will be available to allow all or part of the asset to be recovered.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply in the period in which the liability is settled or the asset is realized, based on tax rates and tax laws that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the reporting period. The measurement of deferred tax liabilities and assets reflects the tax consequences that would follow from the manner in which the Corporation expects, at the end of the reporting period, to recover or settle the carrying amount of its assets and liabilities.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are offset when there is a legally enforceable right to set off current tax assets against current tax liabilities and when they relate to income taxes levied by the same taxation authority and the Corporation intends to settle its current tax assets and liabilities on a net basis.

STOCK-BASED COMPENSATION

The Corporation has one share option plan and accounts for grants under this plan in accordance with the fair value-based method of accounting for stock-based compensation. Compensation expense for equity settled stock options awarded to employees under the plan is measured at the fair value at the grant date using the Black-Scholes valuation model and is recognized using the graded vesting method over the vesting period of the options granted. Compensation expense recognized is adjusted to reflect the number of options that has been estimated by Management for which conditions attaching to service will be fulfilled as of the grant date until the vesting date so that the ultimately recognize expense corresponds to the options that have actually vested. The compensation expense credit is attributed to contributed surplus when the expense is recognized in income or loss. When options are exercised or shares are purchased, any consideration received from employees as well as the related compensation cost recorded as contributed surplus are credited to share capital.

Non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the goods and services received, except where that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the fair value cannot be measured reliably, non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the equity instrument granted, measured at the date the entity obtains the goods or the counterparty renders the service. The Corporation subsequently measures non-employee equity- settled share-based payments at each vesting period and settlement date, with any changes in fair value recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Stock-based compensation expense is recognized over the contract life of the options or the option settlement date, whichever is earlier.

EARNINGS PER SHARE

Basic earnings per common share are computed by dividing the earnings for the period by the weighted average number of common shares outstanding during the period. Diluted earnings per share are computed using the treasury stock method by dividing the earnings for the period applicable to common shares by the sum of the weighted average number of common shares outstanding and all additional common shares that would have been outstanding if potentially dilutive common shares had been issued.

Dilutive earnings per share comprise of employee share-based compensation and broker warrants.

LEASES

The determination of whether an arrangement is or contains a lease is based on the substance of the arrangement and requires an assessment of whether the arrangement conveys a right to use the asset. When substantially all risks and rewards of ownership are transferred from the lessor to the lessee, lease transactions are accounted for as finance leases. All other leases are accounted for as operating leases.

Corporation is the lessee

Leases of assets classified as finance leases are presented in the consolidated statements of financial position according to their nature. The interest element of the lease payment is recognized over the term of the lease based on the effective interest rate method and is included in financial expense, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Payments made under operating leases are recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease.

PROVISIONS

Provisions represent liabilities to the Corporation for which the amount or timing is uncertain. Provisions are recognized when the Corporation has a present legal or constructive obligation as a result of past events, it is probable that an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation, and the amount can be reliably estimated. Provisions are measured at the present value of the expected expenditures required to settle the obligation using a discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the obligation. The increase in provisions due to the passage of time is recognized in “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Provisions are not recognized for future operating losses.

Provision for jackpot

Several of the Corporation’s licensees participate in progressive jackpot games. Each time a progressive jackpot game is played, a portion of the amount wagered by the player is contributed to the jackpot for that specific game or group of games. Once a jackpot is won, the progressive jackpot is reset with a predetermined base amount. The Corporation maintains a provision for the reset for each jackpot and the progressive element added as the jackpot game is played. The provision for jackpots at the reporting date is included in provisions (see note 19). The provision is sufficient to cover the full amount of any required payout.

Contingent consideration

The acquisition of Ongame includes contingent consideration of up to €10 million which will become payable by Amaya if there is regulated online gaming in the United States within five years of completion of the acquisition. The Corporation has estimated the contingent consideration to be approximately €4 million ($6.09 million CAD), of which (i) €0.67 million ($1.02 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) €0.66 million ($1.01 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities; and (iii) €2.67 million ($4.06 million CAD) was paid.

Provision for minimum revenue guarantee

The sale of WagerLogic Ltd. includes a minimum revenue guarantee agreement pursuant to which the vendor, in the first two years following the closing, may pay cash consideration if certain revenue targets are not achieved by the InterCasino Business. The Corporation has estimated a provision for the minimum revenue guarantee to be approximately USD$10.00 million ($11.05 million CAD), of which (i) USD$7.65 million ($8.46 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) (ii) USD $2.35 million ($2.59 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities.

ROYALTIES

The Corporation licenses various royalty rights from several owners of intellectual property rights. These rights are used to produce games for use in Hosted Casino and Branded Games. Generally, the arrangements require material prepayments of minimum guaranteed amounts which have been recorded as prepayments in the consolidated statements of financial position. These prepaid amounts are amortized over the life of the arrangement as gross revenue is generated or on a straight-line basis if the underlying games are expected to have an effective royalty rate greater than the agreed amount. The amortization of these amounts is recorded as royalty expense.

The Corporation regularly reviews its estimates of future revenues under its license arrangements.

CRITICAL ACCOUNTING ESTIMATES AND JUDGMENTS

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with IFRS requires Management to make estimates and assumptions that can have a significant effect on the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period.

Estimates and judgments are significant when:

- the outcome is highly uncertain at the time the estimates are made; or
- different estimates or judgments could reasonably have been used that would have had a material impact on the consolidated financial statements.

The consolidated financial statements include estimates based on currently available information and Management's judgment as to the outcome of future conditions and circumstances. Management uses historical experience, general economic conditions and trends, as well as assumptions regarding probable future outcomes as the basis for determining estimates.

Estimates and their underlying assumptions are reviewed on a regular basis and the effects of any changes are recognized immediately. Changes in the status of certain facts or circumstances could result in material changes to the estimates used in the preparation of the financial statements and actual results could differ from the estimates and assumptions.

The following areas require Management's most critical estimates and judgments.

ESTIMATES

Goodwill

The recoverable amount of the operating segment, representing the group of CGUs to which goodwill is allocated, is based on the higher of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. The recoverable amount was calculated as at March 31, 2014, based on fair value less costs to sell. The fair value less cost to sell is the amount for which the CGU could be exchanged between knowledgeable willing parties in an arm's length transaction, less cost to sell. Management undertakes an assessment of relevant market data, which is the market capitalization of the Corporation and in addition uses a discounted cash flow model. Estimated future cash flows for the first five years were based on the budget and strategic plans. A growth rate of 2.5% was applied to the last year of the strategic plan to derive estimated cash flows beyond the initial five-year period. The post-tax discount rate is also a key estimate in the discounted cash flow model and is based on a representative weighted average cost of capital. The pre-tax discount rate used to calculate the recoverable amount as at March 31, 2014, was 12.00%. As at March 31, 2014, there was no need for impairment.

Impairment of other long-lived assets

The determination of other long-lived asset impairment requires significant estimates and assumptions to determine the recoverable amount of an asset and/or CGU, wherein the recoverable amount is the higher of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. The value in use method involves estimating the net present value of future cash flows derived from the use of the asset and/or CGU, discounted at an appropriate rate.

The key assumptions utilized in the determination of future cash flows represent Management's best estimate of the range of economic conditions relating to the CGU, and are based on historical experience, economic trends, and communications with other key stakeholders of the Corporation. These key assumptions include the revenue growth rate, EBITDA[1] margin as a percentage of revenues, capital expenditures as a percentage of revenues, and the inflation growth rate. Significant changes in the key assumptions utilized in the determination of future cash flows could result in an impairment charge or reversal of an impairment loss. As at March 31, 2014 and March 31, 2013, there was no need for an impairment charge.

Stock-based compensation and warrants

The Corporation estimates the expense related to stock-based compensation and the value of warrants using the Black-Scholes valuation model. The model takes into account Management's best estimate of the exercise price of the stock option/warrant, an estimate of the expected life of the option/warrant, the current price of the underlying stock, an estimate of the stock's/warrant's volatility, an estimate of future dividends on the underlying stock/warrant, the risk-free rate of return expected for an instrument with a term equal to the expected life of the option/warrant, and the expected forfeiture rate of stock options granted (see note 24).

Inventory write-down

Periodical reviews of the inventory are performed for excess inventory, obsolescence and declines in net realizable value below cost and allowances are recorded against the inventory balance for any such declines. The Corporation writes down the value of ending inventory for obsolete and unmarketable inventory equal to the difference between the cost of inventory and the net realizable value. These reviews require Management to estimate future demand for products and evaluate market conditions. Possible changes in these estimates could result in a write-down of inventory. If actual market conditions are less favourable than those projected, additional inventory write-downs may be required.

Research and development investment tax credits

Management has made a number of estimates and assumptions in determining the expenditures eligible for the research and development investment tax credit claim. Tax credits are available based on eligible research and development expenses consisting of direct expenditures and including a reasonable allocation of overhead expenses. It is possible that the allowed amount of the research and development investment tax credit claim could be materially different from the recorded amount upon assessment by the Canada Revenue Agency, the Minister of Revenue of Quebec and Alberta Finance.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are due to temporary differences between the carrying amount for accounting purposes and the tax basis of certain assets and liabilities, as well as undeducted tax losses. Estimation is required for the timing of the reversal of these temporary differences and the tax rate applied. The carrying amounts of assets and liabilities are based on amounts recorded in the financial statements and are subject to the accounting estimates inherent in those balances. The tax basis of assets and liabilities and the amount of undeducted tax losses are based on the applicable income tax legislation, regulations and interpretations. The timing of the reversal of the temporary differences and the timing of deduction of tax losses are based on estimations of the Corporation's future financial results.

The Corporation recognizes an income tax expense in each of the jurisdictions in which it operates. However, actual amounts of income tax expense only become final upon filing and acceptance of the tax return by the relevant authorities, which occur subsequent to the issuance of the financial statements. Additionally, estimation of income taxes includes evaluating the recoverability of deferred tax assets based on an assessment of the ability to use the underlying future tax deductions before they expire against future taxable income.

1 EBITDA as defined by the Corporation means earnings before interest and financing costs (net of interest income), income taxes, depreciation and amortization, stock-based compensation, restructuring and other non-recurring costs, and non-controlling interests. EBITDA is a non-IFRS measure.

The assessment is based upon enacted or substantively enacted tax laws and estimates of future taxable income. To the extent estimates differ from the actual amounts determined when preparing the final tax returns, earnings would be affected in a subsequent period. As at March 31, 2014 a valuation allowance of $4,829,460 (2013 – $4,067,955) was recorded.

Changes in the expected operating results, enacted tax rates, legislation or regulations, and the Corporation's interpretations of income tax legislation, will result in adjustments to the expectations of future timing difference reversals, and may require material deferred tax adjustments. To the extent that forecasts differ from actual results, adjustments are recognized in subsequent periods.

Contingent consideration

The acquisition of Ongame includes contingent consideration of up to €10 million which will become payable by Amaya if there is regulated online gaming in the United States within five years of completion of the acquisition. The Corporation has estimated the contingent consideration to be approximately €4 million ($6.09 million CAD), of which (i) €0.67 million ($1.02 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) €0.66 million ($1.01 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities; and (iii) €2.67 million ($4.06 million CAD) was paid.

Provision for minimum revenue guarantee

The sale of WagerLogic Ltd. includes a minimum revenue guarantee agreement pursuant to which the vendor, in the first two years following the closing, may pay cash consideration if certain revenue targets are not achieved by the InterCasino Business. The Corporation has estimated a provision for the minimum revenue guarantee to be approximately USD$10.00 million ($11.05 million CAD), of which (i) USD$7.65 million ($8.46 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) (ii) USD $2.35 million ($2.59 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities.

JUDGMENTS

Finance leases

Judgement is required in the initial classification of leases as either operating leases or finance leases and, in respect of finance leases, determining the appropriate discount rate implicit in the lease to discount minimum lease payments. The useful life of the leased property is determined by Management at the inception of the lease. The useful life is based on historical experience with similar products as well as anticipation of future events, which may impact their useful economic life, such as changes in technology. The estimated fair values established at lease inception is periodically reviewed to determine if values are realizable, which depends on the credit risk of the lessee, market conditions and other subjective and qualitative factors.

Deferred Development Costs

Amounts capitalized include the total cost of any external products or services and labour costs directly attributable to development. Management's judgement is involved in determining the appropriate internal costs to capital i.e. The useful life represents Management's view of the expected period over which the Corporation will receive benefits from the software based on historical experience with similar products as well as anticipation of future events, which may impact their useful economic life, such as changes in technology.

Estimated useful lives of long-lived assets

Judgment is used to estimate each component of an asset's useful life and is based on an analysis of all pertinent factors including, but not limited to, the expected use of the asset and in the case of an intangible asset, contractual provisions that enable renewal or extension of the asset's legal or contractual life without substantial cost, and renewal history. If the estimated useful lives were incorrect, this could result in an increase or decrease in the annual amortization expense, and future impairment charges.

Change in Accounting Policies

Interests in Other Entities

The Corporation have adopted the following five standards applying to interests in other entities as at January 1, 2013:

IFRS 10, Consolidated Financial Statements;

IFRS 11, Joint Arrangements;

IFRS 12, Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities;

IAS 27, Separate Financial Statements (as amended in 2011); and

IAS 28, Investments in Associates and Joint Ventures (as amended in 2011).

IFRS 10 builds on existing principles by identifying the concept of control as the determining factor in whether an entity should be included within the consolidated financial statements of the parent company. The standard provides additional guidance to assist in the determination of control where this is difficult to assess.

IFRS 11 is intended to provide for a more realistic reflection of joint arrangements by focusing on the contractual rights and obligations of the arrangement, rather than its legal form. The standard addresses inconsistencies in the reporting of joint arrangements by establishing principles that are applicable to the accounting for all joint arrangements.

IFRS 12 is a new standard on disclosure requirements for all forms of interests in other entities, including joint arrangements, associates, special purpose vehicles, and other off-balance-sheet vehicles.

The IASB also issued Consolidated Financial Statements, Joint Arrangements and Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities: Transition Guidance (Amendments to IFRS 10, IFRS 11 and IFRS 12). The amendments clarify the transition guidance in IFRS 10, Consolidated Financial Statements and also provide additional transition relief in IFRS 10, IFRS 11, Joint Arrangements and IFRS 12, Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities.

IAS 27, as amended in 2011, contains accounting and disclosure requirements for investments in subsidiaries, joint ventures, and associates when an entity prepares separate financial statements. The standard requires an entity preparing separate financial statements to account for those investments at cost or in accordance with IFRS 9, Financial Instruments.

IAS 28, as amended in 2011, prescribes the accounting for investments in associates and sets out the requirements for the application of the equity method when accounting for investments in associates and joint ventures.

The adoption of these new IFRS pronouncements had no material impact on the measurement of the consolidated financial statements. However, application of IFRS 12 has resulted in more extensive disclosures in the consolidated financial statements.

IFRS 13, Fair Value Measurement

The Corporation adopted IFRS 13, Fair Value Measurement ("IFRS 13") with prospective application from January 1, 2013. IFRS 13 defines fair value, sets out a single IFRS framework for measuring fair value and outlines disclosure requirements for fair value measurements.

IFRS 13 defined fair value as the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. Fair value is a market-based measurement, not an entity-specific measurement, so assumptions that market participants would use should be applied in measuring fair value.

The adoption of IFRS 13 did not have an effect on our consolidated financial statements for the current period. The disclosure requirements of IFRS 13 are incorporated in the consolidated financial statements. This includes disclosures about fair values of financial assets and liabilities measured on a recurring basis and non-financial financial assets and liabilities measured on a non-recurring basis. Disclosures about assumptions used in calculating the fair value of assets classified as held for sale are included in the consolidated financial statements (note 11).

IAS 1, Presentation of Financial Statements

The Corporation adopted the amendments to IAS 1, Presentation of Financial Statements ("IAS 1") on January 1, 2013, with retrospective application. The amendments to IAS 1 require companies preparing financial statements under IFRS to group items within other comprehensive income that may be reclassified to profit and loss and those that will not be reclassified. Since there are is only one other comprehensive income item within our statement of comprehensive income (loss), there is no net impact on the presentation of our statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Recent Accounting Pronouncements

OFFSETTING FINANCIAL ASSETS AND FINANCIAL LIABILITIES (AMENDMENTS TO IAS 32)

Effective for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014, on a retrospective basis. Early application is permitted. If an entity applies this amendment earlier than required, it shall disclose that fact and shall also make the disclosures required by Disclosures—Offsetting Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities (Amendments to IFRS 7) issued in December 2011.

The Corporation has not yet assessed the impact of the adoption of this standard on its consolidated financial statements.

RECOVERABLE AMOUNT DISCLOSURES FOR NON-FINANCIAL ASSETS: AMENDMENTS TO IAS 36

The IASB has published Recoverable Amount Disclosures for Non-Financial Assets (Amendments to IAS 36). These narrow-scope amendments to IAS 36, Impairment of Assets, address the disclosure of information about the recoverable amount of impaired assets if that amount is based on fair value less costs of disposal.

The amendments are to be applied retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014. Earlier application is permitted for periods when the entity has already applied IFRS 13.

IFRS 9, FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

The IASB issued the chapters of IFRS 9 relating to the classification and measurement of financial assets. IFRS 9 uses a single approach to determine whether a financial asset is measured at amortized cost or fair value, replacing the many different rules in IAS 39. The approach in IFRS 9 is based on how an entity manages its financial instruments (its business model) and the contractual cash flow characteristics of the financial assets.

The IASB also issued additions to IFRS 9 to address the problem of volatility in profit or loss arising from an issuer choosing to measure its own debt at fair value (i.e., the "own credit" problem). With the new requirements, an entity choosing to measure a liability at fair value will present the portion of the change in its fair value due to change in the entity's own credit risk in the other comprehensive income section of the income statement (no longer recognized in profit or loss). Entities are allowed to apply this change before applying any of the other requirements in IFRS 9.

The IASB also published a new hedge accounting model, together with corresponding disclosures about risk management activity for those applying hedge accounting. The new model represents a substantial overhaul of hedge accounting that will enable entities to better reflect their risk management activities in their financial statements. The most significant improvements apply to those that hedge non-financial risk. As a result of these changes, users of the financial statements will be provided with better information about risk management and about the effect of hedge accounting on the financial statements.

Because the impairment phase of the IFRS 9 project has not yet been completed, the IASB decided to temporarily remove the mandatory effective date of IFRS 9 while continuing to make it available for earlier application. The hedge accounting chapter of IFRS 9 will not however be available for earlier application by those entities reporting under Canadian GAAP until the necessary due process, translation and publication processes have been completed by the AcSB

The Corporation's commitments under lease agreements for premises, hardware support contracts, and purchase obligations aggregate to approximately $21,179,000. The minimum annual payments are as follows:

Within one year	11,075,000
Later than one year but not later than 5 years	9,991,000
More than 5 years	113,000

OUTSTANDING SHARE DATA

As at May 15, 2014, the Corporation had a total of 94,205,770 common shares issued and outstanding, 5,626,392 options issued under the Corporation's stock option plan, and 6,589,470 share purchase warrants issued and outstanding.

BUSINESS RISKS AND UNCERTAINTIES

The Corporation operates in a rapidly changing environment that involves numerous risks and uncertainties, many of which are beyond Amaya's control and which could have a material effect on Amaya's business, revenue, operating results and financial condition.

Each of these risk factors could materially adversely affect the Corporation's business, revenue, operating results and financial condition, as well as materially adversely affect the value of an investment in the securities of the Corporation.

The Corporation's current principal risks and uncertainties as identified by Management are described below:

- The manufacture and distribution of gaming solutions is subject to extensive scrutiny and regulation at all levels of government;
- Online, social, casual and mobile gaming is a relatively new industry that continues to evolve. The success of this industry and Amaya's online business will be affected by future developments in social networks, mobile platforms, legal or regulatory developments which are beyond Amaya's control;
- The Corporation and its licensees are subject to applicable laws in the jurisdictions in which they operate and future legislative and court decisions may have a material impact on operations and financial results;
- The Corporation's Native American tribal customers that operate Class II games under the IGRA are subject to regulation by the NIGC. Any changes in regulations could cause the Corporation to modify its Class II games to comply with the new regulations, which may result in the Corporation's products becoming less competitive;
- Any license, permit, approval or finding of suitability may be revoked, suspended or conditioned at any time. The loss of a license in one jurisdiction could trigger the loss of a license or affect Amaya's eligibility for a license in another jurisdiction;
- There are significant barriers to entry to the market for the Corporation's solutions and if the Corporation is unable to overcome the barriers to entry, it will materially affect its results of operations and future prospects;
- There is intense competition amongst gaming solution providers. If the Corporation is unable to obtain significant early market presence or it loses market share to its competitors, it will materially affect its results of operations and future prospects;
- The ability of the Corporation to complete announced acquisitions and divestitures. The risks associated with these acquisitions and divestitures could have a material adverse effect upon the Corporation's business, financial condition and operating results;
- The markets for the Corporation's solutions are characterized by rapidly changing technology, evolving industry standards and increasingly sophisticated customer requirements. The Corporation's inability to develop solutions that are competitive in technology and price and that meet customer needs could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, financial condition and results of operations;
- A significant portion of Amaya's operations are conducted in foreign jurisdictions. As such, Amaya's operations may be adversely affected by changes in foreign government policies and legislation or social instability and other factors which are not within the control of Amaya;
- The Corporation holds patents, trademarks and other intellectual property rights. The Corporation has also applied for patent protection in the United States, Canada and Europe, relating to certain existing and proposed processes, designs and methods. If the Corporation is denied any or all of these patents, it may not be able to successfully prevent its competitors from imitating its solutions or using some or all of the processes that are the subject of such patent applications;
- The sales cycle for the Corporation's products and services is variable, typically ranging from between a few weeks to several months and in some cases even longer, from the point of initial contact with a potential customer to the actual completion of a sale. If any events were to occur that affect the timing of the order, the sales of the Corporation's solutions or services may be cancelled or delayed, which would reduce the Corporation's revenue;

- The Corporation depends on the services of its executive officers as well as its key technical, sales, marketing and management personnel. The loss of any of these key persons could have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, results of operations and financial condition;
- The Corporation's solutions are complex and, accordingly, they may contain defects or errors, particularly when first introduced or as new versions are released. Defects and errors in the Corporation's solutions could materially and adversely affect the Corporation's reputation, result in significant costs to it, delay planned release dates and impair its ability to sell its products in the future;
- The Corporation incorporates security features into the design of its gaming machines and other systems which are designed to prevent the Corporation and its customers from being defrauded. If the Corporation's security systems fail to prevent fraud, the Corporation's operating results could be adversely affected;
- A substantial portion of the Corporation's revenue is earned in U.S. dollars and Euros, but a substantial portion of the Corporation's operating expenses are incurred in Canadian and U.S. dollars. Fluctuations in the exchange rate between the U.S. dollar, the Euro and other currencies, such as the Canadian dollar, may have a material adverse effect on the Corporation's business, financial condition and operating results;
- The Corporation has experienced and expects to continue to experience rapid growth in the Corporation's headcount and operations, placing significant demands on its operational and financial infrastructure. If the Corporation does not effectively manage its growth, its ability to develop and market its solutions could suffer, which could negatively affect its operating results;
- Contract awards by lottery authorities are sometimes challenged by unsuccessful bidders, which can result in costly and protracted legal proceedings that can result in delayed implementation or cancellation of the award. Further, there can be no assurance that the current contracts of Amaya will be extended or that Amaya will be awarded new contracts as a result of competitive bidding processes in the future;
- Some of the Corporation's licensees rely on Internet service providers to allow the Corporation's licensees' customers and servers to communicate with each other. If Internet service providers experience service interruptions, communications over the Internet may be interrupted and impair the Corporation's ability to carry on business. Further, there can be no assurance that the Internet infrastructure or the Corporation's own network systems will continue to be able to meet the demand placed on it by the continued growth of the Internet, the overall online gaming industry or of the Corporation's customers;
- Any disruption in the Corporation's network or telecommunications services could affect the Corporation's ability to operate its games or financial systems, which would result in reduced revenues and customer down time;
- In addition to regulations pertaining to the gaming industry in general and specifically to online gaming, the Corporation may become subject to any number of laws and regulations that may be adopted with respect to the Internet and electronic commerce. These laws could have a material adverse effect on Amaya's business, revenues, operating results and financial condition;
- The Corporation's ability to make scheduled payments on or to refinance its debt obligations and to make distributions to enable it to service its debt obligations depends on its financial and operating performance. If the Corporation's cash flows and capital resources are insufficient to fund its debt service obligations, it may be forced to reduce or delay activities and capital expenditures, sell assets, seek additional capital, or restructure or refinance its indebtedness;

- As a supplier of gaming solutions, the Corporation must continually offer themes and products that appeal to gaming operators and players. The Corporation's success depends in part on unpredictable and volatile factors that are beyond its control, such as customer preferences, competing games, travel activity and the availability of other entertainment activities;
- The Corporation is heavily dependent on the gaming industry. A decline in demand for the Corporation's products in the gaming industry could adversely affect its business;
- From time to time, Amaya may be subject to litigation claims through the ordinary course of its business operations which could result in substantial costs and diversion of Amaya's resources. This could cause a material adverse effect on its business, financial condition and results of operations;

A more comprehensive list of the risks and uncertainties affecting Amaya can be found in its most recent Annual Information Form filed with the Canadian Securities Regulatory Authorities at www.sedar.com, and investors are urged to consult such risk factors.

The total transaction costs of the offering, including underwriter’s compensation, amounted to $2,514,756.

3. Summary of significant accounting policies

BASIS OF PRESENTATION

These consolidated financial statements, including comparatives, have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards (“IFRS”) as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board (“IASB”) and interpretations of the International Financial Reporting Standards Interpretations Committee (“IFRIC”).

These consolidated financial statements were prepared on a going concern basis, under the historical cost convention, except for the revaluation of certain financial instruments.

PRINCIPLES OF CONSOLIDATION

A subsidiary is an entity controlled by the Corporation, i.e. the Corporation is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with the entity and has the ability to affect those returns through its current ability to direct the entity's relevant activities (power over the investee).

The existence and effect of substantive potential voting rights that the Corporation has the practical ability to exercise (i.e. substantive rights) are considered when assessing whether the Corporation controls another entity.

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries. A wholly owned subsidiary is an entity over which the Corporation has control, where control is defined as the power to govern financial and operating policies. On consolidation, all significant inter-entity transactions and balances have been eliminated. As at June 30, 2014, the consolidated financial statements included 58 wholly owned subsidiaries.

Upon loss of control of a subsidiary, the Corporation's profit or loss is calculated as the difference between (i) the fair value of the consideration received and of any investment retained in the former subsidiary and (ii) the previous carrying amount of the assets (including any goodwill) and liabilities of the subsidiary and any non-controlling interests.

ASSOCIATES

Associates are entities over which the Corporation has the power to participate in the financial and operating policy decisions of the entity, but which is not control or joint control. Associates are accounted for using the equity method of accounting.

Under the equity method, the investment is initially recognised at cost and adjusted thereafter for the post-acquisition change in the investor's share of comprehensive income of the associate. On acquisition of the investment, any difference between the cost of the investment and the investor's share of the net fair value of the associate's identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities is accounted for in accordance with IFRS 3 Business Combinations. The goodwill (net of any accumulated impairment loss) relating to an investment in an associate is included within the carrying amount of that investment.

The Corporation's share of its associates' post-acquisition profits or losses is recognised in the statement of profit or loss, and its share of post-acquisition movements in other comprehensive income is recognised in other comprehensive income. The cumulative post-acquisition movements are adjusted against the carrying amount of the investment. Distributions received from an investee reduce the carrying amount of the investment.

If the Corporation's share of losses of an associate equals or exceeds its interest in the associate, the Corporation does not provide for additional losses, unless it has incurred obligations or made payments on behalf of the associate. Profits / losses on Corporation transactions with associates are eliminated to the extent of the Corporation's interest in the relevant associate.

NON-CURRENT ASSETS HELD FOR SALE

Non-current assets that are expected to be recovered primarily through sale rather than through continuing use are classified as held for sale. Immediately before classification as held for sale, the assets are re-measured at net book value less impairment loss. Assets held for sale are measured at the lower of their carrying amounts or their fair value less costs to sell and are no longer depreciated. Impairment losses on initial classification as held for sale and subsequent gains or losses on re-measurement are recognized in profit or loss. Gains are not recognized in excess of any cumulative impairment loss.

REVENUE RECOGNITION

Revenue is recognized when all the following criteria are met:

- the Corporation has transferred to the buyer the significant risks and rewards;
- the amount of revenue can be reliably measured;
- it is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transaction will flow to the Corporation; and
- the costs incurred or to be incurred in respect of the transaction can be reliably measured.

Multiple-element revenue arrangements

Certain contracts of the Corporation include license fees, training, installation, consulting, maintenance, product support services and periodic upgrades.

Where such agreements exist, the amount of revenue allocated to each element is based upon the relative fair values of the various elements. The fair values of each element are determined based on current market price of each of the elements when sold separately. Revenue is only recognized when, in Management's judgment, the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred or when the obligation has been fulfilled.

In addition to the aforementioned general policies, the following are the specific revenue recognition policies for each major category of revenue:

Product Sales

Revenue from product sales is generally recognized when the product is shipped to the customer and when there are no unfulfilled Corporation obligations that affect the customer's final acceptance of the arrangement. Any cost of warranties and remaining obligations that are inconsequential or perfunctory are accrued when the corresponding revenue is recognized.

Participation leases and arrangements

In contracts that stipulate profit sharing arrangements, revenues are earned based on revenue splits established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. Revenues are recognized when performance has been achieved and collectability is reasonably assured.

Software Licensing

Typically, license fees, including fees from master license agreements, most of which are contingent upon licensee's customer usage, are calculated as a percentage of each licensee's level of activity. The percentage is as established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. The Corporation only reports its revenues (as opposed to licensee's total revenues and deducting licensee's percentage as a cost). The license fees are recognized on an accrual basis as earned.

Hosted Casino

Revenues from Hosted Casino are recognized as the services are performed, on a daily basis, at the time of the gambling transactions.

Lease revenues

In the course of its normal business the Corporation enters into lease agreements for its gaming equipment.

Assets subject to finance leases are initially recognized at an amount equal to the net investment in the lease, which is the fair value of the asset, or, if lower, the present value of the minimum lease payments. Revenue is recognized on the basis of policy for product sales. Finance income is subsequently recognized over the term of the applicable leases based on the effective interest rate method. Finance income is grouped with the revenues, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Assets under operating leases are included in property and equipment. Lease income from operating leases is recognized on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease and is included in revenues, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

TRANSLATION OF FOREIGN OPERATIONS AND FOREIGN CURRENCY TRANSACTIONS

Functional and presentation currency

IAS 21 (‘‘Effects of Changes in Foreign Currency Rates’’) requires entities to consider primary and secondary indicators when determining the functional currency. Primary indicators are closely linked to the primary economic environment in which the entity operates and are given more weight. Secondary indicators provide supporting evidence to determine an entity’s functional currency. Once the functional currency of an entity is determined, it should be used consistently, unless significant changes in economic facts, events and conditions indicate that the functional currency has changed.

A change in functional currency is accounted for prospectively from the date of change by translating all items into the new functional currency using the exchange rate at the date of change.

Based on an analysis of the primary and secondary indicators, the functional currency of each of the group’s entities have been determined. These consolidated financial statements are presented in Canadian dollars, which in the opinion of Management is the most appropriate presentation currency in view of its operations in the global marketplace, user needs and a comparison with its major competitors.

Transactions and balances

Foreign currency transactions are translated into the functional currency using the exchange rates prevailing at the dates of the transactions or valuation where items are re-measured. Foreign exchange gains and losses resulting from the settlement of such transactions and from the translation at year-end exchange rates of monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are recognized in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Group companies

Each foreign operation determines its own functional currency and items included in the financial statements of each foreign operation are measured using that functional currency.

The results and financial position of all the group entities that have a functional currency different from the presentation currency are translated into the presentation currency as follows:

(i) assets and liabilities for each balance sheet presented are translated at the closing rate at the date of that balance sheet;

(ii) income and expenses for each statement of comprehensive income (loss) are translated at average exchange rates (unless this average is not a reasonable approximation of the cumulative effect of the rates prevailing on the transaction dates, in which case income and expenses are translated at the rate on the dates of the transactions); and

(iii) all resulting exchange differences are recognized in other comprehensive income (loss).

The following functional currencies are referred to herein below:

Currency Symbol	Currency Description
CAD	Canadian Dollar
USD	United States Dollar
EUR	European Euro
GBP	Pound Sterling
MXN	Mexican Peso
SEK	Swedish Krona

BUSINESS COMBINATION

Business combinations are accounted for using the acquisition method. Under this method, the identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed, including contingent liabilities, are recognized, regardless of whether they have been previously recognized in the acquiree's financial statements prior to the acquisition. On initial recognition, the assets and liabilities of the acquired subsidiary are included in the consolidated statement of financial position at their fair values. Goodwill is recorded when the identifiable intangible assets have been determined. Goodwill is the excess of the fair value of the consideration transferred over the fair value of the Corporation's share in the acquiree's net identifiable assets on the date of acquisition. Any excess of the identifiable net assets over the consideration transferred is recognized in income immediately.

The consideration transferred by the Corporation to acquire control of a subsidiary is calculated as the sum of the acquisition-date fair values of the assets transferred, liabilities incurred and equity interests issued by the Corporation, including the fair value of all the assets and liabilities resulting from a contingent consideration arrangement. Acquisition related costs are expensed as incurred.

OPERATING SEGMENTS

Currently the Corporation has only one operating segment, Diversified Gaming Solutions. The Corporation's operating segment is organized around the markets it serves and is reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting provided to the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, the Corporation's chief operating decision-maker. An operating segment is a component of the Corporation that engages in business activities from which it may earn revenues and incur expenses, including revenues and expenses relating to transactions with other components of the Corporation.

Segmental information is reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting to the chief operating decision-makers. On the basis that the Group's activities are operated largely through a common infrastructure and support function the business segment information is not reported below the revenue level. Similarly no measure of segment assets is given due to the highly integrated nature of the Group's operations.

FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

Financial assets

Financial assets are initially recognized at fair value and are classified either as "fair value through profit and loss"; "available-for-sale"; "held-to-maturity"; or "loans and receivables". The classification depends on the purpose for which the financial instruments were acquired and their characteristics. Except in very limited circumstances, the classification is not changed subsequent to initial recognition.

Fair Value through Profit or Loss

Financial assets at fair value through profit or loss are financial assets held-for-trading. A financial asset is classified in this category if acquired principally for the purpose of selling in the short-term or if so designated by Management. Financial assets classified at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value, with the realized and unrealized changes in fair value recognized each reporting period on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). No financial assets are classified as fair value through profit or loss.

Available-for-sale

Available-for-sale assets are non-derivative financial assets that are either designated in this category or not classified in any of the other categories. They are included in other non-current financial assets unless Management intends to dispose of the investment within twelve months of the consolidated statements of financial position date. Financial assets classified as available-for-sale are carried at fair value with the changes in fair value recorded in other comprehensive income (loss), except for investments in equity instruments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market which are measured at cost. Interest on available-for-sale assets is calculated using the effective interest rate method and is recognized in the net loss. When a decline in fair value is determined to be other-than-temporary, the cumulative loss included in accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) is removed and recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Gains and losses realized on disposal of available-for-sale securities are recognized in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Held-to-maturity and loans and receivables

Held-to-maturity financial assets are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments and fixed maturity that an entity has the intention and ability to hold to maturity. Loans and receivables are non-derivative financial assets with fixed or determinable payments that are not quoted in an active market. They are included in current assets, except for those with maturities greater than twelve months after the consolidated statements of financial position date, which are classified as non-current assets. Financial instruments classified as held-to-maturity and loans and receivables are initially recorded at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. No financial assets are held-to-maturity. Cash and cash equivalents, restricted cash, receivable under finance lease, accounts receivable are classified as loans and receivables.

Impairment

At the end of each reporting period, the Corporation assesses whether a financial asset or a group of financial assets, other than those classified as fair value through profit and loss, is impaired. If there is objective evidence that impairment exists, the loss is recognized in the consolidated statements of comprehensive income (loss). The impairment loss is measured as the difference between the acquisition cost and the current fair value, less any impairment loss on that financial asset previously recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Financial Liabilities

Financial liabilities are classified as either “financial liabilities at fair value through profit or loss”, or “other financial liabilities”. Financial liabilities are initially measured at fair value and subsequently measured at amortized cost using the effective interest rate method for liabilities that are not hedged and fair value for liabilities that are hedged. All financial liabilities are classified as other liabilities.

Transaction costs

Transaction costs that are directly attributable to the acquisition or issuance of financial assets and financial liabilities (other than financial assets and financial liabilities that are classified as “Through Profit or Loss”) are added to or deducted from the fair value of the financial instrument on initial recognition. These costs are expensed to “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) over the term of the related financial asset or financial liability using the effective interest method. When a debt facility is retired by the Corporation, any remaining balance of related debt transaction costs is expensed to “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) in the period that the debt facility is retired. Transactions costs related to financial instruments at fair value through profit or loss are expensed when incurred.

Compound Financial Instruments

The Corporation’s compound financial instruments comprise of its non-convertible subordinated debentures that entitle the holder to receive a unit composed of one non-convertible debenture and 48 warrants. As a result the instrument is composed of one liability component and one equity component for the warrants. The liability component of the non-convertible debentures is recognized initially at the fair value of a similar liability that does not have an equity conversion option. The Corporation has determined the fair value of the liability component. Then, the proceeds were allocated between the liability and the equity components using the residual method. Any directly attributable transaction costs are allocated to the liability and the warrants in proportion to their initial carrying amounts.

Subsequent to initial recognition, the liability component of the convertible debentures is measured at amortized cost using the effective interest method. The warrants are not re-measured subsequent to initial recognition.

Embedded derivatives

Derivatives may be embedded in other financial and non-financial instruments (the “host instrument”). Embedded derivatives are treated as separate derivatives when their economic characteristics and risks are not closely related to those of the host instrument, the terms of the embedded derivative are the same as those of a stand-alone derivative, and the combined contract is not held-for-trading or designated at fair value. These embedded derivatives are measured at fair value with subsequent changes recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). The Corporation has no embedded derivatives.

Determination of fair value

Fair value is the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. When measuring the fair value of an asset or a liability, the Corporation uses market observable data to the extent possible. If the fair value of an asset or a liability is not directly observable, it is estimated by the Corporation (working closely with external qualified valuers) using valuation techniques that maximize the use of relevant observable inputs and minimize the use of unobservable inputs (e.g. by use of the market comparable approach that reflects recent transaction prices for similar items, discounted cash flow analysis, or option pricing models refined to reflect the issuer’s specific circumstances). Inputs used are consistent with the characteristics of the asset / liability that market participants would take into account.

For the Corporation’s financial instruments which are recognized in the statement of financial position at fair value, the inputs used in measuring fair values are classified in the following levels in the fair value hierarchy:

Level 1 – Quoted prices (unadjusted) in active markets for identical assets or liabilities;

Level 2 – Inputs other than quoted prices included in Level 1 that are observable for the asset or liability, either directly or indirectly; and

Level 3 – Inputs for the asset or liability that are not based on observable market data.

Transfers between levels of the fair value hierarchy are recognised by the Corporation at the end of the reporting period during which the change occurred.

Comprehensive income (loss)

Comprehensive income (loss) is composed of the Corporation's net earnings (loss) and other comprehensive income (loss). Other comprehensive income (loss) includes unrealized effect of foreign currency translation of foreign operations net of income taxes. The components of comprehensive income (loss) are presented in the consolidated statements of changes in equity.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT INVESTMENT TAX CREDITS

The Corporation claims research and development investment tax credits as a result of incurring scientific research and experimental development expenditures. Research and development investment tax credits are recognized when the related expenditures are incurred, and there is reasonable assurance of their realization. Investment tax credits are accounted for by the cost reduction method, whereby the amounts of tax credits are applied as a reduction of the cost of the deferred development costs.

INVENTORY VALUATION

Inventories are priced at the lower of cost or net realizable value. Cost is determined on a weighted average basis. The cost of inventories comprises all costs of purchase and other costs incurred in bringing the inventory to its present location and condition. Raw materials and purchased finished goods are valued at purchase cost. Net realizable value represents the estimated selling price for inventory less all estimated costs necessary to make the sale.

PREPAID EXPENSES AND DEPOSITS

Prepaid expenses and deposits consist of amounts paid in advance or deposits made for which the Corporation will receive goods or services within the next normal operating cycle.

PROPERTY AND EQUIPMENT

Property and equipment which have a finite life are recorded at cost less accumulated depreciation and impairment losses. Depreciation is expensed from the month the corresponding assets are available for use over the estimated useful lives at the following rates, which are intended to reduce the carrying value to the estimated residual value:

Revenue-producing assets	Declining balance	20%
Machinery and equipment	Declining balance	20%
Furniture and fixtures	Declining balance	20%
Computer equipment	Declining balance	20%

INTANGIBLE ASSETS

Software	Declining balance	20%
Licenses	Straight-line	Over the term of licenses
Placement fee	Straight-line	Over the term of lease

ACQUISITION-RELATED INTANGIBLES

Software Technology	Straight-line	5 years
Customer Relationships	Straight-line	15 years

The depreciation method, useful life and residual values are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment, whenever events or changes in circumstances indicate that the carrying amount may not be recoverable.

Upon retirement or disposal, the cost of the asset disposed of and the related accumulated amortization are removed from the accounts and any gain or loss is reflected in earnings. Expenditures for repairs and maintenance are expensed as incurred.

GOODWILL

Goodwill represents the excess of the purchase price over the fair value of the identifiable net assets acquired in a business acquisition. After initial recognition, goodwill is measured at cost less any accumulated impairment losses.

Goodwill is reviewed for impairment at least annually or more frequently if circumstances such as significant declines in expected sales, earnings or cash flows indicate that it is more likely than not that the asset might be impaired.

RESEARCH AND DEVELOPMENT

Research and development costs are expensed except in cases where development costs meet certain identifiable criteria for deferral. Development costs, which have probable future economic benefit, can be clearly defined and measured, and are incurred for the development of new products or technologies, are capitalized. These development costs net of related research and development investment tax credits are not amortized until the products or technologies are commercialized, at which time, they are amortized over the estimated life of the commercial production.

The amortization method and the life of the commercial production are assessed annually and the assets are tested for impairment.

IMPAIRMENT OF NON-CURRENT ASSETS

At the end of each reporting period, the carrying amounts of property and equipment and intangible assets with finite useful lives are assessed to determine if there is any evidence that an asset is impaired. If there is such evidence, the recoverable amount of the asset is estimated. The recoverable amount of intangible assets with indefinite useful lives or those are not ready for use is estimated on the same date each year.

The recoverable amount of an asset or a cash generating unit is the higher of value-in-use and fair value less costs to sell.

Assets that cannot be tested individually for the impairment test are grouped into the smallest group of assets that generates cash inflows through continued use that are largely independent of the cash inflows from other assets or groups of assets (“cash-generating unit” or “CGU”). For the impairment test of goodwill, goodwill has been allocated to one group of CGUs, so that the level at which the impairment is tested represents the lowest level at which Management monitors goodwill for internal Management purposes, in accordance with operating segment. Goodwill acquired in a business combination is allocated to the group of CGUs that is expected to benefit from synergies of the related business combination.

The Corporation’s corporate assets do not generate separate cash flows. If there is evidence that a corporate asset is impaired, the recoverable amount is determined for the CGU to which the corporate asset belongs. Impairments are recorded when the carrying amount of an asset or its CGU is higher than its recoverable amount. Impairment charges are recognized in income or loss.

Impairment losses recognized for a CGU (or group of CGU) first reduce the carrying amount of any goodwill allocated to that CGU and then reduce the carrying amounts of the other assets of the CGU (or group of CGU) pro rata on the basis of the carrying amount of each asset in the CGU (or group of CGU).

An impairment loss recognized for goodwill may not be reversed. On each reporting date, the Corporation assesses if there is an indication that impairment losses recognized in previous periods for other assets have decreased or no longer exist. An impairment loss is reversed if there has been a change in the estimates used to determine the recoverable amount. The increased carrying amount of an asset attributable to a reversal of an impairment loss shall not exceed the carrying amount that would have been determined (net of amortization or depreciation) had no impairment loss been recognized.

TAXATION

Income tax expense represents the sum of current and deferred taxes. Current and deferred taxes are recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss), except to the extent it relates to items recognized in other comprehensive income (loss) or directly in equity.

Current tax

The tax currently payable is based on taxable income for the year. Taxable income differs from earnings as reported in the consolidated statements of comprehensive income (loss) because of items of income or expense that are taxable or deductible in other years and items that are never taxable or deductible. The Corporation's liability for current tax is calculated using tax rates that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the reporting period.

Deferred tax

Deferred tax is recognized on temporary differences between the carrying amounts of assets and liabilities in the financial statements and the corresponding tax bases used in the computation of taxable income. Deferred tax liabilities are generally recognized for all taxable temporary differences. Deferred tax assets are recognized for all deductible temporary differences to the extent that it is probable that taxable income will be available against which those deductible temporary differences can be utilized. Such deferred tax assets and liabilities are not recognized if the temporary difference arises from goodwill or from the initial recognition (other than in a business combination) of other assets and liabilities in a transaction that affects neither the taxable income nor the accounting earnings.

Deferred tax liabilities are recognized for taxable temporary differences associated with investments in subsidiaries and associates, except where the Corporation is able to control the reversal of the temporary difference and it is probable that the temporary difference will not reverse in the foreseeable future. Deferred tax assets arising from deductible temporary differences associated with such investments and interests are only recognized to the extent that it is probable that there will be sufficient taxable income against which to utilize the benefits of the temporary differences and they are expected to reverse in the foreseeable future.

The carrying amount of deferred tax assets is reviewed at the end of each reporting period and reduced to the extent that it is no longer probable that sufficient taxable income will be available to allow all or part of the asset to be recovered.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are measured at the tax rates that are expected to apply in the period in which the liability is settled or the asset is realized, based on tax rates and tax laws that have been enacted or substantively enacted by the end of the reporting period. The measurement of deferred tax liabilities and assets reflects the tax consequences that would follow from the manner in which the Corporation expects, at the end of the reporting period, to recover or settle the carrying amount of its assets and liabilities.

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are offset when there is a legally enforceable right to set off current tax assets against current tax liabilities and when they relate to income taxes levied by the same taxation authority and the Corporation intends to settle its current tax assets and liabilities on a net basis.

STOCK-BASED COMPENSATION

The Corporation has one share option plan and accounts for grants under this plan in accordance with the fair value-based method of accounting for stock-based compensation. Compensation expense for equity settled stock options awarded to employees under the plan is measured at the fair value at the grant date using the Black-Scholes valuation model and is recognized using the graded vesting method over the vesting period of the options granted. Compensation expense recognized is adjusted to reflect the number of options that has been estimated by Management for which conditions attaching to service will be fulfilled as of the grant date until the vesting date so that the ultimately recognize expense corresponds to the options that have actually vested. The compensation expense credit is attributed to contributed surplus when the expense is recognized in income or loss. When options are exercised or shares are purchased, any consideration received from employees as well as the related compensation cost recorded as contributed surplus are credited to share capital.

Non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the goods and services received, except where that fair value cannot be estimated reliably. If the fair value cannot be measured reliably, non-employee equity-settled share-based payments are measured at the fair value of the equity instrument granted, measured at the date the entity obtains the goods or the counterparty renders the service. The Corporation subsequently measures non-employee equity-settled share-based payments at each vesting period and settlement date, with any changes in fair value recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Stock-based compensation expense is recognized over the contract life of the options or the option settlement date, whichever is earlier.

EARNINGS PER SHARE

Basic earnings per common share are computed by dividing the earnings for the period by the weighted average number of common shares outstanding during the period. Diluted earnings per share are computed using the treasury stock method by dividing the earnings for the period applicable to common shares by the sum of the weighted average number of common shares outstanding and all additional common shares that would have been outstanding if potentially dilutive common shares had been issued.

Dilutive earnings per share comprise of employee share-based compensation and broker warrants.

LEASES

The determination of whether an arrangement is or contains a lease is based on the substance of the arrangement and requires an assessment of whether the arrangement conveys a right to use the asset. When substantially all risks and rewards of ownership are transferred from the lessor to the lessee, lease transactions are accounted for as finance leases. All other leases are accounted for as operating leases.

Corporation is the lessee

Leases of assets classified as finance leases are presented in the consolidated statements of financial position according to their nature. The interest element of the lease payment is recognized over the term of the lease based on the effective interest rate method and is included in financial expense, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Payments made under operating leases are recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease.

PROVISIONS

Provisions represent liabilities to the Corporation for which the amount or timing is uncertain. Provisions are recognized when the Corporation has a present legal or constructive obligation as a result of past events, it is probable that an outflow of resources will be required to settle the obligation, and the amount can be reliably estimated. Provisions are measured at the present value of the expected expenditures required to settle the obligation using a discount rate that reflects current market assessments of the time value of money and the risks specific to the obligation. The increase in provisions due to the passage of time is recognized in “interest” on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Provisions are not recognized for future operating losses.

Provision for jackpot

Several of the Corporation’s licensees participate in progressive jackpot games. Each time a progressive jackpot game is played, a portion of the amount wagered by the player is contributed to the jackpot for that specific game or group of games. Once a jackpot is won, the progressive jackpot is reset with a predetermined base amount. The Corporation maintains a provision for the reset for each jackpot and the progressive element added as the jackpot game is played. The provision for jackpots at the reporting date is included in provisions (see note 19). The provision is sufficient to cover the full amount of any required payout.

Contingent consideration

The acquisition of Ongame includes contingent consideration of up to €10 million which will become payable by Amaya if there is regulated online gaming in the United States within five years of completion of the acquisition. The Corporation has estimated the contingent consideration to be approximately €4 million ($5.84 million CAD), of which (i) €0.67 million ($0.98 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); and (ii) €3.33 million ($4.86 million CAD) was paid.

Provision for minimum revenue guarantee

The sale of WagerLogic Ltd. includes a minimum revenue guarantee agreement pursuant to which the vendor, in the first two years following the closing, may pay cash consideration if certain revenue targets are not achieved by the InterCasino Business. The Corporation has estimated a provision for the minimum revenue guarantee to be approximately USD$10 million ($10.67 million CAD), of which (i) USD$3.64 million ($3.88 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) USD $4.39 million ($4.68 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities; and (iii) USD $1.97 million ($2.11 million CAD) was paid.

ROYALTIES

The Corporation licenses various royalty rights from several owners of intellectual property rights. These rights are used to produce games for use in Hosted Casino and Branded Games. Generally, the arrangements require material prepayments of minimum guaranteed amounts which have been recorded as prepayments in the consolidated statements of financial position. These prepaid amounts are amortized over the life of the arrangement as gross revenue is generated or on a straight-line basis if the underlying games are expected to have an effective royalty rate greater than the agreed amount. The amortization of these amounts is recorded as royalty expense.

The Corporation regularly reviews its estimates of future revenues under its license arrangements.

CRITICAL ACCOUNTING ESTIMATES AND JUDGMENTS

The preparation of financial statements in conformity with IFRS requires Management to make estimates and assumptions that can have a significant effect on the reported amounts of assets and liabilities, disclosure of contingent assets and liabilities at the date of the financial statements, and the reported amounts of revenues and expenses during the reporting period.

Estimates and judgments are significant when:

- the outcome is highly uncertain at the time the estimates are made; or
- different estimates or judgments could reasonably have been used that would have had a material impact on the consolidated financial statements.

The consolidated financial statements include estimates based on currently available information and Management's judgment as to the outcome of future conditions and circumstances. Management uses historical experience, general economic conditions and trends, as well as assumptions regarding probable future outcomes as the basis for determining estimates.

Estimates and their underlying assumptions are reviewed on a regular basis and the effects of any changes are recognized immediately. Changes in the status of certain facts or circumstances could result in material changes to the estimates used in the preparation of the financial statements and actual results could differ from the estimates and assumptions.

The following areas require Management's most critical estimates and judgments.

ESTIMATES

Goodwill

The recoverable amount of the operating segment, representing the group of CGUs to which goodwill is allocated, is based on the higher of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. The recoverable amount was calculated as at June 30, 2014, based on fair value less costs to sell. The fair value less cost to sell is the amount for which the CGU could be exchanged between knowledgeable willing parties in an arm's length transaction, less cost to sell. Management undertakes an assessment of relevant market data, which is the market capitalization of the Corporation and in addition uses a discounted cash flow model. Estimated future cash flows for the first five years were based on the budget and strategic plans. A growth rate of 2.5% was applied to the last year of the strategic plan to derive estimated cash flows beyond the initial five-year period. The post-tax discount rate is also a key estimate in the discounted cash flow model and is based on a representative weighted average cost of capital. The pre-tax discount rate used to calculate the recoverable amount as at June 30, 2014, was 12.00%. As at June 30, 2014, there was no need for impairment.

Impairment of other long-lived assets

The determination of other long-lived asset impairment requires significant estimates and assumptions to determine the recoverable amount of an asset and/or CGU, wherein the recoverable amount is the higher of fair value less costs to sell and value in use. The value in use method involves estimating the net present value of future cash flows derived from the use of the asset and/or CGU, discounted at an appropriate rate.

The key assumptions utilized in the determination of future cash flows represent Management's best estimate of the range of economic conditions relating to the CGU, and are based on historical experience, economic trends, and communications with other key stakeholders of the Corporation. These key assumptions include the revenue growth rate, EBITDA[1] margin as a percentage of revenues, capital expenditures as a percentage of revenues, and the inflation growth rate. Significant changes in the key assumptions utilized in the determination of future cash flows could result in an impairment charge or reversal of an impairment loss. As at June 30, 2014 and June 30, 2013, there was no need for an impairment charge.

Stock-based compensation and warrants

The Corporation estimates the expense related to stock-based compensation and the value of warrants using the Black-Scholes valuation model. The model takes into account Management's best estimate of the exercise price of the stock option/warrant, an estimate of the expected life of the option/warrant, the current price of the underlying stock, an estimate of the stock's/warrant's volatility, an estimate of future dividends on the underlying stock/warrant, the risk-free rate of return expected for an instrument with a term equal to the expected life of the option/warrant, and the expected forfeiture rate of stock options granted (see note 24).

Inventory write-down

Periodical reviews of the inventory are performed for excess inventory, obsolescence and declines in net realizable value below cost and allowances are recorded against the inventory balance for any such declines. The Corporation writes down the value of ending inventory for obsolete and unmarketable inventory equal to the difference between the cost of inventory and the net realizable value. These reviews require Management to estimate future demand for products and evaluate market conditions. Possible changes in these estimates could result in a write-down of inventory. If actual market conditions are less favourable than those projected, additional inventory write-downs may be required.

Research and development investment tax credits

Management has made a number of estimates and assumptions in determining the expenditures eligible for the research and development investment tax credit claim. Tax credits are available based on eligible research and development expenses consisting of direct expenditures and including a reasonable allocation of overhead expenses. It is possible that the allowed amount of the research and development investment tax credit claim could be materially different from the recorded amount upon assessment by the Canada Revenue Agency, the Minister of Revenue of Quebec and Alberta Finance.

Income taxes

Deferred tax assets and liabilities are due to temporary differences between the carrying amount for accounting purposes and the tax basis of certain assets and liabilities, as well as undeducted tax losses. Estimation is required for the timing of the reversal of these temporary differences and the tax rate applied. The carrying amounts of assets and liabilities are based on amounts recorded in the financial statements and are subject to the accounting estimates inherent in those balances. The tax basis of assets and liabilities and the amount of undeducted tax losses are based on the applicable income tax legislation, regulations and interpretations. The timing of the reversal of the temporary differences and the timing of deduction of tax losses are based on estimations of the Corporation's future financial results.

The Corporation recognizes an income tax expense in each of the jurisdictions in which it operates. However, actual amounts of income tax expense only become final upon filing and acceptance of the tax return by the relevant authorities, which occur subsequent to the issuance of the financial statements. Additionally, estimation of income taxes includes evaluating the recoverability of deferred tax assets based on an assessment of the ability to use the underlying future tax deductions before they expire against future taxable income.

1 EBITDA as defined by the Corporation means earnings before interest and financing costs (net of interest income), income taxes, depreciation and amortization, stock-based compensation, restructuring and other non-recurring costs, and non-controlling interests. EBITDA is a non-IFRS measure.

The assessment is based upon enacted or substantively enacted tax laws and estimates of future taxable income. To the extent estimates differ from the actual amounts determined when preparing the final tax returns, earnings would be affected in a subsequent period. As at June 30, 2014 a valuation allowance of $5,070,481 (2013 – $4,314,532) was recorded.

Changes in the expected operating results, enacted tax rates, legislation or regulations, and the Corporation's interpretations of income tax legislation, will result in adjustments to the expectations of future timing difference reversals, and may require material deferred tax adjustments. To the extent that forecasts differ from actual results, adjustments are recognized in subsequent periods.

Contingent consideration

The acquisition of Ongame includes contingent consideration of up to €10 million which will become payable by Amaya if there is regulated online gaming in the United States within five years of completion of the acquisition. The Corporation has estimated the contingent consideration to be approximately €4 million ($5.84 million CAD), of which (i) €0.67 million ($0.98 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); and (ii) €3.33 million ($4.86 million CAD) was paid.

Provision for minimum revenue guarantee

The sale of WagerLogic Ltd. includes a minimum revenue guarantee agreement pursuant to which the vendor, in the first two years following the closing, may pay cash consideration if certain revenue targets are not achieved by the InterCasino Business. The Corporation has estimated a provision for the minimum revenue guarantee to be approximately USD$10 million ($10.67 million CAD), of which (i) USD$3.64 million ($3.88 million CAD) is recorded in Provisions (see note 19); (ii) USD $4.39 million ($4.68 million CAD) is recorded in accounts payable and accrued liabilities; and (iii) USD $1.97 million ($2.11 million CAD) was paid.

JUDGMENTS

Finance leases

Judgement is required in the initial classification of leases as either operating leases or finance leases and, in respect of finance leases, determining the appropriate discount rate implicit in the lease to discount minimum lease payments. The useful life of the leased property is determined by Management at the inception of the lease. The useful life is based on historical experience with similar products as well as anticipation of future events, which may impact their useful economic life, such as changes in technology. The estimated fair values established at lease inception is periodically reviewed to determine if values are realizable, which depends on the credit risk of the lessee, market conditions and other subjective and qualitative factors.

Deferred Development Costs

Amounts capitalized include the total cost of any external products or services and labour costs directly attributable to development. Management's judgement is involved in determining the appropriate internal costs to capital i.e. The useful life represents Management's view of the expected period over which the Corporation will receive benefits from the software based on historical experience with similar products as well as anticipation of future events, which may impact their useful economic life, such as changes in technology.

Estimated useful lives of long-lived assets

Judgment is used to estimate each component of an asset's useful life and is based on an analysis of all pertinent factors including, but not limited to, the expected use of the asset and in the case of an intangible asset, contractual provisions that enable renewal or extension of the asset's legal or contractual life without substantial cost, and renewal history. If the estimated useful lives were incorrect, this could result in an increase or decrease in the annual amortization expense, and future impairment charges.

4. Change In Accounting Policies

Interests in Other Entities

The Corporation have adopted the following five standards applying to interests in other entities as at January 1, 2013:

IFRS 10, Consolidated Financial Statements;

IFRS 11, Joint Arrangements;

IFRS 12, Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities;

IAS 27, Separate Financial Statements (as amended in 2011); and

IAS 28, Investments in Associates and Joint Ventures (as amended in 2011).

IFRS 10 builds on existing principles by identifying the concept of control as the determining factor in whether an entity should be included within the consolidated financial statements of the parent company. The standard provides additional guidance to assist in the determination of control where this is difficult to assess.

IFRS 11 is intended to provide for a more realistic reflection of joint arrangements by focusing on the contractual rights and obligations of the arrangement, rather than its legal form. The standard addresses inconsistencies in the reporting of joint arrangements by establishing principles that are applicable to the accounting for all joint arrangements.

IFRS 12 is a new standard on disclosure requirements for all forms of interests in other entities, including joint arrangements, associates, special purpose vehicles, and other off-balance-sheet vehicles.

The IASB also issued Consolidated Financial Statements, Joint Arrangements and Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities: Transition Guidance (Amendments to IFRS 10, IFRS 11 and IFRS 12). The amendments clarify the transition guidance in IFRS 10, Consolidated Financial Statements and also provide additional transition relief in IFRS 10, IFRS 11, Joint Arrangements and IFRS 12, Disclosure of Interests in Other Entities.

IAS 27, as amended in 2011, contains accounting and disclosure requirements for investments in subsidiaries, joint ventures, and associates when an entity prepares separate financial statements. The standard requires an entity preparing separate financial statements to account for those investments at cost or in accordance with IFRS 9, Financial Instruments.

IAS 28, as amended in 2011, prescribes the accounting for investments in associates and sets out the requirements for the application of the equity method when accounting for investments in associates and joint ventures.

The adoption of these new IFRS pronouncements had no material impact on the measurement of the consolidated financial statements. However, application of IFRS 12 has resulted in more extensive disclosures in the consolidated financial statements.

IFRS 13, Fair Value Measurement

The Corporation adopted IFRS 13, Fair Value Measurement (“IFRS 13”) with prospective application from January 1, 2013. IFRS 13 defines fair value, sets out a single IFRS framework for measuring fair value and outlines disclosure requirements for fair value measurements.

IFRS 13 defined fair value as the price that would be received to sell an asset or paid to transfer a liability in an orderly transaction between market participants at the measurement date. Fair value is a market-based measurement, not an entity-specific measurement, so assumptions that market participants would use should be applied in measuring fair value.

The adoption of IFRS 13 did not have an effect on our Consolidated financial statements for the current period. The disclosure requirements of IFRS 13 are incorporated in the consolidated financial statements. This includes disclosures about fair values of financial assets and liabilities measured on a recurring basis and non-financial financial assets and liabilities measured on a non-recurring basis. Disclosures about assumptions used in calculating the fair value of assets classified as held for sale are included in the consolidated financial statements (note 11).

IAS 1, Presentation of Financial Statements

The Corporation adopted the amendments to IAS 1, Presentation of Financial Statements ("IAS 1") on January 1, 2013, with retrospective application. The amendments to IAS 1 require companies preparing financial statements under IFRS to group items within other comprehensive income that may be reclassified to profit and loss and those that will not be reclassified. Since there are is only one other comprehensive income item within our statement of comprehensive income (loss), there is no net impact on the presentation of our statement of comprehensive income (loss).

5. Recent Accounting Pronouncements

OFFSETTING FINANCIAL ASSETS AND FINANCIAL LIABILITIES (AMENDMENTS TO IAS 32)

Effective for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014, on a retrospective basis. Early application is permitted. If an entity applies this amendment earlier than required, it shall disclose that fact and shall also make the disclosures required by Disclosures—Offsetting Financial Assets and Financial Liabilities (Amendments to IFRS 7) issued in December 2011.

The Corporation has not yet assessed the impact of the adoption of this standard on its consolidated financial statements.

RECOVERABLE AMOUNT DISCLOSURES FOR NON-FINANCIAL ASSETS: AMENDMENTS TO IAS 36

The IASB has published Recoverable Amount Disclosures for Non-Financial Assets (Amendments to IAS 36). These narrow-scope amendments to IAS 36, Impairment of Assets, address the disclosure of information about the recoverable amount of impaired assets if that amount is based on fair value less costs of disposal.

The amendments are to be applied retrospectively for annual periods beginning on or after January 1, 2014. Earlier application is permitted for periods when the entity has already applied IFRS 13.

IFRS 9, FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

The IASB issued the chapters of IFRS 9 relating to the classification and measurement of financial assets. IFRS 9 uses a single approach to determine whether a financial asset is measured at amortized cost or fair value, replacing the many different rules in IAS 39. The approach in IFRS 9 is based on how an entity manages its financial instruments (its business model) and the contractual cash flow characteristics of the financial assets.

The IASB also issued additions to IFRS 9 to address the problem of volatility in profit or loss arising from an issuer choosing to measure its own debt at fair value (i.e., the "own credit" problem). With the new requirements, an entity choosing to measure a liability at fair value will present the portion of the change in its fair value due to change in the entity's own credit risk in the other comprehensive income section of the income statement (no longer recognized in profit or loss). Entities are allowed to apply this change before applying any of the other requirements in IFRS 9.

The IASB also published a new hedge accounting model, together with corresponding disclosures about risk management activity for those applying hedge accounting. The new model represents a substantial overhaul of hedge accounting that will enable entities to better reflect their risk management activities in their financial statements. The most significant improvements apply to those that hedge non-financial risk. As a result of these changes, users of the financial statements will be provided with better information about risk management and about the effect of hedge accounting on the financial statements.

Because the impairment phase of the IFRS 9 project has not yet been completed, the IASB decided to temporarily remove the mandatory effective date of IFRS 9 while continuing to make it available for earlier application. The hedge accounting chapter of IFRS 9 will not however be available for earlier application by those entities reporting under Canadian GAAP until the necessary due process, translation and publication processes have been completed by the AcSB.

On April 29, 2010 the Corporation entered into a subordinated debt agreement in the amount of $3 million which is disbursable in two tranches of $1.5 million each, closing no later than April 30, 2010 and 12 months after the first drawing respectively, pursuant to the conditions of the related loan agreement. On April 30, 2010, the first tranche amounting to $1.5 million was disbursed. The Corporation did not draw on the second $1.5 million tranche and has waived its rights to draw on the second tranche. The subordinated debt is repayable in equal monthly instalments over a five-year period. The loan bears interest at the annual rate of 14% plus an additional interest representing 1% of yearly gross sales of the Corporation for the first $25 million of sales and an additional 0.20% for sales over $25 million. In the event that only the first drawing is disbursed by the lender, the calculation of the additional interest shall be adjusted to 0.5% of the first $25 million of the Corporation’s gross sales for a given year, and to 0.1% of the Corporation’s gross sales exceeding $25 million for a given year. Any amount, principal or interest, which is not paid when due will bear interest at the annual rate of 25% until it is paid in full.

Under the terms of the subordinated debt agreement with the lender, the Corporation is required, amongst other conditions, to maintain at all times certain ratios. As at June 30, 2014, the Corporation was not in breach of the terms of the subordinated debt agreement.

The subordinated debt is convertible into voting and participating shares of the Corporation upon an event of default by the Corporation under the terms of the related loan agreement, at the discretion of the lender. In the event the lender exercises the conversion privilege as a result of an event of default, the conversion is based on the greater of (i) the book value of the common shares of the Corporation on the basis of the most recent audited consolidated financial statements or, at the lender's sole discretion, the most recent unaudited consolidated quarterly financial statements of the Corporation, provided that such book value shall not be less than one cent per share, and (ii) the minimum price authorized by the applicable policies of the TSX if the Corporation is listed on such Exchange. The fair value of the long-term debt was established using information for comparative debt instruments and the Corporation concluded that there was no significant equity component.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RISK

The Corporation is mainly exposed to foreign currency fluctuations on its accounts receivable, receivable under finance lease, cash, restricted cash, customer deposits, income tax receivable, income tax payable, and accounts payable and accrued liabilities. As at June 30, 2014, the Corporation's significant foreign exchange currency exposure on these financial instruments by currency was as follows:

EUR	293,000
GBP	(529,000)
MXN	414,000
SEK	(159,000)

The Corporation does not hedge these exposures. This exposure is monitored by the Corporation's reporting system and is reviewed by Management on a monthly basis.

INTEREST RATE RISK

The Corporation is exposed to fair value interest rate risk with respect to its subordinated debt, other long-term debt and convertible debentures which bear a fixed rate of interest. The Corporation is exposed to cash flow interest rate risk on its bank indebtedness and senior secured term loan, which bears interest at variable rates. A one percentage point increase (decrease) in interest rates would have decreased (increased) pre-tax earnings by approximately $896,901 in the period, with all other variables held constant. Management monitors movements in the interest rates by reviewing the Bank of Canada prime rate and LIBOR on a quarterly basis.

CREDIT RISK

The Corporation, in the normal course of business, monitors the financial condition of its customers and reviews the credit history of each new customer. The Corporation establishes an allowance for doubtful accounts that corresponds to the credit risk of its specific customers, historical trends and economic circumstances. The Corporation is exposed to credit risk in the event of non-payment by certain customers for their accounts receivable. The Corporation has focused on reducing customer concentration and growing its base of Tier 1 operators.

Details of the Corporation's accounts receivable were as follows:

	June 30, 2014 $	December 31, 2013 $
Not past due	32,180,208	31,464,575

Allowance for doubtful accounts	(1,831,731)	(1,494,284)
Outstanding, end of period	51,135,515	47,460,201

The Corporation's maximum exposure to credit risk is equal to the carrying value of accounts receivable as set out on the statement of financial position.

LIQUIDITY RISK

Liquidity risk is the Corporation's ability to meet its financial obligations when they come due. The Corporation is exposed to liquidity risk with respect to its contractual obligations and financial liabilities. The Corporation manages liquidity risk by continuously monitoring forecast and actual cash flows and matching maturity profiles of financial assets and liabilities. The Corporation's objective is to maintain a balance between continuity of funding and flexibility through borrowing facilities available through the Corporation's bank and other lenders. The Corporation's policy is to ensure adequate funding is available from operations, established lending facilities and other sources as required.

The Corporation believes that future cash flows generated by operations and availability under its borrowing facility will be adequate to meet its financial obligations.

27. Fair value

The Corporation has determined that the carrying values of its short-term financial assets and liabilities approximate their fair value because of the relatively short periods to maturity of these instruments.

The carrying amount of receivable under finance leases approximates their fair value since the interest rate approximates current market rates. On initial recognition the fair value of amounts receivable under finance leases and long-term debt was established using a discounted cash-flow model.

The carrying amounts of long-term debts approximate their fair value since the interest rates on these instruments either approximate the current market rates offered to the Corporation or the interest rates in these instruments change with market interest rates. On initial recognition the fair value of long-term debt was established based on current interest rates, market values and pricing of financial instruments with comparable terms.

The Corporation held shares and debentures of a publicly traded company which it classified as financial assets at fair value through profit and loss, carried at a fair value, with gains and losses recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss).

28. Capital Management

The Corporation’s objective in managing capital is to ensure a sufficient liquidity position to market its products, to finance its sales and marketing activities, research and development activities, general and administrative expenses, working capital and overall capital expenditures, including those associated with property and equipment. The ability to fund these requirements in the future depends on the Corporation’s ability to access additional capital and generate additional cash flow from its operations.

Since inception, the Corporation has financed its liquidity needs, primarily through bank indebtedness, borrowings, hybrid instruments such as special warrants and issuance of capital stock. When possible, the Corporation tries to optimize its liquidity needs by non-dilutive sources, including loans payable and promissory notes.

The Corporation defines capital as its total shareholders’ equity. To date, the Corporation’s policy is to maintain a minimum level of debt, although debt will be considered as part of financing initiatives in the future.

The Corporation’s credit facility includes a revolving demand credit facility of $3 million. As at June 30, 2014, $nil (December 31, 2013 – $nil) has been used to finance the Corporation’s daily operations.

The capital management objectives listed above have not changed since the previous fiscal year.

The Corporation believes that funds from operations, as well as existing and future financial resources should be sufficient to meet the Corporation’s requirements until June 30, 2015.

DIAMOND GAME

The acquisition of Diamond Game has been accounted for using the acquisition method and the results of operations are included in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) from the date of acquisition, which is February 14, 2014.

The following table summarizes the estimated fair value of the identifiable assets and liabilities acquired at the date of acquisition:

	Fair value on acquisition $
Cash and cash equivalents	39,546

Trade and other receivables	1,718,606

Cash consideration	17,870,851
Holdback on Purchase Price	7,000,000
Total consideration	24,870,851

Of the USD$24.87 million consideration paid by Amaya in connection with the acquisition of Diamond Game, there was a holdback of USD $7 million.

The main factors leading to the recognition of goodwill are the synergistic growth and revenues expected to be created from the strong strategic fit between Amaya and Diamond Game. Diamond Game presents a variety of opportunities to leverage each business' product and intellectual property suite across a broader combined platform with greater geographic presence and creates revenue synergies by expanding Amaya's penetration in the United States, accelerating Amaya's penetration in Lottery markets, and potentially extending Diamond Game's offering into new markets in Canada and Europe.

If the acquisition had occurred on January 1, 2014, Diamond Game would have contributed USD$9.80 million and USD$0.72 million to consolidated revenues and net income respectively. Since the date of acquisition, Diamond Game has contributed USD$7.37 million and USD$0.66 million to consolidated revenues and net income respectively.

Acquisition-related costs directly related to the Diamond Game acquisition was USD$1,145,834 and was expensed in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss) during the year ended December 31, 2013 and in the period ended March 31, 2014.

36. Net earnings per share

The following table sets forth the computation of basic and diluted loss per common share from continuing operations for the three and six month period ended June 30, 2014 and 2013.

	For the three month period ended		For the six month period ended
	June 30, 2014 $	June 30, 2013 $	June 30, 2014 $	June 30, 2013 $

Effect of dilutive securities	4,558,263	2,811,170	4,149,369	2,791,877

Diluted earnings (loss) per common share	(0.03)	(0.13)	0.37	(0.22)

For the three month period ended June 30, 2014 and the three and six month period ended June 30, 2013, the diluted loss per share was the same as the basic net loss per share since the dilutive effect of stock options, warrants and other convertible instruments was not included in the calculation; otherwise the effect would have been anti-dilutive. Accordingly, the diluted loss per share for the period was calculated using the basic weighted average number of common shares outstanding.

37. Sale of WagerLogic Malta Holdings Ltd.

On February 11, 2014, the Corporation announced that pursuant to a share purchase agreement dated November 27, 2013, one of its subsidiaries has completed the previously announced sale to Goldstar Acquisitionco Inc. of all of the issued and outstanding shares of WagerLogic Malta Holdings Ltd. for $70 million, less a closing working capital adjustment satisfied through cash consideration of $52.5 million and a vendor take-back in the form of a promissory note of $10 million, bearing interest at 6.0% per annum payable semi-annually in arrears starting in the second year following the closing date and due on the fourth anniversary of the closing date. The purchase price is subject to customary post-closing adjustments.

Subsidiaries of Amaya will continue to supply WagerLogic with software, services and content to power the InterCasino Business pursuant to a services agreement.

Overview

Founded in 2004, Amaya Gaming Group Inc. ("Amaya" or the "Corporation") is engaged in the design, development, manufacturing, distribution, sale and service of technology-based gaming solutions for the regulated gaming industry worldwide. Amaya's objective is to become a leading provider of technology-based gaming solutions while maintaining a steadfast commitment to the highest levels of integrity and responsibility.

Amaya provides products, services and systems to land-based and online gaming operators, government bodies and the hospitality industry. Amaya's solutions are designed to provide end users with popular, engaging and cutting-edge content across multiple formats and through a secure technology environment, and thereby improve the profitability, productivity, security and brand of the operator.

The Corporation offers a true ecosystem of physical, virtual and mobile gaming solutions to capitalize on the convergence of physical and interactive gaming. The Corporation believes such convergence can help operators achieve a higher yield per customer by enabling them to acquire a customer through one medium (physical or interactive) and then leverage its existing brand, marketing and loyalty programs, and a common wallet to cross sell its other offerings.

Amaya has developed its portfolio of solutions through both internal development and strategic acquisitions. Throughout its history, Amaya has continually strived to improve its offering of solutions and services to address both the markets it serves as well as new domestic and international opportunities.

Products and Services

Amaya has one reportable segment, Diversified Gaming Solutions, which in the second quarter ended June 30, 2014 consisted primarily of the following categories of solutions and services: business-to-business ("B2B") interactive gaming solutions, land-based gaming solutions, and lottery solutions.

Interactive Gaming Solutions

Amaya's interactive gaming solutions include:

i. An online casino solution including Amaya's Casino Gaming System ("CGS"), a remote gaming server that provides gaming operators access to Amaya's library of hundreds of online casino games from Amaya and multiple best-of-breed third party content developers, available through a seamless integration of Amaya's CGS with the operator's software platform. Amaya's games offering includes online and mobile slot, video poker and table games including branded content and top games from several other leading games suppliers in the industry, available to operators through a single integration of the CGS to their platform. Amaya's CGS also includes a powerful back office solution including reporting functionality, configuration capability, and bonus offering provision capability, as well as customer service and risk support. Amaya's interactive gaming offering was expanded by its acquisitions of online casino pioneers Chartwell Technology Inc. ("Chartwell"), a leading developer and provider of an online casino gaming platform and online casino gaming titles, in July, 2011; and, CryptoLogic Ltd. ("CryptoLogic"), a developer and provider of an extensive library of online casino games as well as online casino software and services, in April, 2012.

ii. Related services including technology, customer service and risk support, as well as promotional and marketing services for affiliate management, product and games operation and management, website development, player retention, search engine optimization, business intelligence/analytics, and customer relationship management.

iii. Amaya's Ongame poker software and network solutions. Amaya acquired this poker platform through its acquisition of Ongame Networks Ltd. ("Ongame") in November, 2012. Ongame offers a complete business-to-business online poker solution for gaming operators that allows them to offer poker under their own brand and through their own custom designed web portals while participating in a poker network of players from Ongame's gaming operator licensees.

iv. The Amaya Game Office player management software platform ("AGO"), which was launched in 2013 following Amaya's integration of Ongame. The AGO platform provides gaming operators with support for multiple custom-built web portals/brands on all devices with the ability to offer all interactive gaming verticals including online casino, poker, sportsbook (betting) and bingo. It allows for the seamless integration of content for these verticals from Amaya and third-party providers. It also incorporates best of breed third party customer relationship management, business intelligence, and marketing tools which are tightly integrated to provide marketers with the ability to run seamless end-to-end automated campaigns and promotions. All customer and game data are available through a central repository data warehouse. Related services include end-user technical support, software maintenance and hosting services, software security and backup services, payment and anti-fraud services.

v. Amaya's all-in-one Mosino hospitality platform, targeting hospitality industry participants as well as gaming operators. Depending on the environment, the Mosino software platform can provide: digital concierge services that manage all guest requests/communication on a single platform as well as revenue producing services such as Internet/Wi-Fi access for all guest devices anywhere on the resort, video-on-demand service with continuously updated content, and online casino including peer-to-peer or house-banked games, through networked or stand-alone play. All aspects of Mosino can be managed from a single system, with management, reporting and attendant portals that can be used by the customer's employees, with systems updates, maintenance, training and support available to the operator. Mosino acts as a private cloud in the operator's facility. Any web enabled device, including TVs, laptops, tablets and mobile phones, can interact with the entire Mosino system, with no app download required.

Land-based Gaming Solutions

Amaya's land-based gaming solutions consist primarily of games and game systems, and related services and support, for the Mexican gaming market and Class II and Class III gaming markets in the United States of America ("U.S."), including Tribal casinos, commercial casinos, charitable gaming establishments/bingo halls, the video lottery terminal (VLT) market and racetracks. They include:

i. Through its subsidiary Cadillac Jack Inc. ("Cadillac Jack"), acquired in November, 2012, Amaya designs, manufactures and markets a dynamic portfolio of electronic games and systems for the regulated global gaming industry, offering a variety of high performing, feature-rich products designed for premium player experiences, with a variety of game themes, bonus options and math models; progressive product lines including wide area, local area and multi-level progressives which offer players rewarding jackpots across a variety of cabinet styles and games; and slot management services and systems, including tools to monitor and balance the mix of gaming machines on a casino floor. It develops content and technologies specific to the needs of each of the markets it serves, notably the Class II and Class III Tribal and Commercial gaming markets in the U.S. and the Mexican gaming market. Cadillac Jack's gaming machines feature proprietary games from a library of more than 100 game titles, with new titles developed on a continuous basis, that are available in multiple cabinet configurations.

ii. Through its subsidiary Diamond Game Enterprises ("Diamond Game"), acquired subsequent to year end in February, 2014, Amaya develops products for the VLT, Class II bingo, and Class III commercial casino and racetrack markets. Diamond Game's library of over 60 games contains entertaining features such as the patented WINometer, multi-denomination progressives, random bonusing, and popular licensed music, with games available in multiple cabinet configurations.

Lottery Solutions

Amaya's Lottery Solutions are designed to permit gaming jurisdictions to exploit additional sources of revenue. They consist primarily of the following:

i. Instant Ticket Vending Machines

Diamond Game's primary lottery product is the LT-3 instant ticket vending machine (ITVM). The LT-3 is an electronic ticket dispenser that dispenses pre-printed instant scratch or break open/pull-tab tickets on each play but also with video animation of the game result to enhance entertainment and bring excitement to the player experience. Diamond Game's full library of game themes is available for all LT-3 cabinet types, and the game result can be displayed using various video animation options including pull tab display, scratch display, popping symbols or spinning reels. The LT-3 is designed for 'stay and play' use, creating longer play sessions and higher sales volumes, to assist lotteries with expanding their existing retailer base into less traditional venues, such as bars, taverns, bingo halls, veteran's halls, and social clubs. Through Diamond Game, Amaya holds multiple patents related to the unique devices. The ITVMs can be linked across locations to a robust central system that provides accounting records. Through Diamond Game, Amaya can provide a turnkey solution including the machines, tickets, central system, and service.

ii. Mobile Lottery

Amaya's mobile based lottery solution is a software platform that operates lotteries via mobile and cellular devices, allowing participants to play popular lottery games using mobile and cellular technology. Mobile technology simplifies deployment and reduces logistical costs for the lottery/gaming operator as it doesn't require a network of ticket distributors and retail outlets, while ensuring higher levels of assurance over customer identification, thereby promoting lottery integrity.

Acquisitions

The Corporation announced in early 2011 that in order to further strengthen its market position and facilitate its anticipated growth, it intended to selectively assess acquisition opportunities based on the target company's jurisdictional status, the degree of synergy between the target company's technologies and Amaya's core technologies, and the extent to which the target company had a customer base that was complementary to Amaya's. Since that time, Amaya has completed multiple strategic acquisitions that have significantly expanded its diversified gaming solutions, delivering channel capability and expanded market reach. The increased scope and scale of Amaya's gaming solutions subsequent to the acquisitions have also resulted in the Corporation shifting its focus from emerging markets to significantly larger markets, notably the U.S. and Europe, where its acquired companies have established operations and customer relationships.

On July 14, 2011, Amaya completed the acquisition of all of the outstanding shares of Chartwell. Since November of 1999, Chartwell had been focused primarily on the development, marketing and licensing of its gaming software and was certified or licensed to offer a range of services in all of the leading regulated online gaming markets. Chartwell was a leading provider of games, gaming systems and gaming platform for the regulated online casino gaming industry. Its games library included more than 100 proprietary and third-party licensed online casino titles including branded content, slots, table games and a live dealer product, which it licensed to online casino operators along with its Chartwell Games Platform, which included rapid games deployment architecture and a powerful back office solution.

On April 3, 2012, Amaya announced that following its acquisition of 80.79% of the issued share capital of CryptoLogic, it took control of the board of CryptoLogic. It subsequently completed the purchase of the remaining outstanding share capital of CryptoLogic. A pioneer in online casino, CryptoLogic was founded in 1995 and was a leading developer and supplier of Internet gaming software. With more than 300 games, CryptoLogic had one of the most comprehensive casino suites on the Internet, with award-winning games featuring branded content including some of the world's most famous action and entertainment characters. CryptoLogic provided software licensing, e-cash management and customer support services for its Internet gambling software to an international client base including many top Internet gaming brands.

On November 1, 2012, Amaya announced that it had completed the purchase of Ongame from bwin.party digital entertainment plc. Ongame is a provider of poker software and network solutions.

On November 5, 2012, Amaya announced that it had completed the purchase of Cadillac Jack, an acquisition previously announced on September 25, 2012.

On February 14, 2014, Amaya announced that it had closed its acquisition of Diamond Game, a private and arms-length company.

On August 1, 2014, Amaya announced that it had closed its acquisition of Rational Group, one of the world's largest online gaming companies and owner and operator of the PokerStars and Full Tilt brands. In addition to operating two of the largest online poker sites where it has dealt more than 100 billion poker hands and held over 800 million online tournaments, the group is the largest producer of live poker events around the world.

Second quarter and Subsequent Highlights

Rational Group Acquisition

On August 1, 2014, Amaya announced that it had completed the acquisition of 100% of the issued and outstanding shares of privately held Oldford Group Limited ("Oldford Group"), the parent company of Isle of Man-headquartered Rational Group Ltd. ("Rational Group"), the owner and operator of the PokerStars and Full Tilt Poker brands, in an all-cash transaction for an aggregate purchase price of USD$4.9 billion (the "Purchase Price"), including certain deferred payments and subject to customary purchase price adjustments (the "Acquisition").

The Rational Group operates business-to-consumer ("B2C") gaming and related businesses and brands including PokerStars, Full Tilt Poker, the European Poker Tour, PokerStars Caribbean Adventure, Latin American Poker Tour and the Asia Pacific Poker Tour. These brands collectively form the largest poker business in the world, comprising online poker games and tournaments, live poker competitions and poker programming created for television and online audiences. The online poker platforms PokerStars and Full Tilt Poker are collectively the world's most popular and profitable online poker brands with more than 85 million registered players on desktop and mobile devices. In addition to operating two of the largest online poker sites where it has dealt more than 100 billion poker hands and held over 800 million online tournaments, the group is the largest producer of live poker events around the world.

Rational Group's businesses are among the most respected in the industry for delivering high-quality player experiences, unrivalled customer service, and innovative software. The Group employs industry-leading practices in payment security, game integrity, and player fund protection, offering customer support in 29 languages. The Rational Group holds more online poker licenses than any other e-gaming company, and works closely with regulators around the world to help establish sensible global regulation.

Amaya intends to strongly support Rational Group's growth initiatives in new gaming verticals, including casino, sportsbook and social gaming, and new geographies. On July 21, 2014, Amaya announced that a selection of its online casino games had been launched on Full Tilt Poker to bolster the site's expansion into casino gaming. Earlier this year, Full Tilt began expanding its game portfolio by offering a range of single- and multi-player variations of Blackjack and Roulette as well as online slots. Rational Group has enhanced its online slots offering with the integration of Amaya's Casino Gaming System, completed in July, 2014, and in the future will further leverage Amaya's international reach and product pipeline for additional offerings.

Rational Group employs more than 1,700 people globally and is consistently selected as one of the "Best Workplaces" in the UK, Ireland and Costa Rica by the Great Places to Work Institute.

The Purchase Price (excluding certain deferred payments) and fees and expenses relating to the Acquisition and the related financing that were paid by closing of the Transaction were financed through a combination of cash on hand, new debt, a private placement of subscription receipts, a private placement of common shares and a private placement of non-voting convertible preferred shares, allocated as follows:

- USD$1.05 billion of convertible preferred shares, which were subscribed for as follows: USD$600 million were subscribed by funds or accounts managed or advised by GSO Capital Partners LP or its affiliates (collectively, "GSO"); approximately USD$270 million were subscribed for by certain funds or accounts managed or advised by BlackRock Financial Management, Inc. or its affiliates (collectively, "BlackRock"); and, Canaccord Genuity purchased from treasury, on an underwritten bought-deal private placement basis, approximately USD$180 million. The Convertible Preferred Shares will not be listed on any exchange but, subject to legal limitations, will be freely transferable at the option of a holder. Each Convertible Preferred Share has an initial principal amount of C$1,000 and is convertible, at the holder's option, initially into approximately 41.67 common shares of the Corporation based on the conversion price of C$24 per common share, in each case, subject to adjustments including 6% accretion to the conversion ratio, compounded semi-annually. The Corporation may, at any time after the first three (3) years of issuance, give notice of its election to cause all of the outstanding Convertible Preferred Shares to be automatically converted, subject to certain conditions. The terms of the convertible preferred shares are included in the Corporation's Management Information Circular dated June 30, 2014, which was filed on SEDAR.

- $640 million of subscription receipts at $20 per subscription receipt (the “Subscription Price”), underwritten on a bought deal, private placement basis, which were automatically converted on a one-to-one basis into common shares upon closing of the Acquisition. BlackRock purchased approximately USD$55 million of the subscription receipts. The Subscription Price represented a premium of approximately 66.4% to the closing price of C$12.02 per common share on the TSX on June 11, 2014, the last trading day prior to the announcement of the Acquisition, and a premium of approximately 108.5% over the 30-trading day volume-weighted average price of C$9.59 per common share on the TSX, up to and including June 11, 2014.
- GSO purchased USD$55 million of common shares at C$20 per share.
- Senior Secured Credit Facilities in the aggregate principal equivalent amount in US Dollars of approximately $2.92 billion, fully underwritten by Deutsche Bank AG New York Branch (“Deutsche Bank”), Barclays Bank PLC (“Barclays”), and Macquarie Capital (USA) Inc. (“Macquarie Capital”), and consisting of the following:
  - a USD$1.75 billion seven-year first lien term loan priced at Libor plus 4.00%, and a €200 million seven-year first lien term loan priced at Euribor plus 4.25%, in each case with a 1.00% floor;
  - a USD$100 million five-year first lien revolving credit facility priced at Libor plus 4.00%, none of which was drawn at completion; and
  - an USD$800 million eight-year second lien term loan priced at Libor plus 7.00%, with a 1.00% floor.
- Approximately USD$213 million from cash on hand, which includes the USD$50 million deposit made on June 12, 2014, the date of the announcement of the Acquisition.

Both GSO and BlackRock participated in the debt financing.

In connection with the Transaction, and as consideration for GSO’s and BlackRock’s significant role in the financing of the Transaction, the Corporation has granted 11 million common share purchase warrants to GSO (the “GSO Warrants”) and 1.75 million common share purchase warrants to BlackRock (the “BlackRock Warrants”, collectively with the GSO Warrants, the “Rational Group Warrants”), each with an exercise price of C$0.01 and exercisable for a term of 10 years, as payment for a portion of the fees payable to the two parties.

Oldford Group recorded consolidated revenues of approximately USD$1.133 billion (2012 – USD$976 million) and net income of USD$422 million (2012 – USD$314 million) in the fiscal year ended December 31, 2013. Oldford Group recorded consolidated revenues of approximately USD$487 million (2013 – USD$464 million) and net income of USD$193 million (2012 – USD$167 million) in the five months ended May 31, 2014.

Further details on the Acquisition, including financial statements for the Oldford Group, are included in public filings made on SEDAR, including press releases related to the Acquisition, the Corporation’s Management Information Circular related to its Annual and Special Meeting of Amaya Shareholders held July 30, 2014, and a Business Acquisition Report.

2014 Full Year Financial Guidance

Due to the Corporation's acquisition of Rational Group, whose results will be consolidated under Amaya's as of August 1, 2014, Amaya has updated its 2014 full year financial targets, originally identified May 15, 2014:

- Revenue of $669 to $715 million, compared to originally identified target range of $193 to $203 million
- Adjusted EBITDA of $265 to $285 million, compared to originally identified target range of $77 to $86 million

The updated targets reflect the following:

- Consolidating five months of results from the Rational Group
- Elimination upon consolidation of the contribution that was originally included in Amaya's May guidance from the integration of its online casino games onto Rational Group's Full Tilt casino offering, as Rational Group is now a wholly owned subsidiary of Amaya

Other Highlights

On May 15, 2014, Amaya's wholly-owned subsidiary Cadillac Jack, Inc. ("Cadillac Jack") obtained credit facilities from FS Investment Corporation and FS Investment Corporation II for the purpose of financing working capital expenses and general corporate purposes of the Amaya group. These lending entities are advised by FB Income Advisor, LLC and FSIC II Advisor, LLC, respectively, and sub-advised by an affiliate of GSO Capital Partners LP, Blackstone's credit business. The credit facilities provide for (1) an incremental US$80 million term loan to Cadillac Jack's existing US$160 million senior term loan, with the new aggregate principal amount of US$240 million bearing interest at a per annum rate equal to LIBOR plus 8.50% with a 1% LIBOR floor (the "Senior Facility"); and (2) mezzanine debt in the form of a subordinated term loan in the aggregate principal amount of US$100 million, bearing interest at a per annum rate equal to 13%; provided, at the option of Cadillac Jack, interest accruing at a per annum rate of 7% may instead be paid in-kind in lieu of cash (the "Mezzanine Facility", and collectively with the Senior Facility, the "New Facilities"). The Senior Facility will mature over a 5-year term and the Mezzanine Facility will mature over a 6-year term from the closing date. The Senior Facility is secured by the assets of Cadillac Jack and its subsidiaries. The Mezzanine Facility is unsecured. Amaya has provided an unsecured guarantee of the obligations under the New Facilities of Cadillac Jack in favour of the lenders. The New Facilities contain customary covenants, including, without limitation, maintenance and incurrence covenants based on certain agreed-upon leverage and coverage ratios. Amaya has agreed to grant the lenders, in relation to the Mezzanine Facility, with 4 million common share purchase warrants (the "CJ Warrants") entitling the holders thereof to acquire one common share of Amaya. The CJ Warrants initially had an exercise price of $15 per Common Share, which was subsequently adjusted to $19.17 per Common Share effective as of June 20, 2014, representing the 5-day VWAP of the Common Shares on the TSX following the announcement of the agreement to acquire the Rational Group. The CJ Warrants may be exercised during a period of 10 years from the date of issuance, and they are not listed on the TSX.

On April 1, 2014, Amaya announced that one of its subsidiaries has entered into a licensing agreement with Fertitta Acquisitions Co, LLC, d/b/a Ultimate Gaming ("Ultimate Gaming"), a majority-owned subsidiary of Station Casinos LLC, to provide online casino gaming content to Ultimate Gaming in New Jersey, subject to all applicable jurisdictional licensing requirements and regulatory approvals. Under the Agreement, the online gaming website ucasino.com, operated by Ultimate Gaming for its licensed gaming partner Trump Taj Mahal Associates, LLC, in New Jersey, will offer a wide selection of Amaya's proprietary games that are available on its Casino Gaming System ("CGS") platform. The Agreement allows for the potential integration of other gaming websites operated by Ultimate Gaming to CGS in the future.

On April 16, 2014, Amaya announced that its subsidiary Cadillac Jack has entered into multiple agreements to ship approximately 1,100 gaming machines to existing and new customers in the United States, with installation of the machines anticipated to occur in the second quarter of 2014. The shipments are primarily comprised of outright sales of gaming machines, but also include the upgrading of some existing revenue share generating gaming machines. The majority of units shipped will be Class II machines, but will also include some sales of Class III machines to customers based in Oklahoma and California. Amaya also announced that Cadillac Jack had received a license to provide its land-based solutions to Class III gaming operations in Wisconsin. All machines were manufactured and shipped by the last week of June.

On May 2, 2014, Amaya announced that its subsidiary Cadillac Jack had received approval from New Jersey's Division of Gaming Enforcement (the "DGE") to utilize its Genesis DV1 slot machine platform and associated hardware and software, including top performing game titles Fire Wolf, Siberian Siren, and Legend of White Buffalo, in the state. Cadillac Jack has subsequently obtained multiple transactional waivers to begin supplying machines to Atlantic City casinos

Amaya's corporate strategy consists of extending its market footprint by facilitating the delivery of gaming content across physical and interactive media. Amaya's strategy is reinforced by its existing portfolio of developed and acquired technologies. Amaya continues to focus on the creation of long-term shareholder value and further develop its core strength as a gaming technology provider.

Amaya markets its solutions to gaming operators licensed in regulated gaming jurisdictions, as well as governments and hospitality industry operators. The Corporation's most significant markets are presently in North America, Europe and Latin America & the Caribbean. Amaya aims to increase its penetration within these markets.

Amaya intends to target expansion of its interactive gaming solutions, including into newly regulated markets, notably in the U.S. The U.S. Department of Justice recently issued an opinion on its stance on online gaming, to the effect that only sports betting is subject to the Federal Wire Act of 1961 and all other forms of online gambling is permitted. As a result, three states, New Jersey, Delaware and Nevada, have subsequently regulated online gaming. Amaya's acquisitions, and subsequent integration and product development efforts, have provided it with the scope and scale to participate in the nascent real money online gaming market in the U.S. Amaya received transactional waivers from the New Jersey Division of Gaming Enforcement in 2013 to supply technology for real money online gaming websites operated by licensed permit holders in New Jersey. In late November 2013, real money online gaming went live in New Jersey, the third and thus far largest U.S. state to have approved it, following Nevada and Delaware. Amaya has thus far announced agreements to supply five of the seven current permit holders licensed to operate real money online gaming websites within the state of New Jersey. The Corporation intends to offer its interactive gaming solutions to other online gaming operators, and will look to do so in other states as well as a regulatory framework is implemented in them.

Specific to land-based solutions, Amaya, notably through its subsidiary Cadillac Jack, has a strong position in the provision of gaming machines to the Class II Tribal and Mexican gaming markets. It is also expanding its presence in the much larger Class III tribal and commercial gaming markets. To do so, it is actively seeking to obtain new Class III and commercial gaming licenses in the U.S. and other regulated gaming markets to expand the addressable market to whom it can provide its gaming solutions. It focuses on marketing its solutions to licensed gaming operators that are expanding or opening new operations, seeking to upgrade their existing solutions and business intelligence, or aiming to reduce reliance on their existing suppliers of gaming machines.

Finally, with the acquisition of Diamond Game completed, Amaya intends to market its lottery solutions to governments and lottery operators looking to generate new sources of revenue by modernizing traditional lottery products with enhanced entertainment and delivery systems. Currently, Amaya's lottery solutions, notably its ITVMs, are placed in four North American jurisdictions through the relevant lottery authority. Amaya intends to market its lottery solutions to lottery operators in other jurisdictions.

Data compiled by gambling industry consultants H2 Gambling Capital, released as at February 27, 2014, projects total global gambling market gross win to increase to approximately €392 billion (10.5% from interactive gaming) in 2018 from an estimated €316 billion in 2013 (8.2% from interactive gaming), with gambling divided into the product verticals of Betting, Casino, Lotteries, Gaming Machines and Bingo/Other Gaming and Interactive Gaming divided into the product verticals of Betting, Casino, Poker, State Lotteries, Bingo, and Skill/Other Gaming/Commercial Lotteries. Management believes that Amaya is well positioned to grow by leveraging its cutting-edge technology, its regulatory status and potentially through strategic acquisitions to gain market share within the industry.

In the second quarter ended June 30, 2014, Amaya was a business-to-business ("B2B") provider of diversified gaming solutions to licensed gaming operators and government bodies. However, with the Corporation's Acquisition of Rational Group, the Corporation's primary revenue provider, beginning in the third quarter of 2014, will be Rational Group's business-to-consumer ("B2C") gaming and related businesses and brands.

Financial Condition

The Corporation's asset base increase of approximately $250,000,000 was driven by the proceeds of the Corporation's sale of WagerLogic for aggregate gross proceeds of $62,500,000, an incremental facility of USD$80,000,000 to Cadillac Jack's existing senior term loan, mezzanine debt of USD$100,000,000, and the acquisition of Diamond Game.

Based on the Corporation's current revenue expectations, the funds available from the Corporation's private placement of debt and shares, the funds available from refinancing of its senior secured term loan and mezzanine debt, and the funds available from the WagerLogic sale, Management believes the Corporation will have the cash resources to satisfy current working capital needs for at least the next 12 months.

The revenue increase in the Latin America and the Caribbean for the six month period ended June 30, 2014 relative to the six month period ended June 30, 2013 is primarily attributable to increased sales of gaming machines.

The revenue increase in North America for the six month period ended June 30, 2014 relative to the six month period ended June 30, 2013 is primarily attributable to growth in Cadillac Jack's revenues in the U.S. and the acquisition of Diamond Game whose customer base is predominantly North American.

The revenue decrease in Europe for the six month period ended June 30, 2014 relative to the six month period ended June 30, 2013 is primarily attributable to the decrease in hosted casino revenue driven by the sale of WagerLogic and the decrease in B2B interactive gaming software licensing revenue.

Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

BASIS OF PRESENTATION

These consolidated financial statements, including comparatives, have been prepared in accordance with International Financial Reporting Standards ("IFRS") as issued by the International Accounting Standards Board ("IASB") and interpretations of the International Financial Reporting Standards Interpretations Committee ("IFRIC").

These consolidated financial statements were prepared on a going concern basis, under the historical cost convention, except for the revaluation of certain financial instruments.

PRINCIPLES OF CONSOLIDATION

A subsidiary is an entity controlled by the Corporation, i.e. the Corporation is exposed, or has rights, to variable returns from its involvement with the entity and has the ability to affect those returns through its current ability to direct the entity's relevant activities (power over the investee).

The existence and effect of substantive potential voting rights that the Corporation has the practical ability to exercise (i.e. substantive rights) are considered when assessing whether the Corporation controls another entity.

The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries. A wholly owned subsidiary is an entity over which the Corporation has control, where control is defined as the power to govern financial and operating policies. On consolidation, all significant inter-entity transactions and balances have been eliminated. As at June 30, 2014, the consolidated financial statements included 58 wholly owned subsidiaries.

Upon loss of control of a subsidiary, the Corporation's profit or loss is calculated as the difference between (i) the fair value of the consideration received and of any investment retained in the former subsidiary and (ii) the previous carrying amount of the assets (including any goodwill) and liabilities of the subsidiary and any non-controlling interests.

ASSOCIATES

Associates are entities over which the Corporation has the power to participate in the financial and operating policy decisions of the entity, but which is not control or joint control. Associates are accounted for using the equity method of accounting.

Under the equity method, the investment is initially recognised at cost and adjusted thereafter for the post-acquisition change in the investor's share of comprehensive income of the associate. On acquisition of the investment, any difference between the cost of the investment and the investor's share of the net fair value of the associate's identifiable assets, liabilities and contingent liabilities is accounted for in accordance with IFRS 3 Business Combinations. The goodwill (net of any accumulated impairment loss) relating to an investment in an associate is included within the carrying amount of that investment.

The Corporation's share of its associates' post-acquisition profits or losses is recognised in the statement of profit or loss, and its share of post-acquisition movements in other comprehensive income is recognised in other comprehensive income. The cumulative post-acquisition movements are adjusted against the carrying amount of the investment. Distributions received from an investee reduce the carrying amount of the investment.

If the Corporation's share of losses of an associate equals or exceeds its interest in the associate, the Corporation does not provide for additional losses, unless it has incurred obligations or made payments on behalf of the associate. Profits / losses on Corporation transactions with associates are eliminated to the extent of the Corporation's interest in the relevant associate.

NON-CURRENT ASSETS HELD FOR SALE

Non-current assets that are expected to be recovered primarily through sale rather than through continuing use are classified as held for sale. Immediately before classification as held for sale, the assets are re-measured at net book value less impairment loss. Assets held for sale are measured at the lower of their carrying amounts or their fair value less costs to sell and are no longer depreciated. Impairment losses on initial classification as held for sale and subsequent gains or losses on re-measurement are recognized in profit or loss. Gains are not recognized in excess of any cumulative impairment loss.

REVENUE RECOGNITION

Revenue is recognized when all the following criteria are met:

- the Corporation has transferred to the buyer the significant risks and rewards;
- the amount of revenue can be reliably measured;
- it is probable that the economic benefits associated with the transaction will flow to the Corporation; and
- the costs incurred or to be incurred in respect of the transaction can be reliably measured.

Multiple-element revenue arrangements

Certain contracts of the Corporation include license fees, training, installation, consulting, maintenance, product support services and periodic upgrades.

Where such agreements exist, the amount of revenue allocated to each element is based upon the relative fair values of the various elements. The fair values of each element are determined based on current market price of each of the elements when sold separately. Revenue is only recognized when, in Management's judgment, the significant risks and rewards of ownership have been transferred or when the obligation has been fulfilled.

In addition to the aforementioned general policies, the following are the specific revenue recognition policies for each major category of revenue:

Product Sales

Revenue from product sales is generally recognized when the product is shipped to the customer and when there are no unfulfilled Corporation obligations that affect the customer's final acceptance of the arrangement. Any cost of warranties and remaining obligations that are inconsequential or perfunctory are accrued when the corresponding revenue is recognized.

Participation leases and arrangements

In contracts that stipulate profit sharing arrangements, revenues are earned based on revenue splits established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. Revenues are recognized when performance has been achieved and collectability is reasonably assured.

Software Licensing

Typically, license fees, including fees from master license agreements, most of which are contingent upon licensee's customer usage, are calculated as a percentage of each licensee's level of activity. The percentage is as established in the contracts and can vary depending on the contracts. The Corporation only reports its revenues (as opposed to licensee's total revenues and deducting licensee's percentage as a cost). The license fees are recognized on an accrual basis as earned.

Hosted Casino

Revenues from Hosted Casino are recognized as the services are performed, on a daily basis, at the time of the gambling transactions.

Lease revenues

In the course of its normal business the Corporation enters into lease agreements for its gaming equipment.

Assets subject to finance leases are initially recognized at an amount equal to the net investment in the lease, which is the fair value of the asset, or, if lower, the present value of the minimum lease payments. Revenue is recognized on the basis of policy for product sales. Finance income is subsequently recognized over the term of the applicable leases based on the effective interest rate method. Finance income is grouped with the revenues, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Assets under operating leases are included in property and equipment. Lease income from operating leases is recognized on a straight-line basis over the term of the lease and is included in revenues, in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

TRANSLATION OF FOREIGN OPERATIONS AND FOREIGN CURRENCY TRANSACTIONS

Functional and presentation currency

IAS 21 (''Effects of Changes in Foreign Currency Rates'') requires entities to consider primary and secondary indicators when determining the functional currency. Primary indicators are closely linked to the primary economic environment in which the entity operates and are given more weight. Secondary indicators provide supporting evidence to determine an entity's functional currency. Once the functional currency of an entity is determined, it should be used consistently, unless significant changes in economic facts, events and conditions indicate that the functional currency has changed.

A change in functional currency is accounted for prospectively from the date of change by translating all items into the new functional currency using the exchange rate at the date of change.

Based on an analysis of the primary and secondary indicators, the functional currency of each of the group's entities have been determined. These consolidated financial statements are presented in Canadian dollars, which in the opinion of Management is the most appropriate presentation currency in view of its operations in the global marketplace, user needs and a comparison with its major competitors.

Transactions and balances

Foreign currency transactions are translated into the functional currency using the exchange rates prevailing at the dates of the transactions or valuation where items are re-measured. Foreign exchange gains and losses resulting from the settlement of such transactions and from the translation at year-end exchange rates of monetary assets and liabilities denominated in foreign currencies are recognized in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Group companies

Each foreign operation determines its own functional currency and items included in the financial statements of each foreign operation are measured using that functional currency.

The results and financial position of all the group entities that have a functional currency different from the presentation currency are translated into the presentation currency as follows:

(i) assets and liabilities for each balance sheet presented are translated at the closing rate at the date of that balance sheet;

(ii) income and expenses for each statement of comprehensive income (loss) are translated at average exchange rates (unless this average is not a reasonable approximation of the cumulative effect of the rates prevailing on the transaction dates, in which case income and expenses are translated at the rate on the dates of the transactions); and

(iii) all resulting exchange differences are recognized in other comprehensive income (loss).

The following functional currencies are referred to herein below:

Currency Symbol	Currency Description
CAD	Canadian Dollar
USD	United States Dollar
EUR	European Euro
GBP	Pound Sterling
MXN	Mexican Peso
SEK	Swedish Krona

BUSINESS COMBINATION

Business combinations are accounted for using the acquisition method. Under this method, the identifiable assets acquired and liabilities assumed, including contingent liabilities, are recognized, regardless of whether they have been previously recognized in the acquiree's financial statements prior to the acquisition. On initial recognition, the assets and liabilities of the acquired subsidiary are included in the consolidated statement of financial position at their fair values. Goodwill is recorded when the identifiable intangible assets have been determined. Goodwill is the excess of the fair value of the consideration transferred over the fair value of the Corporation's share in the acquiree's net identifiable assets on the date of acquisition. Any excess of the identifiable net assets over the consideration transferred is recognized in income immediately.

The consideration transferred by the Corporation to acquire control of a subsidiary is calculated as the sum of the acquisition-date fair values of the assets transferred, liabilities incurred and equity interests issued by the Corporation, including the fair value of all the assets and liabilities resulting from a contingent consideration arrangement. Acquisition related costs are expensed as incurred.

OPERATING SEGMENTS

Currently the Corporation has only one operating segment, Diversified Gaming Solutions. The Corporation's operating segment is organized around the markets it serves and is reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting provided to the Chairman and Chief Executive Officer, the Corporation's chief operating decision-maker. An operating segment is a component of the Corporation that engages in business activities from which it may earn revenues and incur expenses, including revenues and expenses relating to transactions with other components of the Corporation.

Segmental information is reported in a manner consistent with the internal reporting to the chief operating decision-makers. On the basis that the Group's activities are operated largely through a common infrastructure and support function the business segment information is not reported below the revenue level. Similarly no measure of segment assets is given due to the highly integrated nature of the Group's operations.

FINANCIAL INSTRUMENTS

Financial assets

Financial assets are initially recognized at fair value and are classified either as "fair value through profit and loss"; "available-for-sale"; "held-to-maturity"; or "loans and receivables". The classification depends on the purpose for which the financial instruments were acquired and their characteristics. Except in very limited circumstances, the classification is not changed subsequent to initial recognition.

Fair Value through Profit or Loss

Financial assets at fair value through profit or loss are financial assets held-for-trading. A financial asset is classified in this category if acquired principally for the purpose of selling in the short-term or if so designated by Management. Financial assets classified at fair value through profit or loss are measured at fair value, with the realized and unrealized changes in fair value recognized each reporting period on the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). No financial assets are classified as fair value through profit or loss.

Available-for-sale

Available-for-sale assets are non-derivative financial assets that are either designated in this category or not classified in any of the other categories. They are included in other non-current financial assets unless Management intends to dispose of the investment within twelve months of the consolidated statements of financial position date. Financial assets classified as available-for-sale are carried at fair value with the changes in fair value recorded in other comprehensive income (loss), except for investments in equity instruments that do not have a quoted market price in an active market which are measured at cost. Interest on available-for-sale assets is calculated using the effective interest rate method and is recognized in the net loss. When a decline in fair value is determined to be other-than-temporary, the cumulative loss included in accumulated other comprehensive income (loss) is removed and recognized in the consolidated statement of comprehensive income (loss). Gains and losses realized on disposal of available-for-sale securities are recognized in the statement of comprehensive income (loss).

Held-to-maturity and loans and receivables
